Senlis, France, July 15—(By the A. P.)—Premier Poincare today proclaimed the French government's unalterable decision resolutely to stand for the complete execution of the Versailles peace treaty with the German debt at 132,000,000,000 gold marks as agreed upon by the allies, and against any international financial committee to replace the reparation commission.

M. Poincare in his address said France had finished the making of concessions of Germany. She was tired of temporizing with that country. The premier's strongly worded address, while carefully refraining from mentioning the speech of Stanley Baldwin, the British prime minister, in the House of Commons last week is considered as the French government's preliminary answer to the British position with regard to the occupation of the Ruhr.

M. Poincare chose for his pronouncement this town, which marks the farthest advance of the Germans and where the Germans executed hostages, placed civilians in the line of the French fire and burned part of the town in reprisal against alleged civil resistance. The premier based his conclusions on France's legal rights under the treaty "signed by twenty-eight nations and which cannot be considered after four years as an antediluvian fossil."

M. Poincare professed to have no hatred and no spirit for revenge for the devastation, the traces of which were visible from where he spoke. "We should like no longer to talk of devastation or to think of it," he declared. "We should like to forget—even to forgive."

France, said M. Poincare, had been no better treated in reparations than in the concessions wrung from her and the security denied her. "In the reparation commission, established under the treaty," he said, "we are in the minority, although ours is the major intreest. Nevertheless it has been fought for four years to relieve this commission of its powers, to replace it with international financial committees so as to attempt to coalesce against us interests opposed to ours."

The peace treaty, the premier continued, established conditions under which the commission should fix the German debt. "There was a pretense of respecting those conditions," he added, "but the debt hardly had been fixed when there was imposed upon us one of those supreme councils, where we always left behind us some of our rights, a schedule of payments that the commission accepted reluctantly and which reduced our claim in undetermined proportions. We then accepted this schedule of payments as an international convention, as an engagement of honor pledged to us."

A few months later, Premier Poincare asserted, this schedule was again questioned, "as certain of our friends seemed no longer to have any other thought than to lighten the German debt, and as they themselves were our creditors, we told them there are three kinds of bonds provided fro. Let us keep our part of the first wto, as for the third, we will use them against Germany only in proportion as our creditors ask us to pay our debts. Still we were found too exacting."

The premier said France was reproached for not having sufficient regard for Germany, and for exposing her to disaster that would affect all other nations.

"And yet," he declared, "has not Germany been so well looked after during three whole years that she has been allowed to default on all her obligations, so that we had to pay with our own money 100 billion francs she owed us and has not paid?

Has she not been allowed to rebuild her commercial fleet and develop her canals and railroads and enrich her great industries at the expense of her creditors?"

M. Poincare asked if anyone imagined that Germany would stabilize the mark and put her house in order, "if France watched with arms folded."

"For three years," he said, "the allies have followed this mirage, and for three years things have been going from bad to worse. If we were not in the Ruhr Germany would have continued to slip into the abyss she dug, but we would have been empty handed, while now we hold security, and we are powerful enough not to have to let go."

France, the premier asserted, unceasingly had been making concessions. "Then," he added, "why have we said we have reached the end? It is because until now they always have been at our expense. "The peace treaty had promised reparations and security. For security "France had been given the right of temporary occupation on the Rhine that was to cease at the precise moment Germany should become stronger."

France also had been promised a guaranty pact, but this had not been fulfilled and nothing had been offered to replace it, for the "new guaranty pact proposed by Mr. Lloyd George was for a shorter time than occupation and without precise engagements. Military aid was nothing, it was only a dangerous deception."

M. Poincare emphasized the government's and his own personal feeling in favor of close relations between France and Great Britain. He recalled that it was he who brought about the alliance with Great Britain before the war when others were advocating better relations between France and Germany.

The premier concluded with what was interpreted as a carefully worded reminder of France's supreme position on the continent and the danger of attacking the treaty of Versailles, for, he said, "through a breach opened in the Versailles treaty other propositions would pass that would reopen the entire peace settlement, destroy the new status of central Europe and menace our friends, Czechoslovakia, Rumania and Jugoslavia."

HOW POINCARE'S SPEECH IS VIEWED IN LONDON

London, July 15 (By the A. P.)—The speech of Premier Poincare at Senlis today, although avoiding direct allusion to Premier Baldwin pronouncement or the present negotiations, was none the less an indirect reply to the British prime minister, and from that viewpoint, according to reports of the speech received in London, showed hardly a trace of any accommodating spirit, such as recent reports from Paris had led the people here to expect.

On the point of superseding the reparation commission by any international body, such as is supposed will be suggested in the British note to Germany, M. Poincare was distinctly opposed, declaring that such commission would constitute a coalition of all the interests opposed to France.

If Premier Poincare's speech is France's last word, it is taken as boding ill to any progress in the present negotiations and will certainly be received in England with great disappointment.

Perhaps the only hopeful aspect is that M. Poincare makes no public complaint of the tone or tenor of Mr. Baldwin's pronouncement and disavows any territorial ambitions.

FUNERAL SERVICE FOR U. S. SENATOR DILLINGHAM

Waterbury, Vt., July 15.—Funeral services for United States Senator William P. Dillingham, of Vermont, who died here Thursday night were held today at the Wesley Methodist church. About 350 federal and state officials, led by Vice President Calvin Coolidge, attended the services. The senator, who was in his 80th year, failed to rally from an operation performed three weeks ago. He had been United States senator from Vermont since 1900.

Among those present from Washington were United States Senators Richard P. Ernst, of Kentucky; Ralph H. Cameron, of Arizona; Park Trammell, of Florida and Frank L. Green, of Vermont; Walter W. Husband, commisioner general of immigration, Carl A. Loeffler, assistant sergeant-at-arms of the United States senate, and Mrs. F. A. Ainsles, assistant director fog the budget bureau.

The Vermont delegation, headed by Governor Redfield Proctor, included Lieutenant Governor Franklin S. Billings, Orlando L. Martin, United States collectors of customs for Vermont, and Congressman Porter H. Dale and Frederick H. Fleetwood, as wellas members of the state and county bar associations.

Others at the funeral were three college presidents, G. W. Bailey, of the University of Vermont, Charles A. Chimley, of Norwich university, and John M. Thomas, of Pennsylvania State college.

"Senator Dillingham was one of the great men of the nation.

"He was an all round figure, a wise statesman, a sound lawyer, and able administrtor of business and a faithful friend. He was successful in the noblest sense. Because he lived the world is better."

More than 500 people from the town and vicinity passed by the body of Senator Dillingham as it lay in the church before the funeral. During the day his portrait, draped in black, hung before the post office and other public buildings.

TELEPHONE STRIKERS ARE TO CONTINUE THEIR FIGHT

Boston, July 15—Julia S. O'Connor, president of the Telephone Operators' department, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and leader of the present strike of operators in New England, today declared that the effect of the refusal of the New England Telephone and Telegraph company to agree to the arbitration of strikers' demands made their offer to return to work null and void and that from now on the strikers would continue their fight for a seven-hour day and higher wages.

Miss O'Connor made this statement at the meeting of the Boston Central Labor Union. A proposal to have the Massachusetts legislature order an investigation of the situation in Massachusetts was approved and the executive board of the central body was instructed to draw up a bill to be submitted to the convention of the Massachusetts State branch, American Federation of Labor, which opens in Worcester on August 13, to be approved and urged as a state labor measure.

STATEMENT BY ANDERSON, ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE HEAD

Huntington, N. Y., July 15.—Repeating the charge that politics were back of the second grand jury investigation into his affairs, William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, declared tonight that Tammany politicians had abandoned hope of convicting him, even should an indictment be returned. He charged, however, that they still were striving to obtain an indictment in the belief that it would destroy his influence. Mr. Anderson spoke at the regular Sunday night services at the Methodist Episcopal church.

"I had a representative last winter, unknown to the wets," he said, "who circulated among Tammany politicians who knew all the inside dope. They all admitted that they had nothing on me, many of them admitting it with curses and lamentations and the expression of desire that I be 'railroaded' in any event. They said frankly that there was no expectation of convicting me, but that an indictment was to be used, if one could be secured, to destroy my influence, to demoralize the Anti-Saloon League, to get me out of the way of the repeal of the stals, enforcement code and out of the way of Governor Smith's chances in 1924."

Mr. Anderson renewed his attack on District Attorney Joab H. Banton who was charged with having departed from the exact line of his official duty and through propaganda tries to convict an individual in the public mind by ex parte statements for their subconscious effect upon the jury." He declared the district attorney was "acting in his own behalf to serve his own political ends or the political ends of the forces that control him."

It was recalled here that District Attorney Banton, in New York, said last night that he would make public all correspondence between himself and Mr. Anderson relating to the grand jury investigation. He said this would be done tomorrow in order to clear his office of charges that corrupt political motives actuated the grand jury investigation.

Mr. Anderson concluded his address tonight by declaring he had proved "to the satisfaction of every fair-minded person the deals that have been pulled off between Tammany and certain republican leaders to betray law enforcement republicans and elect Tammany wets."

"Governor Whimtan was betrayed," he said. "An effort was made to betray Governor Miller, which failed the first time and succeeded the second time. The next deal slated to be pulled off is one in which the beneficiaries are to be Governor Smith and young Theodore Roosevelt, one a beer nullification democrat and the other a beer nullification republican."

He charged the "deal" would extend to an attempted "betrayal of President Harding and the national republican party in the campaign of 1924."

DRY FORCES TO OPPOSE ELEVATION OF BRANDEGEE

Washington, July 15—Yes, Senator Brandegee is on our 'wet' list.

This emphatic response from the Washington officials of the Anti-Saloon league gives a measure of the relation with which "wets" here are hailing the expected elevation of the Connecticut senator to the chairmanship of the senate judiciary committee to which is referred matters affecting prohibition laws.

The sudden shift affecting Mr. Brandegee has been brought about by the death of Senator Dillingham of Vermont, who had been slated to head of the committee following the death of Nelson of Minnesota, a stout dry. Thus, is also assured a New Englander leading the important judiciary committee. Senator Brandegee may resign his chairmanship of the joint library committee if he takes this new post, as is expected.

The death of Dillingham makes Senator McLean of Connecticut ranking member of the influential finance committee. Only Smoot of Utah and La Follette of Wisconsin are ahead of him.

Mr. Brandegee has been commanding attention in the local press for another reason today. Washington papers devote space to the rumored rupture between Ambassador Harvey and Secretary of State Hughes and note that Mr. Harvey is now secluded at the country home of Mr. Brandegee near this city.

AUTOMOBILE OVERTURNED; THREE PERSONS KILLED

Danbury, Conn., July 15.—Three persons were killed and one probably fatally injured when an automobile in which they were riding overturned while descending a hill on the Danbury-New Milford state road four miles east of Danbury tonight.

The dead are: Archie Hewell, of 156 Henry street, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tyler of Danbury. The later two died in an ambulance while being taken to Danbury hospital. Hewell was killed instantly.

Herman Schroeder, of 824 Ninetieth street, Wood Haven, L. I., owner and driver of the car, is said to have lost control of th wheel, causing the machine to careen sideways and roll over three times. The occupant were caught in the car. Schroeder suffered a fractured skull and it is feared he may not recover.

Others in the car were Max Simon, of Danbury, father of Mrs. Tyler and Miss Theresa Hoffman, of 1072 Putnam avenue, Brooklyn. Mr. Simon was injured about the body and some ribs broken. Miss Hoffman escaped unhurt.

President Harding as Locomotive Engineer

Was in Charge of Engine for 26 Miles—Mrs. Harding Was in the Cab.

Talkeetna, Alaska, July 15—(By the A. P.)—President Harding, as head of the government, drove one of his own locomotives today over his own railroad. He and Mrs. Harding had as much fun as two youngsters on their first train trip.

When the train arrived at Wasilla on the Alaska railway, Mr. and Mrs. Harding went up to the engine and climbed into the cab. The chief executive, after brief instructions, took the throttle and drove to Willow. He was in charge of the engine for twenty-six miles, which was traveled in 51 minutes. Mrs. Harding occupied the fireman's side of the cab.

The engineman said that Mr. Harding was a good engineer, but the dining car steward disagreed. This functionary pointed out that in stopping the train the pilot had jerked the cars so severely that sieven cups were broken in the diner.

While the engine took water the president visited with some section men at work nearby. He helped them paint a new bunkhouse, wielding the brush vigorously. He discovered that Leroy Harden, son of the second boss, was born on the day the people elected Mr. Harding president. The eminent traveler gave the lad a dollar bill.

The Hardings while going to Fairbanks, the northern terminus of the railway, from Seward, its southern end, have been spending much of their time in a speeder. This is an automobile with flanged steel wheels fitting the rails. Traveling in this behind the train is much better than staying in the presidential private car. Mrs. Harding assured members of the party.

PRESIDENTIAL PARTY NEAR THE ARCTIC CIRCLE

Fairbanks, Alaska, July 15—(By the A. P.)—President Harding has reached a point further north than any other American president and with his arrival in Fairbanks tonight he was within 150 miles of the arctic circle. His arrival here marked the end of a two and one half days ride over the government railroad from Seward, and tomorrow he gins the trip south over the Richardson trail.

SENATORIAL ELECTION IN MINNESOTA TODAY

St. Paul, Minn., July 15 (By the A. P.)—Harding or LaFollette—that is the issue in today's special United States senatorial election in Minnesota, leading politicians of that state declare.

Governor J. A. O. Preus, twice chosen chief executive of the state and the republican candidate to succeed the late Senator Knute Nelson is an adherent of the Harding administration. He was nominated in the June 13 primaries from a field of nine.

Opposing him is Magnus Johnson, farmer-laborite, whose announced intention is to affiliate with the LaFollette group in congress if he is elected.

The third candidate is James A. Carley, state senator, and the democratic choice, conceded no prospect of victory even by prominent members of his own party.

There are 800,000 qualified voters in the state; in the special primary last month only a few more than 300,000 votes were cast.

Just what the vote will be tomorrow is problematical. On its size, republican leaders say, depends the fortune of their candidate. The other party heads urge "a vote of the majority" to make the decision cleancut.

While republican spokesmen were saying last night that Governor Preus "would be elected if the republican voters turn out" the farmer-laborite headquarters made an outright prediction of victory for Johnson by "at least 40,000 votes."

The principal gauge in measuring the relative strength of Governor Preus and Johnson is the general election last fall, when Governor Preus was re-elected chief executive over Johnson by a plurality of 14,000 votes.

In the same election Dr. Henrik Shipstead, farmer-labbrite, was sent to the United States senate, defeating Senator Frank B. Kellogg, republican, decisively.

Three Men Killed In Political Quarrel

Mayor of Mexicala and 14 Adherents Are Barricaded in City Hall.

Mexicali, Lower Calif., July 15.—Mayor Juan Loera, of Mexicali and fourteen adherents, all heavily armed, today were barricaded in the city hall, where last night, in what was described as a political quarrel, three were killed and 30 wounded, including the mayor and two councilmen, according to surveys made by the police.

The barricaded men were reported to have declared they never would surrender. Among them were three wounded, including Alternate Councilman Quirino Luna, who was expected to die.

"We have gone into permanent session and have laid the facts before President Obregon and are awaiting his orders," was the word the barricaded group sent out.

At noon today a cordon was drawn around the building an none allowed to enter except physicians and bearers of ice water. No food was permitted to go to the besieged.

The clash last night was said to be the result of an effort by Mayor Loera and the alternate councilmen to resist a decree of the regular council, issued several weeks ago, declaring the mayor's office vacant.

TRIUMPH SCORED BY PREMIER MUSSOLINI

Rome, July 15.—(By The A. P.)—At the conclusion of his speech in the Italian chamber of defence of his electoral reform bill, Premier Mussolini today scored a triumph quite unprecedented in the annals of the Italian parliament. Deputies from all the sections except the extreme left, including even some of the Catholic party, rushed upon him and carried him shoulder high around the chamber, while those in the tribunes rose to their feet and sang Fascist songs.

Former Premiers Orlando and Giolitti were among the first to shake hands with Mussolini and congratulate him, the premier was deeply touched by the unique demonstration.

Not less than 400 deputies heard Mussolini defend his bill against the attacks made upon it by the strong opposition. With reference to the populists, who have had differences with the premier, resulting in the resignation from the cabinet of all the ministers belonging to the Catholic party, Mussolini said:

"The collaboration of the populists is not clear and is too veiled to be appreciated by the government. In politics the government is absolutely intransigeant and is not aiming at small acts, and the collaboration proposed by the populaists is matimasian. Fascism has in its hands the power and will hold it. Revolution has not been talked of since we expressed the will to maintain our power."

Regarding the accusation that his bill was suppressing liberty, he asked "What is liberty," and declared "there is no such thing as absolute liberty, yet many forms of liberty exist. The socialists always assert that there is liberty, and clamor for liberty of work; yet these same socialists do not hesitate to commit injuries against free work."

Turning to the socialists he exclamed: "In Russia is there liberty of assembly, of parliament?" and he answered emphatically "no."

HUGE GERMAN VESSEL MAKES MAIDEN VOYAGE

New York, July 15.—The Albert Ballin, largest trans-Atlantic vessel put into service by German since the war, arrived today on her manden voyage, a floating museum of maritime innovations and of modernistic "new German" art.

Stabilizers, consisting of anti-rolling tanks at the water line, claimed to prevent tossing of the ship and thus save passengers the pangs of sea sickness, were said by ships' officers to head a long lise of new passenger ship devices used, they said, for the first time in the new liner. The stabilizers, it was said, were used successfully on German submaries during the war.

Public halls and cabins of the Albert Ballin were decorated with 6,000 art objects in the "new German" style.

Max Warnholts senior director of the Hamburg Line, who was a passenger, declared it unlikely that Germany would build vesscls of the size of the Leviathan, the Berengaria, and the Majestic for some time to come.

The Albert Ballin is 602 feet long and has a speed of 16 knots.

PHILADELPHIA MAN WAS KIDNAPPED BY CONVICTS

Was Taken on a Thrilling Ride in His Sedan by Six Prisoners Who Escaped From the Eastern State Penitentiary—Had Many Narrow Escapes from Collisions With Other Automobiles—Was Trussed and Gagged and Left in the Woods as the Desperadoes Disappeared on Foot.

Philadelphia, July 15.—While the police continued their search throughout this and surrounding states for the six convicts who yesterday made a daring escape from the Eastern state penitentiary, Thomas J. McAllister, Jr., tester for a local automobile sales concern, returned to this city and told a thrilling story of how he had been kidnapped by the convicts, his big sedan stolen and of the wild ride with the desperadoes to Elkton, Md. About a mile from Elkton the convicts left him tied, trussed and gagged in a woods and disappeared on foot. Early today McAllister managed to free himself, drove into Elkton, reported his experiences to the police and then telephoned his wife, who had been on the verge of collapse, that he was safe. He was unable to furnish any clue to the present whereabouts of the convicts.

Virtually every detective in the local bureau is searching for the escaped convicts. Late today they were summoned to Pennsburg, Pa., in the Perkiomen valley, to identify a suspect, believed to be one of the fugitives. He was not the hunted man, however.

With his wife's arms about his shoulders and all but exhausted from twenty-eight hours of nervous tension without sleep, McAllister recited his harrowing tale in the Central police station. One of the most interesting features of the story was his description of how the convicts had overpowered a farmer at Ogden, Md., with sawed-off shotguns and pistols, and after binding and gagging his wife and four children had ransacked the house. They robbed the farmer of $200 and a quantity of clothing and then stocked the motor car with food from his pantry.

McAllister said the men overtook him in a truck. He said he was forced out of his machine at the point of a revolver. All the men were armed with revolvers. He was later thrown into the rear of the sedan and the fugitives started off.

Louis A. Edwards, who was brought to the penitentiary from Reading, took the wheel, said McAllister. Thomas J. Gillian, sentenced to ten to fifteen years for complicity in the holdup of a bank runner, who at first seemed to be the boss and brains of the entire affair, sat beside Edwards.

"Edwards was the best automobile driver I have ever come in contact with," he said. "He drove like fury. No car in the world would ever have caught us. James L. Malone, holdup man, had a revolver which he insisted on shoving into my ribs. He said to me: 'Now, come along and be a good sport. Don't holler because it won't do you any good. One crack out of you and it's your last.'

After telling of the flight through the city, during which he said they had many narrow escapes from collisions with other automobiles, McAllister said that Edwards sped south into the open country, where he stepped on the gas and "let her out to the limit." All the time, he said, the convicts kept up a running conversation of their escape and declaring that they would never be captured alive. George Brown, he said, told the others that it had taken him thirty-six hours to construct the ladder, while Edwards boasted of how he had "used his head" and disconnected the telephone from the sentry box in the prison yard.

"We detoured around Chester," continued McAllister, "and a little later Edwards said to the others: 'Boys, we got to get some clothes. The wires will be hot now.' We were passing a farmhouse and Edwards drove the car right up to the house. It was Anthony Smith's place, about five miles from Wilmington. Two of the men with revolvers in their hands took me by the sleeves and we walked into the kitchen.

"The convicts thoroughly ransacked the place. Before they left they took up a collection among them and raised about $30, which one of them ran back and left with Smith. Among the loot they obtained were a shotgun and revolver, which Edwards said would 'come in handy for the state police.' There were also shotgun shells in the bottom of the car when I got back with my guard."

From the farmhouse McAllister said the convict car took a back road to Wilmington. Driving at terrific speed through the center of the city, they narrowly missed hitting a policeman on Market street. This, however, did not slow them up. They did not slacken speed, he said, until after passing Newark, Delaware. About a mile below that city Edwards drove the car into a woods to await darkness.

They tied McAllister's hands and feet with part of the coat they had taken from Smith's house. One man tore off all the buttons of his shirt and made a gag which they put in his mouth. They left him in the car and told him not to move until daylight. They then went away.

"I started to wiggle about five minutes after they left," continued McAllister. "But Edwards came back with his revolver in his hand and with an oath and a kick said: 'If you try to get away before daylight we'll plug you. Don't move, you rat!' When they finally disappeared I started wiggling myself loose."

The story of the escape of the convicts is one of the most thrilling in the annals of the penitentiary. It involved the locking of a guard in a prison watchbox, the beating of another into unconsciousness with the butts of pistols, the scaling of the prison wall, forty feet high, with a ladder built in four sections and a length of rope, the theft of two automobiles and the eluding of thirty-two detectives in eight bandit-chasing automobiles, after a start of only a few minutes. Every one of the sextet carried a loaded pistol.

A. F. OF L. NOT FRIENDLY TO RUSSIAN SOVIET REGIME

Washington, July 15.—The Russian soviet regime has rendered it impassible for the American Federation of Labor to maintain a friendly policy," Samuel Gompers, president of the organization, declared in a letter made public today, which was addressed to Senator Ladd, republican, North Dakota, and Senator Ing, democrat, Utah, just before they sailed for Moscow last week, citing a series of interferences with labor organizations with a view to peace in the United States and other countries. Mr. Gompers said that all of the inherent friendliness in the labor movement toward the Russian people could not bring about a toleration of the soviet regime unless it changed its objectives.

Remarking that press despatches credited the senators with the intention of forming an opinion as to the advisability of soviet recognition by the United States, Mr. Gompers said to them as investigators to bring back answers to a series of questions. He desired to know whether the Russian press was allowed freedom in publication of new and opinion; whether work men were permitted to organize in unions without government interference; whether the soviet government intended to keep its promises and obligations towards other governments in the future, and finally, whether the American visitors intended to travel on "guest trains," live in guest hotels" and remain under the tutelage of soviet agents while in Russia, or whether the intended to move about the country under their own volition, 'to find out what is really happening."

GIRL BABY ABANDONED IN A NEW YORK HOTEL

New York, July 15.—Blase Broadway loosened up its heart strings today and played father and mother to a one-month old girl found abandoned in a room in the Marlborough hotel.

The infant, was discovered in a room lately vacated by a couple registering as Mr. and Mrs. H. Williams of Baltimore, lay in an improvised cradle in the hotel lobby and billed and cooed delightedly as a crowd of cabaret entertainers, chorus girls and other Broadway habitues provided amusement for her. Later she was taken to the foundling ward at Bellevue hospital.

It was pointed out by hotel officials that, while the Williams couple had last occupied the room in which the child was found someone else may have since entered the room and left the infant there.

WON PRIZE FOR "FLIVVER AIRPLANE" COMPETITION

Buc, France, July 15.—L. Coupet today won the Petit Parisien's 100,000 franc prize for the "flivver airplane" competition, covering 31 laps of a 10 kilometre diamond shaped course at an average speed of 64 7-10 kilometres an hour.

Georges Barbot, who recently crossed the English channel under somewhat similar conditions as the present contest, and who has just returned from the United States, dropped out of the race because of motor trouble in the 38th lap, when he was leading.

RESENT TRIPLE INCREASE IN THE PRICE OF BEER

Munich, July 15—The proposed triple increase in the price of beer brought about a storm among the thirsty turners who threatened damage to the beer saloons, an, in consequence the dealers hvae delayed the increase until tomorrow at the earliest. Placards announcing the higher price of beer angered the hot and thirsty thousands who are attending the thirteenth annual German gymnastic competitions here. The crowds tore down the price lists and partially wrecked seven rathskellers and beer houses before the dealers agreed to abandon the increase.

Visitors to the number of nearly 200,000, it is declared ar elikely to leave Munich if the increase becomes effective Tuesday. The athletic meeting is expected to continue through to July 21, and it seems doubtful that the saloons will dare attempt to collect higher prices while the city is crowded with strangers, three hundred Chicago gymnasts are among the visitors.

An effort is being made to advance the price of a litre of Munchener and other famous brands to 5,000 marks, which is less than three cents in local exchange, but a prohbitive price to persons on mark wages. The brewers explain that the scarcity of hops has increased the cost of manufacture, and the fall in the mark has made an increase in the sale price necessary.

Decision was made a few days ago by William Wallace, a young resident of this city, that he would go into the trucking business and he proceeded to purchase a second hand truck from Albert Dion. He had all his plans completed with but one vital omission and that was to operate the vehicle with a dealer's license number without taking any steps to secure a registration under his own name. The result was that Motorcycle Officer Grant Bombria became suspicious of the marker X F 520 and after the arrest and customary court trial, Wallace was fined $10 and costs with a remittance of the fine, leaving a total amount of $6.25 to be paid. When arrested, he was engaged in hauling gravel from Mulligan's gravel pile on Columbia avenue to the Natchaug Grammar school grounds. It developed that the marker was the property of Onias Chiennetta, of Center street whose establishment was burned out last spring.

Wallace, who has experienced hard times, pleaded guilty to the charge in court, Saturday morning. His truck which was loaded, was run to the school grounds after the court session, and emptied after which it was returned to its former owner.

Daniel Levin, charged with breach of the peace and resistance of an officer, appeared in court again Saturday morning, and the case was disposed of. The two charges were nolled, on payment of the costs of court, totalling $6.26. About a month ago Officer Lariviere placed Levin under arrest when the latter was slow about moving away from the steps of the entrance leading to the upstairs apartment of the Central building, on Union street, where the young man is a resident.

Levin and three other young men were seated on the steps and all received orders from the officer to move away. Levin changed his position to the inside of the entrance and the trio left. When the officer returned and warned Levin away again the latter argued that as a tenant of the building he thought that he had a right to remain there. The arrest followed.

It was learned later that Arthur J. Dubreuil, owner of the building had entered a complaint about the loiterers in front of his block, consequently the officers had been instructed to arrest anyone who refused to move away. One thing the proprietor had forgotten was that the mandate did not include the residents of the block. After a conference with Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Frank P. Fenton the case was disposed of as noted above.

The case against Isaac Prosser, a manufacturer of Chicopee, Mass., was called but Prosser was not on hand and his bond was forfeited. Later in the day, however, Prosser arrived at the police station and was surprised to find that his bond had been called. His good will was taken into consideration and a special session was held. Prosser pleaded guilty to the charge of speeding his automobile within the city limits. He was fined $10 and costs, totalling $17.25 which he paid.

Miss Minnie Brock of Mansfield is undecided as to just what caused a slight accident in which she figured in this city Saturday afternoon about two o'clock. Miss Brock was driving a Cole coupe owned by C. C. Knowlton of Knowlton Hill, Ashford, and was backing out from the curb on the east side of Church street, near the intersection of Main, when the machine suddenly lurched forward and crashed into the left side of a Ford auto truck owned by August Lindholm of Andover, parked alongside of the curbing. The left front wheel of the truck was smashed and the fender was demolished. The accident was investigated by Motorcycle Officer Grant Bombria but as Mr. Knowlton had made arrangements to settle the affair with Mr. Lindholm the police took no hand in the matter.

His peculations had exceeded that amount he said, but partial restitution had been made by his friends. His employer said that he had given the man every chance to make good but the shortage in his returns continued. The case was continued for one week and Vertefeuille was placed on probation during which time he will make restitution.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

It is nothing new to speak of a thrilling scene in a motion picture. There are thrills a-plenty. One might even go so far as to say that if it were not for the "thrills," supplied as the most important ingredient in our picture fare; well, would there be any pictures?

The Last Hour which comes to the Breed today and Tuesday, answers this question in the only way it can be answered. It contains several thrills which are hair-raisers according to advance reports. However, critics have been unanimous in according to The Last Hour the most logical continuity of any picture these last several years. The thrills are a necessary part of the story—to leave them out would be to destroy the story itself. In many cases a story which does not depend for its strength upon "punch" scenes is filled with obvious mechanical "thrillers" just to "put the picture over."

The Last Hour comes from a story by Frank R. Adams. Some time ago it appeared in Munsey's Magazine under the title of Blind Justice. One of the best directors in the business, Edward Sloman, directed the production and it is said to be his best.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

COMMONWEALTH CAMP
OPENING AT LIME ROCK

More than two hundred campers will open the first camp of the Commonwealth Camp Corporation on the Charles W. Barnum estate at Lime Rock, Conn. They will arrive at the grounds this (Monday) morning and will be immediately housed in the rustic huts provided on the estate by the corporation.

The Lime Rock Camp will take in two hundred acres of typical rolling New England meadow. There are several small ponds and lakes on the estate from which the celebrated Barnum trout are caught. There will be plenty of boating on these ponds as a large number of canoes and small boats have been provided for the entertainment of the guests. In addition to the fishing and boating there will be opportunity for the athletically inclined to play tennis, golf and take trips around the picturesque surrounding country.

The Lime Rock Camp is the first of a chain that the company will organize throughout the state. The camps will not be established in full before 1924. It is planned to operate them on a year-around basis. In the summer they will be run for the vacationist and sportsman and in the fall and winter they will be ideal spots for the invalid and outdoor enthusiast.

Strand Theatre.

If you saw prison staring you in the face; if you were young and beautiful—and a crook; if you knew that a sentence would send you forth at its expiration an old woman—would you listen to the dictate of conscience? Would you be ready to accept a challenge to help instead of hinder the law?

That is the predicament of Betty Compson as the heroine of The Woman With Four Faces, a Herbert Brenon Paramount production coming to the Strand theatre starting today.

Also, she is moved by the tremendous need when she is asked to help the district attorney to stamp out the drug evil. Is it any wonder that her mission accomplished, she is regenerated and wins the love of the man who instigated the campaign to bring a band of drug-sellers to justice?

Richard Dix plays the part of the district attorney and there is a fine cast throughout. The picture is thrilling, melodramatic, mysterious, based on a story by Bayard Veiller. George Mopkins made the adaptation and the production editor was Julia Crawford Ivers.

A comedy and news weekly will complete the program.

Note:—There is no strike or labor trouble at this theatre.

Broadway Theatre.

Everybody involved in the making of Poor Men's Wives, which had its local premiere at the Broadway theater last night, is to be praised for the effective picture turned out by the B. P. Schulberg studios, and presented as an Al Lichtman attraction.

The story by Frank Dazey and Agnes Christine Johnson, is human throughout, and has many scenes of fine emotion as well as some of colossal magnitude, in a gigantic setting in which hundreds of beautiful women are seen.

Gasnier, who was responsible for Kismet, Rich Men's Wives and The Hero, has done a fine piece of craftsmanship in this, holding down his more pathetic high lights to a point of great repression, then at the psychological moment, letting them loose in a flood of emotion.

Barbara LaMarr, as Laura, does some of the best work of her career, while David Butler, as her husband, is genuine throughout. Betty Francisco gives sympathy to a difficult role, while Richard Tucker is a very creditable villain. Za Su Pitts is clever, as always, in her weird way, and the "twins"—Mickey McBan and Muriel McCormac—are lovable and naughty.

The story is of two women—one rich, one poor—each envying the other the happiness she thinks she has. The envy of Laura, the poor girl, leads her to take the savings of her husband for clothes for which he casts her out of his home. But the twins bring about a reunion in a touching way and everyone is happy.

After witnessing "Driven," the Charles Brabin-Universal-Jewel feature which is showing at the Broadway theatre, it is easy for the reviewer to understand why this picture was selected by the Exceptional Pictures committee of the national board of review for major mention. It really is a film masterpiece and too great praise cannot be accorded the director and the cast of splendid actors and actresses who brought it into being.

This is the second feature on the bill and should be seen to be appreciated.

No strike or labor trouble at this theatre.

BOBBY JONES BEATS OUT CRUICKSHANK FOR NATIONAL OPEN GOLF CROWN

Inwood, July 15 (By the A. P.)—Robert T. "Bobby" Jones, Jr., a sun-crowned boy from Dixie, became the open golf champion of America today, defeating Robert Allen Cruickshank, Scotch professional of the Shackamaxon Country club, Westfield, N. J., by two strokes in the play-off of a tie that existed yesterday at the end of the regular 72-hole championship round. Jones took 76 and Cruickshank 78.

Jones, an amateur of Atlanta, Ga., came into the title he long had sought on the 18th and very last hole, ending one of the most dramatic contests in the quarter of a century of title history. In the long, winning battle over green, rough, tee, fairway and trap, the Georgian was pitted against a master golfer, a great fighter and a sportsman. And Robert Allen Cruickshank was a glorious loser.

Both the Georgian and the Scot, at the end of the rounds yesterday in which 77 golfers competed, were tied with 296 strokes. That tie came into being on the 18th green. Jones, with the championship ready for a journey south, had fallen into ill luck and had taken six strokes; there Cruickshank almost hopelessly defeated, had made a birdie three to square the stroke count.

Thrilling enough as far as the 17th hole, where the Scot, with a remarkable recovery from a trap and a four-foot putt, squared the match, the play-off developed epochal elements on the last hole. Cruickshank's eighteenth tee shot, half topped, landed behind a clump of trees and to the left of the fairway. Jones, 100 yards longer with his drive, lay in tough, parched grass six feet to the right of the fairway. Cruickshank played safely, pitching 25 yards short of the brook guarding the green.

Jones selected his iron, a heavy one; took a mighty swing. The ball hit the green dead for the cup, ran slightly to the left of it and rested four feet away.

The southern boy needed to hole his putt for a birdie, and two putts would put him down in four, almost certainly enough to win. But Cruickshank had a chance to tie, slim as it was. If he could pitch to the pin and hole his putt, Jones would need the birdie to win.

The Scot drew a long breath. He studied almost every inch of the ground up to the cup, smiled, set himself and shot. His ball hit the green, but rolled into a shallow trap to the left. He had to hole from there or be certain of defeat. Again he studied the terrain, again he smiled and shot. The ball overran the cup 15 feet. There wasn't the ghost of a chance left but he putted and missed.

Then he walked to Jones to congratulate him, signifying that he conceded defeat. But Jones elected to putt it out. The Atlantan played safe, rolling his ball to the edge of the cup and sinking it in four.

There were more than 7,000 spectators around green to cheer the Georgia boy as he realized his great ambition, and captured the premier crown of American golfdom, won last year by Gene Sarazen of Briarcliff, who finished sixteenth yesterday.

Jones was cool and deliberate when they started, but Cruickshank seemed a bit nervous. The younger man's first drive was far down the middle of the fairway, but the Scot's was a little off in the rough. Jones made his par four, Cruickshank took a five and the match was one stroke up.

Then the Scot, summoning some of the grit that carried him through four years of war with the Seaforth Highlanders, six months in a German prison camp and a daring escape through Holland, gathered himself.

His birdie on the second evened things. His birdie on the third gave him the lead. But traps abounded. He found one on the fourth and the match was squared again. His third birdie blew to him on the fifth and he led. Both sliced a bit on the short fourth, but the Scot's recovery was best and he was two strokes up. The short but difficult seventh got Cruickshank into a mire of trouble; and he took one over par while Jones was down perfectly, making back a stroke.

During these thrilling moments the gallery could hardly contain itself, and the officials became so excited they forgot to watch the crowd. There was lots of shouting and the spectators, in their headlong rushes, kicked up dust clouds over the fairways. Jones and Cruickshank had to wait for the dust to clear. They passed the eighth both in par with the Scot still a stroke to the good.

The southerner squared the match on the ninth with a par four, where Cruickshank took two putts within less than a yard for a five. Both were given par for the nine.

The troublesome tenth was not as bad for Jones as for Cruickshank and the amateur took the lead. He was never headed after that. They made par fives on the eleventh, but Jones added another stroke to his lead on the short 12th, the pitch over a goldfish pond, where he made a beautiful shot to lead to the pin and holed his short putt for a birdie two.

This shot was the nearest thing to a hole in one ever seen in a championship match in this country.

They got by the 13th in pars, but Cruickshank with a birdie four on the 14th clipped a stroke from the lead of Jones who took three putts after making the green on his second.

Traps caught their tee shots on the 15th. Jones took his eyes off his ball and missed his first chip, and the match was square again. In the rough on his drive and in a trap on the second Cruickshank became one stroke down on the 16th. The Scot's situation was desperate, something akin to that in which he found himself yesterday when he needed a birdie on the 18th to tie.

Yet he squared the match at the 17th. Here his drive went into another fairway. Jones was near some trees. Both took second shots into traps. Cruickshank chipped to within a few feet of the cup and sank the putt for a par four while Jones was down in five.

One to go. All even.

The story of that dramatic 18th now is golf history.

"Oh, but it was bonnie," said Cruickshank afterward. "My, what a golfer that boy is. He's the greatest champion of them all. He is Harry Vardon at his best, or better than that. To be defeated by him is glory enough."

Jones couldn't say anything. He hugged the Scot and wrung his hand and muttered something. It sounded like "Game old boy."

For Jones, today's triumph was the crowning achievement in the career of this brilliant youth, who has been for years on the threshold of golfing fame, only to have fate at varying instances turning him back just when it seemed he would break through. Now just able to cast his first vote and wearing jauntily the crown of Yankee golf, he was in his early 'teens when he first began to attract attention.

Jones' first important tournament was in the southern amateur in 1917. He repeated his triumph in this event in 1920 and 1922, failing to defend his laurels this year.

Jones made his debut in the open three years ago and finished eighth at Toledo, Ohio, where Ted Ray won. He was fifth at Columbia, where Jim Barnes spread eagled the field and last year, at Skokie, moved up several notches, finishing with John Black, the veteran Californian, in a tie for second place, one stroke behind Gene Sarazen.

By coming through today, Jones ranked himself as the fourth amateur to capture the American open title. Francis Ouimet, when a year younger than Jones is now, won in 1913 after a memorable playoff with Ted Ray and Harry Vardon, the British stars. Jerry Travers led the field in 1915 and Chick Evans in 1916, was the last amateur to scale the heights.

No finer tribute to the ability of Jones—regarded by many as the greatest stylist in the game—can be given than the fact that in two successive championships, he once was within a stroke of victory and the other time triumphant after one of the most gruelling tests in annals of the links.

Jones' nearest approach to victory in the national amateur championship was in 1919, when he reached the final, only to fall before the phenomenal golf of S. Davison Herron, playing over his home course, Oakmont, near Pittsburgh. Last year, Jones met Jess Sweetser, the eventual champion, in the semi-finals and was eliminated again by unbeatable golf.

Cruickshank, who proved his grit under fire by tying Jones yesterday and battling the brilliant Georgian at every step today, is a newcomer to stardom. The good natured, little Scotchman, was not figured in the running when the championship test started Friday, but after the initial smoke of battle had cleared, he was established in third place, two strokes behind Jock Hutchison, and one behind Jones.

Then, on Saturday, as one after another of the stars faded out of the picture, Wee Bobby stood out as the lone contestant left with a chance to catch Jones, who set the pace with 296. Cruickshank, at one time shooting par to smithereens, faltered, then rallied and by scoring four and three on the last two holes, one under par, came in to tie the southerner.

Cruickshank, 28, and a native of Grantown-on-Spey, Scotland, came to this country but two years ago, first at the Essex County Country club in New Jersey, and later at Shackamaxon. His only important tournament victories have been in the New York state open, at Syracuse in 1921, and the St. Joseph, Mo., open the same season. Last year he was in a tie for 20th in the national open.

The "big four" of American professional golf—Walter Hagen, Jock Hutchison, Jim Barnes and Sarazen—failed for the first time in years to be in the running at the finish. Hutchison collapsed after his brilliant pace Friday and put himself out with a bad morning round Saturday. Hagen had a fighting chance after scoring a 73 Saturday morning, but went to pieces in the afternoon, taking an 86 and finishing in a tie for 18th. Barnes was never particularly dangerous and tied for 12th with Joe Kirkwood, whose showing was another disappointment to experts. Sarazen showed on Friday that he was not up to championship form. Hutchison managed to save third place, six strokes behind the two leaders, but there were many new faces in the first 12. Jack Forrester, of Hollywood, N. J., was fourth with 303; Francis Gallett, of Port Washington, N. Y., Johnny Farrell, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., W. M. Reekie, Upper Montclair, N. J., amateur, were tied fifth, with 304; Bill Mehlhorn, of St. Louis, Al Watrous, of Redford, Mich., and Leo Diegel of Washington, D. C., in another triple tie for eighth with 306; Cyril Hughes, of Lancaster, Pa., 11th with 307, and Barnes and Kirkwood knotted at 12th with 308.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, July 15.—The Middletown K. of C. team took a hard fought game from the American Thread A. A. outfit at Recreation park this afternoon by a score of 4 to 2. The game was a fine pitching battle between Mathewson in the box for the locals and "Baby" Sturm for the Asylum City outfit. Errors on the part of the home team decided the game in favor of the Kaceys. Neither side was able to dent the platter until the lucky seventh. Middletown broke the ice in the first half of this session on a base on balls to J. Moore, Sturm's single to short on an attempted sacrifice, a suicide tap by Demeris and Donahue's error on Bransfield's daisy cutter.

The locals came back and tied the the count in their half of the inning on a double to left by Jimmy Adams and successive sacrifice bunts by Mathewson and Lathrop. A walk to Footit, F. Moore's sacrifice and a hobble by Nichols let the second Middletown run come in. Again the locals tied it up in their half of the stanza. Nichols led off with a single over second, his third hit of the day. Hamel bunted the local second sacker along to third and once more the locals worked the squeeze successfully with Noel at bat.

Middletown won the game in the first of the ninth by scoring two runs. With one down Bowen batted out a Texas leaguer to right which was good for a pair of sacks. Nichols made a good stop of Bransfield's poke over second and then threw low to first. Bowen scoring and Bransfield reaching second, from where he tallied a moment later on Footit's triple to left. The locals went out in order in their last turn at bat, despite the pleadings of the fans to tie it up again.

Sturm had the better of Mathewson in the pitching duel, although the local batsmen collected one more hit than did the visitors. The Springfield college star, who is on Ty Cobb's waiting list, fanned six and walked two, besides fielding his position in a faultless manner, accepting nine chances without an error. On a number of occasions in the early innings he pitched himself out of deep holes. Behind him the Kaceys fielded flawlessly in marked contrast to the sloppy exhibition put up by the locals. Mathewson allowed the visitors only seven hits, Footit getting two of these—a single, double and a triple in four times at bat—and was easily the batting star of the game. Mathewson put the first two Middletown runs on the bases with free passes.

There were a number of good fielding plays, Noel, Normandin and Mathewson making them for the locals, and Bransfield, F. Moore and Sturm excelling in this respect for the visitors. Another small crowd witnessed the game.

IMPORTANT TWILIGHT GAME SLATED FOR TONIGHT

One of the most important games of the Twilight league will be played tonight when the Whirlwinds, leaders of the league clash with the Comets who are in second place. The Whirlwinds have yet to be beaten and should the Comets turn the trick and then some other team come through with a victory over the leaders, it would create a tie for first place. Manager Spencer says that he is prepared to meet anything that the leaders can produce and is confident of bringing home a victory.

BROWNS BEAT BOSTON AND THEN PLAY TO TIE

St. Louis, July 15.—After defeating Boston in the first game of today's double header 11 to 0, the Browns battled the Red Sox to an 11 inning tie at 6 all in the second game. Tobin batted out two home runs in the second game. Score:

WEST'S PITCHING AND CLABBY'S HITTING FEATURE NORWICH GAME

Tony West's pitching and Jack Clabby's hitting featured the Norwich team's victory over the Danielson Town at the Fairgrounds on Sunday afternoon by a score of 9 to 1. West held the visitors to three scattered hits and fanned 12 of the opposing swatsters. Clabby featured with a triple which he stretched into a home run on the throw in and he also hit a double.

The pitching of West was the outstanding feature of the game and with the exception of the second inning when he passed two men his work in the box was the best that has been seen on the local diamond this season. In the eighth inning his pitching reached its height and he pitched himself out of a hole. With three men on in this inning and none out the next man flied to Clabby who held the man at third with a perfect throw to the plate. Then West extended himself and fanned the next two with pretty pitching. His pitching all the way through kept the crowd with him and no little praise was given him after the game.

The Danielson team never really had a chance against West and snappy fielding by Harwood in left, who made two spectacular catches of hard hit balls, and Dinty Moore at short cut down what might have been hits. Massey and Burns also played good games in the field and Reddy did good work in back of the bat.

The local team won the game in the first inning. When with one out Moore hit safely and scored on Massey's bingle to right field. Fay walked and Clabby caught on of Cornell's offerings driving it to the outfield where it took a mean hop over Liberty's head. Jack easily made third on the hit and then scored when the throw in went wild.

The local team continued the hitting in the second inning and assisted by three errors by Kendrick, scored two more runs. Two hits in the third netted another run, an error a sacrifice fly and Clabby's double in the fifth accounted for the final two. The score:

TAFTVILLE SLAUGHTERS HARTFORD TEAM, 15 TO 3

Before the largest crowd this season Taftville A. A., with Davis of the Submarine Base pitching, took an easy game from the Hartford A. A., 15 to 3, at the J. B. Martin field on Sunday afternoon. Davis proved to be a puzzle to the Hartford boys, fanning 16 batters, and allowing only four hits.

Hartford went well for five innings and then Hannaphy weakened, Taftville getting four runs in this frame. In the sixth inning they continued their slaughter driving Hannaphy from the box and also sending Leonard to the showers under a barrage of hits. In this inning they scored seven runs. Again in the eighth they tallied four more runs. Hartford's lone run came in the second inning. A feature of the afternoon's play was the triple play executed by Belair, Liberty and Dugas.

The way Taftville is going they expect to win the series from Danielson which begins next Sunday at Danielson. Davis will do the pitching for Taftville when they play Putnam at the Providence street grounds. The score:

PILLETTE PITCHES GOOD BALL AND TIGERS WIN

Detroit, Mich., July 15.—Herman Pillette pitched skilright ball until the final innings of today's game, and Detroit easily defeated Washington, 10 to 2. THE MINNESOTA SENATORSHIP.

Electionwise attention is bound to be directed today to the state of Minnesota where the voters of that state will go to the polls for the purpose of electing a successor to the late Senator Knute Nelson, who so ably represented that state in Washington for years.

It is a three-cornered contest, but it is admitted by the democrats that their candidate has no chance, and that the real fight lies between former Governor Preus, who resigned to run for the senatorship, as the republican candidate, and Magnus Johnson, the farmer-labor candidate who stands as a confessed radical.

Governor Preus, if elected, will carry to Washington that dependable representation that Senator Nelson was so long noted for. He is openly opposed to the radicalism that is being urged by Johnson. He is opposed to it either for state or for nation and he has made his appeal to the people of his state for the purpose of getting the chance to continue the safe and sane policies of the senator who recently died.

Ordinarily it would be conceded that Minnesota would demand such a man by an overwhelming majority. It has been undergoing some changes of late which have aroused the state itself. It has had its experience with the non-partisan leaguers and now it is being called upon to send to the senate of the soviet movement in this country.

It is therefore for the purpose of seeing how Minnesota leans in the present situation that so much attention is being turned in its direction today. One of the great problems has been to get the people of the state sufficiently aroused to the importance of the election and the situation to go to the polls and express themselves. On the number who can be gotten out will depend to a considerable degree who is elected. It would be a welcome result if Minnesota should declare that it has already added enough to the radical forces.

THE SHOPMEN'S INJUNCTION.

As far as the strike of the railroad shopmen exists today there was no need for the permanent injunction that has just been granted by the federal court in Chicago, but for the purpose of showing that the public can obtain relief against the plans of those who expect to get their demands through holding up transportation lines at a refusing to let those work who desire to it is a desirable thing.

The government did not resort to the injunction until it was forced to do so in order to uphold the ruling of the labor board and to check the assaults that were being made upon those who were willing to work and upon railroad property. It was under the temporary injunction that it was recognized what an injustice was being imposed by the strikers. It was after that had been granted that it was apparent the strike could not succeed, and those roads where it has not been settled up to the present time are doing business as if no such trouble had occurred.

But the injunction, now made permanent, stands for the future. Even though no new outbreaks are contemplated it must be realized by the strikers that they are certain to run counter to it if they bother the operation of the railroads.

The injunction restrains the strikers from resorting to practices which have no justification. It does not, of course, prevent railroad shopmen from striking, but it does insist that when they are on a strike that they must refrain from acts of lawlessness and the molestation of other workmen. It sets forth that other than members of the shopmen's organization have a right to work, and that they are not to be subjected to attacks because they are doing work which others have refused to do. It places a much needed curb on a radical element, and even though it has taken some time to get this injunction, due in some measure perhaps to the recognition by the court that haste was not required by the situation, it is shown that the government has not been negligent for the protection of the public in the matter of injuring transportation against the lawbreakers.

FIGHTING OPIUM.

So far so good is the way in which the efforts of the American representatives before the council of the league of nations at Geneva must be regarded. They have urged upon the council the importance of a rigid stand against opium, and though this country is not a member of the league they have presented their arguments so pointedly that they have secured the approval of the council to the restriction of the production of opium to such as is needed for scientific and medical uses.

It is to the credit of the league representatives in the council that there had been a willingness on their part, without being urged, to curtail production of opium to such as would be required for legitimate uses, but it was against that wide open loophole "legitimate" that the American delegates fought, and as it now appears successfully.

Let the individual country do what it will to check the sale or prevent the smuggling of the derivatives of opium and there will still be quantities of it sold illegally. This has been established by experience. What is needed is cooperation among the nations for the restriction of production, and while that applies to a comparatively few nations it is certain to have its excellent effects upon all the others. That is of course the purpose of such opposition. Humanity suffers from enough demoralizing influences without having opium added thereto. If the amount of it available can be kept to such as is needed for scientific and medical purposes a great advantage will be gained in the fight against dope.

Getting the approval of the council of the league of nations to such a plan is only part of the necessary work. It must now get the sanction of the league assembly, and if that is obtained, there will come the no small task of enforcing the restrictions. It is, however, through such an attack that the most successful opposition to the illicit narcotic sales and the widespread use of habit forming drugs will be displayed. The fight is making PROGRESS.

THE NOTE TO GERMANY.

Views in France are a bit at variance concerning the recent statement by Premier Baldwin of Great Britain. There are those who are already opposed to the note which the premier is to submit to the allies before sending to Berlin, even though they do not know its contents. There are others who are pointing out the need of having certain points treated in a certain way in order to meet the French view.

When it is indicated by the French premier that France is ready to make concessions provided there is an insistence upon the ending of resistance in the Ruhr, opportunity is given the British to bear that in mind if it is considered wise is drafting the note.

It is clear that in view of the Ruhr situation that Great Britain must move cautiously, that it cannot ignore that affair if it is going to cater to France even though it has not from the first been favorable to the action taken in carrying out the French policy in that district.

Sending a note to Germany that will not bear the approval of France is not going to accomplish the desired object. No doubt the note will go regardless of whether the other nations, including France, approve or not, but far greater weight will go with it and greater progress made toward the desired goal of unity among the allies if it is a note to which all can give their approval. France lets it be known in advance what it expects. Belgium is likely to take a similar view and in the drafting of it Premier Baldwin will have to put forth some powerful argument if he desires to ignore it and still get the approval he would like.

SENATOR DILLINGHAM.

Invariably the men selected by the state of Vermont to represent it in the upper house of congress are those who leave such service only after long years of valuable service.

In the death of William P. Dillingham, Vermont has lost an able representative and the nation a legislator who was always concerned for its welfare. For over a score of years he was identified with the law making of this country and before that had similarly served in a similar capacity in his own state.

A lawyer of high standing, occupying second place upon the judiciary committee and chairman of the contested elections, he was perhaps best known through his efforts in behalf of the restriction of immigration. This was a subject to which he had given long and thorough study. He had gone to Europe and carefully looked into the matter from various viewpoints and as the result of this knowledge of the conditions and the recognized need of protecting this country the present immigration law bears his name.

Senator Dillingham was typical of a long list of senators from that state. He came from a family that had been identified with that state from colonial days and rendered highly conspicuous service in its behalf. He was not a senator whose voice was frequently heard but there was nevertheless a soundness and sanity in his attitude on public questions that held the confidence of the state and the nation, and the death of such a man always means a decided loss. Vermont can be relied upon to select another of the same merit and standing as his successor, if available.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

St. Swithin's day was of a type that didn't bother the auto traffic.

The summer girl must realize by this time that her season is a short one.

Those occasional headlines, "Sugar Still Lower" do not always apply to the consumer.

Gasoline demand is said to be picking up. Someone must have his foot on the accelerator.

The summer will be just as cool and there will be less worry from day to day if the coal bin is filled now.

The man on the corner says: No one envies the fellow to whom the traffic cop is handing out golden advice.

From the speed it showed in accomplishing ratification all France seems to have needed was to get a good start.

Even though the tobacco crop this year will be a million pounds greater than last year it doesn't insure the return of those old fashioned nickel cigars.

The historical Wayside Inn in Massachusetts has been purchased by an auto manufacturer, and it wasn't long ago that the same purchaser declared that history is bunk.

Every now and then someone predicts we are drifting toward war. That will make it possible, if a war ever does develop, for someone to claim the power of prophecy. If none occurs no harm is done.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Save and clarify all fat from cooking.

You can remove iodine stains by soaking the article in lime water.

Wash out your refrigerator twice a week with sal soda and cold water.

You can often use water in mixing a cake instead of milk, and find that the cake will be lighter in texture and less liable to scorch.

Wrap your ice in newspapers and it will last much longer than if you do not protect it in this way from the air.

Do not use hot soap suds to clean oilcloth or linoleum. Use tepid water and wipe with a cloth dampened in equal parts of cold milk and water.

Have a supply of holders in your kitchen for handling hot dishes. Otherwise you will find yourself using dishtowels which may burn over the flame.

In a south room use a light gray paper, with possibly a rough finish which is an excellent background for almost any type of interior decorating. In a north room use yellow, tan or some warm tint.

To rid a kitchen of black beetles a little strong essence of peppermint should be poured down the crevices or holes in the floor and covered in with putty. The putty must be used while it is fresh.

Oven linings can be prevented from rusting by going over them, perhaps once each week, with a good neutral oil, being careful not to use any oil with salt in it (such as bacon grease).

Paper plates are invaluable to hold freshly fried croquettes, bacon, potato chips and similar fried foods, which must be kept hot and at the same time drained of superfluous fat.

CLEANING RUGS

Whenever possible, small rugs should be taken into the yard to be beaten and swept. Large rugs should be rolled up and the floor beneath them swept and dusted.

LIGHT GLOBES.

FROSTING CAKE.

If you want to frost your cake evenly and thickly right to the edge, make a band of waxed paper and pin it closely about the cake, letting it come about an inch above the cake. Do not remove this until the icing is set.

GARBAGE CAN.

In the summer time your garbage can needs extra attention. Clean it frequently with a strong soda or lye solution and rinse it thoroughly after each washing. If you line it with paper and change that daily, you will not need to scrub it so often.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

To be attractive, the arms must be beautiful in contour, firm and with clear skin. The test really is the upper arm, which is so apt to be too fat or too thin, and the elbow, which so often looks uncared for.

Do you live in the country? If so, you can grow herbs for the bath — the pungent, sweet smelling kind are pleasant to use. Rosemary is delightful and so is lavender. Some people like thyme, and one reader told me that she gathered and dried mint from the garden, made tiny bags and stuffed them with the leaves and used this in the bath.

For a cleansing powder, take wheat or corn starch, two ounces; powdered borax, one ounce; almond meal, one ounce, are the proportions. It's drying or rather absorbent of grease and dirt, it rubs easily into the pores and washes out as easily.

One of the good things about gardening is that it makes you perspire freely, a process good not only for the skin but for the entire system. If you can work among your flowers and vegetables while the sun is bright — but never so hot as to exhaust you by its intensity—and when you have finished, take a warm bath with a quick cold sponges off or shower to follow, and then lie down for a few minutes, you'll find yourself wonderfully refreshed, with a clear skin and glowingly bright eyes when you begin to dress again.

TO BRIGHTEN RUGS.

An excellent way to keep carpets and rugs in good condition is to go over them once a week with a broom dipped in hot water to which a little turpentine has been added. This treatment not only prevents moths but freshens up the color of the faded carpet marvelously. Another advantage is that the dust does not fly all over the house. One who tries it will be astonished to see how much dirt and dust there is in a pail of water at the end of the trial.

CARE OF CURTAINS

When laundering curtains of voile, scrim or any material which has to be ironed, if they are folded so selvage ends are together and ironed they will hang perfectly even and straight.

When running rods through sash curtains, if you slip the finger of an old kid glove on the end of rod it will run through much easier. In using this danger of tearing the curtain is avoided.

FOR WHITE FURNITURE.

White furniture may be cleaned by dissolving baking soda in warm water and applying the solution to the furniture with a soft cloth, rubbing with a dry one afterward. Finger marks and dirt are easily removed in this simple way. A teaspoon to a pint of water.

DICTATES OF FASHION

A new scarf consists of a square of glove silk with a fluted border and has mitts to match.

The newest bloomers have scalloped ruffles, and the seams which run up the sides are also scalloped.

The pleated skirt is one of the most important items of fashionable dress. Not only in white, but in all plain and figured materials do we find it.

Detachable capes are a feature of the smart costumes for sport. They may be buttoned in place on a moment's notice, or removed with the same dispatch.

The plain little frock of black alpaca with plain skirt and belted blouse with its white collars and cuffs is frequently seen about Paris these days.

Scarfs of pleated chiffon, carelessly tied with long ends that reach the waistline, are worn with the fashionable large hats of organdie, straw or felt.

A serviceable looking frock of black lace is given an individual touch by the addition of collars and cuffs of white lace held in place with a binding of Alice blue velvet ribbon.

Monograms have become so popular they are now appearing on coats. A blue serge suit is bound with red and belted and monogrammed in the same color. The monogram appears on the sleeve.

A new lightweight silk broadcloth, much more supple than the type used to make tailored blouses, is now on the market and is being used successfully for lingerie. It is obtainable in printed as well as plain patterns.

For the girl with narrow shoulders to carry it, nothing is more lovely than the wide pleated berths, worn over the sleeveless frock, giving the effect of a pleated cap over the sleeve.

VOGUE OF WOOD SHADES.

Wood shades are prominent in summer modes, and girdles of shaded brown ribbon, with wheels, cocardes and hip choux appear on organdie and voile dresses in lighter shades of brown.

A hat of brown moire ribbon seems to be nothing more than skull-cap shape covered with brown moire ribbon which culminates in a large fan effect, rising from the hat on the left side and a similar fan drooping from the right side.

SUMMER TRIMMING.

A new use of ribbon is that of setting graduated rows of ribbon onto the skirt so that the narrowest ribbon is at the bottom of the skirt and the widest near the top. A feature of this trimming is that the ribbon is sewed at the lower edge instead of the upper part of the ribbon to stand out from the material. The same application appears on the small puffed sleeves.

LAUNDRY HINTS.

Alcohol will clean white kid gloves without any unpleasant after odor.

Rinse your chamois skin gloves in warm soapy water and they will not become hard.

Let your pongee blouses become absolutely dry before you iron them. Then, without sprinkling, press with a warm iron.

Crocheted and knitted articles should be dried on flat surfaces, covered with a cloth and patted and pulled into shape.

Remove mildew by soaking the garment in buttermilk. If the material is linen, a mixture of soapy starch and milk is effective.

Starch your handkerchiefs and iron them smoothly before you mark them with indelible ink and you can do a much neater and more effective job.

TO INITIAL TOWELS.

Turkish or linen towels, with the monogram or initials of the family hooked on, represent the latest phase in household linen decoration.

The worsted yarn used in hooking may be in one, two or many colors. Bits of yarn left over from sweaters or scarfs, or from embroidering will work into attractive color combinations when hooked into the towels.

FRESHENS CRACKERS.

When soda crackers lose their crispness they can be crisped again by heating in a hot oven, but in this manner they never retain quite the same flavor. The best way is to spread them out in the sunshine on a warm day. When they are thoroughly dried out you will find they have also regained their original flavor and seem like fresh crackers.

GINGHAM RIBBON ON VOILE.

A simple but charmingly feminine summer frock is made of white voile, finished at cuff and hem with plaid silk gingham ribbon. An upstanding collar is made by attaching the ribbon about a low neckline and tying it to the left of the back, so that the ends swing low toward the hem. A girdle is made of the gingham ribbon and finished with an immense cocarde on the right side.

UNUSUAL HEADDRESS.

An unusual headdress for the woman who likes to look distinctive is made turban fashion of two yards of brocaded ribbon 3 inches wide. A large ribbon cocarde is attached to the center of the ribbon, the material being held in slightly with a few gathers. This is placed on the head with the cocarde in the center front and the ribbons are wrapped around the head, the ends being held to the hair with ornamental pins.

GIRDLE FLOWERS.

Frequently the only touch of color on a white summer costume is introduced in the girdle flower. Some novel effects are made of wide ribbon ends, each end being cut so that it has two points. A dozen or more of these ends are caught into a huge flower with a few yellow stamens in the center. From the flower falls a single long streamer of wide ribbon Peonies, chrysanthemums and hydrangeas are thus made out of the right shade of ribbon, taffeta being a good selection.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

There are more women than men voters in Sweden.

Only one woman in the United States earns a livelihood as a veterinary surgeon.

Girl students of the University of Oregon have designed and executed the sculptural ornamentation for the new university fine arts building.

Florence Renan Sabin is the first woman to attain the rank of full professor in Johns Hopkins University, where she holds the chair of histology.

Miss Sara Vantine, daughter of the city treasurer of Dennison, Ohio, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for city auditor on the same ticket with her father, who is a candidate for renomination.

Dr. Esther Pohl Lovejoy, noted physician of Portland, Ore., and of American women's hospitals in the Near East, has the distinction of being the first woman ever decorated with the War Cross of Greece.

The laziest women on earth are said to be those of Asir, the almost unknown country beyond the Red Sea. They are in an extremely primitive state and never come out of the house except to be married or to be buried.

BOOK CASES.

The book shelves and book cases should harmonize with the other furnishings in a room and may be placed under windows and in various recesses and empty spaces where they will add to the charm of the room.

FOR THE SEASIDE.

For the damp seaside and also for rainy days there is the tailored suit of rubberized material. Such materials are pliable and nowadays lack the disagreeable rubbery odor. They are thin enough, too, so as not to be too warm for summer wear.

RECIPES.

Chicken Timbales.—Melt two tablespoons of butter in a saucepan, add one-fourth cup of stale bread crumbs and two-thirds cup of rich milk; let cook five minutes, stirring constantly. Add one cup of finely chopped cooked chicken, one and one-half teaspoons of finely chopped parsley and two eggs slightly beaten. Season mixture with celery salt, salt and pepper. Turn into well-buttered individual molds, having molds two-thirds full; set them in a pan of hot water, cover with a buttered paper and bake twenty minutes. Serve with bechamel or celery sauce.

Coffee Custard.—Add to one cup of strong, black cold coffee one cup of cream and four eggs, slightly beaten, and one-fourth cup of sugar. Put into buttered glass or earthenware custard cups, place in a shallow pan and surround with hot water, and bake in a moderate oven until the custard is firm in the center. Chill thoroughly and serve with small cakes.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Condoned Vice.

Mr. Editor: The man who talks on Saturdays, struck a much-neglected chord in the human instrument, when he touched—though very light and apologetically, the tobacco question. 'It is strange, 'tis passing strange, 'tis wonderful, to see how deep and strong is the moral turpitude of civilized society on this filthy and depraved habit; and how the tobacconists are permitted, for gain, to despoil the youth through picture and poster and proclamation prostituting the public conscience as they do. An apparent contest is pictured to exist between the different brands of cigar and cigarette, when the whole batch of them are manufactured under a trust more solid than any organization, religious or masonic. The sad thing about it is that the popular tribute is, except in individual instances, submitted to the vice. Journalists even call it "thoughtlessness" when half a city is destroyed by a cigarette—thrown by a smoker. This is not thoughtless but criminal carelessness. It is said—"a smoker will smoke in a powder mill," and it has proved true. The destruction of property from this cause, besides the waste in the habit itself, is beyond computation and is a great financial blight. The gentleman, the dude, and the tramp, who picks up his tobacco in the gutter, are all of one accord showing that education or training has no effect to abolish the habit. The saddest thing of all is that the churches, with all their show of work among the young people, are entirely inactive and silent on the tobacco subject. When I was a youngster (vulgarly termed a "kid" in these better days) the churches had organized juvenile anti-tobacco and juvenile temperance societies—gave us talks and badges and helped us to grow up men pledged against the twin-foe of Christianity, but we have no effort of the kind now. What is the propriety in this day to pretend distinction between men and women smokers? It would seem that automobilists with half a dozen, more or less, levers to watch and operate would be busy enough without a cigar to attend to at the same time, but scarcely a man is seen running a car without a pipe or cigar in his mouth, and as we started out to say the practice is condoned to the extreme. Individual opposition is "booed" at and so hopeless, that, as one radical temperance man said about rum: "Let them drink and go to the devil, and better men will get their places."

It seems harsh to have to give up in this way, but opposition is fruitless. Inside purity cannot exist with outside filthiness. We do not claim that a non-smoker is necessarily a saint, but even those who make clean the outside of the cup and platter must stand approved in his presence who can be seen only by "the pure in heart" rather than they who are considered defiled in the company of clean mortals.

Sixty-five years old today is Eugene Ysaye, the famous violinist, who is well known to Americans as a result of his numerous concert tours, followed by several years of service as conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra. The violinist is a native of Belgium. It was the celebrated master Vieuxtemps who discovered Ysaye at a concert in Antwerp, and it was he who taught the young musical genius those principles of violin playing which enabled him to reach the distinguished position which he occupies today and which he has occupied for many years. As a performer Ysaye began his career by playing in orchestras. After 1881 he took up the life of a virtuoso, and among the famous artists with whom he was associated in his concert tours was Anton Rubinstein. In 1898 he came to America to appear with the Theodore Thomas orchestra in Chicago. Mr. Ysaye has composed as well as conducted and performed.

Stories That Recall Others

Why Not?

Frances and Virginia were some three years apart in age and quite a bit more in school experience, so Frances felt really the superior of the two and liked to make the most of her newly acquired information.

"Virginia, do you know what a goiter is?" asked Frances. "Sure I do," replied Virginia, nonchalantly, "it's what you hold your stocking up with."

AMERICA IS ONLY NATION TURKS WILL TRUST, SAYS REV. DR. J. L. BARTON

REV. JAMES L. BARTON, D. D.

Of all the nations of the world, America is the only one that the Turks will trust, declared Rev. Dr. James L. Barton in his address Sunday morning at the United Congregational church, where he held the close attention of a good sized congregation when he spoke upon conditions in Turkey. Dr. Barton was formerly a missionary in Turkey under the Congregational board and has been foreign secretary of the board for a number of years.

The Turks want no French, British or Italian experts to give them advice upon governmental matters, for they would suspect any of them of ulterior motives, he said. But they trust America because of what they have seen done by American missionaries, because of the American schools and because of the American relief work, all of which they recognize has arisen out of the Christian religion.

Dr. Barton spoke from the text Acts 17: 26, "For God hath made of one blood all nations to dwell upon the face of the earth. We hardly act upon this, he said, as a fundamental doctrine that ought to be true. It is true in principle but not in application. America does not believe it is true, for in the great attempt to bring the nations together America stands aloof.

Speaking of the Lausanne conference, Dr. Barton said that the Turks came there with the feeling that they must be a "sovereign nation." Their victory over the Greeks had been the greatest in their history. They had an army behind them and they said that unless their terms were agreed to they were prepared to move on Constantinople and so into Europe. After three weeks the Turks were masters of the situation, dictating terms to the nations. The endeavor at Lausanne was to secure a method of peace for the Near East, but it was under the terrible handicap of the Turk in authority. The agreement was reached at Lausanne that the Greeks are to remain in Constantinople and the Turks in West Thrace, but there is no agreement as to the Armenians. Outside of Constantinople, the Greeks are driven out of Turkey without any compensation for what they leave behind, a most amazing demonstration of man's inhumanity to man.

America does not have a part on the allied treaty with Turkey except under the favored nation clause. Our own treaty with the Turks is very meagre, but Secretary Hughes expects that there will be no difficulty about the continuance of American missionary effort.

Psychology of the Turks.

Just here is where the peculiar psychology of the Turks enters the problem. The Turks have no marriage law. They have no divorce. When a man tires of his wife he simply tells her to go and she is his wife no longer. They also have no inheritance law that will safeguard the rights of children.

Turkey has consented to enter the sisterhood of nations through the league and her treaty with the United States gives her standing with the 52 other nations. It is not pleasant to contemplate the cruel Turk in the sisterhood of nations. She is not a lovable sister. Turkey has always been the black sheep of the nations, which is all traceable to Mohammedanism and the natural cruelty of the Turks. Mohammedanism permits cruelty if it is necessary for the success of the nation. It is all right to kill, if you kill the right man. Their religion has always been the religion of the sword and known for its cruelty.

But Turkey with six to eight million people is coming into close contact with the other nations and with America. What will be our attitude? Turkey today has been tried by the highest court in the world and stands uncondemned. Force has made the Turk worse and worse. You can't shoot righteousness into a nation any more than you can pound morality into an individual.

Turkey today has a leader as good as can be found in the nation. He desires that Turkey should stand in co-operation with the other nations of the world and under him for the first time religion and the state have been separated, a remarkable accomplishment. There is no sultan now but a general assembly at Angora, with which treaty negotiations are made not with Constantinople. If the present leader can hold them to a separation of church and state, he will accomplish much, but he is greatly handicapped.

The Turk has ability, continued Dr. Barton. He has outwitted the nations and won in diplomatic exchanges for the last 50 to 60 years. But Turkey has not the men to modernize its laws, its educational system to bring them into conformity with the rest of the world. They need help from outside, and the only nation they absolutely trust is America. They have seen our educational institutions, our relief work, our missionaries. America has never taken any territory from Turkey. They have seen nothing selfish in what we have done, but they suspect all others of ulterior motives. We have the influence in Turkey, they are most friendly to us, and we are the most trusted. That puts America in a peculiar relation. They want America to remain in Turkey with schools, hospitals and missionaries. Shall we turn them the cold shoulder? Of course not.

The Turks are inquiring about the gospel. The government's action in driving out the Greeks and Armenians does not have the support of the large body of the Turks, many of whom have been converted, and they are inquiring about this nation whose acts, they know, are because of the Christian religion. We shall continue to do our part through the sacrifice of the Christians at home and through these young men and women who will continue to go in the name of those at home.

FIRST BAPTIST SCHOOL PICNIC AT GARDNER LAKE

The annual Sunday school picnic of the First Baptist church was held Saturday at Gardner Lake, two auto buses conveying the members to the lake, one leaving the West Side at 10 o'clock and the second at 1.30 o'clock. Over 140 made the trip, many going by private automobiles.

At the lake bathing and boating were in order until lunch time which came at one o'clock and during the afternoon racing and the playing of games afforded plenty of exercise and entertainment for everyone.

The athletic programme for the day one of the best ever held at a church picnic was as follows:

Ladies' walking race—1st, Mrs. Royce; 2nd, Mrs. Armstrong. (Most of the contestants wanted to run and the judge of course had his difficulties.

Ball throwing for girls—1st Miss Mildred Tortoiseshell, 159 feet; 2nd, Bernice Willey, 148 feet; honorable mention, Mrs. Clara Burke.

The feature of the day was the man accepting the challenge of the young ladies to a ball game. The challenge called for the men to wear dresses and to throw and bat left handed. The game was full of thrills. The final count showed the girls with a total of 15 runs to the men's ten. The men led until the final inning, but in that inning the girls got on to Al Pineault's southpaw slants and by errors on the part of infield piled up the runs. The men decided however that the girls bought the umpire, Hargraves and that his decisions were rank robbery.

The girls claim it was the superb playing of their team especially on the part of their sister battery, Mildred and Gladys Tortoiseshell, the former acting as pitcher. The girls as a final proof point to the score and to keep peace the men have vice it to wait a year before renewing the argument. To keep the spectators quiet and from booing the players, the committee saw to it that they were all kept busy on a half bushel of peanuts.

Mrs. Alfred Pineault's class furnished lemonade throughout the day. The young men's class had charge of the program and Assistant Superintendent George Amburn of arrangements.

SHORTAGE OF LABOR IS REPORTED IN NORWICH

Norwich is in a period of industrial activity but is experiencing a shortage of modern houses, according to the June industrial employment survey of the U. S. Department of Labor, issued from Washington.

The Norwich report is as follows:

"Shortage of workers in metal trades. All plants running full time, with woolen and bleacheries working overtime. Large addition to a woolen plant affords employment to local labor, which is not sufficient to meet the demand. Scarcity of modern houses shortage of workers still exists in all lines and especially in common labor."

The New London report reads: "Industrial activities continue on upward trend and practically all labor is employed. There is an acute shortage of common labor for building and road work."

Middletown has a housing shortage and a lack of silk workers: "Shortage of workers in the silk industry. All plants on full time with some working overtime. Local labor falls slightly short of demand in the building trades. Housing shortage exists."

The state survey reveals shortages in nearly all lines and an especial lack of farm help. The report states: "Industrial activity continues to improve and practically all plants are running full time with some on overtime basis. Shortage of workers noted in nearly all lines, particularly in the rubber, metal, silk and building trades. Great shortage of farm help throughout the state. Building trades very active with a shortage of certain mechanics and common laborers. Housing conditions as a whole are satisfactory."

GUTHRIE PROPERTY BRINGS $75,000 AT AUCTION SALE

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 15.—The Guthrie property at Parkway and Pequot avenue, one of the most pretentious in this city, was sold at auction Saturday afternoon to J. S. Russell, Jr., of Madison avenue, New York. It is understood that Mr. Russell acted for a client, but he would not disclose who the client is. The price paid was $75,000 notwithstanding the house and the improvement of the land, the erection of garage, cowbarn and other buildings and the decorating of the house and arrangement of the grounds and their ornamentation cost something more than $300,000 when Francis A. Guthrie occupied the property. Senator Augustus Lonergan of Hartford, the well known democratic politician, bid $75,000 for the place and he, too, it is understood, was acting for a client. Joseph Siegal of Hartford was another bidder, his offer being $73,000. There is a well founded report and it has previously been printed in The Bulletin that Mrs. Guthrie refused an offer of $125,000 at private sale for the place as she believed she could get $150,000 for it at auction. Nearly all the old-time residents have now parted with their property in the Pequot section. Who the present owner of the Guthrie property is will be known in a few days, and then it will be disclosed whether he is to reside in the mansion or whether he is to develop it for other purposes. The house is of Spanish design and the interior decorations are supposed to be from designs by Mrs. Guthrie, herself an artist.

Type Maker Weds Years

A typographical error in the Bulletin Saturday made it appear that the Shetucket mill in Greeneville had been shut down for two years. It should have been two weeks. The mill management expects to reopen the mill in another week.

NOSE BROKEN AND SKULL FRACTURED IN WESTERLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, July 15.—John DeMaggio, 8, who resides with his parents at 435 Montauk avenue, New London, was severely injured Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in Pawcatuck. The DeMaggio boy came to Westerly by automobile with his parents, and was visiting at the home of Guiseppe Crincino, 75 Liberty street. At the time of the accident the boy darted from the sidewalk at the corner of Morgan and Liberty street directly in front of the Ford touring car, coming into Westerly and driven by Alma Adelard Delodeau, janitor of the Wheeler school, North Stonington. The blow knocked the boy to the concrete highway fracturing his nose and th frontal bone of the skull. Dr. McKenna, of 451 Broadway, Providence was in the following machine, and directed the boy's removal to the Crincino home where medical attention was given. Dr. Michael H. Scanlon was called and ordered the boy removed to Memorial hospital, New London, in his parents' automobile that an X-ray might be taken.

A serious accident occurred at Pleasant View at 6.30 Sunday morning when Alice Kilbourne, a two and one-half year old child, was thrown to the first floor of the residence of her parents, Rosalie cottage, on Crandall avenue. The infant whose parents reside in Providence, was in the arms of her nurse, when the latter caught her rubber heel on the top of a flight of stairs and both pitched headlong to the first floor. The nurse escaped with minor scratches but the baby girl suffered a concussion of the brain. Dr. E. J. Brophy of Norwich and Dr. Schanlon of Westerly attended the child who was reported in a critical condition.

On Sunday occurred the death of Mrs. Julia Coon, widow of Eugene W. Coon, at her home at 8 Beach street, following an illness of considerable duration. She is survived by a son, Charles E. Coon, who has made his home recently in Willimantic, and a daughter, Mrs. John Fowkes, of Alton, R. I.

Mrs. Noah Williams of a well known gypsy family of West Hartford, was painfully cut and injured Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock in North Stonington, when the windsone of the Ford touring car in which she and her husband were on their way to Norraganasett Pier collapsed. The automobile, loaded with camping equipment and a valuable dog was en route to the gypsy camp of George Stanley, a well known Rhode Island gypsy, of 5 Smithfield avenue, located in the southern part of the state. As the wishbone broke the machine dashed into a direction sign post with such force that Mrs. Williams was thrown into the windshield and the breaking glass resulted in severe cuts on her arm, legs and head. Dr. Scanlon of Westerly, was called and after dressing the cuts of Mrs. Williams who was the only one injured, conveyed them to the Pier. Mrs. Williams is in a delicate condition and serious results may follow from the accident.

TWO FINED IN COURT FOR LIQUOR LAW VIOLATION

In police court Saturday morning a Hartford man paid $15 and costs for breach of the peace and intoxication, while another man paid $30 for a similar offense, a 10 day jail sentence being suspended. In the case of state Pa. Alexander Karenkiewicz, the charge of embezzlement of $418.35 from the Kosciusko-Pulaski Corp., the matter went over until July 17th.

Summoned to Police Court

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 15.—Joseph C. Worth of 62 Broad street, Norwich, and 37 Mott avenue, New London, was ordered to appear in the police court Monday morning by Motorcycle Officer William Babcock this afternoon, charged with violation of the automobile law in passing an intersecting street on Ocean avenue without reducing the speeding his automobile.

Y. W. C. A. MOVING PICTURE ON LIFE OF CHRIST

At the 4 p. m. service at the Y. W. C. A. Sunday, the audience filled the large parlors, and under the electric fans enjoyed the hour. As usual the opening part of the service consisted of the singing of several hymns, vocal solos by Hugh Kinder which were impressively rendered, scripture reading and prayer.

The final part of the moving picture feature, "From the Manger to the Cross" was shown, and it proved very impressive. It included the scene on the Mount of Olives, the betrayal, the trial and crucifixion. The photography was excellent, and the acting was of the best.

Between the reels General Secretary Hill gave a ten minute talk, and among other things said: "The betrayal of Jesus is something we cannot understand; we can see how, under certain circumstances, one man might betray an enemy and even a human friend, but how Judas could betray the gracious Son of God is beyond our comprehension; he had been close to Jesus for three long years, and then betrayed him with a kiss. We all honor Pilate up to a certain point; he said he found no fault in Jesus, and suggested that he would chastise him and let him go, but when the mob told him that if he let Jesus go, he was no friend of Caesar. Pilate weakened for fear of losing the friendship of his superior in office, and also fearing that he would lose his political position and possibly his life, he yielded and gave Jesus to be crucified. Is it not pathetic that they compelled Jesus to carry his own cross, but we are glad that at least one man helped him carry it when He fell beneath its weight. What boundless love Jesus manifested, when he hung suspended between earth and Heaven, looking down upon his murderers said, "Father forgive them, for they know not what they do". We cannot look upon this scene without our love for Him becoming deeper and stronger. Let us first of all see to it that our lives fitly represent him, and then let us seek out those in our midst who are seeking satisfaction, not knowing just where to find it; they really ought to be brought in touch with the Master, and those of us who profess to love Him should do all in our power to win the lost of our community to Him.

Next Sunday, another feature moving picture will be introduced "The Chosen Prince". This will be a dramatization of David and Jonathan. This feature will run through four Sundays from the anointing of David to his being crowned as king. To these meetings both men and women are invited and children when accompanied by adults.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

A crash between a nearly new Ford roadster owned and driven by Edward Bigelow of Danielson and a nearly new Ford (how they do make money for that man) touring car driven by John Lane, of Brooklyn attracted a crowd to a point near the junction of Main and Franklin streets, just before 11 o'clock Sunday morning. Neither Mr. Bigelow or Thomas Gaffney of Spencer, Mass., who was riding with him was injured nor any of the four persons in Mr. Lane's car.

Mr. Bigelow was coming along Franklin street toward Main and Mr. Lane had just turned off Main into Franklin when the car hit each other at a point opposite the Quinebaug grist mill. Local and state police investigated the accident. A discovery was that Lane was driving his car without having an operator's license in his possession, a matter that will get him into further difficulty.

The Lane car had its radiator jammed and a tire partly torn off the rim. The Bigelow car, among other damage, had a broken fender, headlight, a jammed steering rig and a flat tire. This machine was towed to a garage, but the Lane car could have been driven were it not for the damaged radiator, which would not hold water.

Figuratively, Chief John McFarland gave a band of gypsies that motored in here Saturday afternoon a kick on the spare tire, about as soon as they landed and told them to get out of town—and be prompt about it. Which they did. The chief just prior to their arrival had received a telephone message from Putnam police telling him that the band had been ordered out of that town for practices that are not approved in good society, and with this information at hand the officer was not at all sparing in his activities intended to keep the gypsies going south.

They were in motor cars, as have been all the roving bands that have infested this section this summer. Their specialty is telling fortunes, though they seemed to have no knowledge they were to be driven out of here, strange as that may seem to those who are supposed to read the future, and picking up a little money on the side or out of one's pocket or pocketbook or wherever one keeps money and is a bit careless about the guarding it.

Chief McFarland has given assurance that this isn't going to be an at all hospitable town to gypsies hereafter. The "On Your Way" sign is hung out for them and it will be seen to that they obey it.

The borough's street painting squad was again on duty, late Saturday night marking more white bandings at points where traffic is heavy and the danger of accidents great. One safety zone marked off by the squad during its Saturday night activities was at the junction of Main and Reynolds street, where the state highway comes in Providence and where they is constant danger of collisions when traffic is moving in heavy volume.

Alfred K. LaRose of Prospect street, Woonsocket, was temporarily knocked into the star shine in the day time, Sunday afternoon, when he went hurtling over the head of Moise L. Cabana of 167 Second Avenue, Woonsocket, behind whom he was riding on a motorcycle in an accident at Wauregan, and struck on his head, a deep gash opening up near his right eye. LaRose also was thrown off the motorcycle but escaped with nothing more serious than a shaking up and some bruises.

The accident occurred at Baton's corner when Cabana tried to steer his machine past a Ford car owned and driven by Stacey Boyd of Barrington, R. I. Indications were that the step or foot rest on the side of the motorcycle hit the rear tire on the left of the Boyd machine.

LaRose was knocked cold and was given first aid treatment where he lay. Later he was taken to a nearby home and physicians summoned. Several stitches were taken to close the wound near his eye, and while the physicians were working on LaRose Cabana revived over in a state of collapse and was in a faint for about ten minutes.

Eventually both young men revived sufficiently to mount the motorcycle and ride away to meet such eventualities as might await them. State Officer Merrill Keith from the Danielson barracks investigated the accident.

Danielson and all the surrounding territory is experiencing another period of drought. Crops are again suffering for water and brooks and rivers are at a very low level. In Danielson little home gardens in reach of a hose are being supplied with water by that method or by carrying out pailfuls to relieve the need of growing garden truck. There was a promise of rain here during all Sunday, but it has not materialized up to 6 p. m.

In Switzerland at one of the houses of the order, Raymond Veigard, a Danielson young man, was ordained to the priesthood as a member of the Missionary Order of LaSalette Sunday. Father Veigard is 24 years of age and a son of Mrs. Joseph Veigard of Danielson. He studied at St. James' parochial school and later at Killingly High school, before deciding to take up his studies for the priesthood, which studies were originally pursued at LaSalette college in Hartford. In the last week of October, 1918, he went abroad for further study. He was in Rome the first two years away and has since been in Switzerland. Father Veigard is not to return here for possibly as long as another year, remaining for further study.

Announcements relative to his ordination were made at all the masses at St. James' church Sunday by Rev. John Roux, M. S., and the prayers of the congregation asked for the young priest.

Wanted—more fox hunters, not for the present period of the year, but for the late fall and winter months, when the weather is snappy and tramping across country is a great and beneficial exercise, in this case combined with sport. Foxes are multiplying so in territory hereabouts that they are becoming a menace to wild game birds and are said to be the cause of this countryside's rabbit population becoming so greatly depleted. Little is heard of them raiding poultry yards, but they are doing damage to the game supply and the call is for men to hunt them. It is a hard sport not to be classed with the comfortable ease of a bass fishing trip, but well worth while—and fox pelts sell for good money.

Two kind sof foxes—the four-footed kind—are to be found in this territory. One is the familiar red fox, the other the gray, which has been hereabouts for only a comparatively a few years. The grays are not of the silver tipped variety, but they are a pretty animal and said to be greater raiders than the red members of the fox family. Such a seasoned and experienced fox hunter as Gurdon E. Withey finds that these foxes are on the increase. He has located litters of young this spring and has a line on the haunts of the grownups.

Thomas Gaffney, who is engaged in the restaurant business in Spencer, Mass., was a visitor here with relatives Sunday. Mr. Gaffney is a veteran of the Spanish American war, going out for service from Danielson, and also served in the Philippine campaign under General Frederick Funston.

Lowell A. Richardson of Providence was a visitor with friends in Danielson over Sunday.

Rev. M. J. Guinet, M. S., former a pastor of St. James' parish, was reported Sunday as seriously ill at Holyoke, Mass.

At Wildwood park Saturday evening there was the usual large number in attendance for the week end dance.

Michael Head, who has been seriously ill the past week, had so greatly improved Sunday that he was considered out of danger.

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell of Norwich, will come here Friday of this week, instead of Tuesday, as is his regular custom, for one of his clinics at the Health station in the town hall building. Dr. Campbell comes here under the auspices of the Civic federation's visiting nurse service and his services are free to those who are suffering from tuberculosis.

PUTNAM

Temporarily work has been suspended on the project of erecting the Tourtellotte-Arnold Memorial chapel at Grove street cemetery. It was stated Saturday that the architect who drew the plans for the chapel, which is to cost in the neighborhood of $40,000, will come here today (Monday) or Tuesday to confer with the building committee relative to some changes that it may be necessary to make in the plans.

In the meantime a landscape artist is mapping out the development of the grounds that will surround the chapel which will be the most impressive structure of its kind in eastern Connecticut. There is a probability, it was stated Saturday, that the uneven ground in the section where the chapel is to stand will be so sub-divided as to make excellent sites for mausoleums. It is not anticipated that the present suspension of work on the building of the chapel will be of any great duration.

Can it be possible that some rumrunner is communicating with a rum pirate off the coast by means of signal lights of strange nature that have been observed in the vicinity of Putnam Heights? Not many people think so, but there must be some explanation of the fact that red, white and green lights, flashing alternately, have been observed from the city on the heights in the eastern part of the town.

Attention was first called to them on the evening of the Fourth. Possibly they were an "All's well" signal for some bootlegger awaiting assurance that the route was clear, and possibly, so one hard-headed customer suggests, they were headlights and taillights and green stoplights of automobiles making their way through that territory. In any event, the lights appeared to some observers to be in the nature of flashed signals and much curiosity as to what the lights really were and what was behind it all has been aroused among those who know about the incident.

Local men who saw the Firpo-Willard go at Boyle's Thirty Acres, Jersey City, Thursday evening seem fully as much impressed by the record breaking crowds as by the bout itself. One Putnam man who saw the affair said Saturday that he was greatly disappointed in the showing made by Willard, whom he favored to win, and more or less so in Firpo, described as animal-like in his appearance and methods in the ring. From what can be gathered from the Putnam contingent, they are prepared to put their money on Dempsey when the champion faces Firpo, and with it their best wishes that the boy from Salt Lake City will knock the lad from the Argentine for a goal. And the few confident he can do it, too.

Real estate is selling rapidly in Putnam and A. B. Randall is in the forefront in handling sales. See him if you want a home or have one to sell.—adv

This (Monday) evening Chautauqua guarantors have a meeting scheduled to talk over the coming series of entertainments in this city. A representative of the Swarthmore Chautauqua will be on hand and will present the program that it is proposed to give in this city this season. The meeting is to be held in the office of Clerk E. M. Warner of the superior court.

Major building operations projected earlier in the season, and then involved in a slump, are going to be under way with a bang before the end of the month. Stoumbelis Brothers, owners of the site of the destroyed Donahue building, have let the contract to a construction company for the building that is to replace it and work will be actually undertaken in the near future. The contract has been awarded to a Pawtucket firm, which also has the contract for erecting the memorial chapel at Grove street cemetery and the contract for putting in the foundations and doing other work preparatory to the erecting of a monster gas tank by the Putnam Light and Power company, now a subsidiary of the Eastern Connecticut Power company.

What promises to be an interesting souvenir of St. Joseph's parish, North Grosvenordale, when it observes the golden anniversary of its founding on Labor day is a history of its establishment and growth, in preparation by the pastor, Rev. Bernard M. Donnelley. St. Joseph's is one of the large and important parishes of this section of eastern Connecticut, serving spiritually a large percentage of the people of the Grosvenordales and surrounding territory. The parish includes a large parochial school, where several hundred children study, has a substantial church and other property on which there is an encumbrance of only $2,000, which sum it is assured will be raised and the parish made free from debt by the time the golden jubilee is observed.

The week end found the links of the Putnam Country club dotted with golfers enjoying the ancient sports, which now has a great many devotees in this territory. In addition to the club members, there were numbers of visiting players at the links Saturday.

Miss Gertrude W. Perry, driving her father's car, and Miss Eleanor Carpenter have returned from a motoring trip of 500 miles. They visited in Boston and at Gloucester, Mass., during the time they were away from Putnam.

The impression is becoming confirmed that no claimant will appear for the touring car given away by the Elks at their fair a week ago Saturday evening. The owner of the present seems to have heard nothing at all about his (or her) good fortune.

Lucius Goddar is recovering at the Day Kimball hospital from injuries he received in an automobile accident on the night before the Fourth. His home is in Webster.

A marriage July 9 was that of Miss Clara Basinet of this city and James F. Kiley of Webster, Rev. Charles F. Bedard performing the ceremony.

Nine persons charged with having been intoxicated at the week end will have a chance to make explanations relative thereto when this morning's session of the city court is held with Judge M. H. Guessier presiding. It appears the hot weather has increased the tendency of some to drink more intoxicating liquors—or such substitutes as now masquerade under that head. In any event, the police were kept busy locking them up Saturday night and the check-up Sunday morning showed that nine had been arrested. During Sunday all but four of the number had been released on bond or other arrangement specifying their appearance in court this morning. Home made liquor seems largely responsible for the recent epidemic of drunks in Putnam.

A band of gypsies was shooed out of the city by the police, Saturday afternoon, after they had made a nuisance of themselves and had indulged in certain fortune telling attended with light-fingered touches, it so happened, the police did not hear about until the nomads were out of this jurisdiction. After the gypsies had been driven away one man complained to the police that he had been mysteriously relieved of $10 while having his fortune told.

Gypsies traveling through this territory this summer are making their way about in automobiles. Otherwise their moods and methods are much the same as they always have been—and they find people much the same, with a sucker born every minute and sometimes twins.

MYSTIC

The road work under construction on Baptist hill by the state is progressing rapidly. Already the grading is under way and the steam drill is working full time.

Mr. Zellar is building a handsome home on the road to Mystic. From here there is one of the finest views in this section, as it is on very high ground. He is the first to erect a house on this side of the state road, which is across from Stoneridge.

The members of the W. C. T. U. are to have a picnic soon on the lawn of Mrs. A. E. Cutler's on West Mystic avenue. Many of the members are planning to make aprons for the county fair at Norwich on Labor day.

Tuesday evening all interested in forming a saving and loan association are to meet at Odd Fellows' hall, the object being to assist by having a fund to be loaned by the association, to assist those who would erect homes for themselves. Stonington has such an organization.

Miss Louise Paige, organist at the Congregational church, has a leave of absence from her duties for two Sundays, that she may take a course in kindergarten teaching at Columbia university, New York. Several local teachers have attended the summer school at Yale, but Miss Paige is the first to avail herself of the exceptional advantages offered by the New York school. Mrs. Elwood Lathrop is to be organist in Miss Paige's absence.

Mrs. Mary Judd, who has been visiting in Peacedale, R. I., has returned to Mystic.

Elwood Lathrop spent the week end recently with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lathrop, at Yantic.

Saturday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. James Barden of Bruggerman place celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary. Many friends called during the day, and there were present the members of their family and grandson, also Mrs. Amanda Gledhill, Mrs. Barden's mother. Many gifts were bestowed upon Mr. and Mrs. Barden. Refreshments were served to all who called.

STONINGTON

Mrs. Amy Barber, who is passing the summer with her daughter on Temple street, celebrated her birthday Friday. Her two sons and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Barber and Prof. and Mrs. Jeremiah Barber of Providence, were her guests, also Mrs. Newell of Providence, Mrs. Frederick James and son, Frederick, Jr., and Mrs. Nathan James of Stonington. A large decorated birthday cake was presented Mrs. Barber by Mrs. Nathan James. All who called enjoyed a slice of the birthday cake with lemonade. Mrs. Barber received many gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Elderkin and daughter of New York are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank James.

William Bindloss, who has been in Detroit, Mich., for the past year, is at his home on Water street.

Walter Danieu has finished work with the Bindloss company.

The U. S. lighthouse department buoy setter Hawthorne is engaged in setting markers in Little Narragansett bay and the Pawcatuck river.

By the change in time trolley cars leave Westerly for Stonington five minutes earlier, and the same going to Westerly.

George Van Buren spent Saturday at Lantern Hill and on Sunday motored to Middletown.

It is hoped that Stonington will some day have one or two more manufactories locate here. The town needs them, and the business men would be glad to welcome more business to the place. Mystic supports more industries than the borough of Stonington. It is understood that one or two concerns would like to locate here.

At Lord's Point nearly every cottage is either occupied by the owner or rented for the season.

At Wamphasset Point the cottages are well filled.

F. A. Palmer and Core E. Palmer of Stockbridge, Mass., whose ancestors first settled in Stonington, are here looking up their ancestry and the old homes in the town.

The pipe which Sir Walter Raleigh smoked on the scaffold in 1618 is now in the private museum belonging to a London firm of tobacconists.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES SPENDING THE DAY.

In Grandma's room there always sat
Two little black-faced girls,
With tombstone teenth and bullet heads
Thatched close with tight-wrapped curls;
And when we children spent the day
They'd smile and giggle, too,
Till Grandma said, "Jemima, Jane,
These visits aren't to you.
Just mind your knitting, turn the heel—
There Jane, don't drop your stitches."
Jemima'd roll her eyes to where
Two peeled-white hickory switches
Showed under Grandma's tester bed,
And the needles clicked and spun,
While Grandma gave us striped mints
And told us tales till one
Sharp clang came from the moon-faced clock.
And then she'd say "Dear Me!
Jemima, Jane, take your young Miss
And Master, too, to see
The new colt by the pasture bars
And Sukey's tiny calf;
Be careful—" but we didn't wait
To hear the other half,
For John and I, with Jane and Mimy,
(Who wore red strings for garters)
Were off with throbs of happiness,
Straight for the negro quarters.
Here Mammy Chloe sat and rocked,
With Sally Ann's new baby
Wrapped in an old woolen shawl,
And cross-eyed Uncle Abie
Was waiting for us (knowing we'd Tobacco begged from Father),
Ready with weird slave-ship yarns
That made us shiver rather,
Till Grandma called from the great house:
"Where are you John, you sinner?
If you and Mary don't come quick
You won't get any dinner."
And oh, the chicken that we'd have,
With breast for everybody,
Paste cakes with gravy and a sip
From Grandpa's glass of toddy.
And George, the white-haired butler,
With sugar corn and sweet
Potatoes, whispering to us "Now
Jes eat an' eat an' eat,
'Cause white folks now don' live lak dis.
An' times has changed, it seems;
But don' fergit to leave a place
Fo' jelly an' whipped cream."
O these were just the happiest days
That ever, ever came.
And when the sun was going down
Big Joshua drove us home.
Where Mother met us with a kiss
And Mammy, smiling, said,
"Well you-all sho is spent a day,
I specs you's fit for bed."

GLASS HOUSES.

When our teacher came to our school,
She did the queerest thing—
She scolded at the names we had,
And would not let us sing
Until she changed them all around
To give them a different sound.

Flossie Grey is Florence now,
And Mamie Beggs is Mae,
And Tahlde Mills and Tabitha
And must be every day.
And even boys she named again,
Like Benjamin for little Ben.

And one day our teacher said
'Twas nothing less than shame
That one should come so far along
With just a baby name.
A visitor we didn't know
Came in and 'sprised our teacher so!

He stepped right up and kissed her cheek
And said, while passing through,
He found he had a moment's time
To stop to say "How do."
Then she cried, "Dad-kins" with a hug,
And he replied, "How's 'Daddy's Pup?"

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO WIDE-AWAKES.

Many of the boys and girls of the Wide-Awake Circle have been interested and busy other summers in planting gardens, selling produce from their own and other plots, picking berries and making good use of their time when not at play during the long vacation. What are they doing this year? Uncle Jed and the members would like to know"

There are many of the Wide-Awakes who have become interested in birds and joined Audubon societies. It would likewise be interesting to know how many different kinds of birds they have seen and what they know about the distinguishing features and habits of the various kinds.

One way of attracting the birds at this time of the year is to place a bird bath within easy reach of the birds and not very easy for the cats. Nearly anything will serve as a bath and drinking fountain—an old flower pot saucer, a dish or a real bath which can be made especially for birds, high enough off the ground so that pussy cannot take advantage of the birds when they are off guard. A pile of stones can be used as a pedestal and the vessel placed on top.

You will be surprised to see how many birds will use the bath for drinking and splashing during the warm days, and you can study their ways and learn their names at first hand. If several children become interested a contest can be arranged to see who can attract the most birds and it will result in more good than you can readily anticipate.

Children who watch the birds enjoying themselves every day cannot help but be their friends and one who truly loves birds can spread that love through a large circle of friends.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES.

Nest on Roof of School.

Dear Uncle Jed. The past spring we organized a Junior Audubon club. Several children suggested names, but we chose the Eagle Eye Junior Audubon society. Twenty-two members belong to this society. On the roof of this school building is a bird's nest. I have been watching to see what kind of a bird lives in it.

The Knowing Dog.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day as I was walking along the road I saw a dog coming towards me with a stick in his mouth. He was all wet. When he reached me he looked up into my face as if to say "Follow me," and this I did.

After a while we came to a brook and I could see some ducks on the water. He led me down farther where I saw another little duck all by itself. It's mother was calling for it to come to her, but it did not know where its mother was.

I picked it up and brought it to where she was.

How Don, the dog, came to see the duck was because he was paddling in the brook.

After I saw a house I told the woman that stood outside about the duck. She gave me a piece of bread and butter. I told her to give it to the dog because he showed me where the duck was.

When I Lost My Dog.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about a dog. We have a dog and his name is Buster. His color is red and white. One day when my father went to Willimantic, the dog ran with him. It was on Monday and the dog got lost in Willimantic because Willimantic is far away from my house. It is 12 miles from our house to Willimantic. So we didn't know where our dog was. He was lost for two weeks and we couldn't find him. Then a boy saw my father and told him that the dog warden had caught our dog and we should go and get the dog out. We had to pay a dollar to get the dog out but he is a very good dog, does nice tricks and minds. When I tell him to turn over he turns over.

A Pansy's Experience.

Dear Uncle Jed: As far back as I can remember I was a seed. One day I was put into a little bag with some of my brothers, and the bag was put into the window of a store. Soon a lady came and bought me. She put me into some earth, with my playmates, and then I soon felt myself growing. Soon I grew up to be a pretty flower—yellow and purple and white. I had very soft and velvety petals, and I heard one lady call me a pansy. One day the lady who bought me in the bag cut me off with a lot of my brothers and sisters, and we were all pinned on her coat. That was the first time I ever saw so many wonderful things. We went all about the city, but at length we returned to the home of the lady. My leaves were all shriveled up and I was not at all pretty. So the lady took me and threw me among the bushes. Though I am of no use now, I lie content on the ground under the shade of the bushes.

The Dikes.

Dear Uncle Jed: Sometimes Holland is called the Netherlands. That means the low lands. Holland is a very low, flat country. It is lower than the sea. How do you think the people keep the sea from running over their land? They build great walls along the shore. The sea dashes against the walls, but it cannot get in. These walls are called dikes. They have to be very thick and strong. They are built of earth and stones. They are so thick that a carriage can drive on top of them. Sometimes little houses are built on top of the dikes, and trees grow there. But sometimes a leak will come in these thick walls. The tiny hole will grow larger and larger. Then the great sea will rush through the dikes and flood the land. The Dutch people are always afraid that a hole will come in the dikes. Sometimes they have men watching them day and night. If one of these men finds a leak, he rings a big bell. Then all the people come as fast as they can. Everyone works hard to mend the leak in the dike. They know that if they do not hurry, the sea will rush in and sweep them away.

A Picnic.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you and the Wide-Awakes about our school picnic.

The scholars of every school were to meet on the church green. Our school walked through the woods. We had a very pleasant walk.

We played games and watched the boys play ball. But when we started to play another game we were called to lunch.

We had cookies, cake, candy, peanuts and sandwiches for lunch and punch to drink.

After lunch the older girls practiced their essays for graduation. Then as it was not quite time to go home we ran races. That is all I can tell about our picnic day.

Promoted to Sixth Grade.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have been out of school for three weeks. I was promoted into the sixth grade in June. The starting of our summer vacation was the ninth of June.

The last day of the spring term was a most happy day for all of the children, and will be remembered for many years.

I am going with my parents to New York in August to see a large park. Its name is Hyde park.

Hoping this letter reaches you safely.

Yours truly,

An Auto Tire's Story.

Dear Uncle Jed: This story takes place in an old garage and is a conversation between an old tire and an iron nut. The nut has told his story and now it is the tire's turn. The tire began:

"I would not have this story to tell, only that I heard two men talking about it. So I will relate it in their words.

"As you know, we are made out of rubber, and here is our whole story. Rubber is obtained from Brazil, and other warm countries. It is first the sap of the rubber trees, which are found on large plantations in Brazil. Men are employed to collect this sap and this is how it is done. The men start early in the morning and tap the trees as it is done in the maple sugar industry. In the evening the men collect the sap, which has been poured in little buckets, and take it to camp. The sap is white in color when taken from the tree. Afterwards the sap, which is watery, is put in a large bucket. This, together with a paddle and some nuts is taken to a clearing.

The nuts are used to make a fire, because they send off a dense smoke. The paddle is dipped in the pail of sap, which sticks to the paddle. The paddle is then turned in the smoke, which hardens and turns the sap black. This process is repeated until the sap is gone. The rubber is taken to the dock, where a ship comes and takes many of these rubber things to America. The factories put it through a process which turns it out a tire or some other article. I was put on an auto whose driver ran me over a broken bottle, and here I am, and that is the end of my story," finished the tire, and that finished the conversation.

Likes Her Book.

Dear Uncle Jed: The prize book you sent me is very interesting. It tells about spring coming. Little Jack Rabbit has a May party and Danny Fox and Wicked Weasel sneak up and frighten them and run away. I thank you very much for changing the other book for me as I got a book I had won before. The title of the book I have now is Little Jack Rabbit and Chippy Chipmunk.

A Baseball Game.

Dear Uncle Jed: I was upt town t' other day and before I had found out what Si Perkins thought the weather was goin' to be for the next day which same he almosts always gets right, Hen Ward grabbed me and took me upt a baseball game. Hen told me that the fellers were playing on a diamond, what was a lie because they were playing on Bill Williames cow pasture. Well, Unc., a guy out in the middle of the pasture throws the ball and another guy with a stick hit it and it dis appeered into Mirandy Joneses house of which it busted clean through a winder. Hen said it was a Home run and I tell him that it better before Jones comes out. Well, Unc., then things begin to happen. Jones comes up with his old revolution gun and tries to shoot the guy what nocked the ball through the winder but the blamed thing wouldnt go off because the bullets which were supposed to be used in the gun were not the kind which Jones had in the gun. Well then the big bull came up and butted him over the fence and he landed in Bill Williames horse trough who has a frocius broncho horse which he got from Texas. And the broncho horse bit a whole in Joneses pants which was sorrowful because they was the ones which cost 3$ and what was his only ones.

Well, Unc., I have to close this letter now because Hen wants me to go to a baseball game of which there is a lot of fun.

Indian Relics.

Dear Uncle Jed: Not far from my home are places where Indian relics are found. Everyone cannot be taken home so easy as the arrow heads that are found in different places.

One day while I was at a school picnic I heard a very interesting fact about the Indians. It was this:

On a mountain near here is a chair that is said to have been made by the Indians. It is of stone. The one that told this said she could sit down and go to sleep in it even though it is made of stone it is comfortable.

How long it must have taken them to make it. Think of the rude tools they had to use then compared with those of today.

While I was down visiting a friend she showed me a piece of oval shaped stone with a hole clear through the center. She said that it was very valuable.

My father has all kinds of arrowheads and other queer Indian relics which he has found either hoeing in a garden or some other way. He has a large box full of many different kinds.

Yours truly,
ESTELLA A. BRAND, Age 13.

Mildred's Accident.

Dear Uncle Jed: There was once a girl named Mildred, who was a very disobedient girl. One day, on her way to school, her mother, as usual, gave her some advice about the crossings.

Mildred did not heed this advice, however, but, when she reached the crossing she recognized some of her playmates. Regardless of her mother's advice she ran across, but a stone in the way tripped her.

Just at the unlucky moment an immense milk wagon happened to be passing. The driver could not stop in time. Mildred's leg was broken and she was badly bruised.

A few hours later she became conscious—not in her own little room, but in the hospital. Her anxious mother was at the bedside. Mildred tearfully promised her mother that she would become a better girl if she would only take her home.

Going Out Blue Berrying.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day my friend and I decided to go picking blueberries. As we were walking down the path we discovered a nice place where there were many berries. So we picked until we got our pails full. Then we started home. When we got there we ate some of our berries and went picking very often.

JEWETT CITY

People who happened to be in the vicinity of the lumber yard just before dusk Friday evening saw a novel sight. The air was literally filled with bees. Some thought the borough was about to be visited with one of the Egyptian plagues, while several apron-covered heads were seen disappearing in all directions. Some, however, knew that a swarming of bees was to take place. Several beekeepers were notified by telephone. Telegraph Garand soon arrived and a crowd gathered at what was deemed a safe distance to see him capture the swarm. The hive, somewhere, whence this swarm came, has new queens soon to be hatched. The old queen by a wonderful arrangement of nature selects from 10,000 to 15,000 followers and when the time comes they load up with a good stock of honey and simply get out. It is not a blind emigration but apparently the well considered sacrifice of the present generation in favor of the generation to come. The beekeeper has only to destroy the stubborn queens in his hive to halt the whole proceeding. Mr. Garand had no trouble with the bees after they had become quiet and had settled with their queen on a lower limb of the big oak in the rear of the fish market. He smoked them up a little, got the queen into the box he had brought, then shook the branch from which the mass of bees dropped like a big over-ripe fruit. After this all the limbs were shaken, the air resounded with their pleasant hum, which is far different from their chant of anger. In all about six quarts entered the box and were taken away to a new home. Mr. Garand did most of his work with only a covering for his hair and har no fear of the thousands of bees buzzing around him, as they are entirely inoffensive during swarming time.

Maurice Maeterlinck, in his Life of the Bee, says it is because of their happiness in obeying nature's law. If a bee-man could not have been found, the history of Friday's swarm would not have ended on that tree. Saturday scouts would have been sent out in every direction to seek a comfortable new home. Returning, one would have reported favorably of a hole in a hollow tree, another would have told of an abandoned woodchuck's burrow and a third would have found a crevice in some lod building. Finally a place would have been agreed upon and the whole swarm, in a long line, would have left to take possession. It is rarely indeed that this second flight can be followed by man. According to Maeterlinck, if the owner of Friday's swarm had come, hived them and taken them home, they would have been as much strangers to the hive they had just left as if they had never seen it. They would perish rather than enter its portals again. The swarm of Italians taken Friday, with their queen, was worth $16.

Charles Allen Burleson, Jr., of Schenectady, N. Y., who is with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Burleson, in Sylvandale, celebrated his fifth birthday Saturday with a little neighborhood party. Grace Jeffers, Lucille McCluggage, Alberta and Robert Scates and Allen Whalley were the guests, and enjoyed games and refreshments, the latter being served on a table under the trees. Toy balloons floated from the trees and fancy cakes and favors lent color to the table.

THE LITTLE JACK RABBIT PICTURE FOR COLORING

Oh the lollypop tree
Is a sight you must see,
Pink and yellow and red.
And the candy balls grow
In a nice little row
On the limb just over your head.

So, if you have any,
Just come along with your penny
And make up your mind to be brave,
For a friendly old bear
In glossy brown hair.
Sits smoking outside of his cave.

Yes, that's where we must go, little reader, you and I, if we would eat a lovely lollypop. So put your hand in mine and come along. Maybe we'll meet Little Jack Rabbit on the way. Like all the little people of the Shady Forest and the Sunny Meadow he is fond of sweet things—

"Clover tops and lollypops,
Ice cream cones and breakfast scones."

Well, just hear that! It's Robbie Redvest singing. He is saying, "let me come along too, won't you please?"

"All right," answers Little Jack Rabbit and away they go faster and faster until they are far ahead of us up the Shady Forest Trail, in and out among the trees, past the pond where Busy Beaver dives in and out of the water, past the Tall Pine Tree House in which Prof. Jim Crow has his new home and his radio outfit, until by and by we find outselves under the Nutcracker's Lodge in the Big Chestnut Tree.

Standing in the front doorway is Squirrel Nutcracker, his beautiful long bushy tail curled up over his back and his bright eyes twinkling in the morning rays of Mr. Merry Sun, who has poked his way through the treetops for a look at the forest folk.

"Up to Cosy Cave," answers Bobbie Redvest.

"Yes, that's where we're going," chimes in Little Jack Rabbit. "I've got a carrot cent and Bobbie Redvest has a Lincoln penny. I guess we'll each get a lollypop."

"Sure you will," laughs the old squirrel. "Here's a nut, maybe the Big Brown Bear would like it."

"Thank you," replied the polite little bunny boy rabbit, putting the old squirrel's present in his pocket. "Good-bye" and off he hops, lipperty lip, clipperty clip, the little redbreasted bird flying overhead, until they both came to the cave where the Big Brown Bear sells lollypops and other sweet things to everybody who has a few carrot cents to spend.

"Come right in," says the Big Brown Bear, waving his right paw in welcome. "Step in and make yourself at home and maybe you'll see a lollypop fall from the lollypop tree."

So in go the two little visitors, each with his hand in his pocket to make sure of the money, for, Oh dear me! the lollypops looked mighty good, let me tell you—those in the glass bottles and those outside on the tree.

"Well, there you are," cries the Big Brown Bear, handing them the candies. "Have a good time for when I was young, lollypops didn't grow on trees and the man in the moon wasn't married.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

SATURDAY'S MARKET

New York, July 14.—Today's stock market was an unusually dull session with a continuation of yesterday's upward movement. There was evidence of an improvement in speculative opinion and bear traders who sought to cover were forced to bid up prices. Absence of many traders for the week and contributed to the extremely small volume of the transactions.

Prices opened somewhat higher and held fairly well until the close when there was some reaction of profit-taking. Speculative industrial issues were the strong stocks enjoyed a moderate advance. No interest at all was displayed in the rail group.

Demand sterling moved up briskly to $4.40 3-8 a gain of 1 1-16 cents. French francs and German marks also improved moderately.

The weekly clearing house statement showed a decrease of $57,057,000 in loans, discounts and investments and an increase of $23,562,000 in the reserve of member banks in the Federal Reserve bank. Net demand deposits increased $3,606,000 but time deposits declined $3,670,000. Aggregate reserve totaled $630,765,000, leaving excess reserve $36,792,480, an increase of $20,806,280.

WEEK-END PRODUCES USUAL RECORD OF AUTOMOBILES IN COLLISION

Automobiles driven by Chief Petty Officer Larsen of the submarine base and Mr. McGrier of Worcester collided almost head-on Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock at the corner of Water and West Main streets. The Larsen machine, a Ford coupe, was turning into Water street from West Main as the Worcester machine, a touring car, was coming out of Water street, running into the Larsen machine which was close to the curb. The wheels of the coupe were damaged and Officer Larsen was considerably shaken up. The Worcester car escaped with slight damages but a girl in the car received a cut in her chin. State Policeman M. R. Sterling was on hand and took a report of the accident.

Steering Rods Buckled on Curve.

A Ford touring car loaded with camping equipment, while making the sharp curve at North Stonington late Sunday afternoon had its steering rods buckle and a girl was thrown out of the car. She was carried to the porch of a nearby house where cuts on her face were bandaged. The names fo the driver and occupants of the car were not learned.

The Police Court.

Anthony Stankewich, 31, and Albert Dempski 25, both of this city, will be in the police court this (Monday) morning to explain a collision of their automobiles Saturday night on Eighth street near the railroad crossing. The damage was slight.

Dempski made a complaint against Stankewics to Officer John Carroll, charging that Stankewics was intoxicated which was denied by Stankewics. While the accused and the complainant, were at police headquarters, another witness appeared who put the blame for the accident on Dempski. Captain D. J. Twomey summoned both men to appear in court.

REVENUE LAW CHANGES RESULT IN LESS TAX

The United States government received $34,977,000 in taxes from Connecticut during the fiscal year ended June 30, it was disclosed by figures made public last week by Internal Revenue Collector Robert O. Eaton. This was a drop of $15,091,000 from the federal revenue collected in Connecticut during the previous year, but is traceable largely to changes in the revenue law.

The elimination of the transportation tax accounted for $5,169,000 of the tax on insurance policies took off $1,384,000 more and the fact that less rich persons died in Connecticut in the period covered, made a difference of $6,300,000. A drop of approximately $2,100,000 in income tax collections was largely counterbalanced by increases in the receipts from other taxes.

A drop from $374,000 to $292,000 in collections on account of the dealers' excise tax was brought about mostly by exemptions of articles that were formerly subject to this tax. The figures indicated that the aggregate spent by Connecticut girls for beauty creams and similar substances is enormous. About $650,000 a year is spent in the state for cosmetics and perfumes, if a comparison of revenue figures is reliable.

Much Spent for Thirst

According to the story told by the figures, while the people of Connecticut were free spenders during the past year, they tightened up to some extent from the previous year. They continued to buy automobiles and accessories and other luxuries of great aggregate value. There was nothing in the figures to show what the people of the state spent for ice cream cones and the college ices, but a drop from $518,000 to $108,800 in the taxes collected on non-alcoholic beverages, under which classification these now exempt luxuries were formerly taxed, indicated that over $4,000,000 a year is spent for such delicacies. The tax on cereal beverages and grape juice accounts for the greater part of the $108,000 taxes collected under the head of non-alcoholic beverages.

Tobacco tax fell off only slightly, the collections of the previous year having been $331,900 as against collections of $315,700 in the fiscal year just ended.

Spurt in Manufacturing

A spurt in manufacturing during June was indicated by an increase in the manufacturers' excise tax from $346,000 in June 1922, to $866,801 in the past month. Candy and automobiles were chiefly responsible for the gain. Manufacturers paid the government $2,670,000 under the excise tax in the past year, as against $3,737,000 in the previous yaer.

Under the national prohibition act the revenue department collected $24,800 in fines and compromise settlements, which was $4,400 more than the collections on the same account in the year ended June 3, 1922. Other sources of receipts during the past year were: Special tax on distilled spirits used for non-beverage purposes $13,906; oleomargarine, $7,800; documentary stamps, $257,500; dealers' excise, $292,000; narcotics, $3,860; special tax on brokers, theatres bowling alleys and so forth, $120,000; capital stock tax $1,185,800; admissions and dues, $1,123,000.

The income tax collections for the year amounted to $25,131,000, as compared to $27,237,000 in the previous year.

The taxes collected by the government last year in Connecticut exceeded the total state tax collections in the same period by over $12,700,000.

JUDGMENT FOR EXECUTRIX OF JUDGE COIT'S ESTATE

Miss Ethel Van Linschoten of New London, executrix of the estate of the late Judge William B. Coit, wins her suit against A. J. Agranovitch of that city to recover payment of one-half the difference in the tax assessment for the property in Broad street which she sold the defendant, according to a judgment handed down by Judge Charles B. Waller. The case was tried before Judge Waller in the court of common pleas recently.

Miss Van Linschoten claimed in her suit that when she sold the property in Broad street, opposite Williams Memorial park to the defendant, they agreed on $850 as the estimated tax, each to pay one-half and she paid $425 as her half. It was agreed that in case the tax assessment was less than $850, the defendant should pay back to the plaintiff the difference between $425 and one-half the actual amount.

In his memorandum of decision, Judge Waller finds that the actual tax was $412.50 and that the plaintiff is entitled to receive back $218.75. He enters judgment for $231.18, the amount of the finding and interest.

RECKLESS DRIVING CASE ON NORWICH AUTOMOBILIST

The case against Leon Buzenski of Norwich, charged with reckless driving, which was to have been heard Saturday before Attorney J. James Floyd, justice of the peace of Waterford, has been continued until July 27 at the request of counsel for the defendants in order that Mrs. Buzenski may be present to testify as a witness. Buzenski was placed under arrest by Deputy Sheriffs J. H. Tubbs and M. J. Martin, following an automobile crash at Quaker Hill on May 18, when Buzenski's automobile collided with the car of William Curtiss while rounding the curve in front of Ginsberg's store. Mrs. Buzenski sustained a fractured thigh and other injuries and since that time has been a patient at the Home Memorial hospital in this city. Attorney R. M. Douglass of Norwich is counsel for the defendant.

NO SCRIPTURAL CONTRADICTION IN DAY'S GOSPEL, SAYS PRIEST

Explaining an apparent contradiction in the Scriptures, Rev. Myles P. Galvin, preached Sunday morning at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church to the usual crowded auditory, from the gospel for the Sunday—eighth after Pentecost—Luke 16:1-9, the parable of the Unjust Steward. Father Galvin took as his text the concluding words, "Make unto you friends of the mammon of iniquity, that when you shall fail they may receive you into everlasting dwellings."

This admonition of our Lord would seem to contradict His words in another gospel, when He declared the difficulty of a rich man entering Heaven—as difficult as it would be for a camel to enter the eye of a needle. In reality, it is to be interpreted as a lesson to man to make good uses of whatever of worldly wealth he may have acquired, since all that man possesses is merely entrusted to him by God.

The rich man, after using what part of his possession he may need for himself and his family, is not making proper use of the overplus if his intention is merely to hoard it. Rather should he please God by distributing a portion of it to any needy neighbors, to the poor, in spreading the gospel here and among foreign missions, in aiding benevolent institutions, as hospitals, homes for the aged and dependent children and the like. In this manner he is making friends of mammon, that is, turning his worldly goods to worthy uses, certain to win the commendation of his Lord. And not alone is this his privilege, it is his duty and obligation.

Nor does the gospel mean that only the rich should thus dispense their goods; even those of moderate means can and should spare from what they possess for the same charitable causes.

So numerous were those receiving Holy Communion at this mass that Father Galvin required the assistance of Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero in administering the Eucharist.

STATE AUTO DEPARTMENT HOLDING DOWN ACCIDENTS

The summer campaign against accidents is proving effective in the seven principal cities of Connecticut, according to figures issued by the state motor vehicle department, for there is a decrease of 12 per cent. or 19 accidents for the week of July 7, as compared with the figures of June 30, the former totalling to 148, and the latter to 167.

Even when comparing the accident situation of the last week with that of the corresponding week of last year, the result is satisfying for there is a decrease of 6 per cent. or 9 accidents. The percentage of decrease may seem small, but when taking into consideration the fact that there is an increase of over 33 per cent. in the number of cars being driven this year, as compared with last, the results seem more satisfactory.

Four of the 148 accidents of the week of July 7, were fatal, one being in Hartford, one in New Britain and two in Waterbury.

Following are the number of accidents in each of the seven principal cities of Connecticut for the week of July 7, 1923 and for the corresponding week in 1922:

CITY	1923	1922
Hartford	51	32
New Haven	30	44
Waterbury	22	13
Bridgeport	19	38
New Britain	14	13
New London	8	10

HANGS HIMSELF IN JAIL AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London July 15.—Louis Wyoutzky, a Pole, ose efore the judge of all men instead of before the superior court for New London county. He was charged with attempting to kill by shooting last Friday night when the police officers sought to arrest him, but he ended his life in a cell at the New London county jail last night. He made a "rope" by tearin his shirt into shreds and then tying one end over the towel hook in his cell and other other self. Turnkey Gilbert saw Wyoutzky end around his neck he strangled himin his cell at 7.30 Saturday evening and an hour later he was seen by a risoner who was trusted about the cells in a working caacity. About two hours later Jailer Reed found Wyoutzky hanging and dead. The man was about 40 years old.

Swordfish Here and There.

Norwich people, after reading that New London people were finding it expensive to buy swordfish that cost the market's 25 cents a pound, a jump from 18 cents a pound, are wondering why the people in the Old Whaling Town are kicking. Norwich people nearly four weeks ago were paying 40 cents per pound for swordfish but now get it for 30 cents. They feel that New London has yet to feel the pinch.

ORDER OF VASA TO HOLD STATE CONVENTION

Elaborate plans are being made for the state convention of the Swedish Order of Vasa, in Middletown, Saturday, September 1. This order has 33 lodges in Connecticut with nearly 3,000 members, men and women. In the entire United States there are about 58,000 members.

The order is soon to meet in Middletown, the delegates to be entertained by both Linne and Victoria lodge of that city.

Middletown was chosen as the convention city for the reason that Councilman J. Philip Berggren is the present district master of the state and will preside at the convention session.

Upwards of 200 delegates from all sections of Connecticut are expected to be present on the occasion. The last time the convention was held was in 1914, when Mr. Berggren was district secretary of the organization.

The matter of selecting the convention hall is unsettled at present, as the committee is desirous of securing a place large enough to hold the business session and banquet in the same building.

An attractive program will be gotten up in connection with the event. J. P. Berggren is general chairman on the committee, which is made up of the following: John W. Kahre, secretary; Robert J. Johnson, treasucer; John C. Bengston, publicity; Eric Ahlberg, Mrs. J. P. Berggren, Mrs. J. C. Bengston, Mrs. Andrew Carlson, Mrs. Oscar Carlson, Mrs. J. Lofgren, Miss Tillda Nelson, Mrs. Axel Larson, Mrs. Frederick Anderson, Mrs. August Olson, Mrs. Robert Johnson, Mrs. Edward Lundberg, Mrs. Perry Closson and Mrs. Carl Lundberg.

The Order of Vasa is one of the well known fraterial organizations devoted to the interest of the Swedish people.

AUTO NUMBER-PLATES MUST BE IN PLAIN SIGHT

Automobile manufacturers have been notified of a decision of Connecticut and eight other states to prosecute persons driving motor vehicles on which the registration plates are obscured by bumpers or other equipment. Through the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, the manufacturers have been advised that factories which have been placing brackets for the registration plates in position which prevent an unobstructed view of the registration plates should make corrections immediately.

The co-operation of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in this respect was requested by the Eastern Conference of Motor Vehicle Admintrators, the member states of which are Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Maryland. E. Austin Baughman of Maryland, secretary of the conference, notified the chamber of commerce that, notwithstanding the fact that the motor vehicle laws of practically every state holding membership in the conference prohibit the improper location of number plates, some manufacturers are, nevertheless, selecting positions for the brackets where the license plates cannot easily be seen.

The Connecticut department has also requested the police to put a stop to the practice of carrying markers so dirty or badly defaced as to make the numbers illegible.

Testimonial Reach $1,000.

The testimonial presented last Thursday to Rev. William A. Keefe, rector of St. Mary's Memorial church, on the 20th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood, by his parishioners and a few intimate friends reached the handsome total of $1,000 according to the report of Rev. Frederick M. Coholan, who was acting treasurer of the fund.

The spirit which found such a ready response, considering the many calls for money at the present time, was both pleasing to, and deeply appreciated by Father Keefe.

Prohibition agents and custom officials, Saturday afternoon seized the rum-running, fishing smack Wanderer, owned by Albert Triene of New London and E. E. Ferguson of Groton. The sloop is now moored at the custom house wharf and the contents of liquor and Bass ale that comprised the cargo of the craft is stored at the custom house. Besides the ale which numbered nearly 500 bottles, or fourteen cases, fifty cases of whiskey, Peter Dawson Scotch and Canadian Club rye was seized. The Wanderer was recently purchased by Triene and Ferguson, of the Frisbie Motor company of Middletown, being a craft of nine gross tons. She is registered at the port of Stonington. The Wanderer put into port yesterday forenoon and went to the New London Marine Iron works where she was moored. After tying the craft up, the occupants of the boat went ashore and while they absented themselves, a man, believed to be a former county officer and whose former duties brought him into contact with harbor and sound craft, visited the place where the Wanderer was moored. Going aboard the boat, the hatch was lifted, and showed the liquor stored there. The man then went to the post office where the prohibition officers maintain an office and divulged his information to the agents. Two agents conferred with U. S. Custom Inspector Jeremiah Lillon and the trio went to the New London Marine Iron Works and Harding the craft fought the liquid in the hatch and in the cabin. The boat was taken to the lumber wharf of the F. H. and A. H. Chappel company, where the ale and liquor was placed on a motor truck and transported to the custom house, after which the boat was tied up at the custom house pier. The finding of the rum-runner will be most costly to the owners for the boat will be sold whenever an order to that effect is issued by the United States court and the owners of the whiskey will suffer a financial loss also, for the seized liquor represents an outlay of approximately $3,000. Whether the liquor was the property of the owners of the boat, is not known.

The superior court at its September term would have two cases of alleged assault with intent to kill that would come from this city. The accused were Louis Wyoutzky and Augusto Pellegrini. Each was held in $2,000, the former without having been able to secure a bondsman and the latter with the property of Mrs. Marie Bellesirini secured as surety on his bond.

Pellegrini's case has less to excuse it. He was over at East street and there he is alleged to have applied a vile name to a young girl who was on the veranda of her home. The girl called the attention of her brother to Pellegrini and then there was something doing for the man. The brother and Pellegrini struggled in the street and the latter pulled a knife. The struggle grew so hot that Pellegrini took to his heels and took refuge on the veranda of his own home where he secured a revolver. The police received a call to the neighborhood and Officers Ray, Sloan and Perkins responded. They demanded that Pellegrini accompany them to the police station where he was locked up for the night. He was held that he might tell the superior court about what happened.

MIXED CLAIMS COMMISSION MAKES $3,316,765 AWARD

To the International Harvester Company for Property Seized in Germany—The Award Bears Interest of 5 Per Cent From December 12, 1921—First Award Made by Commission Created to Settle American War Claims Against Germany—Several Other Awards Are Expected This Week.

Washington, July 16.—The mixed claims commission, created to settle American war claims against Germany today made its first decision, an award of $3,316,765.92 to the International Harvester company for property seized in Germany.

Several other awards are expected before the commission suspends its work for the summer next week when the German commissioner, Dr. Kiesselbach, and members of his staff leave for a visit to Germany, returning about October 1. Some of the American officials will go to Germany later to obtain information for submission to the commission.

Today's decision was expedited by an agreement between the representatives of the German and American governments and was virtually a consent decree. The award, made in restitution of cash assets of subsidiaries of the International Harvester company seized by the German government in German banks, bears interest of five per cent., according to the terms of the treaty of Berlin from December 12, 1921.

CLAIMS BROKER WEIGAND WAS DRIVEN TO SUICIDE

New York, July 16. — Magistrate Oberwager today wrote "Deceased" across the record of an investigation of charges that Smith Weigand, broker, had done "Little Joe" Jacobs, a waiter, out of his $60,000 savings of a lifetime, but not until Weigand's lawyer had forced into the record a charge that Weigand had been driven to suicide by a mass of false charges.

Weigand killed himself yesterday at Milford, Conn., rather than appear again in court on the charge of swindling Jacobs. His lawyer, Philip Wittenberg, appearing before the magistrate today, said:

"I simply want to say that this court has been grossly misled when it was told that Weigand traded without authorization for his client and that his client suffered a loss of $60,000. Instead of being a poor, stupid waiter, Jacobs was a hot-footed speculator, on the trail of every tip."

He then declared the brokerage firm of W. C. Langley & Company, with which Weigand was connected, had made a report of the entire Jacobs transaction to the stock exchange and had been vindicated. The facts were, he said, that Jacobs had lost but $12,000 and this was lost because he suddenly ordered his account sold out at a time when the market in the particular stocks held for him was low.

"Mr. Weigand never solicited Jacobs out of a cent, he was not that kind of a man. From the very first day these charges were made I have had difficulty in getting him to court. He was an extremely sensitive man. Every time he appeared in court he carried a testament and had his minister with him."

Bernard J. Sandler, counsel for Jacobs, retorted that he knew of a sucketshop operator in Wall street who was a church deacon and not only carried a testament himself, but made all his office boys carry them.

Mr. Wittenberg started to charge that Sandler had been responsible for Weigand's suicide by threatening to cross examine him publicly about an instance of alleged improper conduct on his part at a hotel, but Magistrate Oberwager cut him off with the comment:

"The evil that men do lives after them the good is oft interred with their bones." All that I can say is that this is a very unfortunate proceeding. If the defendant's lawyer wishes to make charges against the complainant's lawyer, I direct him to draw up a complaint and bring a civil suit. This case is dismissed."

Jacobs, who said he had worked seventeen hours a day, seven days a week for eighteen years in order to save $60,000, had charged that Weigand, by lavish tipping and otherwise making himself "a good fellow," had induced Jacobs to put up all his savings for investment in speculative stocks.

When his health began to fail and he decided to retire, he charged, Weigand informed him his savings had been swallowed up in losses.

CONTEST FOR BUS LINE SYSTEM IN NEW YORK

New York, July 16.—Facing a tie-up by court order of twenty-seven municipally operated "emergency" bus lines, serving some 250,000 suburbanites daily, the board of estimate and apportionment today appealed to Governor Smith for a special session of the legislature at which another effort would be made to put through legislation enabling the city to own and operate a $25,000,000 bus system.

Meanwhile all legal and near-legal methods were being canvassed by city officials in an effort to find some temporary means of keeping the public riding while the question of municipal ownership pis fought out.

Among the loopholes officials were examining was a scheme to continue operation of the buses under "sightseeing" permits, which it would take some time for the opposition to end by injunction proceedings.

While a part of the Hylan-led force was seeking ways and means of keeping the buses running, a committee of five, headed by the mayor, was seeking out Speaker Machold, republican leader of the assembly, and the six republican assemblymen from New York to plead with them to join the democrats in putting the necessary enabling legislation through at the special session of the legislature the Hylan forces feel certain Governor Smith will call. The mayor declared in an address before the board that a municipal ownership bill similar to the recently defeated Walker-Donohue bill could be passed at a special session if the New York republicans would throw their support behind it.

The board of estimate will meet again on the bus issue Thursday, at which time it is expected Governor Smith will have made known his attitude on the question of an extra legislative session.

Reilly jumped overboard to wade ashore. After taking a few steps, the boys fell into one of the dangerous holes surrounding the island and Finn not being able to swim was held up for several minutes by his companion and saved. A moment later they fell into a second hole and becoming utterly exhausted from the struggle, Reilly let Finn slip from his grasp and attempts to rescue him again proved futile.

The police, who are the besiegers, declared they had not been informed of such a message and until they got official notice, would continue to keep their lines about the city hall. BANTON REFUTES CHARGES MADE BY ANDERSON

New York, July 16.—District Attorney Banton tonight flatly denied the charges made today by William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, that the district attorney had promised to "put Anderson out of business," declaring that such a step would "make me governor."

Mr. Anderson, who is now under grand jury investigation on charges of grand larceny, forgery and extortion, appealed to Governor Smith for an opportunity to submit proof of his charges at a hearing conducted by the attorney general or some other official.

Mr. Banton, in denying the charges, declared it Anderson's duty to lay all the facts before the governor.

"The governor should remove me if it is true," he said. "But he won't. You can't get Anderson under oath at any time."

Mr. Banton declared he had absolutely no ambition to be governor and asserted that present indications were that he had enough of public office.

The district attorney denied that Mrs. Phillips had visited him a year or so ago to get him "to use his official power" against Anderson and that he had promised "to railroad" the anti-saloon league chief.

"Mrs. Phillips," he said, "did come to see me three weeks before the convention was held in Syracuse. I advised her to wait a while because the public might think I was pressing the case for political purposes, and I told her I thought any public officer who would do that was too contemptible to serve the people. I told her I was not an opportunist. I said at the time that if I had indicted Anderson the sentiment of the Syracuse convention was such it might have stampeded for my nomination as governor."

COURT GIVES RELYEA CHANCE TO KEEP PEACE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, July 16.—William Relyea, who resides on Ocean avenue till he lost his home there and who has since been employed at Norwich, persists in giving his attention to the woman who divorced him but a short time ago in the superior court. Now Relyea is to make choice as to whether he will allow his former wife to pursue her way in peace or whether he will spend a season in jail. He was given the option in the police court this morning and wisely chose to allow the former Mrs. Relyea to go about unmolested. Relyea represents that he still loves the woman he took to the alter and who disclosed that he beat her and made her life miserable. The court then gave Mrs. Reylea a divorce. Since then she has not been able to go about without annoyance from her former husband. Saturday night he hailed her as she came from a house on Sherman street and grabbed her by the wrist, at the same time showing a revolver with which he threatened her life. The woman didn't scare readily but shook off her assailant and then called on the police for protection. She got it and Relyea was arrested.

The attorney for Relyea attempted to say that what Mrs. Relyea supposed was a revolver in the hands of his client was in fact a bunch of keys, but this attempt was frustrated by the woman who accused Relyea.

She was very emphatic in her denial and was disposed to go farther with the denial than the attorney for the defense would have her go. Today Relyea was fined $10. Because of his age, which is about 50, and in the hope that the love of peace may hover over the Relyeas in court suspended execution of the judgment for thirty days.

Anderson, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, now under grand jury investigation on charges of grand larceny, forgery and extortion, today appealed to Governor Smith for an opportunity to submit, at a hearing conducted by the attorney general or some other official, proof that District Attorney Banton had promised to "put Anderson out of business," declaring that such a step would "make me governor."

The promise was made, Mr. Anderson declared he could prove, to Mrs. O. Bertail Phillips, wife of the former league solicitor who is principal witness against Anderson. Even after Phillips had signed a waiver of all claims against Anderson or the league, the superintendent declared he could prove, Banton "compelled" Phillips to go through with the case against him, for the purpose of satisfying his political ambition.

Mr. Anderson's statement said he also had called on Governor Smith summarily to remove Mr. Banton and any and all of his staff from further charge of this particular proceedings. Mr. Anderson developed his charges against Mr. Banton in a series of leading questions, which he challenged the district attorney to deny, declaring he wanted to further "get the goods" on him.

Allies and Turks in Complete Agreement

Nothing Now Remains in the Way of Signature of Peace—To Try End Conference Tonight.

Lausanne, July 16.—(By the A. P.)—An agreement was reached late tonight on all the outstanding difficulties in the Near East conference, and nothing remains in the way of signature of peace.

Ismet Pasha, head of the Turkish delegation, and the allied delegates discussed for several hours the question of concessions and evacuation by foreign troops of Turkish soil, and when at 11 o'clock, the sessions were resumed the atmosphere was electrical, recalling the night of February 4, when Lord Curzon, in accordance with his ultimatum left for London and the first peace conference collapsed.

The delegates representing the great powers prepared bravely to encounter the Turks when they met the second time one of them summarized the situation in his remark: "Little by little by terrible tenacity these Turks get more out of us, and now they have reopened things we dreamed were already settled. We will try to end it tonight, but who can tell?"

HAD UNPLEASANT TIME IN THE ENGLISH CHANNEL

Dover, England, July 16. —(By the A. P.)—Romeo Maciel, the Argentine swimmer, with his trainer, Vasques, spent twelve unpleasant hours yesterday in the English channel as the result of the sailboat in which they had put out into the waterway preparatory to a swim shoreward, becoming trapped in a dense fog. Guided only by the sound signals from the shore the fog-bound party broke its way toward Dover, narrowly escaping several times being swamped by the wash of steamers which passed near without seeing the sail or hearing the cries of its occupants.

After finally reaching the mouth of the harbor the swimmer and his companions again escaped a serious drenching or worse when their boat barely missed hitting the breakwater.

Today Maciel and his trainer sailed five miles into the channel and the Argentine aspirant for the honor of mastering the cross-channel passage swam back four hours against the tide.

Dan Richards, the Boston swimmer who attempted to cross the channel in 1922 has returned for another attempt and a cable message has been received from Charles Toth of Boston saying he was on the way for another try at the arduous task which he attempted last year on two occasions.

JOSIAH H. PENNIMAN TO BE PRESIDENT OF THE U. OF P.

Philadelphia, July 16.—Provost Josiah H. Penniman was nominated for the presidency of the University of Pennsylvania today by the board of trustees. The nomination is tantamount to election, but because the statutes of the university provide that selection of officers must be made a month before their election, final action will not be taken by the trustees until the next meeting in September.

The trustees said they had selected Dr. Penniman "in consideration of the unusual talents he has displayed, both in an administrative and an educational capacity, first as acting provost than as provost." The board requested Dr. Penniman to continue to act as provost until his successor is chosen.

The office of president of the university was created about two years ago but had never been filled. Major General Leonard Wood was elected to the office, but after several extended leaves of absence he finally declined in order to accept the appointment as governor general of the Philippine Islands.

SOCIALISTS DEFEATED IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS

London, July 16.—(By the A. P.)—The motion on socialism introduced in the house of commons by Philip Snowden was defeated today, 368 to 121. The only real result of the debate was the practical acceptance by the government of former Premier Lloyd George's proposal to appoint a committee to investigate the present discontent.

Former Premier Lloyd George, opposing Philip Snowden's motion bearing on the capitalist system, public ownership and democratic control, argued that a small country like Great Britain, almost entirely dependent upon foreign trade, was the worst possible country in which to try the experiment of socialism because, unlike Russia, which possessed gigantic natural resources, such an experiment if it failed would be irretrievable.

J. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the opposition, in supporting the motion, said that not a single speaker in the debate had defended capitalism. He asserted that socialism was a higher form of public utility than capitalism and would involve but little bureaucracy.

INTEREST IN MINNESOTA'S U. S. SENATORIAL ELECTION

Indications Are That More Than 500,000 Votes Were Cast of the 800,000 Eligible Voters in the State—Farmer-Labor Party Persists in Claim of Victory for Johnson by About "40,000 Majority"—Statement Withheld by Spokesmen for Governor Preus.

St. Paul, Minn., July 16.—(By the A. P.)—Magnus Johnson, farmer-laborite and follower of La Follette, was leading Governor J. A. C. Preus, republican, on returns from 718 precincts in today's United States senatorial election in Minnesota.

These precincts gave Johnson a lead of 10,000 votes over Governor Preus, an adherent of the Harding administration, the count standing: Preus, 68, 374; Johnson 73,337; James A. Carley, democrat, 6,610.

Both Governor J. A. O. Preus, republican candidate and supporter of the Harding administration and Magnus Johnson, farmer-laborite and La Follett adherent, voted early in their respective home precincts, as did also James A. Carley, democratic nominee.

Ideal weather helped attract many voters to the polls but also slowed up the vote in rural communities, where haying and other harvesting activities are occupying the attention of farmers. Many farmers, however, went to the polls just before closing time.

While spokesmen for Governor Preus said tonight they would withhold any statement until a reasonable percentage of the 3,520 precincts in the state had reported, leaders of the farmer-labor party renewed their claim on victory for Johnson by about "40,000 majority."

That the volume of the vote today would exceed the primary balloting was indicated in reports from every one of the 87 counties which declared the vote would run from 50 to 90 per cent normal. There are 800,000 eligible voters in the state.

In almost every case the county reports showed a vote in excess of that in the promary, and in some instances it was double. This led to the prediction that the total vote would exceed 500,000. In the general election when Preus and Johnson were opponents in the gubernatorial race, the vote totalled 715,000.

M'ADOO TO BE CALLED AS WITNESS IN MORSE TRIAL

Washington, July 16.—It was decided today that Woodrow Wilson would not be called to testify in the trial of Charles W. Morse and others charged with defrauding the government, but arrangements were made to call the former president's son-in-law, William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, to the witness stand either tomorrow or Wednesday.

The decision not to have Mr. Wilson take the stand was reached at a conference between Wilton J. Lambert, associate counsel for the defense, and Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Mr. Wilson's physician, at which Dr. Grayson expressed the opinion that the former president's physical condition made his appearance in court inadvisable.

Mr. Lambert said later that Mr. Wilson's testimony would not be sought in any other form and that no deposition from him would be taken. Testimony desired from Mr. Wilson, it was added, would not have been of great importance to the defense as it would have dealt chiefly with his observations of the progress of shipbuilding at the Morse yard in Alexandria, Va., in May, 1918, when he visited the plant.

Mr. McAdoo's law firm at one time represented the Alexandria company of the Morses, and his testimony is expected to deal with his knowledge of the firm's operations, particularly in their relation to the Emergency Fleet corporation.

The trial entered its thirteenth week today with defense counsel hopeful they could conclude their testimony in another week.

BRITISH GERMAN NOTE TO BE SENT TO WASHINGTON

London, July 16.—(By the A. P.)—Pdemier Baldwin in the house of commons today cleared up two interesting points, namely, that the British note to Germany will be communicated to Washington and that no recent communications over reparations had been exchanged between England and the United States.

The diplomatic talks were resumed in London today, Lord Curson, secretary for foreign affairs, seeing both the Italian and French ambassadors. The prime minister has a plentitude of advisers in his delicate task of drafting a reply to Germany. The British ambassadors to France, Germany, the United States and Japan are being in London at the present moment.

The press teems with suggestions as to what the draft note will contain, but the government maintains the utmost secrecy on this point, and it is exceedingly probable that such secrecy will be continued until the allied powers have had the opportunity of perusing the draft.

The close association of Reginald McKenna with Mr. Baldwin in preparing the draft the two spent the week end together at Chequers court seems to indicate that a plan aiming at a joint settlement of reparations and inter-allied debts may have an important place in the discussions. The insistence in Paris despatches today on the fact that Premier Poincare's speech was prepared before the British prime minister's pronouncement was delivered is regarded here as significant, as proving the desire of the French not to embarass London needlessly in the discussion.

ANTI-CATHOLIC DEMONSTRATION STAGED BY YOUTHS IN ITALY

Florence, Italy, July 16 (By the A. P.)—A group of youths after ringing the bells of several churches to call the people together and shouting "Long live Mussolini," "Long live the fascimo," "Down with parliamentism" and "Down with the Catholics," invaded and destroyed Catholic headquarters here today. Thousands of copies of Catholic newspapers were burned by the mob.

The demonstration, it was declared, was not approved of by the fascist leaders. The fascisti Colonel Tamburini found one fascisti among the demonstrators and clubbed him so severely that he had to be taken to a hospital.

This afternoon there was another demonstration, during which the crowd again cheered Mussolini. There also were shouts of "Down with parliament." The mayor of the city delivered a speech in which he praised the patriotic feeling of the people but condemned unnecessary violence. Later the mayor visited Cardinal Mistrangelo, archbishop of Florence, and expressed his regret for the attack on Catholic headquarters.

Signor Mussolini has telegraphed the authorities ordering the immediate arrest of those persons responsible for the attack on the Catholic institution. "The fascismo," the telegram said in part, "has offered too many proofs of its profound respect for the Catholic faith to have its flag stained by such a deplorable action."

This afternoon a socialist deputy was recognized at the station as he was about to take a train for Milan and was hissed and then clubbed.

An important visitor in this city is Mother-General Christina of the Roman Catholic order of nuns known as the Sisters of Charity of Our Lady of Mercy. Mother Christina comes from the mother house in Tilburg, Holland, and upon her recent arrival in this city was received with warm greetings by Mother Superior Alphonse of St. Joseph's convent and Mother Superior Immaculata of St. Mary's convent. The order of the Sisters of Charity of Our Lady of Mercy has only four convents in the United States and two in South America. The late Rev. Florimond DeBruycker, pastor of St. Joseph's church from May 11, 1863, until his death, Dec. 31, 1902, was effective in securing the institution of the order in this city. The Academy of the Holy Family at Baltic was the first convent instituted in 1874 and it will observe its golden jubilee next year. St. Joseph's in Willimantic was the second convent, being instituted in the spring of 1878, and the third was the Sacred Heart in Taftville, in 1888. Like several other cities and towns, Willimantic is experiencing its usual summer invasion of gypsies. A resident of the Hill section called up the police station Monday morning and complained that a man and two women were engaged in begging in that section. Acting Chief MacArthur and Patrolman McLean made a quick trip to the place and discovered that the parties were gypsies who had set aside their gaudy outfits and wore plain clothes. They were evicted from the city with a warning that a return visit here would terminate in a court trial. A band of gypsies was shooed from the town last Saturday morning.

A local resident became very much interested in an account written by the Putnam correspondent of The Bulletin in which he thought that he himself and others were the witnesses of a giant signal system for rum-runners. There were flaring flashes of white, green and red lights issuing from Putnam Heights, and although one citizen laid it to the headlights, sidelights and taillights of passing automobiles, the majority still held firm to the rum-runner idea. The venerable resident from Willimantic advises the Putnam inhabitants to consult their books on the probable appearance of the northern lights in Connecticut, which often are visible quite far south. He does not, however, look forward to an immigration of Eskimos.

Business depression is being experienced at the Windham Silk company's plant inthis city, according to an announcement made by President C. J. Alpaugh. The depression, however, is no surprise, as it is expected about this time of year. The market is variant and at present raw silk is way down, but not to the extent that would mean a great reduction in prices. Labor is so high that this condition would more than offset the reduction in raw materials.

John J. Collins was effective in saving an Indian motorcycle from being consumed by fire Monday forenoon. The vehicle bore Connecticut registry numbers. Mr. Collins ran out from the Swift & company establishment and turned a fire extinguisher on the blaze. The driver was unhurt.

The dangerous bridge at South Chaplin was the site of another accident Sunday afternoon when a Studebaker touring car in which were six New Britain people struck the bridge and then came to a stop against a telegraph pole, which prevented it from plunging down the bank and into the river. The car was righted by a wrecker from a local garage and proceeded under its own power.

The racing yacht Zingara, owned by John H. Duyn, Jr., of New York, listed under the handicap class, first division, included decked or cabin yachts in cruising trim of 30 to 45 feet water line, the Zingara being a 48-footer, was becalmed in the fog Sunday night off Watch Hill point and being close inshore sent up distress signals. Boatswain's Mate James Fletcher and Engineer Bliven of Coast Guard station No. 58, on Watch Hill point, in response to the distress call, put off in a coast guard boat and succeeded in locating the distressed yacht in the thick fog. A line was passed to the yacht, which was hauled around the point and anchored off the old Block Island dock, at 8.10. Aboard the yacht were John H. Duys, Jr., C. H. Parsons, John Cox Ferrall, John H. Houle, John McCauliffe and Frank Garcide. With two men left aboard the remainder were brought ashore by the coast guardsmen. F. Hadwell Co., and driven by Elston Bromley to the office of Dr. Frank I. Payne in Westerly, accompanied by his father. Mrs. Hall, at Avondale, being notified, hurried to Westerly and accompanied her son in the ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary corps to the Rhode Island hospital in Providence, to which hospital the boy was directed by the physicians Monday afternoon Robert P. Naval sea planes F-5-L, No. 11 and F-5-1 No. 9, acting as scout planes for the fleet of 17 flying boats of the United States Navy, which are due to fly in formation from the Hudson River to Newport this Tuesday morning, were lost in the exceptionally thick fog which hung over Watch Hill point Sunday evening. The two planes came in advance as a scouting fleet and encountered the thick fog coming up the sound! In fact, when New London was reached No. 11 plane came very close to striking Southwest ledge light, as the two flying boats taxied up the sound. Quick action on the part of Lieut. Commander C. H. Maddox, a passenger in the plane in giving a warning prevented a disastrous collision. When off Watch Hill the light house with its fog horn blowing was mistaken for a boat. This together with a wrenching which No. 11 boat received off New London caused the craft to circle about before slowing down on the water. Sea Plane No. 9 continued down the Rhode Island coast in the fog and slowed down on the water inside of Point Judith breakwater to the eastward of Watch Hill.

Boatswain's Mate James Fletcher, Engineer H. B. Bliven and John Coon, coast guard men hearing the noise of the big plane put off in the coast guard boat at 7 o'clock from Station No. 56 on Watch Hill point and were successful in picking up the plane at 7.30. After making fast to the seaplane it was towed around the point and off the diving raft on the bathing beach. The crew of the plane, United States Navy, Lieut. G. E. Short, Pilot Lieut. A. Davis, Assistant pilot; Lieut. Commander C. H. Maddox, a passenger who was on his way to Newport to be an observer in the manovres which are to last until September 1; Chief Machinist Mate R. W. Simmons; Motor Machinist Mate, Third Class, P. J. Mahoney and Radio Operator M. A. Wright, were brought ashore where they remained over night at the coast guard station, the officers registering at the Ocean House. Lieut. A. Gavin came to Westerly Sunday night, taking the train to Boston.

The seaplane, F-5-L, No. 11 is one of the largest planes owned by the government, being slightly smaller than the famous trans-Atlantic N. C. flying boat. The plane has a radio, is equipped with two Liberty motors and has a wing spread of 103 feet, drawing with crew aboard a little more than 3 feet. Under the bow of the blue and white painted hull is the racks for aerial bombs and forward on the upper deck is the mounting plate for a machine gun.

Monday morning, Captain Amos Broadmeadow of the Watch Hill station returned the crew of the flying boat along with their baggage, which had been taken ashore with them the night before. The coast guard boat stood by when the motors were churned up. After taxieing about for a time the craft was headed out by the Point at 1.15 and rising from the water headed east for Newport. In reporting by telephone the Naval Lieutenant spoke of the coast guard men: "Being right on their job" and was appreciative of the assistance rendered.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

An Entertaining Picture is The Woman With Four Faces at the Strand.

This production differs from the ordinary melodrama in that it is treated in the highest possible degree of polish. The love interest, following thrill after thrill, moves swiftly and surprisingly to fine climax and has a happy ending. Miss Compson, as Elizabeth West, an attractive girl though clever crook, has one of the finest roles of her career. Caught after the commission of one of her escapades, Elizabeth (Miss Compson) is brought to trial, but acquitted.

The district attorney, Richard Templer, played by Richard Dix, enlists the aid of Elizabeth in carrying out a plan by which several prominent men who are carrying on a traffic in drugs, may be brought to justice. It is through Elizabeth that the expose is accomplished. This is her "last job" and as the picture closes we find her promising the district attorney to be his partner for life.

Supporting the principal players in an exceptionally strong cast, including George Fawcett, Theodore Von Eltz, Joseph Kilgour, James Farley and Guy Oliver.

A comedy and new were the short sumbjects.

Vaudeville at the Strand Starting Thursday

Broadway Theatre

When L. J. Gasnier made his recent picture, Rich Men's Wives, letters began to pour in to B. P. Schulberg producers of the featuring, asking him why he did not show both sides of the question. Schulberg, believing in fairness in all things, decided to comply with the demands made upon him. The result is the absorbing drama, Poor Men's Wives, which is now playing at the Broadway theatre. It is a superb film achievement, entirely new story enacted by a new set of players, including such favorites as Barbara LaMarr, David Butler, Zasu Pitts, Betty Francisco and Richard Tucker.

Jay Gelser's remarkable story, The Flower of the Flock, was one of the sensations of the literary world when it was first published; now it is duplicating that success in pictures, having been filmed under the title of "Driven." It is a Charles Brabin-Universal-Jewel production and is being shown at the Broadway theatre. The principal roles are in the hands of such noted artists as Charles Mack (appearing through the courtesy of David Wark Griffith), Elinor Fair, Emily Fitzroy, Burr McIntosh, George Bancroft, Fred Koser, Leslie Stowe and Ernest Chandler. This is the second feature on the program.

BREED THEATRE

"The Last Hour" now playing at the Breed theatre is a very powerful story. Also it is told in an effective way. Milton Sills and Carmel Myers who play the leading roles have never doen a better piece of work according to our recollection. With such players and with such a story, The Last Hour should easily rank as one of the leading photoplays of the year.

The Last Hour deals with two brothers, one of whom at the opening of the story returns from South America where he has amassed a fortune and the other who has broken into the local bany and is about to leave the country with his ill wife.

The story goes on with the subsequent career of the elder brother who in spite of his desire to lead a normal honest life is enmeshed in a series of unfortunate circumstances which finally lead him, an innocent man, to the gallows.

Perhaps the most stirring and most realistic bit of screen story and acting comes in the final scenes when Carmel Myers as Saidee McCall attempt to secure a last-minute pardon from the governor and fails—and the moment for the prisoner's execution arrives—and passes. It is an unusual twist that makes a powerful and totally unexpected climax.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathe news and an Educational comedy.

FIRPO-DEMPSEY FIGHT MAY BE STAGED IN ARGENTINA ON NOVEMBER FIRST

New York, July 16 (By the A. P.)—The heavyweight boxing outlook took an unexpected turn late today when Promoter Tex Rickard announced a definite proposal to stage a title match between Jack Dempsey, the champion, and Luis Angel Firpo in the capital of the latter's native Argentine, Buenos Aires, about November 1.

Firpo, keenly anxious to fight for the highest of fistic honors before his countrymen, already has accepted Rickard's terms. Jack Kearns, the titleholder's manager, discussed details of the proposition with Rickard for an hour this afternoon and at the end of the conference told the promoter his answer would be ready by Wednesday.

Rickard said his plan to take the fight out of this country was prompted by two reasons—Firpo's desire to return to his native country for the sport, and enthusiastic reports from the promoter's agents as to the possibilities of financial success in the "Paris of South America."

Rickard has had representatives in the Argentine for some time, looking over the ground, but just after Firpo's knockout victory over Jess Willard at Soyle's Thirty Acres a few days ago, he intimated that he had abandoned the project in South America because of the probable risk involved. However, he received cabled advices today that helped alter his mind, one of them from Juan Homs, a personal agent, saying that a fight between Firpo and either Dempsey or Harry Wills, negro contender, would draw more than 2,000,000 pesos—about $800,000—in the Argentine capital.

The exact nature of his offer to Kearns was not revealed but it was believed it embraced a percentage proposition that would assure the champion and his manager close to $500,000.

Kearns, meanwhile, declared that although he would give Rickard's offer every consideration, he was desirous of arranging, if possible, two matches for the champion in this country this year instead of going to South America. Kearns said he would prefer to have Dempsey meet Firpo first, around Labor Day, and then, if victorious, take on Wills, just before the world's series in October.

Rickard has Firpo bound to an ironclad contract, however. He is not especially interested now in promoting a Wills-Dempsey or Wills-Firpo match. He believes the logical bout is between the titleholder and the swarthy Argentine.

Kearns also has had an offer from Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker for the Yankee stadium, for a Wills-Dempsey contest around Labor Day, but the champion's manager has not acted upon it. Tom O'Rourke, Polo Grounds matchmaker, also is ready to bid for a title fight but has made no definite overtures as yet.

"We're ready to fight," Kearns said, summing up his views. "We want two matches this year, one with Firpo and another with Wills. I am anxious to have them in that order. I'm willing to sign for both with one or with separate promoters. For our share, I'll want 50 per cent of the gate."

OVER HALF THE FIELD ELIMINATED AT LONGWOOD

Boston, July 16.—The field of 80 lawn tennis players here for the 31st annual renewal of the historic Longwood bowl singles championship was reduced to 33 in the play today. With one exception, the match scheduled between R. Norris Williams, 3rd, Bryn Mawr, Pa., and W. W. Ingraham, of Harvard, all the first and second round matches were disposed of. Williams will arrive here tomorrow. Zenzo Shimizu, the Japanese Davis cup team captain, dropped out of the singles competition today by defaulting in order that he may concentrate on doubles practice, while Masanosuke Fukuda, champion of Japan, won by default. The other Japanese player here, Seichiro Kashio, defeated Robert Bray by a score of 6-0, 7-5, and thus atoned for his defeat at the hands of Bray in the recent Church cup series in New York.

Other seeded players survived by winning in straight sets. N. W. Niles, Massachusetts singles champion, was the only seeded player to be hard pressed. He defeated V. D. Vickery, of Boston, 6-4, 8-6, after trailing in the second set five games to one and with the score 40-15.

Harvey Snodglass, of Los Angeles, made a favorable impression in his first appearance on grass courts. He went into the third round by defeating Herbert Shaw, of Boston, 6-1, 6-2.

PERISCOPE WINS FEATURE EVENT AT KALAMAZOO

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 16.—Periscope, driven by John L. Dodge, won the 2:06 trot first event of today's Grand Circuit race card. She had the contest well in hand at all times. Hollywood Hilda broke in the first heat and was distanced. After winning the first heat in the free-for-all pace, Margaret Dillon was taken ill and Murphy drew her. Hal Mahone, the Childs' mount, took the next two heats and the race. The best time, 2:03 1-4, was slow for this event.

The 2:07 pace was a split heat affair. Gilded Lady, Second came through in the first heat and won by a nose in 2:04 1-2 from Buddy Mac. In the second and third heats Lambert Todd, the Murphy horse, won handily.

Tom Biggar, of Marshall, Mich., upset the talent when he captured the first two heats of 2:20 trot in 2:08 1-4 and 2:09 3-4 with diamond Axworthy. The third heat was won by Well Worthy.

The crowd was the largest that ever attended the opening day of a local meeting.

It is understood that the fight articles stipulate that Greb must weigh 160 pounds at 3 o'clock the day of the fight.

PHYLE IS CANNED AS AN UMPIRE

Rochester, N. Y., July 16.—Umpire Phyle, of the International League, was discharged just before the start of today's game by John Conway Toole, and the other two umpires officiating at the Baltimore-Rochester series, McDevitt and Geisel, quit. The sudden dismissal of Phyle is believed to be the result of a weird decision at a game here yesterday between Rochester and Baltimore, President Toole seeing the decision. Geisel and McDevitt intimated after the game today that there probably would be a general strike of all the umpires in the International League as a result of Toole's action today.

Jack Dunn, president and manager of the Baltimore club, characterized Toole's action as a detriment to the game, saying that the league head had no real cause to discharge the umpire on the request of Manager Stallings.

Dunn said Phyle was one of the best umpires in the International league.

YANKS SPLIT EVEN WITH CLEVELAND

Cleveland, July 16.—Cleveland and New York again split a doubleheader today, Cleveland winning the first, 6 to 0, and New York the second, 11 to 7. Coveleskie, knocked from the box Sunday by the Yankees, never was in danger today. The Yankees gathered nineteen hits off four Cleveland pitchers in the second game but when nine runs behind, the Indians staged a rally that caused Manager Huggins to send Pennock to the rescue after Cleveland had scored five runs and had the bases filled. A finger on Bush's left hand was broken by a ball batter by Speaker. Score:

UNITED STATES TO HAVE COMPETITION IN OLYMPICS

New York, July 16.—The United States is going to have greater difficulty in winning first honors in the eighth Olympics next summer than in any previous world contests, according to General Henry T. Allen, former commander of the American army of occupation and executive officer of the American Olympic athletes during the contests, who recently returned from Europe.

"France and England are waking up," he said, "and preparing in every possible way to take the title from the United States. In France the government is getting busy and 7,000,000 francs has already been raised to turn out a winning French team.

"In England everyone from the king to the kitchen police is working for Great Britain's success in the games, and 40,000 pounds has been assured."

The general declared that if England can raise $200,000 to put a winning team on the field the United States must raise twice that sum by popular subscription to transport its 500 odd competitors, to train and house them in France, and to bring them home. He stated that every European country is doing much more in the way of preparation than ever before.

WHIRLWINDS WIN EASY GAME FROM CORNETS, 6 TO 1: CLABBY GETS HOMER

The Whirlwinds still remain undefeated in the Twilight league after last evening's battle with the Cornets, runners-up in the league, having beaten the Cornets 6 to 1 in a one-sided six-inning game. The Whirlwinds bunched hits behind errors in the fourth inning and a home run by Jack Clabby, his second in two days, netted three runs—enough to win the game. The Whirlwinds annexed two more counters in the last half of the sixth inning.

The first three innings of the game was a pitchers' battle between Keenan for the Cornets and Diffley of the Whirlwinds. Both pitchers hurled good ball, Diffley having the better of the argument in the matter of hits. Both fanned eight men and issued three passes. Diffley hit two men.

The Cornets got away in the lead in the second inning but their advantage was short lived as the Whirlwinds tied the count in their half of the frame. From then on it was the Whirlwinds' game, Diffley receiving excellent support. Clabby's homer in the fourth inning was one of the longest hits yet made in the Twilight league, the ball carrying to the racing stables in deep right.

$512,991.54 TAXES PAID BY INSURANCE COMPANIES

Hartford, July 16.—Taxes aggregating $512,991.54 were paid to the state treasury by stock insurance companies up to the closing today of the period allowed for such payments. This was an increase of $297,-779.67 over the total of taxes paid by such companies last year, and was due largely to an act of the recent session of legislature which requires the payment of taxes on 50 per cent. of the Liberty bonds and other tax-exempt securities which heretofore have been wholly exempt from stock insurance company tax.

Deductions allowed the insurance companies dropped from $120,351,-708.15 to $92,064,994.21, a difference of $28,287,613.94, with the result that the total tax paid is the greatest since 1918.

A STOLEN $2,000 WATCH RECOVERED IN SAN FRANCISCO

New York, July 16.—A diamond studded watch valued at $2,000, which was stolen from the home of Albert R. Shattuck, retired banker when his Washington square home was robbed of $75,000 in jewels and other valuables on April 2, 1922, has been recovered in San Francisco, it was learned today. The watch, it was said, was given to New York detectives by a woman who had been a friend of Henri Boilat, Mr. Shattucks' butler at the time of the robbery. She said Boilat had given it to her.

The aged banker, it was said, was determined to find Boilat and would devot the last years of his life to running him down.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

Building in Norwich showed a slight increase during the past week over the first week in July and brings the record of new building up to the normal average. During the past week there were eight permits issued at the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton six more than during the first week in July. Good progress has been made on a number of projects now in hand and contractors are rushed with work for the next few months.

As only a record of new building within the city limits is kept at the office of the fire marshal there is little way of checking up on the building within the town. However, it is estimated that there is as much, if not more, building being done outside the city as there is within the city limits. In the East Great Plain section a large amount of building is going on. There are at least five houses under the process of construction in this locality and many alterations are being made to present buildings. In the Thamesville section there is also considerable building under way and in the Norwich Town section several houses are being put up.

The work on local projects has progressed rapidly during the past week. At the old Main street fire station the building has been practically remodeled and the plate glass fronts of the two stores are being installed. The Pasnik block is also well on towards completion. The work on the Palace theatre is also going ahead at a rapid rate, the exterior work being practically completed.

To Michael Lach to alter barn into house of two flats on Roosevelt avenue. The house when completed will be 26x35 feet with five rooms and bath to each. The exterior finish will be clapboards and shingles.

To Peck, McWilliams Co. to alter the building at 207 Main street occupied by Savard Bros. The work of putting in a new entrance and plate glass front has already been started by the contractors.

To John and Tony Capriloszi to erect addition to the present house on Baltic street. The addition will be 22 x32 feet.

Fred Lafreniere to erect a frame garage on Central avenue. The garage will be 12x20 feet.

To Gottfried Zachae to add to the present garage on Pratt street. The addition will be 12x15 feet.

To Charles J. Baldwin to erect a double garage on West Main street for Mrs. Marion L. Baldwin. The garage will be of frame construction, 20x22 feet, and the exterior will be finished in shingles.

To Charles J. Baldwin to erect a frame garage on Alice street for Mrs. Ella S. Rogers. The garage will be 12x18 feet with novelty siding and slate-covered roof.

To Mrs. Grace Pieper to build an addition of one story to the present house at 56 North street. The addition will include three rooms, and will be 14x37 feet.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 12 sales of real estate as compared to 29 sales for the corresponding week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $31,775 and $37,000.

There were three sales of real estate in New London during the past week as compared to eight sales for the same week in 1922. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $89,600 and $18,450.

The State Situation.

The figures giving the record of building permits issued in the larger cities of the state for the past week, according to the Commercial Record, make a better showing than for the like week in previous years. The number of permits granted in the week was 313, for buildings costing $1,195,685, comparing with 252 permits in the same towns in 1922, for buildings costing $541,537, and 160 permits in 1921, for buildings costing $229,266.

NEW LONDON.

The contract has been awarded for the erection of the proposed new residence for T. P. & J. F. Reagan, at the corner of Montauk avenue and Faire Harbour place. Plans call for a frame house with heat and improvements. The cost is estimated at about $6,000.

The permit has been issued for the brick garage which Sidney M. Sulman is having erected in the rear of 50 Federal street. The permit provides for a structure 23x31 feet.

Several alterations have been planned for the residence of Harry Meadnis, 217 Pequot avenue. There will be two dormer windows and a porch added. The contract for the work has been awarded.

Applications for Building Permits.

BERGDOLLS ASKING FAVORS.

One of the names that has been conspicuous before the country since the early days of the war is that of Bergdoll. It has figured in an unenviable way because of the determination that the Bergdoll boys should not respond to the draft requirements. They were of the right age for service in the army or navy, but they preferred to be dodgers. They were opposed to serving their country and they have not served it. One of them has served a period in prison and may go back. The other was involved in a sensational escape from a military prison and fled the country to which he has never returned. In their determination to avoid the draft they were supported and encouraged by their mother.

Now comes Mrs. Bergdoll with an appeal to the government for a passport that she may go to Europe for the purpose of visiting the son who got away and has been doing all that he could to humiliate this country. She plans to go abroad and of course seeks the assistance of the government to aid her travel in other countries. She wants the help of the government to which her sons refused their's in times of war. She is asking no more than others do, but she has been unwilling to do as much as others have done, and the one to whom she wants to go has had great sport in chiding this government for its inability to get him to show the loyalty that others have eagerly done.

What will the answer of the government be to the application of Mrs. Bergdoll? It can, if it desires, wave aside all thoughts of the Bergdoll family and its determination to give encouragement to the enemy. It can overlook all the experience that it has had because of the Bergdoll boys and the expense that it has been put to because of them. It can also take the view that it is in no way under obligations to his Bergdoll family and refuse to issue the passport that is quite necessary and so much desired.

DRINKING WATER FOR CAMPERS

This is the season of the year when many are at camps and when others are making plans or thinking of going. There are many good rules and excellent precautions that should be observed by campers, as well as those who establish summer homes at points with which they have not been previously familiar. There are the sanitary requirements which need to be carefully observed and there are the provisions against fires, but from the standpoint of health it is of the greatest importance that a safe milk and water supply should be assured.

Campers are inclined to draw their water supply from nearby springs and streams. They may drink from those which run by the roadside and have their source in unhealthy surroundings, or they may draw from wells that are little used except in summer time.

Many are the instances where vacationists have given little thought to such a matter as the drinking water and what was a delightful camping trip has been followed by serious illness which was in all probability traceable to the lack of care while on vacations.

However inviting the roadside stream may look it doesn't pay to take chances. It takes but a little time to make sure regarding the drinking water or to go where it is known to be fit for use, and that time is decidedly cheap when compared to sickness.

Campers can and should do much for their own protection and for the safeguarding of their health. Suggestions that are put forth for their protection are only in keeping with that same keen interest which they should manifest in themselves. They are not to be scorned because they seem fussy and because no cases of illness have happened to befall members of a particular party. Employment of sanitary and protective measures is always advisable and those who are directing attention to them are rendering a highly valuable service.

UNWARRANTED STATEMENTS.

Some writers, disposed to deal in superlatives for the effect that it has upon the readers, fail to impress because of the very fact that they are not supported by the statements of others.

When a Russian countess came to this country as a refugee and wrote about the horrible conditions of the Russian prisons there was little reason to doubt what she said over her name. It was accepted that she had first hand information and to a greater or less degree what she had to tell about the conditions in Russia had been covered by others, who dwelt upon other phases of the conditions as well as the prisons.

When this same former countess makes the claim that Ellis Island is worse than the Russian prisons, immediate exception must be taken to her assertion and surprise expressed that she has not hustled back to the land from whence she fled.

Whatever view she may hold regarding Ellis Island and however much criticism may have been aroused over the actual conditions there it is not necessary to accept her statements or rely upon her wild charges concerning the facts. It may be difficult to refute anything that she may have said concerning Russian prisons but not so concerning Ellis Island.

It was only a few days ago that a British school teacher found it necessary to rebuke those in her own country who had made unwarranted claims concerning Ellis Island. Such unsolicited statements do much to discredit the claims of a countess who attempts to compare our largest immigration station with the vilest dens of Russia. In fact it makes one wonder if the stories in regard to the horrible conditions which the countess has pictured as existing in Russia have not been overdrawn for the purpose of catering to the sensational regardless of the truth. If such people find Ellis island so abhorrent they should understand that they are in no way under obligation to pass through, or attempt to pass through, that important station.

FIREPROOF COAL.

At the last session of the legislature in Massachusetts there was passed a law against the sale of so-called "fireproof" coal. It was for the purpose of protecting the consumer against the paying of high prices for material called coal because it was black but which could not be burned.

What justification there was for such legislation is shown by the statement to the effect that 700 tons of such coal intended for the cellars of Roxbury residents are to be dumped into the harbor at Boston. This represents the portion of the supply of one dealer which he admits is not coal, having been permitted to sort over his bins and save what was really coal. In other instances coal of poor quality, although not bad enough to condemn and several carload lots in other cities which have been condemned indicate to what extent Pennsylvania real estate is being sent into this part of the country and sold for coal. Not only are the consumers justified in feeling that deliberate efforts to bunco them have been made but they are fully conscious of the fact that the state of Pennsylvania has collected a special tax on this "fireproof" coal as if it was coal of the first quality.

There have been indications that certain of the coal operators were disposed to resent the action of the Massachusetts legislature in penalizing the distribution of such material to the extent that there have been fears that that state would not be able to get its normal supply this year.

When a dealer sorts over his stock and throws out 700 tons of admittedly non-burnable coal it shows that Massachusetts made no mistake. It naturally prompts other states to look a bit to the quality of coal they are receiving.

LESSONS THAT ARE IGNORED

Getting to a railroad crossing at the same time with a locomotive means trouble of a serious nature. That is what happened to an auto truck with three occupants at Nashua, N. H., on Monday, and as the result two are dead and the third believed to be dying.

It would appear to be one of those cases where too little respect was paid to the crossing danger until it was too late to avoid the crash. The truck driver had applied his brakes but slid over the rails because of the wet roadbed. He had not given that degree of attention to the "stop, look and listen" sign that every grade crossing calls for. Had his car been slowed down in an endeavor to find out whether it was safe to attempt to cross he would have had it in such control that he could have kept it off the track.

Possibly he wasn't defiant of the crushing powers of the locomotive and he may not have been displaying a spirit of recklessness. The chances are that he was familiar with the crossing, that it was not his practice to pay much attention to reducing speed before reaching the rails and this time found himself in that predicament which befalls too many who neglect to observe precautions.

The lesson of the grade crossing fatalities comes all too often and yet those who stand in the greatest need of it fail to realize that it should be taken home to themselves.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

New England's apple crop is above normal. Which will benefit most the fruit dealers or the cider mills?

The man on the corner says: Many overlook the fact that there's a chance to rise to the occasion by sitting still.

If Mr. Gary starts the ending of the 12-hour day within six weeks he will put a dent in those claims about his offer being a mere gesture.

Germany may think France militaristic because of the Ruhr, but Germany doesn't stop to think that it alone is responsible for the Ruhr.

Another convention has gone on record in favor of uniform marriage and divorce laws. With sufficient agitation they may some day be obtained.

No matter what happens in the way of an agreement, say coal mine leaders, there should be no increase in the price of coal. Well, that sounds good.

Shelby may think of what might have been but it can have no more interest in prize fights, lest it is like the fellow who bought a second gold brick.

The threats made when officials seized motor boats at Detroit and other lake points for rum running show what the sentiment of many is concerning law enforcement.

Campers who go into national forest reserves and fail to extinguish their campfires have no reason to complain when their permits are cancelled and their camping is terminated.

THE CLOUDS ROLL BY

"Hello, kid. That you?

"Why, kid, what's the matter of you? Sure, I won't if it makes you sore. But you're trying to kid me, ain't you, girlie? You know I didn't no more mean to act fresh than anything that ever——"

"But, girlie, lookit here. I never thought nothin' about callin' you kid. I always done it, seems like. Why, I——"

"Have a heart, kid—I mean Dawr'thy——

"Well, honest to Pete, kid, I don't know what to call you. Anything you say goes with me, see? I only just——

"Aw, gosh! You know I didn't mean nothin'—only just I'm so kinda—you know—used to callin' you that and everything——

"But, kid—I mean Dawr'thy—Miss Mahoney—I ain't done nothin', 'sfar's I know to make you sore at me. You'd oughta tell me. A guy's got a right to know. I'll say he has.

"But, say, girlie, lookit. You ain't goin' to give me the air like that without me knowin'——

"But, honest, kid, listen! If I done somethin' to make you sore——

"Well, you sure sounded like you was. I'll say you did, and I ain't got nothin' else to go by. I'll say I haven't. But, say, kid, lookit——

"Sure, it don't! I never said it did. But it all the same makes a pile of difference to me what you do. I'll say it does. And I ain't goin' to back down on that none. When a guy and a girl's went together as long——

"Well, of course, if that's how you feel, I guess I ain't got no comeback. Only I can't help kinda wishin' you'd put me wise to what I done. It sure seems like a guy's got a right——

"Sure, that's all right. I ain't hollerin'. I know how to take my medicine. Maybe you got the right dope about us quittin' goin' together. See, that's all right with me.

"Well, it was you said it first. I never had no thoughts.

"Well, suppose you get off my neck and let me talk a minute. I don't know what I done and so it seemed like it was up to you to put me wise and you says no, nothin' doin' and everything and we better quit goin' together, and so I says I guessed we better quit, too. And that's that!

"Oh, that's all right. It ain't what I done or what I ain't done. It's you pannin' me out and tellin' me I jumped the track without givin' me no chance.

"Sure, it's all right with me. That's what I keep tellin' you. I don't know as there's anything else to say. Maybe we better ring off. We been holdin' the phone an awful long time and seein' this is a four-party line——

"Cert. I didn't know you wanted to say nothin'. I thought we was through.

"Shoot! Ask me anything. I didn't have no intentions of buttin' in when you wasn't finished talkin'——

"Sure, I will. I was down to the folks' downstairs of us playin' penuchle, like me told you when you phoned——

"Yeh. Her that I told you was so swell lookin' and such a cute kid. But I ain't seen her I don't know when, and last night she had stepped out with her sweetie before I blew in to the place, see? I knew she wasn't goin' to be there before I went down.

"Sure, it's straight. I didn't never go down to see her or take her to no movies or anything by my life. Was that what you was sore about, hintin' I was down to see that kid? Lookit, girlie! That Jane don't mean no more in my young life—but she sure is an awful cute kid and I don't know, seein' you and me is going to quit goin' together.

"But I thought you wanted us to. You says we better quit and I sure thought you was givin' me the raspberry and I'm all for backin' off the map when a girl hands out a raw deal like that.

"But, say, girlie, lookit! Didn't you honest want us to—you know—quit?

"Honest? Say, sweetie, listen. You pretty near had me headed for old Lake Mich. I'll say you did.

"Honest, kid?

"Say, ain't that grand? Say, girlie, lookit. If you ain't got no date and wasn't goin' to wash your hair or anything, how about me—you know—droppin' over?

"Oh; boy, will I? Say, kid, I'll be over to your place in a couple jumps. I'll say I will. You just watch my smoke."—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Tibbetts' Farm Sale.

Mr. Editor: The heading used in your Saturday's paper over the article on the Tibbetts farm sale seems to carry the impression that the amount received $20,000, was in excess of an offer made to Tibbetts which he had refused.

The facts are, however, that the creamery so called, had not at that time been purchased by Tibbetts, neither had his tractor, thresher and much expensive machinery later acquired.

An offer was made by Real Estate Agent Moran for the farm as a going business of $20,000. The creamery property which is an old abandoned building with a few living rooms in the upper story has been bought for $3,500. Deducting this amount from the $20,000 leaves but $16,500 for the entire farm proceeds. Not $20,000, as reported. Taking the creamery sale at $3,500, the Stark sale for the bare farm of $18,000, the asking price of William Kilroy of $9,000 for his 17-acre place and other local sales, it shows up this sale as extremely low, if as reported it is but $12,000, especially so as there are on the east side of the state road twelve 100-foot building lots which should bring from three to five dollars per front foot.

Under the circumstances it seems rather a rush to have a man disappear in April and although he practically owed no one to dispose of all of his tangible property in three months.

If a person is deceased it is often found necessary to petition the judge of probate to sell their real estate holdings after six months but it seems like rushing things to sell a missing man's property in so short a time.

Of course it is up to Judge of Probate Bentley to make the decision and we can only trust it will be for the Tibbetts' best interest, be it William Tibbetts' or his heirs.

Respectfully,

A FARMER.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

THE TERRIBLE DRAGON.

Now let me think. Our last story told how the little Goose Girl couldn't speak until Little Jack Rabbit touched her lips with the blue and gold flower.

Well, after that he hopped merrily along and I think he whistled, too, for music helps the feet along you know, and these are the words of the pretty song:

"Over the hills and far away,
I'm merrily travelling day by day.
I don't care if the way is long,
I'll shorten the miles with a merry song.
Hey diddle dey and hey diddle day,

Just then, all of a sudden, a great roaring dragon crept out of a hole in a rocky hill and goodness me! Although the dragon only had one eye, it was as big as the moon, and his mouth as big as a big barn door wide open.

Little Jack Rabbit would have been eaten up, flaming feather and all for dragons can swallow fire just like water, if, just at that moment, the Giant Bunny who owns the forest hadn't run with a great big club and hit that terrible dragon a tremendous hard blow.

Over and over rolled the terrible dragon till he dropped in the river and was carried out to sea where a big whale ate him up for breakfast.

"Well, well, well!" said the Giant Bunny, watching the terrible dragon float down the river to the big blue ocean, "that's the end of him," and, placing two big fingers in his mouth he gave a long whistle. In a few minutes a band of dwarfs stood before him.

"Go into the dragon's cave and fetch me out his great book. And Oh, my! Wasn't it a strange sort of a book, the cover all in gold like creeping flames.

"Come here, little bunny boy," said the Ragged Giant Bunny kindly. "Sit on my knee and I'll show you the most wonderful book in all Rabbit Fairy Land."

As soon as Little Jack Rabbit was sitting on his knee, the Giant Bunny opened the flame book, as it was called and turning over the pages, the first picture they came upon was of a dragon sending out great sheets of flame from his big mouth while a monstrous whale spouted great streams of water. It was so wonderfully drawn that it seemed as if the flames crawled and the water dashed over the page without even singing or sprinkling it.

"I would rather own that book than a kingdom," said the Ragged Giant Bunny. "It's lucky the old dragon ran after you for I've waited outside his cave to catch him for many a day.

After that the Giant Bunny invited Little Jack Rabbit to go home with him, but whether he did or not you must wait to find out in the next story for there's no more room in this one for another word.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. O. Latham Hatcher, of Virginia, who has just been elected president of the Southern Women's Educational Alliance, was the chief founder of that organization, which in a comparatively brief existance has furnished educational and vocational opportunities to 10,000 southern women and girls. Dr. Hatcher has brought to the support of the alliance proved administrative ability and much prestige gained in the educational world. She is a native of Virginia, which state she has had close relations through her connection with its older families. Her practical experience as an educator as gained through eleven years of service as head of the department of comparative literature in Bryn Mawr college. Dr. Hatcher has been a frequent contributor to the periodical press and has manifested a pronounced interest in public welfare movements and the bread issues of the day.

Mrs. Johnston Gives Convincing Evidence

"I am taking Tanlac and am fast getting well, and more than that, my husband is improving every day on the same medicine," said Mrs. James Johnston, highly esteemed resident of 220 Fifth St., Fall River, Mass.

"About three months ago I began to feel poorly and in a short time I was in an awful fix. For a month I could keep scarcely anything on my stomach, no solid food at all, and I had such awful cramps and pains words can't describe how I suffered. My strength just about all left me, and I was so nervous sleep was out of the question.

"Three bottles of Tanlac have helped me so much I don't feel like the same person. I am always hungry and can eat and enjoy every mouthful, for nothing hurts me. I sleep well and am greatly improved in every way. I intend to continue with Tanlac. It's wonderful."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over million bottles sold.

Asleep in the Deep.

A few years ago threw widely known women joined a club devoted to social service. They wished the organization run on parliamentary principles and so each bought a copy of Rules of Order. They studied it faithfully and then went to a business session of the club. Parliamentary practice in the club, they soon found out, was anything but according to the book. Naturally the organization was soon a house divided against itself.

The three women laid away their Rules of Order and resigned from the club.

One of the women is now on a tour of Europe. Just before she left the three parliamentarians met, brought their Rules of Order and proceeded to do a little business themselves. Each bound her little book with crepe and artificial flowers, and attached farewell sentiments.

One card read "Rest in peace," the second, "Gone, but not forgotten," and the third "We love you for the enemies you have made."

The three books were deposited in the trunk of the tourist with orders to "Take them and when you are far at sea give them a deep and decent burial."

The stay-at-homes eagerly await word from the tourist as to the ceremony attached to the heave overboard, and whether they sunk or really refused to be buried.

POETRY

ODE TO A BUTTERFLY.

Thou spark of life that wantest wings of gold,
Thou glorious mystery and magical,
With fairy's energy in thy tiny soul
Thyself creating either, poet thy model
Yet dear to every child
In glad pursuit beguiled,
Living like unspoiled fays pale flowers,
Seeds and berries.

Thou winged blossom, liberated thing,
What secret tie binds thee to other flowers,
Still held within the garden's fostering?
Will they, too, soar with the completed hours,
Take flight, and be like thee,
Irrevocably free,
Hovering at will o'er their parental bowery?

Or is thy luster drawn from heavenly hue—
A sumptuous drifting fragment of the sky,
Caught when the sunset its last glance imbues
With sudden splendor, and the tree-tops high
Grasp that swift blazonry,
Then lend these tints to thee
On thee to float a few short hours, and die?

Birds have their nests; they rear their eager young,
And flit on errands all the livelong day;
Each fieldmouse keeps the homeway whence it sprung;
But thou art Nature's freeman—free to stray
Unfettered through the wood
Seeking thine airy food.
The sweetness spiced on every blossom spray.

O daintiest reveler of the joyous earth!
One drop of honey gives satiety;
Thy feast no orgy shows;
Thy calm eyes never close,
Thou soberest sprite to which the sun gives birth.

And yet the soul of man upon thy wings
Forever soars in aspiration; thou
His emblem of the new career that springs
When death's arrest bids all life's sorrow bow.
He seeks his hope in thee
Of immortality,
Symbol of life, me with such faith endow!

—Thomas Wentworth Higginson.

JEAN.

(Can summer days be Maytide's days forget?)
The fretting daisies smiled to her—
A daisy was her coronet.

And she was all my own that day
And I was proud as any king;
We went our simple gladsome way
And found the many splendored thing.

Ah me, the pathway still survives
The beat of many a lover's feet,
And memories have wistful eyes
And all my thought is bitter sweet.

The autumn sun will gild the grain
So hope and I we ride awee—
If Death waits at my gate again
I know she'll wave a hand to me.

Mr. Butts had been in business in Boston since 1854 when he went there to enter the employ of Bradley Hastings & Co. Four years later, in 1858, he went into the hardware business with Henry C. Backed Into Car Following

Richard G. Graham of 77 Fourth Street had a front fender on his automobile damaged Monday night on North Main street when a machine ahead of him stopped suddenly and backed up.

He reported that the driver of the car ahead saw some girls on the sidewalk and stopped to pick them up, backing so quickly that he hit Graham's car and then drove on without stopping to see what the damage was. Graham got the number, from which it was learned that the car was registered in the name of Everett W. Houston of 16 1-2 North Main street.

Fined in Police Court

In the city court Monday morning three men paid fines for partaking of too much moonshine. Another man charged with being drunk and resisting an officer was fined $20 and costs.

Two local men both charged with intoxication could not pay and went to jail while two others, Albert Demski and Anthony Stankewics charged with disobeying the traffic rules paid $3.80 each. The last two men had been in machines which had collided at Eighth street and Demski had made a complaint against Stankewics.

Buffalo Auto Tourists Meet Here

When they entered the store they saw several people standing at the counter who proved to be Buffalo people known to the autoists. Neither party knew the other was away from Buffalo and it was strange that they should meet in a city many miles from home.

Workman Uses Shovel in Fight

It is claimed that the men got into an argument that led to a fight in which Hassan was hit in the face with a shovel.

TRUSTED MANAGER IS IN NORWICH JAIL ON EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE

William A. Moir, 37, who has been manager for the Charles A. Kuebler Co., 54-41 Franklin street, is in the Norwich jail under an embezzlement charge on which he was arrested last Friday afternoon by Deputy Sheriff Oscar H. Main. The warrant on which he was arrested alleged an embezzlement of $55 from the Kuebler Co., but it is understood that the amount is considerably more than this and may reach about $2,500.

That the charge against Moir is a good deal more serious than the embezzlement of the trifling amount of $55 is indicated by the amount of bail that was required in his case, for Moir, it is reported, told such a convincing story of having a father worth $300,000 who would readily make good any shortage that a friendly Norwich merchant was induced to put up $2,500 bail for him early Friday evening. Moir also told a story, it is reported, of having a sick wife in Barre, Vt., whom he was frequently called to see, this explaining his sudden needs for money at various times, which he met by using what cash was available from the Kuebler business. He represented that everything would be straightened out as soon as his family could be reached as they were financially able to reimburse the company for any money that he had used.

However, Moir's liberty under bonds lasted for only about 24 hours, for his Norwich bondsman withdrew the bond and surrendered Moir to the police Saturday as a result of what he learned of the man's circumstances through a little investigation on Saturday. Since then Moir has been in charge of Jailer Main on Cedar street.

Moir's mother, wife and aunt have arrived here to see what they can do to help him, but his mother has told the authorities that all the money she could raise would be by mortgaging her little home.

The case came up in the police court Monday morning and was continued for two weeks. Attorney Andrew B. Davies, counsel for the Kuebler Co., told the court that they wanted time to go over the books to find out just what Moir's operations had been, and Attorney Arthur M. Brown, who is counsel for the accused man, also wanted more time to become acquainted with the case.

Since Moir's arrest, two Norwich jitney drivers have told the police of the man's habit of running up bills of several hundred dollars for jitney hire for trips to Willimantic. One driver reported that he had a bill for over $100, which Moir paid upon demand, and then ran up another bill that reached $300. By that time the driver shut off on giving Moir credit any longer. Moir then switched to hiring another car and ran up a bill of $1,300 with this driver, according to the statement the driver made to the police.

WILLIMANTIC NAMES FIVE TO SOLVE PARKING PROBLEM

Willimantic, July 16.—The serious problem of parking of automobiles on the city streets was thoroughly thrashed out Monday evening at a joint meeting of the street and police committees and the public. Alderman Edgar W. Jacobs presided at the session which was held in the superior court rooms in the town building and was attended by about 75 people.

Chairman Jacobs announced that the purpose of the meeting was to go over the regulation of parking in a general way and then asked suggestions from the audience. Among the principal regulations which were suggested was the establishing of a time limit for the parking of automobiles on Main street, making Church, North and Walnut streets eligible for parking on one side only and the establishment of a parking place for the local jitneys. Under certain clauses of the city ordinance all automobiles must back to the curbing on Main street in such a position that the right front wheel is six feet away from the curb and the car is at forty-five degree angle. This condition has proven to be a danger point due to the fact that the main thoroughfare is so narrow and a moving vehicle cannot pass between another car so parked when the trolley line runs on tracks set in the center of the street. Various suggestions were offered to remedy this danger, one being that the six foot regulation be amended to four feet.

Joseph Peck, who spoke on behalf of 14 of the 19 local jitney drivers of the city said that the taxi men were willing to pay a revenue to the city if they in return be provided with a parking space and receive protection along with the right to solicit customers. It is thought that new regulations will be made in regard to the Hartford-Willimantic jitneys under the foot bridge at Railroad street so that the place may be allotted to the local men.

One other matter which met with the approval of the meeting was that automobilists from the city and surrounding territory should be educated to acquire the habit of parking their cars on the side streets in preference to Main street when it is the intention of the parties concerned to remain parked for some time. The fact that a number of the side streets which are available for parking are situated in close proximity to the main thoroughfare tends to show that a ruling of this nature would meet with favorable comment.

The existence of various points of danger including the South Coventry terminal on Main street were then brought up for discussion. In relation to the time limit for parking it is thought that the whole problem would be solved by limiting the time during which an automobile may be left on Main street without occupants. This suggestion was generally considered a good one as it would limit away with the necessity of a time limit and yet would eliminate the abandoning of cars on the Main street for an unreasonable length of time.

George F. Stiles then made a motion that the chair appoint a committee of five business men to meet with the police committee and make a thorough survey of the parking question. The motion was carried and the following appointments were made. Joseph Peck, James P. Bath, E. F. Whittemore, C. J. Toomey and Carl Alford. The business men and committee will convene at a meeting on Friday evening of this week in the common council chamber.

SHOT AT AUTOMOBILE DRIVING THROUGH PINES

Several residents of the Laurel Hill sections of the city living near the school house have been troubled recently by some person who makes a practice of shooting at the houses. The guilty party is as yet unknown but some people of that section of the city fear to remain on the porches after dark.

The events in this part of the city led to something more startling early Monday morning for when a local man started for his home about 4 o'clock someone fired at him with a gun when he was driving through the pines on the Norwich-Groton highway, near the Norwich State Hospital. The flash of the gun was seen coming from behind a tree alongside the road and the bullet whistled by close to the car. No report of the shooting was made to the police but if such things continue something will have to be done to safeguard the people travelling through that section after dark.

THREE NEW LONDON MEN UNDER AREST

Three New London men, accused of breach of the peace and intoxication, were arrested Monday night about 10.30 o'clock at the Commercial house on Railroad avenue when a telephone call from the place brought a squad of police in short order.

Sergeant Thomas Murphy and Officers Ryan, McFadden and P. Murphy, who were detailed by Captain D. J. Twomey to answer the call brought in Michael J. Doyle, 54, Raymond Bailey, 28, and Hilliard Estabrook, 23, all of New London, against whom Frank Danesi, proprietor of the place, appeared as complainant. Danesi charged that the men arrived at the place and wanted to buy drinks of which he had none to sell. When he wanted to close up, the men were still there and refused to get out. He telephoned for the police.

New London, July 16.—The places where liquor is dispensed in New London are likely to receive a visit from the police for today Captain Charles A. Pinney instructed Sergeants Nelson Smith and Samuel Hick to instruct the patrolmen of their respective squads to take every measure to put an end to the sale of liquor. It is known to the police authorities, it is stated, that liquor is being dispensed at many places throughout the city and with prohibition officers not making arrests for the law violation, it was decided to have the police attempt a clean-up. Whether any raids will be made as a result of the edict remains to be seen, but the fact remains that the 7 o'clock squad this forenoon and the 3 o'clock squad this afternoon received the mandate calling for the suppression of the sale of all alcoholic drinks.

There was a mass of business in the police court this forenoon, and then it became known that it was possible to get liquor in this city even on Sunday morning, for there was one fellow who declared that he was supplied on the Sabbath. Another told a sailor's yarn about somebody giving him a bottle of wine—a fellow whom he didn't know and who came along just when this fellow was thirsty and forced on him a bottle of honest-to-goodness stuff that he might have sold for a couple of dollars.

Edward J. Bonville of Montville was fined $25 for operating an auto recklessly. Bart Tetreault was fined $5 for failing to slow up in approaching an intersecting street. Stephen Patterson was found operating a car without registration and was fined $3. He didn't tell the court that someone stole his registration from the car, but he grumbled after the adjournment. Sebastian Silva paid a fine of $5 for operating a truck with a defective brake. His truck collided with another car and the New Haven Diary company had the bill to pay. Harris Kostopoulus drove his car into a parking place at Ocean beach without regard to the chance of hitting some other car. He backed in and collided with the fender of the car of Chief Petty Officer Otto Herb. Then there was something doing as Harris ignored every suggestion that he should pay for the damage to the Herb car. As the suit was one to be tried in a civil action the court directed that such a course should be taken and acquitted Kostopoulus of recklessness.

$35,000 CLAIM AGAINST CITY OF NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 16.—The city council was in session twenty minutes this evening and in that time transacted all the business that came to it. A few building applications were approved, including application from the New Haven railroad for a sheet iron station for the Yellow Cab company.

A few residents on what may be known finally as Sharaf street petitioned for curbing along that place, which was referred to the city manager.

Johanna Keating gave notice of a claim against the city for $35,000 damages for injuries she sustained by a fall on Huntington street at a point between the properties of Mrs. Hazzard and J. E. Underhill last February. She sustained a broken hip and has since been in the hospital for treatment. The claim is for a greater amount than has ever been made against the city for similar injuries, or at least for a fall on an icy sidewalk.

Councilor Scott objected to the practice of the Connecticut Power company or the S. N. E. T. company of trimming trees as they desire to accommodate their wires. He said that on Walden avenue one of these corporations had practically taken the heart out of the branches in order to string wires through the trees and he asked that the clerk of the city should notify the companies not to trim any more trees without getting the permission of the council. An ordinance concerning the licensing of amusements at Ocean Beach was referred to the committee of the council on public welfare. A report on the petition of John N. Dimon asking for the repair of his sidewalk on Montauk avenue was made to the effect that the city would pay for half the cost of the relaying of two blocks of cement there if Dr. Dimon gets a satisfactory price from a contractor to do the work. Mayor Murray was absent from the meeting.

His business took him to Mobile, New Orleans, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle and Tacoma. He returned on the Canadian Pacific railroad.

Their response to encores was generous, giving several extra selections. A stereopticon lecture with colored slides on our native birds was also given, which was greatly enjoyed by all.

FIVE STATE POLICEMEN ARE UNDER SUSPENSION

This action was taken by Superintendent Hurley after a hurried trip from Hartford to Centerbrook, accompanied by Capt. Frank M. Nichols.

Aside from authorizing the statement that his action, was taken for "good of the service," Superintendent Hurley refused to make public the reason for the suspensions.

"In my opinion it was my duty to do so," Superintendent Hurley said, "The action was not taken hastily. I regret that it was necessary to take such drastic steps."

In fairness to the officers, he said, it would be unwise to make public the nature of their offenses before they had an opportunity to defend themselves.

The suspension of the men is the outcome of alleged conduct on their part in violation of the rules and regulations of the department, it was learned by the New Haven Journal-Courier.

On the night of July 6, it was learned, the five men under suspension left their barracks and attended a party in Centerbrook. The rules of the state police department expressly forbid any officers leaving headquarters without reporting the fact, which the men failed to do. The nature of the party has not been revealed, and it is highly possible that nothing would have come of the matter had not Officer Dean and Shea become involved in an accident on their return to the barracks, with consequent injury to Dean, which has caused him to be at his home in Hamden since the occasion of the accident. In some way, it is believed, the inability of Dean to explain his injury to the satisfaction of his superiors, roused their suspicions, and with an investigation resulting, the alleged facts were brought to light, with immediate suspension following.

The men were ordered to leave the barracks and return to their homes by Superintendent Hurley. Their uniforms were left behind. The matter now rests with the state police commission to act on the suspensions. The officers will be given hearings, when they will be given an opportunity to defend themselves, resign or be dismissed if found guilty of the charges, or reinstated if proven innocent.

The hearing before the commission will not be held for at least a week, inasmuch as one member of the commission, Motor Vehicle Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel, is on a vacation trip to Nova Scotia.

Officer Mickesson, who recently moved his family from New Haven to the Stone house in Essex, was the only one of the suspended men to remain in Essex.

The suspension of the men removed from the Centerbrook barracks all but one officer, Howard Williams, who was the sole officer on duty after the removal of the others.

Burglary at New London Store.

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 16.—The store of the Aben Hardware Co., at No. 78 Bank street, was burglarized again either Saturday or Sunday night. Entrance to the place was gained by forcing a rear door into the cellar. Once inside the crooks ascended stairs into the store and there they made their haul, taking away a quantity of high priced automatic revolvers, shaving brushes and a quantity of pocket knives. It is believed that the burglary was perpetrated by youths. The store has been entered by thieves several times within the past two years.

The annual outing of Yantic Fire Engine company took place Sunday at Happyland casino, Poquetanuck. Fifty members of the fire department and their friends left the hall in 12 automobiles donated by members and their friends. On their arrival at the casino a delicious clam chowder was served which was greatly enjoyed. Immediately after the chowder, the events of the day took place.

The first and most interesting one was a baseball game between the married men and single men, which resulted in a score of 8 to 5 in favor of the married men. Great excitement prevailed throughout the game, the skill and technique of the married members so rattled the single men that they made many errors. The battery for the married men was Sherman and Weller, captained by Ernest Sherman. The splendid playing of John Weller and Edward Smith was the talk of the gathering. The battery for the single men was Simerouch and Lane, captained by James Hart. While Hart was a good captain, he was a wild man in the field and the game was lost through his errors. A dispute arose during the game between a married man and a single man over a decision of the umpire, John Lamphere. To please the married men he was removed from the box and Frederick K. Kingsley, Jr., was substituted. Wheeler pitched a splendid game and had great support. The married men, who have not been defeated in several years, were very pleased over the result.

After the ball game, a fat man's race was held which was won by John Weller first, F. J. Kingsley second; running jump, Edward Simerouch first, Louis Barrel second; standing hop, skip and jump, Andrew Grieves first, Edward Sherman second; three-legged race, Edward Barrell and Norton Pierce first, John Weller and James Huntington second; sack race, Edward Simerouch first, Ernest Johnsen second; running hop, skip and jump, James Hart first, Andrew Greives second; cracker race, John Weller first, F. How to Look and Feel Bright in Hot Weather

When depressed by the heat and you want to freshen up for the afternoon or evening, just bathe the face in a lotion made by dissolving an ounce of pure powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. You will find this more refreshing than an hour's rest.

As a wrinkle-remover the saxolite lotion is remarkably successful. Its action is almost magical. The deepest furrows, as well as the finest lines—whether due to age, illness, weather or worry—are immediately affected. Enlarged pores are reduced, flabby skin is "drawn in," facial contour is improved wonderfully. The simple ingredients of course can be had at any drug store.

DANIELSON

They're still smashing 'em up. Three more automobiles figured in gymnastic exhibitions on the new Providence road Monday, the first of the accidents occurring shortly after 1.00 a. m. when a Ford sedan with a New [illegible] car came scooting down [illegible] a short [illegible] point where Miss Welch of Providence was killed on the afternoon of the Fourth. The occupants of the car were shaken up considerably and sustained minor cuts and bruises, but all escaped serious injury. The car was towed to a local garage for repairs.

Later in the morning a Buick car got out of control of its driver, while the machine was going down Dark Lantern hill, which would pass for a young mountain in some sections of the country, and finally came to a halt after gyrating around with both front wheels smashed. A little later, also on Dark Lantern hill, another driver returned control of his car as it appeared about to be wrecked.

Is the instrument of safety, warning signs of danger against allowing cars to get rolling too fast on Spalding and Dark Lantern hills are a necessity at these points. They are on a trunk line that is carrying a tremendous amount of traffic and hundreds of drivers who are making the route know nothing at all about these hills, which have been the location of various accidents and one fatality already.

No one can either drive fast or coast down either of the hills with safety, but drivers strange to the road are not likely in many cases to realize the length and steepness of the grades until after their cars are going too fast to be stopped or even controlled. Warning signs at the top of the hill would be a great aid to travelers and it is likely the state highway department will not delay long in seeing that they are put up.

Thousands of fingerling trout are to be brought into this territory Friday and Saturday of this week and Monday of next week, for distribution in trout streams in Killingly, Brooklyn, Plainfield and other surrounding towns. The trout are coming from the state hatchery and are to be taken over and distributed by members of the Danielson Rod and Gun club, which is cooperating with the superintendent of the state fish and game commission in this impressive movement for restocking such brooks as are open to public fishing.

Approximately 12,000 young trout are to be shipped to Danielson in trucks of the state department of fisheries. The cans containing the trout will be picked up direct from the trucks and hurried in cars of the local club to the brooks where they are to be released. There will be no loss of time in making the transfers and in all probability the fingerlings will be swimming as free fish in every brook for which they are intended within an hour after their arrival here, and some of the releases can be made in nearby brooks within 15 minutes.

This is the largest restocking operation undertaken here in many, many years and is made possible through the fact that their is a live sportsmen organization here representing all the communities for miles about and an active and aggressive superintendent of fish and game who believes that great things can be done to improve fishing in Connecticut if the proper activity and interest is shown.

As the trout fishing season is now closed, the fingerling are not likely to be interfered with by anglers and will have a chance to develop materially before another open season is at hand with the arrival of next April.

And relative to fishing, Deputy Game Warden F. E. Kies said Monday afternoon that he has stopped temporizing with fishermen who plead ignorance of statutes that provide that no pickerel under 12 inches may be taken and legally retained and that no bass under 10 inches of length shall be kept by any fisherman who happens to take one. Warden Kies is cooperated with fishermen who are asking short fish and keeping them, and in every instance being obliged to listen to a plea that these men know nothing of the law.

During the first two weeks of July, Mr. Kies has been lenient with such fisherman, but that time is past. Whoever is caught with short pickerel or bass hereafter is coming into court and can tell the judge about it. It has been said many times and still holds that ignorance of the law is no defence. A man who fishes is supposed to know about the fishing laws; at least as to open season and the size and number of fish that may be taken. Those who do not and are caught violating the law hereafter will have to suffer the consequences. No more excuses will be accepted—Mr. Kies' word for it.

J. Leo Bodo, clerk and teller at the Windham County National bank, left Sunday to join a party of other bank clerks from New England points and other sections of the eastern route to Cleveland. The party got away from New York Sunday afternoon by special train to attend the annual convention of the American institute of bank clerks to be held in Cleveland during the present week.

The special train was one of the finest running over the Pennsylvania system and it went out of New York at 4.55 Sunday afternoon, proceeding through Philadelphia, Harrisburg and Pittsburg, which points delegations from chapters in various cities came aboard. The train was due to arrive in Cleveland Monday morning, the clerks being transferred to their respective hotels, where reservations had been made for them.

The Cleveland chapter is planning elaborate entertainments for the delegates. The first section of the convention opens this morning, and the entire day will be given over to discussions of matters of interest to the members.

Wednesday will be devoted to sightseeing and Thursday and Friday to business sessions. Late Friday night the delegates will leave by special steamer to cross Lake Erie to Buffalo, where they are scheduled to arrive Saturday morning. They will visit Niagara Falls an dthence proceed to Kingston, Ont., taking steamer for the trip down the St. Lawrence, through the Thousand Islands and Montreal and eventually to Quebec.

Mrs. Susie G. Williams, secretary of Quinebaug Pomona grange, announced at Brooklyn Monday afternoon that Thursday, August 9, has been selected as the date for the annual field meeting and picnic of the organization, the event to be held at Bates Grove, at the southerly side of Webster lake. Mrs. Williams said that invitations will be extended to Worcester Southwest and the Rhode Island Pomona grange to join in the meeting, which will afford a great outing with many interesting features.

Officer A. W. Williams, of the state police was at Pomfret Monday to conduct the prosecution of a youth of that town before Justice Walter Bryden. The accused was charged with the theft Sunday of a bathing suit at the Dr. Murray place. Various complaints recently have been received by the state police of petty thieving operations in Pomfret and they have set out to obtain convictions of the responsible parties, Monday's prosecution being the first. The youth in question, a resident of Pomfret, was placed on probation for a year.

Charged with having committed a breach of the peace, William Coffey of Dayville was before Judge Woodward in the town court Monday morning and was fined $10 and costs, a total of $20.14. John Lane, charged with operating an automobile without a license to do so, was fined $5 and costs, a total of $15.75. Lane had applied for a license but it did not arrive here until Monday. Sunday his car figured in an accident here and that affair brought forth the fact that he was operating without a license. His home is in Brooklyn.

Toni Juleck, at Monday's session of the court, was fined $1.00 and costs, for an assault on Peter Annis of Goodyear. It appears that Juleck was indiscreet enough to kick Peter in the face, a practice no longer regarded as real chummy in polite society. However, there appeared to have been some provocation and Judge Woodward was not to severe in disposing of the case.

Rudolph LeClair, in another matter disposed of by the town court, was fined $5 and costs, a total of $15.74, for operating an unregistered motor car. Amadee Lucier, owner of the car a light truck was fined also, the assessment and costs amounting in his case to $20.74. These appearances in court were due to a misunderstanding over the matter of transfering plates from an old truck to a new one, without notifying the state motor vehicle department of the change.

Earl M. Wood, who is to be an instructor in the English department at Brown University this fall, spent Monday here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Wood of Academy street. Mr. and Mrs. Wood have just moved to Providence from Cambridge, where they have lived the past year.

Cards received from Hiram W. Burton Monday by friends here were postmarked at Malone, N. Y. He is on an automobile tour with his family and other relatives.

Mrs. W. H. Judson underwent a surgical operation at the Day Kimball hospital Monday. She was reported late in the afternoon as resting comfortably.

While no figures are available yet and cannot be until the close of the fiscal year July 31, there are indications that Killingly will be able to announce another reduction in its indebtedness when the annual town reports are issued early this fall.

PUTNAM

Monday was a sort of clearing house day for drunks in the city court. Of the nine men picked up at the week end for having been intoxicated, two were sent to jail, six were fined and one case was continued until Monday of next week. Police picked up the accused in various parts of the city.

Ovid Boulay, a repeater before the court on an intoxication charge, was not in line for any sympathy from Judge Geissler, who ordered Boulay sent to jail for 30 days. His home is in this city.

Francis Trembly, of Southbridge, was fined $20 and costs of $12.79, but not having the money to pay was sent over to the county jail at Brooklyn. Trembly arrived here Saturday night from New York. He was reeling about the street and at times grasping at parked cars for support, when he was arrested. He told Captain Jarvis he was ill from an attack of asthma, but the officer, who is a fairly good doctor on cases of this kind, decided to operate for hootch.

Amherst Poitier, John St. German, Joseph Salvas, Paul Plante and Joseph Champagne, all paid fines of $20 and costs of $11.14. They live here or in the immediate vicinity. Arthur Shepard, who comes from the town of Killingly also was assessed $20 and costs of $11.14. The case of Barney Clancy was continued one week.

Captain Jarvis said Monday that no toleration will be shown drunks who go staggering about the city streets. All who do this are inviting arrest. If a man must get drunk and parade the streets, he will have to install anti-rolling devices, after the style of the equipment on the new German liner Albert Ballin, now in New York harbor.

Only accidents of minor consequence could be checked up here Monday, after the usual rush of week end motoring. William H. Wardell, who hails from South Somerset, Mass., suffered the worst of any of the injuries reported when something went wrong with the steering gear of the car he was operating, at a point in the town of Woodstock, and the machine crashed into a tree. Mr. Wardell had a finger so slit and crushed that three stitches had to be taken in the course of the attention given it by Dr. E. F. Perry. Mr. Wardell's arm also was injured somewhat. He was motoring in this territory for the particular purpose of making a call on some local residents when the accident occurred.

Another accident Sunday was one in which a light car driven by Fred Mignault of West Gloucester, R. I., was in a mixup with a big 7-passenger machine at a point near the Thompson town farm. Fast driving on a narrow road by the operator of the big car is said to have been responsible for this crash, in which no one was injured.

At Green's grove in Quadic, Sunday, about 200 men, women and children, representative of this city, Mechanicsville, the Grosvenordales and other adjoining territory assembled for a clambake, arranged by John Kennedy of Mechanicsville. The dinner was an excellent one. In addition to the feast there were various diversions to keep all interested throughout the day. Such clambakes are becoming more popular in the territory, since the service is good and long motor trips through heavy traffic to beach resorts are avoided on Sundays.

Business is fine in the city court this month—this, considering the amount of revenue that is being obtained. It so happens that July is proving a month in which an unusual number of arrests are being made for intoxication. The standard fine is $20 and costs and on days like Monday this charge rapidly runs into real money. The revenue Monday alone was in excess of $170. Then there was a case the past week that brought in over $200, and so it goes.

Judge Geissler has stated that if a man can afford to get drunk when liquor costs as much as it does today, he can also afford to pay a stiff fine and costs, if he happens to get arrested, so the finest are fixed accordingly. And the city benefits.

Trout from state hatcheries are going to be available for release in streams all through eastern Windham county within a few days. The distribution this year will be chiefly in the hands of fish and game clubs organized in the territory during the past few months. Brooks in Putnam and adjoining towns will be covered by fish and game club members. More trout than ever before in a single season will be made available for Putnam, Thompson, Killingly, Woodstock, Eastford, Ashford and Pomfret. Farther away towns like Brooklyn, Sterling, Plainfield, Canterbury and Chaplin are so will receive attention from fish and game club members, co-operating with the state fish and game commission. Later in the season supplies of game birds will be sent into the territory. Thus there is demonstration in a practical way of what well organized game clubs can do for the territory in which members hunt and fish, and in this work all who like such sports benefit whether club members or not.

Alderman Edmund Dubois and Mrs. Dubois, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Dubois, Jr. and Joseph Dubois motored to Cape Cod and are spending this week in camp there. They will be joined by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dubois within a few days. On the cape they will engage in fishing and clamming and such other diversions as appeal to them.

The police were investigating an incident Monday that concerns an injury to a little girl whose foot was run over by an automobile and the flesh torn, in a minor motoring accident in Bridge street. The driver of the car was said Monday to be a New York summer visitor to the town of, Woodstock.

Though comparatively few drivers of cars are guilty of the offence nowadays, the police at times find it necessary to admonish the few speed operators that remain. With the admonishments go warnings, that arrests will follow non-compliance with the orders to drive more slowly.

This week the registration at Camp Woodstock—the tri-county Y. M. C. A. institution at Black Pond—is close to 160. A daily schedule of events keeps the boys' interest keyed up to concert pitch.

Of interest here is the fact that State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric of this city is to receive this week a check for $1,000,000 from the Connecticut company. The money will be in settlement of state tax claims against the trolley company.

This evening a benefit entertainment is to be given here for Wilfred Benoit who lost his foot a few weeks ago through being injured while riding a motorcycle.

The Day Kimball hospital nurses' home fund is given a further boost by the raising of two units of $50 each by St. James' church of Danielson.

Mrs. Ulric St. Marie and daughter have been spending a few days with relatives in Fitchburg, Mass.

Chautauqua guarantors considered plans for this season's Chautauqua, when a meeting was held Monday evening in the office of Judge E. M. Warner.

Harry E. Battey, former county game warden, has made plans to go to Charlestown, Mass., where he will have charge of a force engaged in an important construction project during the remainder of the summer. Mr. Battey has been living at South Woodstock and formerly was a resident in East Killingly.

JEWETT CITY

Not a few of Jewett City's most enthusiastic motorists are falling in line, in favoring the idea that the real pleasure of Sunday automobile trips has ended. Accounts by several who were out for short rides Sunday, all include the disagreeable feature of the parade.

To approach Narragansett Pier on Sunday, and before coming within 10 miles of the bay, it was found necessary to fall in to the endless line of goers. The same order was in process when leaving for home. Get into the line of "comers"—and then stay there!

And more, every few minutes some speedy gazazo, pulls out of the line, and attempts to cut in ahead, anywhere that a few feet of empty space is showing. One local man, out with his family, suffered for miles from an irresponsible party, with a big car, who followed for miles, close up against his rear wheels.

At the top of a hill the Jewett City man had to stop quick to avoid hitting a car that came in from a cross-road. The big Packard ran into him, and happily received most of the damage.

The two Springfield rifles, of regulation magazine construction, the same as those in use by the government, have been received from a fort in Texas, by the Jewett City Rifle club. These arms, which are on exhibition in Hourigan Brothers' window, are to be used on the outdoor range, and were presented the club by the government.

The framed certificate of application is also to be seen with the guns. Its text is to the effect that the Jewett City Rifle club, having filled the requirements for membership, has been enrolled as an organization affiliated with the National Rifle Association of America Thursday evening a meeting is to be held relative to the establishment of the out-of-doors range. Mrs. Mary B. Brewster has offered the club a fine range on one of her lots. A part of the government target carrier is also in the hands of Gilbert Miner.

Charles B. Palmer, John Kaufman, Fred Stebbins and John Davis were in New Britain this week to attend the shoot of the Southern New England Rifle association.

Potato raisers all through this section are remarking on the shortage of potato bugs. Inquiries have been made and the information received that the Colorado beetle has appeared in this section in fewer numbers than ever before.

Whole fields have not necessarily been sprayed, with either Paris green or arsenate of lead. In the borough small garden plots have not showed a single bug. Two summers ago, potato crops were harvested in Griswold, only as the result of a continued fight with the hordes of potato bugs that began their attack before the vines showed above ground and continued active until the harvest.

Reports are coming in from several sections telling of damage to growing crops by deer. F. L. Kanahan of Lisbon had a large quantity of beets and peas destroyed in a single night.

Thomas McBroome suffered the loss of a field of cabbages; they were eaten by woodchucks.

Invitations have been received from Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown Owen to attend the marriage of their daughter Estelle, and Hubert Branson Saunders. The ceremony will take place in the First Baptist meeting house in Providence Saturday, July 28. Mrs. Owen and her daughter came from Fort Wayne, Indiana, two weeks ago, and Mr. Owen and Mr. Saunders are expected to arrive in Providence the twenty-sixth. Miss Owen was graduated from Indiana university in June and came east to be married in Providence, where her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Owen, live. Miss Owen is a native of Jewett City and both her parents' families were longtime residents here. H. H. Tift of Glasgo is her uncle.

Mrs. Walter Ellis of New Bedford is at the home of her mother, Mrs. Fred Jodoin for two weeks. Mr. Ellis spent the week-end here.

At the station Monday morning there were more than the usual number of passengers waiting for the boat train. A dozen or more were waiting for their morning Bulletin. The milk car men were waiting to load their cans and hurry home for the farm work of the day. The boat train showed up around the seven-mile curve on time, but stopped on the flats below the Quinebaug bridge. Enshrouded in great clouds of smoke and steam there she stayed close to half an hour. Necks were craned, some few remarks were made. Somehow the report came that the train was off the iron. Some started to walk down. It was nothing short of a circus to hear the various sorts of information given by the crew, when the train finally arrived at the depot. The facts were the engine's brake gear had dropped.

Officer Vegiard, arrested Arthur Dayon for driving a machine under the influence of liquor Saturday. Dayon is from the Submarine base he hails from Plainfield. Judge J. T. Barry imposed a fine of $100 and costs $112.87 in the Griswold town court on Monday morning.

Jewett City people were interested in the story in the Danielson column of Monday's Bulletin which told of the ceremony in Switzerland, when Arthur R. Vegiard was ordained to the priesthood as a member of the Missionary Order of La Salette, Chief of Police Raymond Vegiard of this place and Father Vegiard are brothers. There is also a sister who is a nun in the Sacred Heart convent in Ridge, Maryland. Another sister is Mrs. Ernest Gaudreau, of Danielson.

Benjamin Miller, who conducts a counter in the local railroad station, recently lost his pocketbook containing forty dollars and his railroad pass. Of course, the pass has his name on it. Especially is his loss serious as Mr. Miller's income is small, and neither he nor his wife is in the best of health.

PLAINFIELD

Sergeant Philip J. Delp of the 136th Company, C. A. C., at Fort Hancock, N. J., was in Plainfield Friday and Saturday with his family, visiting Mrs. Delp's sister, Mrs. Arthur Royle. Sergeant Delp made the long trip in a day's ride in his automobile.

Herbert Tarbox who has had a long and painful illness is about again and able to get down town.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

James Robb, 53, alias James Kelly and alias James Lynch, self-confessed murderer of Lieut. Lloyd B. Leaman of the Pennsylvania railroad police at the Glen Riddle railroad station in Glen Riddle, Pa., on Nov. 21, 1922, was arrested Saturday morning in Monson, Mass., by Constable Herbert Aldrich of that town, on information furnished by Thomas J. Hayes, chief of police of this town.

Constable Aldrich, with Inspector Robert Cusick and Capt. James T. Ward of the Pennsylvania railroad police, was waiting for Robb at the rear of the Hancock farm, near the railroad tracks. His arrest was speedily accomplished and he was taken to the state police barracks here pending arrangements for his transportation to Philadelphia. Later Saturday afternoon he left with Inspector Cusick and Captain Ward for Philadelphia, waiving extradition proceedings.

He was arrested in Pittsfield, Mass., May 16, 1923, at which time he confessed to the murder of Lieutenant Leaman. He escaped from the Pennsylvania police June 16th, and had been at large since. From March, 1922, to May, 1923, he worked in this town as a weaver in the Cyril Johnson Woolen company's mill and boarded at the home of Mrs. Abbie Hancock on Westford avenue.

C. M. Agard Recovers.

Clarence M. Agard, of Bridgeport, formerly a reporter on The Bulletin who was taken sick while on a visit in New London last week has recovered. His physician said he did not suffer a shock as was thought but that his illness was due to working for an hour in the blazing sun trying to repair his auto, following a period of hard work in preparation for his vacation.

WOMAN SICK TWO YEARS

Medina, New York.—"I had a great deal of trouble such as women often have, and this affected my nerves. For over two years I suffered this way, then I read in the 'Buffalo Times' about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and have taken it with very good results. I am very much better and feel justified in praising the Vegetable Compound to my friends and neighbors who suffer from anything of the kind."—Mrs. WM. H. ADKINS, 311 Erie Road, Medina, N. Y.

Feels Like Girl Sixteen
Rochester, N. Y.—"After my twin girls were born I was all run-down. My neighbors thought I was going to die. I saw your advertisement in the paper and bought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The first bottle helped me and I kept on taking it. I only weighed ninety pounds when I began taking it, and I have gained in weight and feel like a girl of sixteen. I never can say enough for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. NELLIE DOREY, 16 Sloan Park, Rochester, N. Y.

The Food that keeps you "Right"

If you want to put "sparkle" in your appetite and keep yourself fit, eat a heaping bowl of Mapl-Flake every morning. These whole wheat flakes are full of the vitamins so necessary to growth and good health. They abound in phosphorus, mineral salts and carbohydrates so important in every diet.

In addition, Mapl-Flake is 25% bran—enough to "sweep" the digestive tract and be a natural, harmless "regulator." Yet Mapl-Flake is so tasty and full of flavor that you forget the bran is there at all.

Save these rules—you need them

Oh, Mapl-Flake's the dish for me;
The whole wheat berry, flaked and sweet;
With bran and all, it's toasted brown,
For health and taste, it can't be beat!

$1000 in Prizes for Jingles

Be a Mapl-Flaker and write a jingle! Try one package, see how substantial, satisfying and tasty Mapl-Flake is. You'll have no trouble getting ideas.

Just tell how good Mapl-Flake is and how good it is for you. One hundred sixty-five cash prizes will be awarded. You stand just as good a chance as anyone to win first prize—$250. The contest closes August 15, 1923. Come on—every jingler a Mapl-Flaker—every Mapl-Flaker a jingler. Mail your entries early to the Contest Manager, Armour Grain Company, Chicago, Ill.

Rules of Contest:
1. Everyone is eligible. Boys and girls—try your hand.
2. Write a four-line jingle. It must tell how good Mapl-Flake is, and how good it is for you.
3. Put your name and address on each sheet. Write on one side only.
4. Send all the jingles you want. The more you send, the better your chance to win a prize.
5. Contest closes Aug. 15, 1923. Winners will be announced in this paper Sept. 13, or furnished by mail on request after that date.
6. In case of a tie, each tying contestant will receive full amount of prize.
7. Send all jingles to the CONTEST MANAGER, ARMOUR GRAIN COMPANY, Chicago, Ill.

Prizes:

First	$250	Fifth	$25
Second	150	10 prizes	10
Third	75	50 prizes	5

INSURANCE AGENTS WILL BE GIVEN EXAMINATIONS

The most radical step taken in Connecticut in recent years for stricter examination of insurance agents, was announced this week by Insurance Commissioner Howard P. Dunham. Not only will new applicants be examined by the commissioner or his deputies, personally, as provided by an act of the last general assembly, but that section of the law permitting the commissioner to examine any applicant for renewal of license will probably be applied to all agents who have had licenses less than five years.

Commissioner Dunham said that it is practically certain that he will insist on the renewal examination. It is estimated that his ruling, if put into effect, will cause nearly 7,000 agents in the state to be examined.

Not only will the insurance experience of the applicant be probed, said the commissioner, but special emphasis will be placed on the character of the man.

Applicants for new licenses or renewals will appear at the office of insurance commissioner, as Colonel Dunham does not believe that a written examination gives him enough of an insight into the applicants' qualities.

NOANK HOTEL PROPERTY IS SOLD AT AUCTION

The Bay View hotel property at Noank, recently owned and operated by Louis J. Webb of Hartford, was sold at auction at noon Monday to the estate of Thomas F. Foran of New London for $10,478.94.

The sale, which was held by order of the superior court, was made to satisfy a second mortgage held by the Foran estate. Attorney Arthur T. Keefe acting for the estate, outbid several others who together made 13 bids beginning at $6,000. The auction was conducted by James R. May, local realtor.

A first mortgage for $7,500 is held by the Savings Bank of New London. Appraisers, however, appointed by the superior court, valued the property in their appraisal at $12,000.

The hotel has a frontage of about 145 feet on the street and extends to the river at the rear, bordering the river a distance of 130 feet or so. It contains about 30 rooms.

MOTORMAN KNOCKED DOWN WHILE SHIFTING POLE

Motorman Charles Ladd of the Connecticut Company was somewhat shaken up Monday morning at 7.15 o'clock when knocked down by his car which was pushed ahead quickly by another car striking it from the rear. Motorman Ladd on arriving at the switch in front of the Wauregan Hotel started to change the trolley pole and just then the New London car, Motorman Murphy in charge, came up. Seeing the car ahead he set the brakes but the rails were slippery and the car slid forward striking the trolley ahead, sending it forward several feet. Motorman Ladd who was standing in front of his car was knocked down but threw himself to one side, thereby escaping more serious injuries. He was taken to the office of Dr. J. W. Callahan where his injuries were treated, consisting of bruises. He will be laid up only a short time.

FATHER KEEFE'S SEDAN HIT BY TROLLEY CAR

The Cadillac sedan owned and driven by Rev. William A. Keefe, rector of St. Mary's Memorial church was badly damaged Monday morning about 11.12 o'clock when struck by a one man trolley car at the intersection of Boswell avenue and Hickory streets. Motorman Nelson blew the whistle of the car as he approached the intersection and Father Keefe who was coming out of Hickory street heard the warning but looked for the trolley in the opposite direction and drove out onto the tracks in the path of the trolley. Father Keefe escaped without injury although somewhat shaken. The trolley was not damaged.

The driver of the car has not been located.

Police Sergeant James C. Sullivan today began his annual vacation of two weeks. This afternoon Desk Sergeant Frank Howard, who has been absent a fortnight for vacation, reported for duty.

Youngsblood was not presented in the police court this morning, being delivered to an officer from his ship for courtmartial. About 11.30 o'clock Motorcycle Officer William Babcock, when assigned to the case, found Youngsblood at a window. He explained that a civilian had informed him that drinks could be procured there and that he went to the window to see whether drinks were really being dispensed.

What seems to be the secret of the supposed sale of the Guthrie house in the Pequot section last Saturday is that the house was bid in for the owner, Mrs. Frances Guthrie. The bid of $79,000 which took the place was made by Lawyer Russell of New York who said he was acting for a client. He did not deviate from the truth but he led a number of people astray when he bid the place in for the owner. As the property represented an outlay much in excess of $300,000 it was astonishing that it should be knocked down for $79,000. T. J. Spellacy, a Hartford politician, made a bid of $77,000 believing he actually had a chance of buying the place and one Siegal of Hartford bid $75,000.

The news item which appeared in Monday's issue of The Bulletin concerning the funeral of J. Rodomonski was incorrect. It stated that the funeral service was held at Our Lady of Perpetual Help church and the mass celebrated by Rev. Paul Koszyk, when in reality service was held at St. Peter and St. Paul Polish National Catholic church and mass was celebrated by Rev. Theafilus Czarkowski, pastor.

The officer did not lodge a complaint of reckless driving against Morris. Miss Phyllis Hankey, daughter of Attorney and Mrs. Philip Z. Hankey of Channing street, is spending several weeks at Camp Tohoma, New Hampshire.

An automobile owned and operated by William VanKeuren, Jr., of Best View, Waterford, was badly damaged and Van Keuren was injured this morning when the automobile was struck by the New Haven Dairy and operated by Izzy Diamond, on Williams street, just north of the entrance to the Connecticut College for Women. Van Keuren's injuries are principally lacerations caused by the smashing of the windshield. According to Van Keuren the commercial truck was traveling at an estimated rate of speed of thirty miles an hour and as the two machines were about to pass on a curve, the truck skidded on the wet surface and crashed against the touring car. Van Keuren alleges that he has met the truck and driven by Diamond on several mornings and that the truck is always traveling at a high rate of speed. TESTIMONY OF WM. G. M'ADOO FAVORABLE TO THE MORSES

Former Counsel for the Accused Declared He Had Heard No Attacks Charging Any Attempts to Defraud, Embarrass or Delay the Government in Its Shipbuilding Program—Testified That the Morse Business Was Accepted Only After Careful Investigation—Firm Had Aided the Morse Interests in Securing Coal Tonnage Contracts Abroad—Had Received a Total Payment of $83,000—Like Amount Still Due.

Washington, July 17—For nearly two hours today William McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, occupied the witness stand in federal court here and detailed his relation as counsel, with Charles W. Morse, the shipping operator on trial for alleged war frauds against the government.

Reports that his appearance would be accompanied by important disclosures packed the court room with spectators but for the most part Mr. McAdoo had a peaceful experience as a witness for the defense. He gave his evidence calmly, and there were few clashes between government and defense attorneys. His brief cross examination by District Attorney Gordon bore somewhat into the relations of Mr. McAdoo with officials of the Wilson administration, but developed few facts which had not been disclosed in previous testimony.

The law firm of McAdoo, Cotton and Franklin, of New York, the witness testified, became counsel for the Morse interests after he left the cabinet and represented them in three capacities. The firm served as counsel for the Virginia Shipbuilding Corporation, operating a war ship building yard at Alexandria, Va., and for the Groton Iron Works, another shipyard in Connecticut, and aided the Morse shipping interests in securing coal tonnage contracts abroad.

Mr. McAdoo said he had no stock in the Morse companies. His firm, he said, had received total cash fees of $83,000, and held unpaid obligations of the Morses for a like amount. The sums already paid were $50,000 in cash for representing the Alexandria company in claims against the emergency fleet corporation, and $33,000 in cash on the tonnage contracts. The Morse business, the witness said, was accepted only after careful investigation which developed that Senator Davis Elkins of West Virginia, and Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher, were at one time listed among the directors of the Virginia corporation.

Much of the former secretary's testimony related to his efforts in 1919 to secure an advance payment of $100,000 from the Shipping board and emergency fleet corporation for the Alexandria company, which was in financial distress. Fleet corporation officers, he said, blocked payment which had been promised by Edward N. Hurley, the shipping board chairman, but his successor, John Barton Payne, renewed the promise of the $100,000 payment whether the money ever was paid Mr. McAdoo did not know.

In securing coal tonnage contracts for the Morse lines, Mr. McAdoo said the usual fees were charged in negotiations suggested to him, he said, by John A. Donald, a member of the shipping board. In response to inquiries from the district attorney, the witness said that in negotiating for Italian coal contracts he conferred with members of the Italian war mission but he added that these men had not been concerned in negotiations he had as secretary of the treasury for government war loans to Italy.

In all of his conferences with shipping board officials regarding the Morse contracts, Mr. McAdoo declared, he had heard no attacks charging any attempts to defraud, embarrass or delay the government in its shipbuilding program.

CONFESSED SENDING OF BOMB THROUGH MAILS

Chelsea, Mass., July 17.—Louis Mansolilli, an optician who has been sought since last Saturday in connection with an attempt on the life of Mrs. Grace Lewis by the sending of a hand-made bomb to her through the mails, tonight walked into the Chelsea police station and gave himself up. A warrant charging him with having sent a dangerous weapon through the mails had been sworn out against the man, who was said to have been a former suitor of Mrs. Lewis.

Mansolilli, who is said to be 45 years old, and has a wife and seven children, was not at his home when United States deputy marshals and Chelsea police officers went there late today. His automobile was found in the garage. The warrant for his arrest was granted after a conference with State Chemist Walter I. Wedger and Postoffice Inspectors Breslin and Sullivan.

All three bombs, the state chemist said, were apparently the work of an expert in explosives. The third, delivered at Mrs. Lewis' home last Saturday, was fashioned from an automobile guide book which had been hollowed out and filled with galvanized pipe, bolts, nuts, powder and a gas stove stopcock. Removal of the string that tied the brown paper parcel served to detonate the bomb. Mrs. Sadie Bennett, a sister-in-law of Mrs. Lewis, received the package and opened it. She was badly burned. Mrs. Lewis was not at home at the time. The other two attempts on Mrs. Lewis' life were made within a period of three months. On the first occasion a tear bureau was received by mail. It exploded when a drawer handle was turned. Mrs. Lewis was burned about the legs. About a month ago a bomb made from an electric light bulb was placed in the socket in the hall of the Lewis home. A little boy turned on the light. The explosion was modified, the state chemist said, because a plaster substance that had been pasted outside the bulb interfered with the metal contact. The boy was uninjured.

Mrs. Lewis told investigators that Mansolilli formerly had paid her attentions and that some months ago while on an automobile drive in Lynn he attacked her with an automobile crank. She laid a complaint against him, charging assault. Mrs. Bennett, who was injured in Saturday's explosion, said Mansolilli had persecuted Mrs. Lewis for three months and had even gone to Italy to study bomb manufacture in order that he might kill her.

CONVENTION OF AMERICAN BANKERS' ASSOCIATION

Cleveland, Ohio, July 17.—The necessity of the present credit system, the gold standard, the federal reserve bank and of defending the banking system from attacks of radicals was stressed by John H. Puelicher, president of the American Banking Institute.

Were it not for the gold standard and the federal reserve board, America would have been engulfed in the financial maelstrom of Europe, Mr. Puelicher said. He told the institute bankers that unless they battle in public against the detractors of the country's fiscal system the federal reserve bank will follow into oblivion the first and second banks of the United States, its two predecessors.

The banking and economic leaders of the country were urged by Dr. C. Wallace Petty of Pittsburgh to enter public life to avert an impending crisis which threatened disaster to the nation. He related how false prophets had predicted the close of the World war would bring greater international accord, a return of prosperity and a marked spiritual advance. Instead he maintained, the nation has spent its last four years in dollar chasing and selfishness such as America has never seen before.

Carl E. Talman, president of the institute, told the delegates plans are afoot to affiliate the organization with Canadian and British bankers and that opportunities to affiliate with the institute and to get the benefit of text book instruction soon would be given several bankers.

INSTRUCTION TO JURORS ON ANDERSON INVESTIGATION

New York, July 17.—Echoes of the battle of words now raging between William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, and District Attorney Banton, today reached the ears of the grand jury before which Mr. Banton's chief assistant, Ferdinand Pecora, is presenting evidence intended to bring about Anderson's indictment for grand larceny, forgery and extortion.

General Sessions Judge McIntyre called the jurors into open court this afternoon, as their investigation of Anderson neared its end, and exhorted them to pay no attention to the verbal broadsides the two men are hurling through the press.

"You should be guided and controlled only by the evidence that is adduced before you in the grand jury room," the court said. "We do not want anything to happen in this case that is not legal. We do not want any evidence creeping into the grand jury room—or any facts, I might say—that has no relevancy to the issue at all."

Judge McIntyre's address to the jurors followed a visit by him to the grand jury room—an unusual procedure which gave rise to unconfirmed reports that the jurors and Mr. Pecora had disagreed over some phases of the case and that the judge had been called in to advise the jurors as to the law and their duties.

Mr. Pecora had expected to conclude his case today, but he spent so much time conferring with the jurors before he produced his final witnesses that completion of his testimony was put over until tomorrow.

In the meantime, Anderson and the district attorney continued their word war that started yesterday when Anderson announced he had called on Governor Smith for an opportunity to portunity to prove that Banton had prostituted his office in an effort to "get" him, the ultimate purpose being to land himself in the governor's chair.

FILIPINOS TESTING THE POWERS OF GEN. WOOD

Manila, July 17.—(By the A. P.)—The political war between Governor General Leonard Wood and Filipino officials is a fight to the finish to test the powers of Governor General Wood, a high official of the party of Manuel Quezon, president of the senate and critic of the Wood administration said today.

The controversy, precipitated by the reinstatement of Ray Conley, United States secret service agent came definitely to a head today with the resignation of the cabinet an dthe council of the state. Conley also resigned today.

The resignations of the cabinet and the council of state came suddenly after all day and all night sessions of members of the Filipino political groups and a gathering of the council of state and the legislative council at Governor General Wood's official residence, Malacanan palace.

Conley originally was charged with bribery out on investigation he was cleared and Governor General Wood reinstated him. J. P. Laurel, secretary of the interior, resigned in protest and Mayor Ramon Fernandez of Manila did likewise.

NO REDUCTION IN FORCE OF NEW HAVEN SHOPMEN

New Haven, July 17.—H. C. Cristt, head of the mechanical department of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad tonight denied that a large cut had been made in the forces of men employed in the railroad's shops.

He said that "the company had dropped a few surplus men in the different schops, but the rumor that they had put into effect a 25 per cent. reduction was false."

At the offices of the railroad it was said that the move was for the purpose of putting the forces on a permanent basis in consequence of some reductions in the volume of freight being handled.

CHARGED WITH ABANDONMENT OF HER TWO INFANT CHILDREN

Boston, July 17—A warrant charging abandonment of her two infant children was sworn out in Roxbury district court today against Mrs. Vivian Doane of Salisbury, formerly of New Haven, Conn. The children, Frank two years old, and Lillian, seven months, were left yesterday in the hall of an empty house in the Roxbury district by two young women, who came and left in a closed automobile. The weeping of the children attracted the attention of neighbors and they were removed to a home, where today they were identified by their grandmother, Mrs. Alta Jack, of Swampscott, who took charge of them.

Mrs. Jack, who said she was Mrs. Doane's mother, told the police that her daughter had left her home suddenly two weeks ago. At that time her husband, Roger H. Doane, of Salisbury, found her on a farm near Fairhaven, Conn. Later the police of Salisbury reported Mrs. Doane's movements yesterday. According to these reports, Mrs. Doane went to Newburyport with the children and a friend, Mrs. Alice Dow, taking with her a sum of money belonging to her husband. In Newburyport, the reports said, the two women inquired about a place where they could place the children permanently. Failing in this attempt they left Newburyport, presumably for Boston. Mrs. Dow, it was said, was under summons to appear tomorrow in Amesbury court on the charge of being idle and disorderly.

Doane, the father of the children is 25 years old and employed as a carpenter in Amesbury, Mrs. Doane is 19. The authorities here notified the police of Worcester and of New Haven, Conn., in both of which cities the Doane family formerly lived to watch for the two women.

SCENTS WARNING IN THE ELECTION OF MAGNUS JOHNSON

New York, July 17.—(By the A. P.)—Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, back from a ten weeks' survey of agricultural conditions in Europe, today declared that the election to the senate of Magnus Johnson of Minnesota was a warning to the republican bosses that something was about to happen in the political situation of the United States.

Senator Brookhart, a republican who was elected with the support of the farmer-labor bloc in the seat previously held by Senator William S. Kenyon, in his first public statement since his return to the United States, touched on the presidential situation. Asserting that he had read only three of the speeches which President Harding has delivered on his tour, Mr. Brookhart said:

"I should think that about three more speeches like these would elect Henry Ford by about 10,000,000 majority, if the president is a candidate. It is time the republican party was looking for a candidate who will fight for the common people and against Wall street. Someone like Judge Kenyon should be drafted for the purpose."

Elsewhere in his statement the senator declared that the Russian soviet government was second in stability only to that of the United States and that Russia soon would be making inroads upon the grain markets of this country.

"The thing that demands immediate attention in an extra session of congress is the agricultural situation," declared Senator Brookhart.

Senator Brookhart is one of the senators who parted company with their party leaders on various questions of foreign and domestic policy and nevertheless are counted among those yielding the G. O. P. a nominal majority of five in the senate. He disembarked from President Polk in Boston, and arrived in New York only this morning. He will address a small gathering at the co-operative league house here tomorrow night.

DEMANDS DISSOLUTION OF INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER

Washington, July 17.—(By the A. P.)—Separation of the International Harvester company into at least three distinct corporations, with wholly separate interests, stockholders and officials was demanded by Attorney General Daugherty today into petition filed in the federal district court at St. Paul, Minn.

Such a step is necessary, the attorney general's petition declared, because the dissolution decree originally entered against the company in 1918 had proved "inadequate" to break up restraint of trade and restore competition in the production of harvesting machines and other farm implements.

The court was asked by the petition to enter a new decree holding that the Harvester company "with is a combination in restraint of interstate trade and commerce in harvesting machinery, and still is monopolizing and attempting to monopolize said trade and commerce in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law and contrary to the several opinions, orders and decrees of this court."

The action of the attorney general was taken after prolonged conference among government officials, and follows the line suggested by the federal trade commission in a report to the senate in 1920. The petition declared that a reasonable "test period" has been given the corporation since the close of the World war, as provided in the original decree, to rearrange its organization in the interest of the public. That period having passed, it was added, "the United States now has the right to such further relief as may be necessary to restore competitive conditions."

ELEVATOR BOYS WHILE CONTESTING $4,000,000 ESTATE

New York, July 17—Though supporting themselves and their mother solely by their earnings as elevator boys at the Waldorf, Raoul, Gerardo, Carlos and Herminio Marini, announced today that they had turned down cold an offer of a million dollars. They are holding out for nearly four millions, left in Porto Rico by their grandfather whose will is now being contested.

The Marinis came to New York some time ago, when the litigation started. With their mother they were thrown upon their own resources, but by pooling their earnings they have succeeded not only in keeping themselves but have been able to engage lawyers to prosecute their claim to the estate.

New York, July 17.—Gunmen, highwaymen and lesser brands of trouble makers combined today to keep the police on the jump.

High spots on the police headquarters blotter included:

Three shooting affrays as a result of which two men are expected to die.

Holdup and theft by bandits disguised as policemen and detectives of a truck carrying $60,000 worth of silk.

Belated announcement of a $75,000 truck robbery that occurred Saturday.

Assault and robbery of two pedestrians.

The most spectacular of the shooting affrays was a pistol duel in Second avenue between Frank Rogers and Patrick Cotter, over an insult alleged to have been offered Mrs. Cotter by Rogers. Meeting near the Cotter home this morning, both whipped out pistols while pedestrians fled for cover. After a half dozen harmless shots had been fired, Cotter drilled Rogers through the chest with a bullet and the latter fleeing, ran into the Church of St. John the Martyr, throwing morning worshippers into a panic as he waved his smoking pistol.

Cotter, captured after a short chase, was held on a charge of felonious assault; Rogers, seriously wounded, will be charged, if he recovers, with violating the Sullivan anti-pistol law.

John Jaconda, a dealer in olive oil, was shot down by four men as he emerged from his home this morning. Police declared the shooting was the result of a bootleg feud, but Jaconda, regaining consciousness for a few moments in a hospital said he knew no reason why the men should have attacked him. He is expected to die.

The third pistol battle occurred in Greenwich illage when Patrolman Thompson sought to arrest Vito Gorcione, a cobbler. Gorcione fled, firing and the policeman followed, using his pistol. Neighbors of Gorcione tried to brain the patrolman with dishes and furniture hurled from upper windows, but he finally captured his man, neither being injured.

Today's silk robbery, police declared, was one of the cleverest and most daring perpetrated in months. Six men in an automobile bearing the magical letters "P. D" one of them attired in a policeman's uniform and the others flashing "detective" badges, stopped the truck on the Boston Post road in the Bronx. They "arrested" the driver and his assistant and were about to drive off with the truck when a real policeman got suspicious and climbed aboard. The bandits fled but he captured one, who gave the name of John Ransman, Manhattan. The driver recovered his truck and proceeded to Holyoke, Mass.

Police said the same bandits were believed to have made a successful getaway Saturday with $75,000 worth of silk loaded on a truck of the Arrow Carrier corporation, Paterson, N. J., the driver of this truck was dispossessed and the truck driven away by bandits as it stood in front of a silk house on Lower Manhattan.

Among the pedestrians held up and robbed was Alfred Cairo, said to be a Cuban baseball player, who is at his Brooklyn home recovering from a recent injury. Cairo was set upon by two men, who first hostled him, and after receiving a thorough beating, was robbed of $50.

Leroy Sperring, a negro, decided not to let Richard Buckmaster, editor of the American Furrier, get on a subway train at Grand Central station shortly before noon. When the editor insisted, Sperring leaped upon him and it took six men to separate them. Sperring tried to cut the throat of one policeman with a broken comb, it was charged. He was sent to Bellevue hospital for observation.

Herbert Mellan, colored, was held without bail for grand jury action by Magistrate Silverman today for what the magistrate characterized as "one of the most atrocious crimes" he had encountered. Mellan was accused of having broken a heavy rub over the head of Mrs. Catherine P. Levin, a widow, in an attempt to get into her home to rob her.

HOPEFUL FOR TWELVE-MILE LIQUOR SEIZURE

Washington, July 17.—Continued delay in forwarding of the British reply to Secretary Hughes' ship liquor-rum running treaty plan, coupled with other recent developments in England have created renewed hope among officials here that the British attitude may not prove in the end to be as uncompromising on the twelve-mile search and seizure phase of the proposal as Lord Curzon's recent statement in the house of commons suggested.

Since then Lord Birkenhead has written a public letter which substantially supported the Hughes plan. It is held here that his communication, appearing in the British press, indicated a better comprehension of the situation in which the American government finds itself.

Lord Birkenhead in his remarks in the house of lords when the question of the treaty first was brought up, interpreted a clause of the supreme court decision touching on the power of "local sovereignty" to exercise administrative discretion in applying the Volstead act as referring to discretionary powers of the president. The local sovereignty to which the court had reference, however, could only be the sovereignty of the American people and in legislative matters to be exercised only through congress. The result of this difference between British and American governmental systems, it is pointed out, was to leave the Washington administration without discretion in the endorsement of the act.

PRESIDENT OF FREE STATE TO VISIT NORTH OF IRELAND

Belfast, July 17 (By the A. P.)—Irish leaders in both north and south Ireland were greatly interested today over the announcement of the meeting between William Cosgrave and Sir James Craig in London, this being the first time the two had ever met, at least as the heads of their respective governments.

Coincidentally it was announced by officials of the Free State government in Dublin that President Cosgrave was soon to visit the north of Ireland on official business and might then meet Premier Craig again.

The announcement said any suggestion that the visit would be connected with the Ulster-Free State boundary question was unfounded.

Charter of Glace Bay Miners is Revoked

By International President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 17.—International President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers of America, today notified the officers of District No. 26 at Glace Bay, Nova Scotia, that the charter of the district had been revoked by him, effective today, for the refusal of the officers to call off the strike of miners at that place.

All officers and board members of the district are automatically deprived of their offices and a provisional district created to function under the direct authority of the international union. Sibly Barrett, of Glace Bay, was designated provisional president. Instructions will be issued, according to Mr. Lewis' communication, for all striking miners to return to work immediately. All local unions continuing in defiance of the instructions will be "summarily dealt with in conformity with the laws of the United Mine Workers."

In communicating his action to Daniel Livingstone, the deposed district president, Mr. Lewis bitterly denounced the officers of the district for "inciting, encouraging and conducting" the sympathetic strike.

He referred to the action of Livingstone as a "mad adventure."

"I am not unmindful that it is probably a fruitless task to attempt to reason with you in the midst of your mad adventure," the communication says. "Yet in your sane moments you must recognize that the course you have been and are now pursuing violates every tenet of your organization. It ruthlessly tramples upon every rule of conduct of our union and constitutes a departure from its every tradition. Your deliberate breach of the existing contract between the operators and miners of Nova Scotia is indefensible and morally reprehensible. * * * The official statement of the district executive board that the strike was for political purposes is illuminating and gives additional proof, if such was needed, of your true intent. I have in mind that you are a self-proclaimed revolutionist. I am familiar with the constant intrigue between yourself and your evil genius McClachlan and your revolutionary masters in Moscow. I can recall the sentiments which you enunciated at a comparatively small meeting of the international executive board at Indianapolis when with the cold ferocity of a five year old defying its mother you announced you were a believer of revolution by force.

"No doubt the present strike in Nova Scotia corresponds with your idea of a revolution against the British government and is in pursuance thereof.

"In consideration of these strange facts, the international union feels warranted in intervening for the protection of its membership and to permit the discharge of its properly assumed obligations. You may may as at any time in the future that the United Mine Wrkers is not a political fanatic who seeks to strike down the established institutions of his governmen. Neither can it be used to sustain officers of perverted business morals or individuals suffering from mental aberration such as yourself and the aggregation of papier-marche revolutionists who are associated with you.

"By virtue of the authority vested in me by the constitution of the United Mine Workers of America, of which I am president, and in consideration of the further authority granted in the premises by the international executive board, I, herewith, advise that the charter of District 26, United Mine Workers of America, stands revoked, effective this date. Under this action District 26 ceases to be an entity and you are automatically deprived of your office as president thereof. Alexander McIntyre, vice president, and J. B. McLachlan, as secretary treasurer, likewise have their offices vacated through this same precise action. All members of the executive board of District 26, including all other officers of said district are in like manner automatically removed from office and can no longer undertake to represent in any capacity the United Mine Workers of America. This applies with equal force to Alexander Stewart, member of the international executive board. Under separate order I am today creating a provisional district to function within the jurisdiction of former District 26, under the direct authority and control of the international union.

"International Representative Silby Barrett, of Glace Bay, Nova Scotia, has been designated as provisional president thereof with sweeping authority to function in every proper capacity. In compliance with the laws of the international union governing such matters you will, together with the district officers, turn over to Mr. Silby Barrett, president of Provisional District 26, all monies, official records and documents, together with the district offices and furniture and any other property or things of value belonging to former District 26. President Barrett will hold such property in trust for the future use of the members of our union in that district. Instructions will be issued to all local unions whose officers are now on strike in Nova Scotia to immediately return to work under the existing agreement.

Local unions continuing in defiance of such orders will be summarily dealt with in conformity with the laws of the United Mine Workers of America.

"JOHN L. LEWIS, President.
"United Mine Workers of America."

CANADA CONSIDERING EMBARGO ON WOOD PULP

Washington, July 17.—The Canadian government, according to the understanding of state department officials, will conduct a thorough inquiry before taking any final action on the proposal to lay down an embargo on the exportation of pulp wood from freehold lands in the dominion.

Full authority to declare such an embargo has been vested in the Canadian government but there has been no indication that it would be executed to the extreme. The state department has taken occasion to point out to Canadian representatives the embarrasments which would be caused by such action to American paper manufacturers, publishers and others, and it was said today that probably American business men would be given an opportunity to explain their position in the course of the inquiry.

TO SIGN NEAR EAST PEACE TREATY TUESDAY, JULY 24

Conference Has Formally Confirmed the Agreement Reached Between the Allied and Turkish Delegates—A Feature of the Closing Session Was an Appeal From All the Delegates to the Turks to Permit the Armenians to Return to Ottoman Territory.

Lausanne, July 17 (By the A. P.)—The last scene but one in the Near East conference was enacted tonight at Ouchy Chateau; the entire text of the treaty was examined and arrangements were made for its formal signature on July 24.

Tonight's scene was remarkable in that numerous matters on which the various parties had not succeeded in reaching an accord were under consideration. It was a night of reservations which included, notably, reservations by the United States and Great Britain concerning the validity of the British-Turkish Petroleum company concession, which conflicts with the rights accorded in the Chester concession for unknown oil riches in the Mosul area.

The silent battle between the United States and England over oil concessions which had dominated the conference in the past few days became an open contest tonight, when Sir Horace Rumbold, after protesting Turkey's refusal to ratify the British concession in the treaty, declared that it seemed very uncertain on what ground the American government wished to intervene between the Turkish government and the Turkish Petroleum company. Sir Horace made this statement after Joseph C. Grew had said that the American government was gratified that a way had been found to solve the difficult question of concessions and that he took it for granted that the protocol affecting the French railroad company and the Vickers-Armstrong company would not be applied in such a way as to prejudice the vested rights of American citizens or companies.

This was an allusion to the agreement of the allies to drop their demand for preferential rights in future contracts.

"With regard to the rights said to have been acquired by the Turkish Petroleum company before the war," Mr. Grew declared, "I deem it sufficient to refer to correspondence with the British government in the past three years, in which my government fully set forth its viewpoint. This viewpoint has not changed."

A sensation was caused when Sir Horace accused the Turks of violating their promise to accord treaty approval to the acquired rights of the British company. Ismet Pasha, he charged, refused to agree to the slightest mention of the company, and the British government wished to give notice in the most categorical manner that it deemed all the obligations of Turkey towards the company as binding.

England recognized no rights which would conflict with the British concession, he added, and which may have been given by Turkey to third parties. (This was an allusion to the Chester grant.)

Another feature of tonight's session was an appeal from all the delegations to the Turks to permit the Armenians to return to Ottoman territory. Mr. Grew, in particular, urged "sympathetic consideration for the interests of these homeless exiles." He asked that steps be taken to safeguard their homes and property and that generosity and tolerance be shown to the Armenian peoples.

Ismet Pasha answered that Turkey would apply amnesty with sincerity; she only desired to keep out disorderly and disturbing elements.

JOSEPH C. GREW ADDRESSED NEAR EAST CONFERENCE

Lausanne, July 17 (By the A. P.)—Addressing the Near East conference tonight, Joseph C. Grew, the American representative, said it was too early doubtless and too close to the stress and turmoil of the negotiations to value the result secured at its true worth in all its many beneficial aspects.

"But," he added, "we need feel no hesitation in describing this result as momentous; the long period of warfare and disturbance affecting the whole Near East has been brought to a close. Numberless problems of great difficulty and intricacy have been solved through the patience, moderation and conciliatory spirit of the delegations.

"We can now look forward with confidence to the coming period of reconstruction, when the ideals of peace and tolerance, which inspired the deliberations of the conference, will receive a long and fruitful application. The United States will welcome today's achievement. In behalf of my government I have the honor to express to the delegations sincere congratulations on the successful outcome of their labors."

LAFOLLETTE'S COMMENT ON ELECTION OF JOHNSON

Madison, Wis., July. 17.—In the election of Magnus Johnson to the United States senate yesterday "the people of Minnesota fired a shot which will be heard in every section of the country," according to a statement issued today by Senator Robert M. LaFollette, who supported Mr. Johnson.

"The people of the great northwest have again spoken their conviction that if representative government is to survive in the United States, private monopoly must be driven out of control of their government," the statement says. "The notion with which the reactionaries comfort themselves—that the election of Johnson expresses merely a sectional protest of disgruntled farmers and workingmen against present economic conditions and governmental policies—is a ridiculous delusion.

"The voice of Minnesota is the voice of the common people of this country, constituting 90 per cent. of the people, who are determined to free themselves from the monopoly power over their lives which had been built up over a long period of years through favors for the few extorted from the government of the many.

"The old Lincoln spirit is again sweeping the west. It will find its echo in the east, the south and middle west just so soon as courageous and able leaders of the type of Magnus Johnson arise to champion the cause of the common people.

"Partisan politics and their press cannot long deceive themselves concerning this fundamental movement among the people. The people are awake. The old party slogans do not deceive them. They are not to be misled by the ridicule and abuse which has been directed at their leaders. They have learned to know the real enemies of their political and economic liberty."

AMERICAN CHAIN COMPANY VIGOROUSLY CONTESTING SUIT

Bridgeport, Conn., July 17—The American Chain Company, Inc., will vigorously contest the suit filed against it by the government yesterday under the Sherman act, according to Walter B. Lashar, its president. The government alleges that the company has a 60 per cent. monopoly of the automobile bumper industry and may attain a complete monopoly through its patents. Broad questions of patent rights are involved, Mr. Lashar declared.

"We welcome the government's suit" said Mr. Lashar here today, "not only to clarify our own right but the rights of other patentees as well.

"If it is possible for the government successfully to proceed under the Sherman act against a company which is manufacturing or licensing other manufacturers under patents which have been upheld, and apparently acting within patent laws defined by the United States supreme court, then it is evident that a clarification of the whole situation is necessary.

FELT CUSTOMERS' PULSE BEFORE SELLING LIQUOR

St. Louis, Mo., July 17.—Two detectives today charged Henry Borgelt sold them liquor only after feeling the pulse of each in an effort to detect unusually rapid pulse action, which he thought might be expected in officers "making" a case. The detectives said Borgelt employed this method on all customers. Borgelt denied the detectives' statement.

HARDING DISAPPOINTED IN MINNESOTA ELECTION

Curry, Alaska, July 17.—(By the A. P.)—News of the election of Magnus Johnson, farmer-labor candidate in the senate from Minnesota over Governor Preus was received by President Harding today when his special train on the Alaskan railroad was stopped here for breakfast.

The chief executive read the Associated Press despatches saying Governor Preus had conceded his defeat an dgiving returns from about half the state, but he would make no comment on the grounds that the voters had spoken and any statement from the president would be unseemly.

It was obvious that the president was greatly disappointed.

Other members of the party who might be regarded as reflecting the views of the executive were inclined to the view that Governor Preus brought about the present situation through his refusal to make an ad interim appointment of a senator.

Mrs. Harding's condition was said by attending physicians today to be improved after a rest yesterday and a comfortable night. Her pain is relieved by medicine as being given here, the doctors being careful only that she remained on the train this morning when the party had breakfast at the Curry hotel. It was had to be inadvisable that she make the 360 miles automobile trip from Fairbanks over the Richardson trail because of her condition of fatigue and in view of her need of rest in order to prepare her for a strenuous program on the return to the states.

There is no indication, the doctors say, that her condition will interfere with the program of the party or that the tour through the states, the Panama Canal and Porto Rico would be shortened on her account.

ENJOINS STOCK SALES OF THREE MOVIE CONCERNS

New York, July 17.—Attorney General Sherman today obtained an injunction restraining Walker L. Johnson, and the three movie concerns he heads from selling additional stocks. It is charged that investors already have lost $750,000 through the operations of these companies.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
191 Church Street Telephone 1062

Two confessed rum runners, gave Traffic Officer Frank McLean an exciting chase, about 10 o'clock Tuesday morning, but finally were caught after three shots had been fired by the officer and a run had been made through some of the back roads in this vicinity. The driver of the machine a high powered Packard touring car, who gave his name as Pasquale Carangelo of No. 36 Cassin street, New Haven, finally came to a stop after being fired at and was taken to the police station. Carangelo put up a cash bond of $50 for his release. The eight-cylinder Packard bore the Connecticut registry number 184-389 and was listed as being the property of Daniel R. Lawlor, No. 24 Market street, New Haven, and is now at Leonard's garage.

Tuesday morning the large machine from the Elm city stopped close to Traffic Officer McLean on Main street, opposite Railroad street and the driver inquired as to the direction he should take to go to New Haven. Officer McLean gave the machine the once over and then requested Carangelo to draw up to one side. For response there was a snort from the big motor as the driver stepped on the gas and shot up Main street in a westerly direction. The officer lost no time in commandeering the public service car owned by Theodore Marrotte and the chase was on with the Packard about three block in advance. The race led west on Main, north on Watson, east on Valley streets and north on Mansfield avenue, where the officer fired three shots at the fugitive machine and it came to a stop, just this side of the city line. Carangelo and his companion seemed unconcerned and drove back to the city.

It is thought that the Packard machine is one used in rum-running or one stolen for that purpose, as the rear seat was stripped and in its place were a number of layers of burlap layers. The men did not say what they had been carrying in the car, for some time, when one finally remarked that they had passed through Willimantic at an early hour Tuesday and delivered a load of "alcohol water" in Danielson. Carangelo admitted that he made a mistake when he did not obey the officer's command to "wait a minute" but as he did not possess a driver's license he thought that he could escape from the city.

While conversing with a reporter Carangelo's companion boasted that two years ago last Christmas he had foiled the local police in a thrilling chase through the city streets. He said at that time he drove a large black Packard and that it was loaded with contraband liquor.

The owner of the machine was talked with over the telephone and stated that he would come to Willimantic during the afternoon to investigate the matter.

Low Kitay, whose father formerly conducted a meat market and grocery store on Bank street this city and who was graduated with honors from Windham High school in the class of 1922, was drowned in a Fitchburg, Mass., lake, according to word received in this city. Kitay, who has been living in Fitchburg, went canoeing Friday with several other young men and when the frail craft overturned Kitay, the only member of the party who could not swim, sank to the bottom and did not rise. His companions all reached shore in safety. The body was recovered later in the afternoon and the funeral was held Sunday, with burial in Fitchburg.

A Fourth of July escapade resulted in the appearance of seven young men in the Mansfield town court, Monday afternoon. They were charged with desecrating church property and breach of the peace and they drew fines of $1 and costs each. The young men are, James and Alan Eaton, Burton and Frank Hall, Howard and Bradford Cole and Alfred Dodge.

The night before the Fourth, or in the early hours of the holiday morning, the young men broke into the Spring Hill Baptist church and severed the belfry rope. A complaint was entered by the trustees of the church, L. J. Storrs, chairman, which resulted in the apprehension of the young men.

Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews presided at the court session and Grand Juror Frank W. Millard acted as prosecutor. The charge of desecration of church property was nolled and the men pleaded guilty to breach of the peace.

The interplant game Monday afternoon at Recreation park, between the office team and the packing department terminated in a victory, 21 to 6, for the office pill-tossers. The packing hurler was hit hard by the office force, while Balcom's pitching for the latter team sent the opposition swinging wild.

He is overseer of the swift spooling department at the local plant. Mr. Lester is connected with the office of the superintendent of the finishing department.

The case of the United States Music company against Charles D. Cone of Pleasant street was disposed of when Justice of the Peace Curtis Dean gave judgement in favor of the defendant. The plaintiff concern did not prove its case by a preponderance of evidence. The cause of the action dates back to November 26, 1921. David M. Feldman, manager, announced the company's intention of taking an appeal.

The members of Conseils Florimond and Ste. Cecile, l'Union Ste. Jean de Baptiste, gathered at the lodge hall in Loomer Opera House block recently, to witness the initiation of forty-two members, evenly divided between the councils. Pierre J. JEWETT CITY

Unable to find a suitable load for his heavy calibre target and the proper alloy bullet, Charles Palmer, using a .22 calibre rifle, made for him by Alvah Grimes of Norwich, and .32 calibre U. S. N. R. A. cartridges, shot his way into fifth place at the three-day shoot of the Southern New England Rifle association at New Britain. This is the first time that a .22 calibre rifle has ever been used in one of these matches on the ring target off-hand at 200 yards. In order to win fifth place it was necessary to place every shot in a 5-inch circle and while it proves the ability of the marksman it also goes to show the wonderful skill necessary when a .22 calibre is used over a long range. The Jewett City boys brought home a good share of the prize money, John Kaufman of Voluntown tying Geissler of Springfield for fourth place, A. L. Stebbins of Jewett City won 11th place. Had the local boys had time to practice for this match and work out the proper loads for their rifles there is no doubt that far better scores would have been made, yet numbered among the 10 high men are men whose names are known among riflemen all over the world, and with more than one world's record to their credit ,notably H. M. Pope, A. Hubalek, F. C. Ross and John Kaufmann.

Following are the scores of the 11 highest men: J. J. Hunsiker, Hartford, 215; H. M. Pope, New York city, 214; A. Hubalek, New York city, 213; Geissler and Kaufmann, tied, 208; C. B. Palmer of Griswold, F. C. Ross of Springfield and J. T. Landrock of New York city, tied, 207; J. F. Clark, Barre, Vt., 206; Dr. F. W. Smith, Hartford, 185; G. L. Stebbins of Jewett City, 104.

Besides winning fifth place Mr. Palmer, received a valuable cash prize for the most number of bullseyes shot during the three days also a cash prize for the first bullseye made. The bullseye is an inch and one half in diameter at 200 yards. John Kaufman got the next prize for the second high string of bullseyes. Fred Stebbins, Paul Geist Jr., Jack Davis and Otto Gilbert, all of Jewett City, also did some good shooting on the bullseye target, scoring several bullseyes.

Kate Halliday Claghorn, the widely known author and statistician, and S. C. Bliss of this place, whose middle name perpetuates in his family the historic Claghorn title, are cousins. It was with sorrow that Mr. Bliss learned in Tuesday's Bulletin that Charles Claghorn, his cousin's father, had died in Brooklyn, in his 87th year.

"YOU know, Experience is a great teacher. But his lessons are pretty expensive sometimes. I remember a case in point some months ago. Friend of mine had just got a new sedan. So, one Sunday, with our families, we made it a party of two cars for a trip into the country.
"Tom was about a hundred feet ahead of me, and we were both rolling comfortably along. I noticed a bend in the road a little ways ahead, and as Tom got up to it, a good sized roadster appeared coming toward us, hitting about 50 per, and taking the curve wide, which headed him straight for Tom's sedan.
"Tom pulled over as far as he could and the roadster straightened out just in time to miss his scared family by inches. The chap did the gentlemanly thing—stopped and came back to apologize. And from the scared look in his face, I think he learned his lesson—that taking curves that way may cost two or three lives any day in the week."

"Vanity Fair" at the Broadway Theatre Thursday.

An entirely new screen version of Thackeray's masterpiece of nineteenth century fiction, "Vanity Fair," is coming to the Broadway theatre on Thursday for three days, when Hugo Ballin's picturization of that novel, a Goldwyn release starring Mabel Ballin, is seen here. Mrs. Fiske made a screen adaptation of the Langdon Mitchell play, "Becky Sharp," some years ago, but Mr. Ballin's production follows the novel closely and has the advantage of having been made with every latest mechanical and lighting revice of pictures at his disposal. He made the photoplay for Goldwyn release at the Goldwyn studios than which there is none in the country better equipped.

"Vanity Fair" is one of the year's biggest productions and boasts of a cast of many prominent players. Mabel Ballin, wife of th producer, is starred in the role of Becky Sharp. Hobart Bosworth is the Marquis of Steyne; Harrison Ford is cast as Georgs Osborne; George Walsh as Rawdon Crawley; Robert Mack as Sir Pitt Crawley; Willard Louis as Joseph Sedley; Eleanor Boardman as Amelia Sedley and Earle Foxe as Captain William Dobin. Breed Theatre

"Head Over Heels," coming to the Breed theatre today and Thursday, is a rapid-fire comedy starring Mabel Normand, and produced by Goldwyn Pictures Corporation. It gives Miss Normand ample oportunity for the display of her athletic prowess as well as for her abilities as the screen's funniest comedienne. She acts the role of a little Italian acrobat, engaged as a vaudeville star by an overimpressible scouting agent for a theatrical firm, who is found wanting in any qualification for a star whatever on her arrival in New York.

However, a clever press agent, with the aid of a beauty parlor, transforms her into a vision of loveliness who not only finds a backer willing to put her into motion pictures, but captures the heart of the glum lawyer-partner in the theatrical firm. After a tempestuous wooing, on the part of the little acrobat, they become engaged. Hugh Thompson plays the role of the lover, Raymond Hatton that of the press agent. Others in the fine cast are Adolphe Jean Menjou, Russ Powell and Lilyan Tashman.

For the second feature David Butler will be seen in "According to Hoyle," and Movie Chats will complete the bill.

The American Woolen Co.

Lawrence is taken as an example in this article because Lawrence through the efforts of that same American Woolen Company has become the leader in advanced methods of production and in handling labor among the textile centers of New England. It is to Lawrence, the victim of misrepresentation in the past, the bellwether city of New England textiles today, one naturally goes for a survey of present day conditions among the textile workers of New England.

This article holds no brief for either mill owners or mill workers. It is an honest attempt to chronicle conditions as they are. If it tends to show mill workers are contented, happy, prosperous residents of booming New England, it is solely because the survey of conditions in Lawrence go to prove those facts. Lawrence mill workers earn good wages. To work 48 hours a week is no hardship. Many of us wish our days were as short.

In Lawrence and other cities and towns of Massachusetts the state decrees the mill workers shall work not more than 48 hours a week. In Rhode Island and New Hampshire, the legislatures have fixed 54 hours as constituting a full week's work. The American Woolen Company sets the working hours in five other states, 48 hours in all its New England mills, against state laws of 54 hours.

The surroundings of the mill workers today are exceptionally pleasant. Mills are clean, fresh-aired, well lighted and equipped with every modern convenience and device. These devices insure the comfort and welfare of the operatives whose duty it is to watch carefully the many costly and intricate mechanical devices used in producing goods. Rents are higher in Lawrence in privately owned dwellings than in Boston. The same congestion in dwellings that prevails all over the country is evident there. This is heightened undoubtedly because there are but seven square miles within the city limits. And a drive about the city will show few vacant lots.

The American Woolen Company has met this congestion by building a model village for its employes at Shawsheen Village, between Lawrence and Andover. There rents are reasonable and living conditions probably higher and more generally enjoyed than in any similar community in the country. No investigation of Lawrence mill workers would be complete without embracing a survey of the wonderful work being done for the mill workers by the welfare department of the American Woolen Company under the direction of its able chairman, Ignatius McNulty. Known as the Department of Labor, it furnishes the connecting link between the employes of the American Woolen Company and its officials. Its activities bind both together in the realization that their interests are mutual is the conduct of the business.

Under the leadership of that far-seeing, humane and exceptionally brilliant business man, William M. Wood, the president of the company, the work of the department approximates the nearest approach to ideal relations between employer and employe than can be found in the country.

It is in the neighborly care taken of the workers, that the Department of Labor of the American Woolen Company shines. In years past absentee stockholders were likely to care too much for dividends, too little for the worker.

This has been revolutionized under this excellent welfare department. The "Human Thing," as the workers have come to be known, is the material on which this department works. Nothing that can be reasonably done to improve the "Human Things" living and working conditions is omitted.

TOOLE BLACKLISTS STRIKING UMPS AND APPOINTS THREE FROM RESERVES

New York, July 17.—(By The A. P.)—The flare-up in International League baseball circles, caused by the strike of four umpires in protest of the dismissal of a fifth arbiter yesterday, reached a climax late today when John Conway Toole, president of the circuit, virtually placed on the blacklist the holdout indicator men and announced the appointment of three new umpires to complete his staff.

The situation that cost the league five of its regular staff of ten umpires grew out of the summary discharge of W. J. Phyle by Mr. Toole, who explained today that his action was prompted by the umpire's failure to work in two games at Toronto on July 12 before reporting for duty in connection with the Baltimore- Rochester series, at the latter city beginning July 13th.

Believing that Phyle's dismissal was the result of a decision he had made in a game between Baltimore and Rochester last Sunday and which had aroused some dispute, his two associates, McDevitt and Geisel, wired their resignations to President Toole and refused to work in yesterday's game at Rochester. At the same time they communicated with the other umpires on the circuit in an effort to precipitate a general walkout, Mr. Toole said, but only two of the others, Magerkurth and Derr, who were at Syracuse, joined the move. They, however, gave two days' notice, their resignations taking effect at the end of today's contest, according to Mr. Toole.

The other five—Gaston and James, at Toronto, and Carpenter, McBride and Van Grafflin, at Buffalo—refused to leave their posts and wired President Toole they were not in sympathy with the outbreak.

To meet the emergency the league executive today assigned McBride to fill the gap in the staff at Rochester and appointed William S. Murphy, of Olean, N. Y., who has had some umpiring experience in western New York, to work with McBride.

The two other new appointees, who will become regulars if their work is satisfactory, are Jack Egan, of Providence, R. I., and Rudolph Kraemer, of Brooklyn, both of whom will begin their duties tomorrow at Syracuse. Egan is a former minor league manager and umpire. Kraemer has had considerable experience in semi-professional ranks, Mr. Toole said. All three of the new men were on the president's eligible list.

TITLE BOUT TO BE DECIDED ON TODAY

New York, July 17—Whether Jack Dempsey will defend his heavyweight boxing title next time in the United States or the Argentine probably will be determined tomorrow afternoon when Jack Kearns, the champion's manager, confers with Tex Rickard, promoter, and Luis Angel Firpo, the South American challenger.

Rickard yesterday advanced a proposal to stage a Firpo-Dempsey contest in Buenos Aires, capital of the Argentine, around November 1, but Kearns has expressed a preference instead for two title bouts in this country, one with Firpo about Labor Day and the other with Harry Wills, negro challenger, shortly before the world's baseball series.

The titleholder's manager, however, said tonight he was open to the best proposition and might accept Rickard's South American offer if no better one was in sight. At any rate, he has promised the promoter he will make his decision tomorrow.

Firpo today reiterated his desire to fight for the title before his countrymen, who look upon their rugged battler as something of a national hero. Rickard has received assurances from Agents in the Argentine that Prospects of financial success for a championship fight there are unusually good.

Boston, July 17—R. Norris Williams 3rd, of Philadelphia, former national singles champion, was hard pressed today to win from William W. Ingraham, Harvard junior, in the only second round match remaining to be played in the 31st annual renewal of the historic Longwood bowl singles championship. Seeded players in the singles and doubles play advanced little trouble in other encounters.

Ingraham won the first set from Williams after 14 well-played games and the count reached five-all in the second before Williams' shots steadied down and thereafter the Harvard student was beaten at every turn. The score was 6-8, 7-5, 6-2. Williams caught up with the field when he seeded through his third round match with K. W. Seabury, of New York, winning, 6-1, 6-2, 6-1.

HARRIS HOLDS JAIL HILL TO TWO SCATTERED HITS

"Spike" Harris proved a stumbling block to the Jail Hill A. C. Tuesday evening at the Fairgrounds and the East Ends won an easy game 7 to 3. The Hillies were unable to do anything with Harris who held them to two scattered and fanned 14 of the Hillies. Jail Hill's three runs were the result of errors.

Shea, who pitched for the Hillies, was hit freely and at opportune times and the East Enders pushed seven runs across in the early part of the game. Ellsworth and Spalding featured for the East Ends in the field and Clarke for the Hillies. The score:

Big Game Thursday Night

With one game each to their credit th eMarried Men and Single Men of the East Side will meet in the third game of the struggle for the baseball title of their ward on Thursday evening. As the series goes on the rivalry is becoming more and more bitter until players on each side are indulging in personalities when they meet. The latest development in the situation is the refusal of Matt Delaney to play with the Married Men and Jumbo James is using all his powers of persuasion to get this temperamental star back in the game. Matt is a big drawing card and is holding out for a salary increase.

NEW YORK BOXING COMMISSION TAKES LYNCH'S TITLE AWAY; GIVEN TO BURMAN

New York, July 17.—Following its policy of holding ring champions to the letter of the New York boxing laws, the state athletic commission today dethroned Joe Lynch of New York as bantamweight titleholder for failure to accept within six months the challenge of Joe Burman of Chicago. Simultaneously, Burman was elevated to recognition as 116 pound champion in this state.

The decision came on the heels of announcement that Lynch and Burman had been matched tentatively for a title bout in Madison Square Garden in September. Eddie Mead, Lynch's manager, also was placed under official ban.

Lynch was the second champion within a few weeks to be deprived of title recognition here. Mickey Walker of Elizabeth, N. J., the welterweight titleholder, was ousted recently for failure to accept a challenge from Dave Shade of California, who also was awarded championship recognition as a solace for failure to obtain his title match.

An echo of Walker's disbarment today was the indefinite suspension of Nate Siegel for boxing Walker last night at Newark, N. J., while the latter was under official ban. Siegel was knocked out by Walker.

The commission puts its stamp of approval upon the world's middleweight title match scheduled at the Polo Grounds Aug. 31 between Johnny Wilson of Boston, the champion, and Harry Greb of Pittsburgh. This was brought about by Wilson's formal acceptance of the former light-heavyweight champion's challenge.

AMERICAN ATHLETES HAVE WORKOUT AT LONDON

London, July 17 (By the A. P.).—The athletes from Harvard and Yale who will meet a combined Oxford and Cambridge team in contests at the new Wembley stadium near London next Saturday spent this afternoon in practice in the stadium. Rain interfered with the runners and the experts were able to obtain little information as to their form. Milliken of Yale made the better impression among the high hurdlers, although Durant and Cole, also of Yale, pleased the critics by the way in which they went over the low obstacles.

Coach Mack said he was confident that his men would win at least two events—the pole vault and the shot-put. He was less hopeful of their success in the short distance races, although he expected close finishes in these.

Schlopp of Yale practiced pole vaulting for a full hour during the afternoon and cleared the bar at 12 feet several times. Eastman of Harvard put the shot more than 40 feet during his practice. The high jumpers found the stadium cinder takeoff too soft and probably will use a grass takeoff on Saturday. The Americans expressed themselves today as pleased with the stadium and the running track, although the runners said they found the cinders somewhat rough.

The Harvard-Yale team last week were guests of the Cambridge athletes but are now the guests of the Oxford men.

The American athletes and the team of American fencers who are here to defend the Robert M. Thompson trophy will be given a dinner Saturday evening by the Pilgrims.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 17.—Brooklyn took the odd game of the series with Pittsburgh today by a score of 6 to 2. The Dodgers scored all their runs in the fourth inning when they bunched five hits, including a double by Bailey and a triple by Johnston. Kunz who relieved Morrison retired the next 14 batters, not a man reaching first. Smith held the Pirates to three hits up to the seventh, when he began to weaken but was saved by sharp fielding. Boston, July 17—Pitcher Luque of Cincinnati, ran his total of victories for the season to 16 when he was credited with winning both games of the double header with Boston today. The scores were 4 to 3, and 9 to 5.

The Cuban pitched six innings of the first game and was relieved by Rixey and then returned and pitched all the second game. THE MINNESOTA RESULT.

It is impossible to look upon the result of the senatorial election in Minnesota as other than a victory for radicalism. Johnson has proclaimed himself as such in this and previous campaigns. It was an election in which no impressive majority of the voters participated, but of those who did go to the polls it is certain how the majority stood.

This is but an echo of the previous senatorial election in that state when another radical, Senator Shipstead, was chosen in place of Senator Kellogg, and reflects the influence that has been carried across the boundary by Senator LaFollette. It is one of those waves of radicalism that has made its appearance in that part of the country before. It was not long ago that the non-partisan league was going strong among the farmers of that region and Townleyism hasn't as yet been entirely eliminated.

Minnesota has displayed apathy and insisted upon a chance. It is going to send representatives to Washington who will advocate some strange policies in contrast with those which have been sponsored by senators from that state, if they carry out their promises. It is a change that will not be warmly welcomed by the country, but will impress upon the other states the importance of ending that stay-at-home policy which makes such things possible.

The impression is that Minnesota will be the first of the states to recognize the position in which it has placed itself. It has made a change, but a change that is for the worse instead of the better. It has dropped far down the ladder in the quality and caliber of men selected to represent it in the upper house. It has gone from the sane and safe to the wild and ridiculous and the worst of it is that the nation as well as Minnesota must bear the effects of it.

There is one consolation that the same is not said of Minnesota that is said of Maine. Minnesota is happily not a barometer which shows that as that state goes so goes the nation.

In a number of New England cities the public has been put to considerable inconvenience because of the strike of the telephone operators. Telephone service was not stopped entirely and is now back nearly to normal, due to the fact that there were loyal employes who stuck to their work and many outsiders who volunteered their services not only for the emergency but as new employes. Through their efforts service has been maintained or reestablished and the plans for choking the public off without this great convenience have been frustrated.

In view of the conditions that have existed and the efforts that have been made there is bound to be great respect for the attitude of the telephone company officials who have refused to take back the striking employes as a body owing to the fact that they must remain loyal to those who came to the assistance of the company and the public during the emergency. To turn the new employes out to make room for those who caused all the trouble would be an act of gross ingratitude and rank injustice.

The telephone company is taking the same view that the railroads of New England did during the shopmen's strike. Those unwilling to work have disclosed their attitude and the company is under no obligations to them. Those who have shown themselves willing to work are entitled to their jobs and the company decision to retain all those found efficient is highly commendable. It is a stand that is bound to receive public support. It was a change that the company did not seek, but inasmuch as it was forced into it it cannot disregard the loyalty of its old and new operators.

The strike in the New England telephone offices is fading so fast that it might as well be considered over, and those who are without employment have no one to blame but themselves.

PLACE FOR THE ARMENIANS.

A settlement of matters in the near east between Turkey and the allies still leaves the question of taking care of the large number of Armenian orphans scattered throughout that region.

What the efforts will result in no one can tell but there are those at work on the plan of having the Armenians assembled at a national home on Russian territory in the Caucasus. Such an idea is based upon an offer that was made some time ago by the soviet government, which would permit 100,000 or more Armenians to occupy designated territory and cultivate it, and it has been brought to attention within a few days that Turkey has no objection to such a move.

Turkey has been so ill disposed to the Armenians that its chief interest in them was to kill them. If they are now elsewhere and if the orphans are removed it will mean the ending of that so much concern for them, good or bad, on the part of Turkey.

Whether such a move as planned would be for their best interests is something that can probably be best told by trial. The Armenians are certainly entitled to their rights in Asia Minor, but they know the Turks and probably are willing to take their chances with the Russians, which in view of their experience would not be surprising.

Russia would gain a large number of settlers in regions that need cultivation. The Armenians would be permitted to direct their affairs subject to the soviet government, and it is not improbable in view of the experience of others in that country that they would be called upon to liberally support the government at Moscow even to having their grain taken away for export. But even then conditions might be no worse than they have been under the yoke of Turkey and in making the decision they may easily be inclined to accept the uncertain in place of the certain.

AN INFANT INDUSTRY.

Big oaks from little acorns grow; great accomplishments also come from small beginnings. Among the things that have been seen by President Harding during his visit in Alaska is some of the reindeer that are being raised in the territory for the purpose of providing food and clothing for the people of that region.

It is not an old industry in Alaska, but rather is it one that has shown itself to be desirable and feasible and there is no telling how great it may become as its possibilities are extended. With the same kind of experimentation that has been undertaken with various kinds of vegetation the reindeer has been found to be admirably suited to conditions in Alaska. Brought in small numbers from Siberia they have gradually increased in number through the right kind of encouragement until there is now somewhere about a third of a million head in the territory and instead of being maintained solely for the purpose of meeting the requirements of the Alaskans serious consideration is being driven to the building up of this industry to the point where it can be drawn upon for the meat supply in a considerable section of the northwest and the Pacific coast.

This is of course only one way in which Alaska is looking forward to greater development. It is a storehouse of much treasure, but in this instance existing conditions have been utilized to produce that for which there is a demand both within and without the limits of the territory. How fast the industry will develop will depend to a considerable degree upon Alaskan enterprise and upon the conditions that exist within the states.

VETERANS AGAINST BONUS.

It is impossible to overlook the fact that there has been organized, by those who term themselves the able bodied veterans of the World war, the Ex-Service Men's Anti-Bonus League. It is a long name but it seems to clearly set forth the purpose of the organization and when it is stated in its opposition to the idea of paying a bonus to the World war veterans that not one out of five sound men who were in active service think that this form of compensation should be given it reveals an attitude which many have not realized, and indicates that the demand is coming mostly from those who did not see active service, but who are looking for a grab because there are politicians who are encouraging them in the belief that it can be gotten for them.

Attention is called to the fact that 90 per cent of those who served and were not wounded, gassed or shell-shocked came out of the war far better equipped physically and mentally to fight the battles of civilian life than when they went in. Likewise it is insisted that those who could not locate themselves in the economic life of the nation after the war would have been in a similar plight had there been no war, and that the idea of a cash payment to the veterans was only justified for tiding them over the readustment period.

Veterans have repeatedly taken the stand that the bonus was not justified, that there is no good reason for showing partiality over the Civil war veterans and that there should be no raid upon the treasury. Evidently this organization is determined that it shall be heard before any further steps are taken in behalf of bonus legislation.

TO RECORD EMOTIONS

Sally Knight was sitting in her sister's dimly lighted music room, arrayed in a soft blue frock that rightfully belonged to her pretty niece, Alice Colbert. She had burst in a short time before, wet to the skin, having missed her train and run for shelter from the sudden shower.

"I should have known better," she admitted. "It was silly of me to venture forth without an umbrella when the barometer indicated rain as plain as anything."

Alice laughingly rejoined, "With all those inventions the meaning of the observation lies in the application of it. Mother uses the thermometer as an excuse for freezing us all with drafts when she has on a thick woolen suit."

"That doesn't excuse you for living in a hothouse temperature just because you affect those gauzy garments of yours, in season and out of season," retorted her mother.

"I might give you a recording thermometer," suggested Sally, "so that you could keep tab on each other's excesses when one of you is here alone."

"No, thank you! It is idle to stir up strife. I might wear my chiffon tonight, however, so that we can keep up the log fire you like so much, Sally."

"That's a nice sporty mother! I'll go so far as to concede a dress with sleeves, to match your complaisance. It won't take either of us long to change, and you look a dream in that periwinkle shade, you fraud of an aunt, you!" Alice nodded saucily at her young aunt and, slipping a slim, bare arm inside her mother's tailored sleeve, led her away to dress for dinner.

It was not long till Sally's fireside musings were interrupted by someone seizing her hand in a somewhat overenthusiastic grasp. "Ouch!" she exclaimed. "What young athlete is this?"

"I beg your pardon—I mistook you for Miss Colbert!"

"That comes of being a jackdaw in another's plumage. My niece lent me this dress when I was caught in a shower."

"Then you are the renowned Aunt Sally? I was most unfortunate to miss meeting you last summer, when Mrs. Colbert was kind enough to ask me to their country place."

"You are Mr. Bruce, then, I take it?"

"May I join you by this cheery blaze?"

"If it isn't too warm for you, certainly! My sister and Alice and I have just been berating all the thermometers, barometers and other registering instruments in the world. When we are warm we know it, without having some upstart of a mercury column to tell us so."

"You would put us poor aviators completely out of business. Without our anemometers and all our other measuring instruments we should be quite helpless."

"Come to think of it, there is one recorder that I found very amusing, the sphygmograph."

"Yes, that is a jolly little trick. I recall having one on my wrist at the examiner's office and one of the men made some crack and I laughed—the pointer made a jagged line like the fluctuations of a speculative stock market."

"It was much the same the time I had it tried on me. It gave me an idea of wearing it right along, instead of keeping a line-a-day book. The high points would tell when there had been some excitement, and the plain saw-teeth would show the humdrum daily round."

Bruce smiled at the notion, and he and Sally tossed it back and forth, like a tennis ball, each with some absurd "cut." Then Bruce remarked, meditatively, "The high points would be in the evening."

"Well, I don't know about that," she said. "Isn't a swimming lesson as thrilling as a fox-trot?"

Bruce caught his breath and glanced at Sally as though she were displaying second sight. The color in his bronzed cheek deepened to a coppery red.

Just then Alice came in. "I see you and my aunt have lost no time in getting acquainted, Mr. Bruce," she said. "It is too bad you were away when Mr. Bruce visited us last summer. It would have done your heart good to see how successful he was after so many people had failed in teaching me to swim. Has he been boasting to you about it?"

"No, we were just talking of tell-tale photographs." And again the revealing color deepened in Bruce's cheek as he caught Aunt Sally's quizzical smile. Exchange.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

"From Butcher Boy to Millionaire" would be an appropriate title for the life story of William H. Wright, whose thirst for adventure lured him from his native England to Canada, where a lucky strike as a gold miner landed him in the multi-millionaire class almost at one bound. Some forty odd years ago Mr. Wright first saw the light of day in the English village of Sleaford. In early youth he was apprenticed to a butcher, but at the age of 19 a desire to see something of the world prompted him to forsake his occupation as a butcher boy and enlist in the British army. He saw active service in the South Africa war, and at its close decided to come to Canada. On arrival at Toronto, in 1907, he was almost penniless. Today he is the owner of gold mines, possesses a fortune estimated at several million dollars, and lives in a palatial home at Barrie, Ont., all the result of a lucky gold find while prospecting in the Swastika district.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Prohibition.

"Time doth no present to our grasp allow
Say in the fixed eternal shall we seize
At last the fleeting now"

The poet's own day must have been as exciting to him, as ours is to us. If we do not seize and hold the thought of the moment, the swiftly succeeding events crowd it into the background. One of the most important of recent events was the signing of a statement and an appeal of church officials to all members and adherents of Protestant churches, saying that prohibition is being systematically impugned and defied by selfish interests.

The signers were Dr. Daets Pukett and Dr. Clarence True Wilson of the Methodist Episcopal church; Dr. Scanlon, Presbyterian church of the United States; Rev. Dr. Samuel Gane, Batton, North Baptist church; Dr. James Empringham, Protestant Episcopal church, and Dr. Rufus W. Miller, Reformed church. The resolution is as follows:

"Prohibition, established by orderly process at the ballot box, is being systematically impugned and defied by selfish interests, alien influences, not simply un-American but in many cases anti-American, propose to establish a condition of nullification of the prohibition law."

"These men are not now making a direct attack upon the 18th amendment as they know that such an attempt would be fruitless.

"What they desire is to weaken enforcement of the law, to encourage its violation, to incite hostility to it by subtle jests, fake rumors and distorted facts.

"It is particularly their object at the forthcoming and succeeding congressional sessions to weaken enforcement of prohibition by unjust criticism and hampering of the administration of the law.

"Well, I don't know about that," she said. "Isn't a swimming lesson as thrilling as a fox-trot?"

"The Christian people of this country demand that all political parties shall declare for full enforcement of prohibition and against any weakening of the national prohibition act. The churches of this country expect no party to put forward candidates for president or vice president who are opposed to the United States constitution they must swear to enforce, or who are politically indebted to corrupt influences, or who have encouraged the nullification of American laws."

To my mind this is the finest, the most Christian act that the federated churches have taken since the armistice. Our Bible tells us that, "all things are yours; whether Paul, or Apollo, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come, all are yours, and ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's." Now is the "accepted time" to review our inheritance. Every true American, and every loyal Christian must acknowledge that their greatest earthly possession is the Constitution of these United States of America. It has through the grace of our God placed our beloved country on the mount of righteousness. Decadent Europe has turned to us as their only hope. Are we through rotten politics going to fail them at this critical moment? The framers of our Constitution were grand Christian men, who believed that God ruled the world. In the above resolution our churches have bravely lined up with these grand old men, in loyalty to their country and their God. "The nation that hath not a vision is lost." The political party that is not based on the vision that led our forefathers to give us the Constitution, should be lost by the united efforts of every Christian man and woman in our country. Where will our women stand? Upon them rests an awful responsibility. If every woman's organization would now take the outspoken opportunity to array themselves along side of our federated churches and give to the political parties the same strong ultimatum the crisis will be passed in victory for our country and our God.

We know where the Woman's Christian Temperance Union stands. I was deeply disappointed when the Daughters of the American Revolution disbanded at Washington without taking an outspoken stand for the enforcement of law. The Volstead act was put on our statute books by the constitutional government and it is the bounden duty of every loyal citizen to defend it and obey it whether they approve it or not. How can we know whether a law is just or not, if it is not enforced? The Volstead act has never been justly enforced. Many citizens who pretend to be loyal Christian subjects have outspokenly and covetly done all in their power to nullify the power of the Volstead act and thus defied the Constitution. The hour has struck when every woman's organization should put itself upon record for actual enforcement of law. Who suffers more than women when lawlessness reigns? Those who have traveled in Greece will recall that in one of the old Greek cities there stood long ago a statue of Lyseppus. An epigram in the form of a conversation between a traveler and the statue contains a useful lesson for every voter regardless of sex.

"What is thy name, O statue?"

"I am called Opportunity."

"Who made thee?"

"Lyseppus."

"Why art thou upon thy toes?"

"To show that I stay but a moment."

"Why hast thou wings upon thy feet?"

"To show how quickly I pass by."

"Why is thy hair so long upon thy forehead?"

"That men may seize me as they meet me."

"Why then is thy head so bald behind?"

"To show that when I have once passed I cannot be caught."

CONNECTICUT THRIFT IS SHOWN IN BANK FIGURES

Connecticut shows up well in savings bank figures made public in New York by the American Bankers' association, which reported increasing savings throughout the country, such deposits, as of June 30, 1922, the last available date, being $17,300,000,000, compared with $16,620,000,000 on the same date of the previous year. Connecticut leads Massachusetts in average balances in mutual savings banks and national banks and leds the all-New England averages; state bank and trust companies exceed the Connecticut figures. California leads the list of states in the amount of individual savings.

In mutual savings banks the average balance on June 30, 1922, was $456 in Massachusetts; $571, Connecticut; $489, all New England, and $590 for the 621 mutual savings banks in the seventeen states reported.

In state banks and trust companies the average savings account was $292. Massachusetts: $260, Connecticut: $365, all New England, which included 80,308 state banks and 1,480 trust companies.

In national banks the average savings account was $366, Massachusetts: $379, Connecticut; $376, all New England, and $334 for all national banks in the United States.

The average balances on June 30, 1922, in Connecticut, Massachusetts and all New England follow:

Banks	Conn.	Mass.	N.E.
Mutual savings $571	$456	$489
State & Trust Cos....	260	292	364
National	379	366	376
Average all banks	403	371	410

B'NAI BRITH FRIENDS CONGRATULATE A. CURLAND

B'Nai Brith friends of Abraham Curland extended their congratulations to him Tuesday evening at a party at his home, 50 Broad street, upon the birth of his son, Marvin Lewis Curland, now two weeks old. About 35 friends attended the joyous celebration of the birth of the son and heir giving Mr. Curland convincing evidence of their friendship and esteem.

Refreshments were served during the evening.

CANTON HAS BEEN OCCUPIED BY 5,000 YUNNANESE TROOPS

Shanghai, July 17.—(By the A. P.)—Canton today is in the hands of 5,000 Yunnanese troops who split with General Hsu Tsung Chi, chief military henchman of Sun Yat Sen. Following friction between the constitutionalist leader and his Yunnanese levies, the latter walked out of the battle line on the North river, returned to Canton and seized all points of strategic value here.

From the East river front also comes dubious news for the supporters of Sun Yat Sen. There troops of General Chen-Chiung Ming, the man who drove Sun from Canton last summer, have forced the constitutionalists to retreat. In his new advance Chen re-occupied Paklo.

Fighting still is continuing on the West river, with no report of the issue as all communication in that direction has ceased.

JOHNSON'S PLURALITY BETWEEN 70,000 AND 75,000

St. Paul, Minn., July 17.—(By the A. P.)—Further returns late today from the United States senatorial election in Minnesota yesterday indicated the plurality of Magnus Johnson, farmer-laborite, would exceed 70,000 and might mount to 75,000.

Several of the leading departments of the great Krupp works have been rendered idle because the trench occupation forces recently seized all the coal on the premises.

TELLTALE SYMPTOMS OF WOMAN'S ILLS

Every woman who suffers from backache, headaches, dragging-down pains, nervousness, irregularities, displacements, irritability or despondency should recognize in such symptoms some derangement of her system which should have attention before some more serious ailment develops. These conditions are often evidenced by a sallow complexion, dark circles under the eyes, lassitude, and sleeplessness. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been pre-eminently successful in overcoming such conditions, and it is now recognized everywhere as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

WEDDING.

Turner—Herber.

On Thursday afternoon, July 12, at 5 o'clock, Walter E. Turner of 172 Washington street, Norwich, and Miss Helen E. Herber, daughter of Mrs. Mary C. Herber of 1131 Dean street, Brooklyn, N. Y., were united in marriage at the home of the bride's mother. The ceremony was performed by Rev. S. Edward Young, D. D., pastor of the Bedford Presbyterian church of Brooklyn. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Edward C. Herber.

The bride's gown was of white, beaded georgette crepe over white satin and she wore a pearl coronet. Her only ornament was a string of pearls, the gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of white roses and baby's breath. The matron of honor, Mrs. William B. Kingland, sister of the bride, was attired in gray satin and carried a large bouquet of tea roses. The best man was Harry E. Turner, brother of the groom.

Preceding the wedding ceremony, Oh, Promise Me was rendered by Mrs. Henry Young, who also played the bridal chorus from Lohengrin. Following the ceremony music was rendered by McCormick's orchestra of New York. A catered supper was served shortly after the ceremony.

The house decorations were palms, ferns, roses, hydrangeas and peonies.

BEEKEEPERS SEE DEMONSTRATIONS AT ALLEN LATHAM'S APIARIES

About 43 members of the Connecticut Beekeepers association with their families and friends, in all making a party of over 150, on Tuesday visited the home of Allen Latham on Scotland road, a past president of the association, and spent the day in visiting the apiaries owned by Mr. Latham and witnessing various methods used in the raising of bees, for the making of honey or for the raising of queen bees.

Announcement that the meeting was to be held at the home of Mr. Latham, who conducts one of the largest, if not the largest, beekeeping establishments in the state of Connecticut, brought out people from all sections of the state as well as from Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The register showed them to have come from Winsted, Waterbury, Bristol, Westford, Bridgeport, Danielson, Willimantic, Westerly, R. I., South Manchester, Mass., Central Village, Killingly, Rocky Hill, South Windham, Hartford, Groton, Crescent Beach, Cheshire, Abington, Willington, Stamford, Bantam, Lisbon, Jewett City, South Lancaster, Mass., Milford, Middlebury, Glastonbury and numerous other places.

Upon the arrival of H. L. Lankton of Wethersfield, president, and Lewis St. Clair Burr of South Manchester, secretary of the association, Mr. Latham conducted a tour over his plant. The party visited the box plant first where they were told how various types of boxes were made in which to crate the comb honey, and bottled honey for shipment. From there Mr. Latham took them to the power plant and into the room where the honey extractors are placed. The method of extraction was then explained and there was a general opinion that the plant was one of the best in the state.

For the benefit of the visiting beekeepers Mr. Latham aided by his sons gave several demonstrations in the yard at his home, including getting supper ready, grafting cups for queen bees; and conducted a forum, questions being answered and a discussion entered into by the members present.

At noon a basket luncheon was enjoyed at the Latham home and about 1 o'clock the trip to the out-apiaries began. With Mr. Latham leading some thirty-five cars started for the Charles Ellis place on the Salem turnpike where Mr. Latham has many bee colonies. Later trips were made to colonies on the farms of Forrest Leffingwell, John Ross, Thomas Butler on Wauwecus Hill, the Rev. Hanna place on Bozrah street, Fitchville, and back to the queen mating yards in Norwich Town.

The trip took considerable time as about 15 minutes were taken up at each colony farm and it was impossible to visit the colonies on the farms of Mr. Davis, Mr. Verguson, Mr. Browning, Mr. Gottschalk, Mr. Allen, Mr. Ladd and Mr. Bishop.

One of the features of the day which proved perhaps the most interesting and entertaining was the trip to the queen mating yards. Located in Norwich Town Mr. Latham had about a dozen colonies for raising queen bees, each colony numbering about 20,000 bees with a virgin queen, and several of these colonies were visited, several hives being removed while Mr. Latham explained how he raised queen bees for selling purposes.

Every visiting beekeeper received one of these queen bees as a souvenir of the trip, the gift of Mr. Latham and the gift was greatly appreciated.

The trip which had taken all the afternoon came to a close at about 6 o'clock with over 20 of the 35 cars still in the line. The day proved one of great enjoyment to the beekeepers and Mr. Latham was given a vote of thanks for his generosity and kindness in allowing the members to go over his plant.

Among the many points brought out during the day which tend to show the extent of the business being conducted by Mr. Latham were several of interest. Asked how many bees he had in colonies, Mr. Latham said, "Today I have 21,355,241 bees on hand, the odd one bee being added because that figure is probably not more than 5,000,000 out of the way. To be exact, he said, I don't know how many bees I really have but the figure I gave is not less than what my colonies will total. I have at present 110 colonies that are kept for making comb honey only, 220 more colonies that are used for making honey for the extractor, 50 colonies that are used for any purpose needed, and 50 more used entirely for queen rearing.

"In truth I have 300 colonies that I class as producing while fully 150 more are not classed but can be drawn on at any time for queen rearing.

"The season of 1923 is thus far a banner season but cloudy weather may cause everything to be lost. In an average season I figure to get about 65 to 80 pounds per colony and in poor seasons between 25 and 40 pounds, but this year I expect to get nearer an average of 100 pounds of honey per colony, or a total of 15 tons of honey from all my bees."

In explaining his raising of queens Mr. Latham said that it takes about 10 days to raise the laying queen from the virgin queen put out and these are held for orders which in past years have reached as high as 3,000 a year. Asked about success in sending queen bees for long distances the answer was that he had tried to ship queens to China and Norway but had not yet succeeded. England, Canada and other countries have been reached and there are steady calls for queens at good prices.

The entire purpose of this trip was to allow the beekeepers to see the bees at work among the sumac which has only recently bloomed, and everyone seemed delighted with the trip.

Explaining the making of honey butter, Mr. Latham said that the success of this business depended upon the flowers, for some flowers, like sumac, will not make a honey that grains, as is necessary for honey to make honey butter. I hope, however, he said, when the season for honey butter arrives, in the winter months, I shall be able to make large quantities to supply the demand, and also expect that I shall be making honey candy, and honey bars, all dipped in chocolate.

As a parting question Mr. Latham was asked if raising bees was an easy job and he smiled and answered, "My usual work from sun-up to sun-down and today I was up at 4.30 and am just through after 8.30 in the evening; and if anyone thinks my business is easy let them ask my sons, they'll tell them."

CAVALRY SQUADRON TO REMAIN AT NIANTIC

First squadron of cavalry, Connecticut National guard, will remain at Niantic the remainder of this week instead of going to East Haven for practice on the rifle range. Plans first called for the squadron going to East Haven Monday, but unexpected orders were received at the camp cancelling the plans and instructing the troops to remain at Niantic.

No reason for the change was given officially but it is understood that the field instruction period was extended to allow the troopers more mounted work and field maneuvers.

Troop B, Third cavalry, U. S. A., originally scheduled to arrive with the state troopers, came six days late and consequently the state troopers were unable to use the army mounts as had been expected.

Bootlegging is not carried on extensively, if at all, at Niantic camp, according to a report received by Adjutant General George M. Cole from Major William H. Welch, who is commanding the First squadron of cavalry now on a tour of duty there. This is in direct contrast with conditions at Camp Dix, New Jersey, where liquor is said to have been sold freely to national guardsmen by scores of bootleggers, until things became so serious military authorities decided to take a hand.

POWER PLANT COMMISSION VISITED STATE HOSPITAL

The commission appointed by the last legislature to inspect the power plants of various state institutions, visited the Norwich State Hospital on Tuesday afternoon and was conducted about the plant by the superintendent, Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox. The commission conducted a thorough investigation and is to report its findings at the next session of the legislature.

The commission is composed of C. C. Elwell of New Haven of the Public Utilities commission, Luther M. Keith of Putnam, chairman of the house committee on appropriations; and Messrs. Ferguson and Newcomb.

A commission from the State of Rhode Island also paid a visit to the institution and inspected the various buildings for the purpose of acquiring a knowledge of how things were done at the institution, later to report in their own state, the ideas gained to be incorporated in buildings in Rhode Island.

The commission from Rhode Island included Robert C. Monahan, chairman of the Rhode Island State Welfare commission; Dr. John Champlin, Dr. Arthur H. Harrington, superintendent of the Rhode Island State Hospital for the Insane; and Construction Engineer McKenzie.

Fined for Breach of Peace

In the police court Tuesday morning before Judge A. F. Libby, Charles Hassan and John Richardson were presented on a breach of the peace charge for fighting while working for a building contractor at the Academy. Hassan was fined, paying $25.50 but Richardson was discharged.

The cases against three New London men, Michael J. Doyle, Raymond Bailey and Hilliard Easterbrook, accused of intoxication and breach of the peace, was continued to Monday morning. They are under $60 bonds each for their appearance in court.

Entertained Boy Scout Troop

Members of Troop 9, Boy Scouts of America, were entertained Tuesday evening in the First Baptist church parlors, by Mrs. Elizabeth Hurlburst, assisted by Mrs. Clara Burke and Miss Mary Haack. Following the entertainment of the evening which was greatly enjoyed by the scouts the evening was topped off with the following appetising menu: Potato salad, chicken patties, pickles, apple pie, lemonade.

HOLDS HIGH OPINION OF REV. EDWARD S. WORCESTER

Of Rev. Edward Strong Worcester, a former pastor of Broadway Congregational church of this city, who is professor-elect of the James Suydam chair of systematic theology in the Theological Seminary of New Brunswick, N. J., a recent issue of the Christian Intelligencer and Mission Field which is published by the Reformed Church in America, says:

Rev. Edward Strong Worcester, pastor of the Congregational church, at Bellows Falls, Vermont, is a son of Rev. John H. Worcester, D. D., and was born at South Orange, N. J., during his father's pastorate of the Presbyterian Church there. He was graduated with high honors from Princeton University in the class of 1896. After a year or two of successful teaching there he entered Hartford Seminary from which he graduated in 1901, receiving a prize for his work in systematic theology. While at the seminary he was under the teaching and influence of Dr. Chester D. Hartranft, a graduate of the New Brunswick Seminary, pastor of the Second church at New Brunswick from 1866 to 1878, when he went to Hartford Seminary, Dr. Hartranft's distinction as a scholar and minister, professor and president has commanded enduring remembrance throughout the denomination.

Mr. Worcester entered richly into the scholarship and spirit of Dr. Hartranft, and was regarded as one of those most fully inheriting the riches of knowledge and experience he offered to his students. At graduation, in 1901, he received a fellowship for study abroad and began the work, but he was compelled by ill-health to return to the United States. Entering the pastorate he became the minister of the Broadway Congregational Church at Norwich, Conn., then of the Congregational Church at Madison, Wisconsin, and recently of the church at Bellows Falls.

He is descended from a line of ministers on both his father's and his mother's side. His father was pastor at South Orange, N. J., from 1873 to 1883, when he went to Chicago as the pastor of the Sixth Presbyterian church. He stayed there until 1891, when he accepted the appointment to the chair of systematic theology in Union Seminary, New York City, which had been vacated by the resignation of Dr. W. G. T. Shedd. His untimely death, in 1893, is still mourned by his students. Mr. Worcester's great-grandfather, Rev. Dr. Samuel Worcester was the first secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.

The attention of the committee of the Board of Superintendents was called to Mr. Worcester by Professor Waldo S. Pratt, of Hartford Seminary, who, with his colleagues, commended him to consideration as a man commanding their respect and confidence to a very unusual degree. His ability, scholarship, clearness of thought and language, apparent aptness to teach, fine qualities of character and personal devotion were all included in the high esteem in which he was held, and of the special fitness for a theological chair which they accorded him.

Inquiry sent to President Edward A. Birge, of the University of Wisconsin, at Madison (a relative of Dr. William Is Chamberlain) brought word from him that he has very warm regard for Mr. Worcester, whose preaching, he wrote, had meant more to him than that of any pastor for years, whose teacher-like work had impressed him, and whose essentially religious turn of mind had been of especial value to him. Prof. Alfred P. Haake, of Rutgers College, a teacher in the Second Church of New Brunswick Bible school who recently came from Madison, where with President Birge, he was a member of Mr. Worcester's church, strongly confirmed this word with his own enthusiastic judgment of Mr. Worcester as a scholar, a minister and a man.

After having obtained all this information the chairman of the committee of the Board of Superintendents had a personal conference with Mr. Worcester, at which there were present two of the professors of New Brunswick Seminary. By this conference these representatives of the church were confirmed in a very high estimate of him, his intellectual gifts, his clearness of thought and word, his loyalty to the Scriptures and the Gospel of Jesus Christ, and the apparent value and promise he would bring to the seminary and church if he entered the service.

On Mr. Worcester's part it has been a very difficult problem to solve. He has only recently been installed as pastor at Bellows Falls, in a church which by its importance induced him to leave Madison, Wisconsin. He has an enthusiastic people, who are just beginning to develop the plans he has outlined for the future. It is practically impossible for him to sever the bonds which bind him and the church at once. The arrangement which has been arrived at after much conference is about as follows: Dependent upon the Bellows Falls church being willing to sever the relationship, Mr. Worcester will accept the call to the Seminary with the understanding that his work will begin about the second semester of the present seminary year. By this arrangement he will be able to occupy the pupil while the church is endeavoring to secure another pastor, and at the same time will be able to make several visits to New Brunswick and meet the students, outlining to them his plans and course of study. Under the circumstances the committee and faculty are agreed on this course.

OPENS 17TH SERIES WITH OVER 1,800 NEW SHARES

At the regular monthly meeting of the Norwich Building and Loan association which was held in the Chamber of Commerce office Tuesday evening at 7.30 o'clock, loans totalling over $12,000 were granted by the directors.

President Ernest O. Rodier presided and there was a large attendance. It was announced at the meeting that the 17th series of the association opened Tuesday and already over 1400 new shares had been taken and 10 single installment shares sold. The books at the end of the six months period of the association showed assets at $112,000, every cent of the money being invested in loans and first mortgages in Norwich. The reports for the past six months and since the new series was opened have been most gratifying to the directors of the association, and the compilation of the new series has been completed.

The Norwich Building and Loan association is continuing to do splendid work in helping people of moderate means, buy or build new homes. The association has been consistent in the practice of paying 5 1-2 per cent. interest to investors and it has proven a great benefit to the community, helping to relieve the housing situation and securing the confidence of the public more and more each year, as the work of the association goes on.

The work of the association is purely cooperative, the overhead expenses very small, consequently it is of great assistance to every wage earner who desires to purchase or construct his own home.

PASNIK WINS POOL ON STEAMSHIP BEREGARIA

Alex Pasnik, the well known Norwich merchant, who sailed from New York three weeks ago to visit his aged father in Poland, is having luck attend him on his trip. In a letter to Abner Schwartz, which was mailed in Paris, Mr. Pasnik wrote that he won the pool of $674 on the best day's run of the steamship Berengaria on which he went across. The pool is made up by the passengers putting in five English pounds apiece, about $25, so that the Norwich man received a pretty good return for his money.

DECISON FOR DEFENDANT IN SUIT OVER DOG

In a suit brought over a dog by Daniel J. Lucy of New London against Robert Wheeler of Waterford, Judge C. B. Waller of the common pleas has handed down a decision for the defendant to recover costs.

Mr. Lucy sued for $300, the price of a setter dog and claimed that he loaned the dog to the defendant to board and that when he claimed it, the latter refused to return it. Mr. Wheeler's defense was that the dog died.

Enjoyed Sheep Barbecue.

A Poquonnoc sheep Sunday had the novel experience of being slaughtered and eaten on the same day and within a very few hours. A large delegation of Greeks from Norwich picnicked at Poquonnoc grove. They bought from John Ackley the woolly beast and slaughtered it, dressed it and then enjoyed the barbecue.

RESUMED TROLLEY SERVICE NEW HAVEN TO GUILFORD

Hourly service on the rehabilitated Shore Line railway—the New Haven-Saybrook line which the late Morton F. Plant completed in 1910 at a cost of nearly three million dollars—began Tuesday morning at 4.30 o'clock from the New Haven railway station.

Monday afternoon in three cars a party of 125 men, the guests of the company, made the trip from New Haven to Guilford and return.

The charter was originally granted in 1905 by the legislature. Mr. Plant living in Branford, became interested in 1907. His instructions to the contractors were to "build me the best road you know how, and they did. The fact that William A. Sperry, the engineer who built it, is now active in the new organization under charter of the last legislature, betokens his confidence in the underlying merit of the project.

The road was built with 70 pound rails and heavy ties spaced 24 inches on centers. The overhead was designed for high speed work. The grades were made as light as possible and the bridges were built of steel and concrete. Strikes, the death of Mr. Plant, and other causes led to the suspension of operation four years ago. Purchased of late at a very low price, and in strong hands, those interested in reviving the line have full confidence that it has a future of great promise. For the present the terminal is to be Guilford, 17 miles from New Haven, to which the fare is 60 cents, but the task of putting the roadbed in condition to Madison and Clinton will be finished in a few weeks and cars to Saybrook may be looked for by fall. It is estimated that a population of about 300,000 will be served by the road.

Fine for Skin Exposed to Sun or Flying Dirt

These days the face needs special care and attention. Flying dust and dirt, the beating sun, are severe on any skin. Their despoiling effects are best overcome by the application of pure mercolized wax. This keeps skin and pores in a cleanly condition, the complexion beautifully white and spotless. Reddened, tanned, freckled or roughened cuticle is actually absorbed by it. One ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, is sufficient to completely renovate a soiled complexion. It is used like cold cream, allowed to remain on over night, and washed off in the morning.

CONNECTICUT INDUSTRIES MADE GREAT RECOVERY

Connecticut industries made a remarkable recovery during the past year from the business depression of 1921, it was revealed by returns to the state tax department. Their aggregate net income amounted to $85,877,916.72, an increase of $50,885,368.59 over the net income reported for the previous year.

The jump of over 240 per cent. in net earnings will result in an increase of $1,017,368 in state revenue for the current fiscal year. The tax to be collected by the state totals $1,717,551, as against $700,120 received last year. The tax is at the rate of 2 per cent. and is payable by Sept. 1.

Over 7,000 corporations made returns to the department, which is an increase of nearly 800 over the number which filed reports last year. Losses were reported by 3,636 corporations and these will be required to pay the minimum tax of $10 fixed by statute. Last year 3,777 corporations paid the minimum tax, which was then fixed at $20.

A total loss of $52,821,035.77 reported by 2,768 corporations last year would have resulted in a reduction of $1,056,420 in the tax payable this year but for an amendment to the miscellaneous corporation tax law adopted by the recent session of the legislature. The Connecticut tax is based on the net income reported by the corporations to the federal government; in fact, the state law requires the corporations to forward to the state tax department a true copy of their reports made to the United States internal revenue collector. A recent change in the federal law allows corporations to deduct losses experienced in one year from gains of two succeeding years. The session of the general assembly which enacted the legislation under which this tax is imposed contemplated an annual payment of 2 per cent. of the net income earned by corporations subject to the tax. The Connecticut rate is lower than that of any other state. The recent session therefore decided to disallow such claims for losses allowed by the federal government. This left the amount to be collected from corporations which exercise their franchises within the state and earn a taxable net income from operations, the same as when the Connecticut corporation franchise tax act was first put on the statute books.

Notwithstanding the tremendous increase in the net earnings of corporations, the revenue derived by the state from this source would have been less than that of last year, which was the low mark in the history of the tax, if such claims had not been disallowed.

Most Productive in 1917

This source of state income was most productive in 1917, the year when the United States entered the World War, when the receipts amounted to $6,181,141.06 from 5,753 corporations. It fell to $2,497,048.91 the following year and took another drop to $1,713,302.19 in 1919, owing largely to the large deductions that were allowed on account of expansion of plants and equipment. The next year, 1920, the tax went up to $3,336,409.76, but the 1921 returns, based on the 1920 business, showed the effect of the curtailment in business following the wholesale cancellation of war orders, to the extent that the tax dropped to $1,813,091.

The number of corporations taxed has increased partly because of the fact that corporations having no taxable income, or losses, have been made subject to a minimum tax, which was levied to equalize the minimum tax levied against unincorporated concerns by the 1921 session.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT IN WOMAN'S FARM UPSET

An attempt by Helen W. Rogers of Hamden, one of the directors of the state farm for women, at Niantic, to bring about the permanent establishment of "student government" at the institution has been revealed as one of the matters which led to the break between her and Miss Anna M. Petersen which led to the latter's resignation as superintendent in an upheaval resulting in five of the directors offering to follow suit if Mrs. Rogers would also resign.

Two previous attempts at student government at the farm had failed and Miss Petersen opposed another experiment along that line on the ground that the percentage of defectives among the inmates was as high as to render any such form of management impossible in her opinion.

Groton Avery Clan to Gather

The 29th annual meeting of the Groton Avery Clan, better known as the Avery Family association of the United States, will be held at the Avery Memorial park in Poquonoc, Friday, July 20, at 3.30 standard time. If stormy the session will be held in the town hall at Poquonoc Bridge.

This meeting is always held on the third Friday in July, that being the anniversary of the burning of the ancestral homestead on the night of July 20, 1849. The association is composed of descendants of Capatin James Avery of Groton, one of the earliest of the colonial settlers in this section of the country.

Miss Addie Avery Thomas of Groton is secretary of the association and Hon. Elroy M. Avery of New Port Richey, Fla., formerly of Cleveland, O., is president.

FINDS MODIFICATION OF VOLSTEAD LAW IS NEEDED

St. Louis, Missouri, July 17.—A resolution amending the Volstead act to permit beer of three per cent alcoholic content will be introduced at the next session of congress by Representative L. C. Dyer, of St. Louis, he announced today. Dyer said a recent tour of the western, middle western and New England states had convinced him that sentiment is overwhelmingly for modification of the prohibition law. He added that business men, temperance workers and church societies are convinced that modification is needed.

Mrs. William H. Dawley will be in charge of the D. A. R. museum, Norwich Town, this (Wednesday) afternoon from 2 to 6 o'clock.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

For the information of the public, there is posted in the lobby of the postoffice printed schedules of figures compiled by the United States coal commission showing stove anthracite prices as they prevailed at the opening of the present month and as they apply to various points throughout Connecticut.

Study of these schedules will make available for any citizen interesting information as to the cost of coal at the mines, the freight, and the F. O. B. price at dealers' yards in this state.

The schedule shows that on July 1—is applying to Danielson—the F. O. B. price at the mines was $8.65 and $8.80. The freight to Danielson is given as $4.73-$4.86. The F. O. B. price at dealers' yards in Danielson $13.21—$13.23.

The notices point out that in considering these prices allowance should be made for loss to the dealers through reception of coal of lower quality than is considered and to possible losses from other causes, and also, on the other hand, to the fact that the prices given are based on long tons of 2240 pounds each, whereas the retail buyer receives tons of 2,000 pounds, as has been the custom for many years.

The figures will be of particular interest to coal buyers in this territory as establishing that the dealers are paying a very considerably higher price per ton than the average consumer has realized.

Some anthracite coal was available for use here Tuesday, but the supply in the borough remains exceedingly short and there is no evidence that heavy shipments are to be expected in the near future. This situation has created apprehension in some quarters. Last winter's shortage and struggles to get fuel and the high prices paid are still fresh in memory.

Re-setting of the curbing in Reynolds street, between Main and Broad likely will be undertaken early in August. It is understood, in compliance with a vote of a recent special town meeting, which also authorized the selectmen to request the state highway commissioner to remove a row of trees along this section of street and bordering the southerly side of Davis park. Number among the incidents that bolster up the cases of those who want the trees removed as a menace to the safety of the traveling public is one in which First Selectman John A. Gilbert came near to getting caught in a "squeeze" while operating his car over this section of street.

It was believed here Tuesday that the state highway commissioner will not give his attention to Killingly's request that the trees be removed for some little time, though the proposal likely will get the official's consideration some time during the summer.

Dr. Joseph Spalding, who died Tuesday morning in Woodstock, where he had practiced medicine for 30 years of the 55 years he was a member of his profession, was a native of the neighboring towns of Brooklyn, where his cousin, George E. Spalding, and other relatives are residents. Dr. Spaulding was named for his father, who at one time was in charge of the county jail. This was about 70 years ago.

The Catholic Women's Welfare council of Danielson has worked out a plan under which its members will earn the $50 that is going to make up a unit to be given to the Day Kimball hospital nurses home fund. The council members will complete the unit during the weeks of this month and net, this being about the only summer activity in which the council is engaged.

A motorist who was journeying southward between Danielson and Wauregan, Sunday afternoon tells of an incident in which his own car came close to being smashed and another car ditched, when the driver of a Ford truck bearing a Rhode Island registration became all fussed up when a patrolling state police officer signalled him to stop.

When the officer signalled the Rhode Island driver to stop, the officer on a motorcycle, rode down the highway a short distance before he could turn his machine around and come back. In this brief interval of time the Rhode Island driver gave a pint bottle a wild heave toward the side of the road and as he did so swerved his car toward the Danielson man's machine. Observing on the instant to avoid it that a collision was imminent, the Rhode Island man swung his steering wheel sharp over, avoiding a smash but nearly upsetting the Ford, which lurched over until the wheels on one side were clear of the ground. Then he halted for his conference with the officer, the outcome of which was not observed by the local party. The officer was not in a position to see the incident that attended the heaving of the bottle, which appeared to be empty, though it might have contained colorless white mule.

Though the market is in an uncertain condition just now, woolen and worsted manufacturers in territory hereabouts have turned out some of their lines of next spring's goods and have them in the New York market for orders. Some goods of surpassing quality and beauty are now being produced in plants in this vicinity, goods ranking with the very finest of American made worsteds and goods that are largely taken by famous high grade clothing manufacturing concerns in the big cities of the United States.

Tyler Andrews having demonstrated that water can be found where a divining rod held in his hands indicates it to be, there is now urgent request for his services, though the skeptics may doubt it, to evolve some sort of an upside down arrangement of this divining rod system that will point to a place in the skies where water enough may be found to relieve what is becoming a serious condition of drought in this part of eastern Connecticut and then tell the boys how to release it in the form of rain. Incidentally, up to the present time the weather is making good Cloud Digger's prediction made March 23 under a Pockerville date line that July and August will be exceedingly hot and dry.

Roadside camping parties of automobilists who have come into this section of southern New England mostly from southern and western states, are to be seen evenings and mornings at cozy locations bordering the state highways in the corridor. While scenes of campers busy building up such a camp fire in this section as in northern New England, they are becoming more numerous and more of them are to be seen hereabouts this year than ever before.

PUTNAM

Wires between here and St. John, N. B., were being made to hum with messages Tuesday in following up a clue that it is hoped will result in the recovery of the fine Studebaker 7-passenger sedan stolen from the garage of Guy Zito, a local public service operator, during the early morning hours of a day last spring.

What appears to be the first trace of the car obtained since the machine was stolen is based on information supplied by Arthur Trudeau, of North Grosvenordale, who, while driving through St. John last Friday saw a car that he was convinced was Mr. Zito's, and that he might get a better line upon the machine he stopped outside a garage where it was parked and bought some gasoline as a subterfuge covering an opportunity to talk about the car.

He is quoted as saying that the man with the car said he had traded a Chevrolet and given $200 in cash for the machine, which was carrying Massachusetts registration plates when Trudeau saw it, and that he was suspicious that the car was a stolen one.

With this information in their possession, Captain William Jarvis and Mr. Zito motored up to North Grosvenordale to see Trudeau, Tuesday noon. Later, the manufacturer's and serial number of the Zito car were telegraphed to the chief of police at St. John, with a request that he try and locate the car and hold it if the numbers checked up.

Since the car was stolen, the numbers referred to have been supplied every motor vehicle department of the 48 states, and replies have been received in each case that a watch would be kept for the car. It is not anticipated that the thieves would register it, but it is not at all unlikely that whoever bought of them would do so.

Whoever stole the car from Mr. Zito must have been familiar with the garage where it was kept. On the night it was stolen, it was not put in the garage until about 1 a. m., and early that morning Mr. Zito discovered that it had disappeared. His garage is underneath his house, and it is believed that the thieves pushed the car out and along the highway for a distance before starting the motor, as no disturbance was heard about the place during the night.

The machine cost nearly $3,000 when it was new last fall, and was in excellent condition when stolen.

Dr. Joseph Spalding, 77, for about 30 years a practicing physician in the town of Woodstock and known throughout the surrounding country, died about 4 o'clock Tuesday morning at the Day Kimball hospital, where he had been a patient only a comparatively short time. Although he had been in failing health for more than a year, he continued in active practice of his profession, employing a chauffeur to drive him about on his daily tour of professional visits. He was a frequent visitor in Putnam and early this month was in this city giving attention to business and professional matters.

Dr. Spalding was born in Brooklyn, this state, April 27, 1846, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Spalding. When he was a very young child his parents moved from Brooklyn and later lived in Suffield and other places. Having completed his common school education and attended Woodstock academy Dr. Spalding entered the medical school of Harvard university and was graduated with the class of 1867.

As a young physician he went to Indiana to practice his profession, first locating at Chancy in that state. Later he practiced his profession and was owner of a drug store at Perdue, and while there numbered among those patronized his store George Ade, then a student at the university in the city, now a famous writer of fables in slang and other popular material. For 28 years Dr. Spalding practiced in Lafayette, Ind., and while a resident of that place married, Sept 28, 1873, Miss Julia D. Clark, who died about two years ago. In the central west he held many positions of trust and was prominent in his profession and in Masonic circles.

He leaves three sons, Charles Sabin Spalding and George Griffith Spalding of Woodstock and Freeman Clark Spalding of Southbridge and two daughters, Mrs. John R. Masters and Mrs. Leon Silberberg, both of Worcester. Mrs. Andrew F. Clark and Miss Emma Clark of Woodstock are sisters and George E. Spalding of Boston is his brother.

There were new developments Tuesday in the matter of the automobile collision between cars owned by Arthur G. Olney of the town of Thompson and Fred Mignault, of West Gloucester, R. I. Mignault was placed under arrest by the state police and posted a bond of $50 for his release until a hearing of the case could be arranged before a justice of the town of Thompson, Tuesday evening. Mignault denies that he was guilty of reckless driving and there are counter claims of responsibility for the accident. Olney's car is a large machine while Mignault's wrecked car is of the vintage of 1914 and of the variety that has made Detroit famous.

To date, 129 shares of the 16th series of the Putnam Building and Loan association have been subscribed, but it is anticipated many more shares will be taken before the subscription books are closed. In the 15th series 491 shares were taken while the high record of subscriptions was in the 9th series, of which 1028 are still outstanding. The 15th semi-annual report of the association was being mailed Tuesday to holders of shares.

This report says in substance:

The last six months has been the most successful this association has ever had. Since January 1 of this year our assets have increased more than $24,000. Since the same date we have loaned more than $30,000 to our shareholders. Since January 1, 1923, we have helped eight of our shareholders to build new homes or to buy new homes. That on this date we have applications from our shareholders for $35,000 with which to build or buy new homes, and only $800 on hand with which to do it.

Our monthly receipts are about $5,000, which means that we are about 7 months behind our applications, and any shareholder who wants us to aid in building or buying a new home will have to wait for several months. We have so many applications for loans that we cannot accept any unless the applicant is a shareholder.

The explanation of a motorman to an inquisitive passenger that a trolley car never chased a person up an alley in order to get said person into the accident record, was recalled with an adverse twist Tuesday morning, when Motorman William Barton, operating a car due in this city at 9.45 a. m., had to slow his car practically to a standstill to avoid hitting a doe that dashed out of a field and then along the tracks ahead of the car just below the links of the Putnam Country club. With the doe was a fawn, but the youngster discreetly remained in the field until after the car had gone and was soon rejoined by its mother.

It will be evident to the discerning reader that the Connecticut company is giving more for a 7 1-2 cent ride than the token that pays for it would indicate. These summer days trolley patrons may see all kinds of sights along the line—deer, bear (the knickerbockered kind), golfers, tractors at work in the fields, and if one looks close maybe a bootlegger or two—or a hundred other sights that make trolleying a summer delight free from interruption by blowouts or punctures.

GALES FERRY

Dr. A. Earl Kernahan, evangelist of Boston, former army chaplain, and until January of this year pastor of the Daniel Dorchester Memorial church in that city, concluded a successful week's work in Gales Ferry Sunday evening, July 15. Beginning Sunday, July 8th, in the Methodist church, conducting both morning and evening services. With the pastor, Rev. W. D. Woodward, of the church, he has made house to house calls through the parish during the week, holding services during every evening at the church. The result of his work has been most gratifying, as was shown at the Sunday morning service, when Rev. Mr. Woodward baptized two infants and eight adults. Dr. Kernahan's text was from John 20: 24, the theme being Thomas. At the offertory the anthem Far from My Home, with solo parts by D. R. Povey and C. E. Colver, was rendered. Following the sermon, five were taken into membership with the church by transfer, eight from preparatory membership and fifteen by profession of faith, a total of twenty-nine, while there is still a list of preparing members. At the evening service Dr. Kernahan's theme was The Superb Preacher, St. Mark 12: 37. Special music included a duet, My Task, by Mrs. Dudley C. Perkins and Miss Gertrude Allen. At the offertory Repent Ye (John Rundle Scott), solo, Miss Grace A. Chapman. At the close of this service Dr. Kernahan expressed much satisfaction and pleasure at the good work accomplished and stated that every day of his was filled up to February in evangelistic work. LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

The Lucky Penny.

Now Little Jack Rabbit didn't go home with the Ragged Bunny Giant in the last story. Perhaps he thought it wiser not to, so off he hopped by himself and by and by, not so very far, he saw a bright penny on the ground, but dear me, would you believe it? When he stooped to pick it up, that penny rolled away as fast as the dish that ran after the spoon in Old Mother Goose Land.

What do You Wish? She asked.

After a little way, it stopped right in front of a tiny hut. All of a sudden, the door opened and a little girl in rags and tatters looked out curiously.

"What do you wish?" she asked, and the queer little penny rolled up the wooden steps, through the kitchen door and jumped up on the table.

"I followed your penny," answered Little Jack Rabbit, "I've never seen a penny like yours before," and taking off his khaki cap, Little Jack Rabbit made a very low bow.

But the little girl all tattered and torn never even smiled. She was too poor and hungry to laugh.

"I've hopped a long way," said Little Jack Rabbit with a sigh. "Could you give me something to eat?"

Opening his knapsack, Little Jack Rabbit brought out ten big gold pieces. At once the little girl began to smile and when her smile turned to a laugh, a tiny bird in a cage began to sing.

At once the little girl ran in and told her mother what good luck had befallen them and then down to the village she went to buy bread and meat.

And while she was gone, Little Jack Rabbit said to the strange little penny:

"Tell me, little penny, are you a Bunny Fairy Land penny?" and the queer little penny answered:

"Yes. I once belonged to a good man who kept me for a lucky piece. One day he gave me to this little girl and told her never to part with me. She promised and ever since that day has kept her word although often she has gone hungry for want of a crust of bread."

Pretty soon, the happy little girl returned and then the bunny boy took his leave and hopped away—the little penny rolling after him down the dusty road.

"Keep a promise. If you do,
Luck, some day will come to you.
Save your pennies and some day,
Gold will surely come your way."

NEW LONDON RESERVOIR FISHING EXPENSIVE FOR NEW YORKER

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 17.—Frank Mariano, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rocco Mariano, No. 20 Montauk avenue, died last night at the home of his parents, from a lingering illness with rheumatism and a weakened condition of the heart. He had been a student at Nathan Hale grammar school and besides his parents, is survived by several brothers and sisters.

R. S. Jones of Boston communicated today with the New London police requesting that Robert Boss, en route from Boston to New York in a Peerless automobile and with a colored chauffeur, be arrested and held until an officer from Boston can come here and take charge of Boss. A watch was set for the fugitives, but he was not observed passing through New London.

William Noyes of Mystic, William Goldie of Crescent street and Richard Mansfield of Colman street, the last named employed by the city as garage collector and severely injured two weeks ago when a commercial truck in which he was riding at the submarine base overturned, burying him beneath a quantity of metal cans, were patients discharged at Lawrence hospital today.

The funeral of Louis Wyoutzky of No. 30 Eastern avenue, was held this morning at Our Lady of Perpetual Help church. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Meyer H. Hollandersky suffered a severe sprain of the right ankle this forenoon when he turned that member in alighting from his automobile, on Green street. It was at first believed that Mr. Hollandersky had fractured the ankle, but this was found not to be so when an X-ray picture was taken at Lawrence hospital. The injury will keep Mr. Hollandersky confined to his home at the corner for several weeks.

William Scapien of Tenth street, reported to the police this morning that river pirates boarded his motorboat in Winthrops Cove last night and stole a quantity of gasoline, oil and side lights.

Annie O'Connor, Ellen O'Connel and William and Frederick Baldon have sold a building lot on Colman street to John F. and Nellie Mahoney.

An automobile, owned and operated by Joseph G. Nathanson of Cranston, R. I., struck Augustus, the five year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Tony Constantine of No. 97 Green street, this afternoon at the corner of Bank and Golden street. The child was on the sidewalk and as the automobile emerged from Golden street, the boy darted directly in front of the automobile. Before Nathanson could bring his car to a stop the child was struck and knocked to the pavement. Nathanson placed the boy in his car and took him to the office of a physician where it was determined that the child had only minor bruises.

Mayor John F. Murray is ill at his home on Williams street. Mayor Murray contracted a severe cold a few days ago and as a precautionary measure, it was decided to have him receive medical attention.

Some operators of automobiles stop on the business streets of this city with the idea that they can allow their cars to remain alongside the curbing without any regard to traffic on the highways. Four violators of the city ordinance covering the matter were in the police court today and each paid a fine of $5. There has been probably more than a score of such prosecutions this summer.

Raphael Kossfsky is spending his vacation in Waterford in the vicinity of Lake Konomoc. He came from New York. He is spending some of his money in New London, for he paid a fine in the police court this morning for fishing in the lake. New London gets its supply of water for domestic purposes from the lake and has notices posted there that all who would fish may be aware of the fact. Raphael didn't care for prohibitive notices and used his fine line and worm bait to seek bass, perch and pickerel. William H. Howard discovered him and having police authority arrested him. A year or more ago Kossfsky's father was arrested for the same sport and paid a stiff fine. The young Kossfsky must have been aware of the fact for he did not claim ignorance when prosecuted. His fish cost him about $30. A high rate even with the cost of fish where it is now. He was fairly lucky that if he was found fishing in the pond again he could cover his letters addressed to him at the county jail, in the care of Winder Road.

Daniel Vincent was found so limp in the seat of Patrolman Timothy F. Sullivan from imbibing liquor, that he couldn't get his feet under him. The officer escorted Daniel to the police station and found he paid a fine of $10 with the attendant costs. At bootleg prices he paid a high cost for his spree.

A Groton automobile driver was prosecuted for reckless operation of the truck of his employer. He was fined $15. As he didn't have an operator's license Commissioner Shechel will probably put the possession of one beyond the fellow's reach for the next year. That may cost him his employment too, as he cannot operate a motor vehicle without having a license.

Three violators of the ordinance prohibiting parking on State and Bank streets for a period longer than 30 minutes were ordered to appear in the police court tomorrow morning: George C. Frink of Pleasure Beach, Enrico Furmiatti of New Britain and Philip Jacobs.

Robert J. M. Werkerle of 46 Tilley street, where he is a lodger, reported to the police today that during his absence from the city for a few days his room was entered and a suit of clothes, overcoat and raincoat were stolen, the theft being discovered when Werkerle returned from New York this morning. Detective Sergeant Charles Hammond in a short time located the stolen apparel in the Goldberg second-hand store. The clothes were returned to Werkerle, who was informed that the garments were purchased from a stranger last week. The thief was undoubtedly the same fellow who Saturday afternoon stole a quantity of clothing from the room of Herbert Leathers, a lodger at the same house. Leathers' clothes were also recovered from the Goldberg store, where they had been sold for a nominal sum.

Martin Butler complained to the police late last night that there were two men in his yard at 28 Richards street and that an attempt was being made to steal his chickens. Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolman George Perkins were detailed to endeavor to catch the thieves, but Mrs. Butler, mother of the complainant, scared the thieves away when the police were hastening to the house by automobile. Mrs. Butler went to the window and called to the men, making inquiry as to what they wanted. The thieves made a nasty exit.

New London is harboring a joker and the fellow presumably desires to watch the fire apparatus speed through the streets. Sunday night a false alarm was rung in from Box 291, corner of Broad and Morgan streets, and last midnight another false alarm was sent in from Box 47, located on Montauk avenue, opposite Nameaug school. In both instances the door of the box had been opened by breaking the glass.

David Geer of North Easton, Mass., son of Mrs. Jessie W. Geer of No. 37 Franklin street, New London, and Miss Mildred Getchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Getchell of No. 27 Phillips street, were married this afternoon at 4 o'clock by Rev. Joseph R. Elder at the Huntington street Baptist church. Frank W. Geer, Jr., brother of the groom, was best man, and Mrs. Lovell Stearns was matron of honor. Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Geer held a reception in the parlors of the church. Mr. and Mrs. Geer will reside in North Easton at the conclusion of their wedding trip.

Mrs. Henry R. Bond, Jr., of Pequot avenue, a patient at the contagious ward of Lawrence hospital nearly two weeks, suffering from diphtheria, was able to return to her home this noon.

Miss E. Louise Loosley has returned to her home on Brainard street, concluding several days' visit with Rev. Alfred Poole Grint and family of Warwick Neck, R. I. Rev. Mr. Grint was formerly rector of St. James' Episcopal church.

Miss Anne E. May of Broad street is entertaining Miss Agnes Gorse of Simsbury. The Misses May and Gorse were classmates at Mt. St. Joseph's seminary, Hartford.

Mrs. Fred Elliott has returned after spending several days with relatives and friends in Providence and Boston.

Miss Virginia Eggleston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy C. Eggleston, a student at Connecticut College for Women, is visiting friends in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Miss Eggleston will be absent about a month.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Elrick and family of Hartford are spending a few days with Mrs. Elrick's mother, Mrs. Lina Merriam.

Miss Mabel Fowler has returned from Washington and New York and will spend the balance of the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Birt O. Fowler, of Monument street, Groton.

Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Ferryboat Mohican will be withdrawn from the New London-Groton line on the 25th inst., for annual inspection for a number of days, during which time steamer Myra will take care of foot passengers only, for the substitute boat is not equipped to accommodate teams and automobiles.

The Groton barracks of the state police department is practically minus officers, for this forenoon because of five officers of the Centerbrook barracks having been relieved of duty by Supt. Robert Hurley for infraction of rules of the department in attending a party, the nature of which is not divulged, near Centerbrook without permission recently. A like number of officers was sent from the Groton barracks for temporary duty at Centerbrook.

Another hydrant for fighting fires at Ocean Beach, which will receive its supply of water from Alewife Cove, was tested this morning when the Kononoc Hose company's pumper was attached to the hydrant and pumped about an hour. PLUMBERS OF CONNECTICUT AVERAGE ONE DOLLAR AN HOUR

Plumbers and steamfitters representing local unions in twelve cities of the state attended the semi-annual convention of the Connecticut State Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters, held at Danbury Saturday and Sunday. The sessions were held in T. and L. hall, with twenty-eight delegates present.

The principal business transacted was the consideration of a state license bill. A legislative committee was appointed to take up the matter with the various local unions and through them to get in touch with the members of the legislature and frame a measure to be presented to the next general assembly.

Delegates reporting for the various locals showed that conditions throughout the state are very good. Reports on the wage scale showed that the average wage throughout the state is one dollar an hour.

Michael Garrett, of Chicago, national organizer for this district, attended the convention. He gave a talk on conditions throughout the New England states, reporting them as excellent. Two delegates from the Massachusetts state association were the guests at the sessions.

Officers were elected and were installed by National Organizer Garrett as follows:

President, Cornelius O'Leary, Stamford; vice president, Clifford Latimer, Danbury; secretary-treasurer, Edward Gaffney, Ansonia; members of the executive board, Peter Smith, New Haven, and Milton McDonald, Bridgeport. President O'Leary was elected delegate to attend the Massachusetts convention in Haverhill.

The next convention will be held in New Britain the second Saturday and Sunday of January next.

MARKET GAINED STRENGTH

New York, July 17.—After opening lower, price movements in today's quiet stock market gradually turned upward until at the close the averages were somewhat higher than yesterday's closing.

Execution of an order to sell 6,000 shares of U. S Steel common precipitated a flood of selling orders at the outset and was interpreted by many floor traders as a renewal of liquidation. This, however, proved a hasty conclusion with the result short covering operations were inaugurated and the market recovered most of its losses quickly.

While the market continued quiet most of the day with total sales only slightly greater than yesterdays low record, substantial advances were recorded by numerous stocks. The market was most active in the final hour despite an increase in the call money rate half an hour before the close.

A ten cent cut in the price of Ohio Crude had no effect on the oil shares, most of which registered small gains on the day. California Petroleum preferred, however, yielded 1 1-2 in the face of a favorable contract for sale of 36,000,000 barrels of light gravity Southern California Crude Oil to the Standard Oil company of New Jersey, delivery to be spread over a period of three years.

The last hour movement upward had its inception in the demand for railroad stocks, loquiy spreading to other parts of the list and resulting in a gain throughout the list. Baltimore & Ohio moved up 1 3-4 and St. Paul preferred, New Haven, Illinois Central, Rock Island and Norfolk & Western 1 point each.

Woolworth, strong throughout the day, closed 6 3-4 points higher, Kresge 3 points and Associated Dry Goods 2. Other stocks which recorded gains of 1 to more than 3 points included advance Rumley, preferred, American Car, American Ice, Austin Nichols, Cerro Products, Crucible Steel, Cuyamel Fruit, Royal Dutch, Stewart Warner and Stromberg Carburetor.

Call money opened at 4 3-4 per cent, moved up to 5 at 1 o'clock and advanced to 5 1-2 per cent. at 2.30 o'clock where it remained until the close. Time money was quiet with rates unchanged. Commercial paper rates remained at 5 to 5 1-4 per cent.

Demand sterling improved slightly to $4.59 3-16, while most of the other European exchanges were easier. Net changes, however, were small.

BOND MARKET

New York, July 17.—The bond market was a rather quiet affair, today with prices holding steady, both in the high grade investment issues and the more speculative liens.

United States government bonds moved within a narrow trading area, closing fractionally lower. Foreign issues were dull and price changes unimportant.

Reading 4's closed 1 3-4 higher after moving up more than 2 points on early dealings. Seaboard Air Line consolidated 6's receded 1 and New Haven 7's, francs, lost 1 1-2.

Industrial liens were quiet, gains of 1 point each by Warner Sugar 7's and Cerro De Pasco 8's being the only outstanding changes.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, July 17.—New breaks in the season's low price record for all future deliveries of wheat took place today, and for the first time this season the September delivery sold under 96 cents a bushel. Hedging sales of newly harvested wheat, together with inadequacy of demand, had much to do with the fresh setbacks in price. Closing quotations were unsettled, varying from 5-8c to 96 3-4, and December, 99 1-4 to 99 1-2. Corn, oats and provisions scored gains—corn 2-4 to 1 3-8cc, oats 1-4 to 1-2c, and provisions 10c to 17c.

Although the wheat market showed its greatest depression early, and failing afterward took place, the upturns proved for the most part to be only transient. As usual of late, hedging pressure was most in evidence around the opening and it was during this period today that the September delivery fell to the day's minimum of 95 3-4c. Subsequently the fact developed that offerings of wheat to arrive here and in the southwest were of less volume than yesterday. Rallies were also promoted by some renewal of gossip about likelihood of damage by black rust.

Some buying of wheat today was based on denials that the Canadian bureau of statistics had estimated the Canadian yield of wheat this season would total as much as 500,000,000 bushels. Instead, the condition of the Canadian crop on June 30 was reported as 105 per cent. of the decennial average of 15 3-4 bushels an acre. The acreage estimate was 22,169,000. On this basis the last Canadian official estimate would indicate a crop of 366,000,000 bushels, which is a little less than last year's total.

Corn and oats appeared to have been oversold and corn in particular responded readily to eastern buying.

Provisions were firmer in line with an upturn in hog values.

CURB MARKET

New York, July 17.—Activity of industrial shares featured today's session of the New York curb market. While trading was not on a large scale there was evidence of a better tone and numerous industrial issues pointed upward.

Hudson & Manhattan common was quite active in belated response to the stock, but the net gain was small. recent dividend action on the preferred. Durant Motors after several days of inactivity sold nearly six points higher at 49 3-4. Gillette Safety Razor moved up 1 1-2 and Glen Alden Coal moved up fractionally.

Oil stocks were relatively quiet and apparently disregarded the ten cent cut in Ohio crude prices. Ohio Oil advanced a point and standard of Kentucky closed 1 3-4 points above yesterday's final figure. Standard of Nebraska dropped two points. Other changes in the oil group were unimportant.

Mining shares again were quite active but net changes were relatively unimportant.

Cumulative Preferred Stock

Preferred as to Assets and Dividends. Redeemable at $105 per share. Price Par and Interest, yielding 8%.

"Select" because:

a. Investments in fundamental industries possess a better dividend record than those producing luxuries.

b. Civilized people require shelter and the greater security in which people dwell results in a better class of business and housing structures.

c. These are the reasons why we consider the 8% Preferred Stock of Fiske & Co., Inc., a select and conservative investment.

d. For example: Building construction in New York in June showed an increase of 20% over May, and 21% over June, 1922.

WINDHAM

The assembly hall at the grammar school was filled with an audience which thoroughly enjoyed the plays given by the Girl Scouts and members of the C. E. society. The Lyric orchestra of Willimantic furnished excellent music between the plays and for the dancing which followed. Ice cream was sold and the proceeds amounted to about $30, which is to be given toward buying a curtain for the stage in the hall. Much of the success of the affair is due to the director, Mrs. L. P. Oehrig, who is the captain of the Girl Scouts. The plays and the cast follow:

The Lady from Philadelphia: Colonel Harcourt, a punctual gentleman, Carl Josephson; Captain Sinclair, who is less punctual, Clarence Beckwith; Lieut. John Hopetree, in love with Miss Osborne, Eden Cook; Mrs. Harcourt, Ines Hopkins; Mrs. Sinclair, Marguerite Cook; Mary Ellison, a guest, Annie Trigger; Katy, the maid, Mrs. L. P. Oehrig; The Lady from Philadelphia (Miss Osborne), Charlotte Lathrop.

Her Uncle's Boots: Miss Izabelle, perceptress in a girls' school, Elinore Sherman; Anna Dyer, Mary Spokesfield; Kittens Carlisle, Marian Bailey; Lorraine Bassett, Myra Spokesfield; Julie Pomeroy, Margaret Oehrig; Elizabeth Winters, Dorothy Rood; Lucy Abbott, Mildred Wilcox; Marie Parkhill, Catherine Mara, pupils at the school; Nell Oldfield, a girl visiting at the school, Elizabeth Barker.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS AT GROTON LONG POINT

Members of Pequot and Oweneco groups, Camp Fire Girls, of the United Congregational church, are enoying a pleasant time at Camp Otawatenyo, Groton Long Point, the camp having been officially opened on Sunday afternoon on the arrival of the girls.

The girls enjoy arising with the sun and every morning thus far has seen the campers awake and dressed long before the morning call at 7 o'clock and ready for the morning dip before the setting-up exercises led by Miss Elizabeth Smith. Another interesting feature is the inspection and the girls strive to win the banner for the neatest room.

New London, July 17. — Samuel Borello, aged 30 years, residing at No. 12 Tenth street and employed as a cement worker, was almost instantly killed about 1 o'clock this morning when the motorcycle he was riding from Mystic to his home crashed against the waiting room of the Groton and Stonington trolley company at Trail's corner, Poquonnoc. Borello died within a few seconds after the crash, for he sustained a fractured skull, fractured neck, fractured jaw and fractured collarbone, besides extensive internal injuries. The body was removed to a local undertaking establishment after it was viewed by Medical Examiner Frank W. Hewes of Groton, who pronounced death due to accidental causes.

The motorcycle was completely wrecked and a section of the waiting room was carried away, so terrific was the impact of the speeding machine, whose speedometer registered 72 miles an hour when the cycle was examined this morning.

Borello and Lawrence Bealle of Mystic, the latter also on a motorcycle and following Borello, left Mystic to come to New London about 12.30 o'clock and after getting under way Borello set a rapid pace. The two cyclists continued without mishap until Trail's corner was reached. As the two machines approached the corner, where the cyclists should have diverted their course to take the Poquonnoc road, a dense land fog appeared. Borello undoubtedly became confused in the mantle of fog, for instead of reducing the speed of the cycle and taking the direct highway to New London, he continued along the road traveled by the trolley cars, with the result that the machine instead of remaining in the highway traveled across the road and crashed against the side of the waiting room. So great was the speed of the cycle that the car ripped away several feet of the corner of the station and Borello was hurled against the building with terrific force.

Bealle, who was following a few yards in the rear of Borello, fortunately did not suffer a similar fate to his companion, for with the crash Bealle brought his machine to a stop and going back to the station found Borello bleeding terribly from lacerations and hemorrhages. Bealle maintained a vigil over the body until Charles Parks of Poquonnoc, on his way home, came along in an automobile. Parks was hailed and his investigation of the prone form of Borello revealed that the victim was already dead, for with such injuries as the victim received death was practically instantaneous.

LYME ART EXHIBITION HAS UNIQUE FEATURE

Lyme, Conn., is an all-year-around colony and it, too, has its exhibition gallery and its annual summer show, one of the first summer exhibitions established in this country and one of the most successful. A unique feature of this exhibition is that organizations throughout the country contribute to a purchase fund, and the pictures so purchased are distributed among them—a far better plan than prize awards, and one calculated to not only encourage but stimulate production.

It was at Old Lyme that Metcalf painted the "May Night," that most lovely picture of a colonial mansion bathed in moonlight, which is one of the Corcoran Gallery's prized possessions. This fine old home with its classical portico and its overshadowing horse-chestnut tree was for many years a rendezvous of the artists. Old Lyme can also boast one of the most attractive of the colonial churches in the country, which, with its picturesque spire, designed in the Christopher Wrenn tradition, has been pictured many times by some of the leading artists, and so has become familiar to many who have never set foot in the town. Conspicuous among pictures of this old church is one by Childe Hassam, considered by many his masterpiece. It is not easy to get to Lyme. The through trains do not stop at the station, so one must either go beyond and motor back or await the pleasure of an accommodation train, or stop off too soon. But it is well worth a visit.

RETURNS FROM ELKS' CONVENTION AT ATLANTA

James J. Harrington, delegate to the grand lodge meeting of Elks, at Atlanta, Ga., from Norwich Lodge, No. 430, has returned home and is delighted with his trip. He was the only man from Norwich to attend the convention but found 40 brother Elks from Connecticut there.

In all there were about 40,000 Elks in Atlanta during the convention but hotel rates and restaurant rates were not advanced. There were free automobile rides and the entire population of Atlanta, about 300,000, seemed to endeavor to show the Elks that their city was one of the best in the world.

Several of the lodges in the country sent big delegations, the Philadelphia Elks going down with a large delegation accompanied by two bands.

The spirit of welcome on behalf of the Atlanta people was always evident and the city voted $10,000 and the Atlanta Elks $80,000 for entertainment. The next convention of the Elks is to be held in Boston when the Elks of the northland will have an opportunity to show their hospitality.

Mr. Harrington while attending the convention was also on his honeymoon and his trip included Jacksonville and St. Augustine, Fla., the trips down the coast being made by steamer. He feels that the south is a growing section of the country and commends the spirit the citizens of southern cities show in boosting their home towns.

Made Playground Plans.

Tuesday evening at the office of the superintendent of the Playground commission, a meeting of the committee was held. Chairman William J. Fitzgerald, presided. The other members of the committee present were, Mrs. Joseph F. Drew, Mrs. Alex Pasnik, Mrs. D. Louisa Atterbury and Richard Lewis.

Plans for the work at the local play centers for the coming week were discussed and many new plans of interest were made.

AGED MAN OBTAINS RENEWED VIGOR

WINCARNIS Quickly Restored Failing Strength

"I take pleasure in certifying as to my experience with Wincarnis. From sincerest feeling of gratitude to the compounders of it. Am a man over 70 and like some three-quarters of myself failing faster, and in ways other than my age alone would seem to account for. Had tried various medicines which seemed to force Stone for a time, but inevitably caused a relapse. Happened to see an advertisement of Wincarnis, and thought I'd try once more. With the first dose I realised that I had found something which "touched the spot" at once.

Have now been using it over a month with very marked benefit in increased strength, better appetite, sound sleep, and greater ability for my work, which keeps my endurance at my age severely. (Rev. Wm. H. Moore, of Warren, Mass.)

Her report follows:

Gentlemen: It is my pleasure to present the third annual report of the Gales Ferry Free Public Library for the year ending July 14, 1923.

The passing of another year affords an opportunity to take account of the work of our library. "All things come to him who will but wait"—very true! We have not only waited but we have worked, with the pleasing result that we have accomplished something.

The desire of each one has been for the completion of our library building, something that people could readily see, for most of the detail work connected with a library can only be realized by a few.

When one looks at the library they see the outcome of our efforts—a practically completed interior, walls covered with sheet-rock, tinted a soft buff color, woodwork painted white, and excellent matched-board ceiling, book shelves on two sides, in light oak finishing, a center electric light, other book shelves made from our old stacks, and books in every section. A pleasing sight. How have we been able to make the building so attractive? Simply through the kind help and hard work of our friends. The association owes much to Walter Buckingham, who has freely given days and hours of his time to the work of the interior finishing of the library. Assisting him at times were Stephen Norman, Everett Noyes, J. P. Satterlee and D. R. Povey.

R. B. Burton, of Mount Vernon, one of our summer residents, presented us the electric light, which adds so much to the furnishing of the room. Our shelves which are the regulation library bureau shelving, add materially to the appearance of the library. In fact, someone said, "It looks like a real library now, doesn't it?" It is mainly through the kindness of Mr. Frost and Mr. Sheffield that it is possible for us to have these splendidly finished shelves.

Our gifts for the year are money to the amount of $327 from six friends, which included $50, especially for the children's books and magazines. The additional library table is the gift of Mrs. Walter Buckingham. The Village Improvement association gave us the subscription to the American Forestry Magazine, Mr. Stocking of Norwich sends us the National Geographic Magazine. From another friend we receive the Bird Lore and Nature maragines, and the Audubon Bird Charts.

One important part of library work is to help the children in their reading, therefore, with the help of the gift of $50, previously mentioned, we have placed on the juvenile shelves, the following magazines, Johnny Martin's Book, Youth's Companion, St. Nicholas, Popular Mechanics and Boy's Life. Books in nature study, such as those on birds, butterflies, flowers, trees, travel stories and primers and picture books for little tots, have been added to the juvenile book collection. For the schools we have done what we could with our limited supply of study books. Lists of books, on George Washington and Abraham Lincoln were sent to the village school. Magazines were sent to the Long Cove school and Miss Whipple, the teacher, was given the privilege to take whatever books she wished for the use of her pupils.

With our appropriation of $100 from the state, the librarian has tried to choose the latest and most interesting books of travel, history, biography and literature, as well as the best popular fiction. In this list each year is included one or more of the standard books, which we should find on the shelves of every library, such as poems and histories, books though they are old they live on and never lose their interest.

During the year we have received 470 books. Great is our appreciation of the kindness of our friends who have remembered us in this way. The books were gifts of the following persons: Gordon Manierre, Alfred Sears, Myrtice Coman, Viola Riley, Ein-Beth Bennett, Ruth Fabel, Margaret Parker, Miss Caroline Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. S. Crandall, Mr. and Mrs. Minor Moxley, Mrs. Richard Chase, Mrs. Walter Buckingham, Henry C. Allyn, Miss Edna Wells, Money Lawson, Judge and Mrs. Steere, Mrs. Balcom, Edmund Stoddard, Mr. and Mrs. C. Royce Boss, George Frost, Mrs. Stephen Norman, Mr. Haley, Mrs. C. B. Whitman, Miss Abby Clarke, Nathan Gibbs, Mrs. Way, Mrs. Charles Comstock, Mr. and Mrs. Latham Smith, Nelson Roach, Mrs. Delphine Fish, Raymond Case, G. S. Bluefield, Mrs. Mary C. Watrous, Mrs. Peter Hoffman, Miss Edith Fox, Mr. Messenger, Miss Grace E. Povey, and a few others who did not leave their name with the books.

The past winter was a very severe one and many of our Tuesdays and Fridays seemed to be visited with most unpleasant weather conditions, but in most instances, we were able to have the library open and the circulation of 2,677 volumes during the year, proves that some appreciate and enjoy reading.

We have on the shelves, not including magazines and reference books, 2,665 volumes, 470 of which were added during the year.

We have employed various ways of raising money, during the year, with most satisfactory results. Our Silver Teas seem to be most popular.

I am sure it will interest you as well as surprise you to know that the outside world even dreams of our existence. They more than dream, they know and are interested in us. One library in Wisconsin has taken our plans and intends to build a branch library similar to ours.

Pictures of the library were sent to the state library building exhibit at the capitol in Hartford. John Lowe, assistant librarian of the Brooklyn, N. Y., Public Library, visited this exhibit, noticed those from Gales Ferry and requested a set for his collection of library buildings. The pictures were sent, with a short description of the building and of our working plans. He is asking now for a further detailed account of the library and a full explanation of how we work on a no-debt plan, and how much we can accomplish in a year.

You will agree that the little library is coming into its own and that the desire expressed in last year's report, to progress, has been fulfilled, beyond anything we expected.

Inspired by our friends and the satisfactory results of our labors during the past year we hope to "carry on" and be of greater service to the community.

SPOKEN AT SEA.

Twelve hundred miles and more
From the stormy English shore.
All aright, the seventh night,
On her course our vessel bore,
Her lantern shone ahead,
And the green lamp and the red
To starboard and to larboard
Shot their light.

Close on the midnight call
What a mist began to fall,
And to hide the ocean wide,
And to wrap us in a pall!
Beneath its folds we peer;
Hidden were shroud and mast,
And faces in near places
Side by side.

Sudden there also fell
A summons like a knell;
Every ear the words could hear,—
Whence spoken, who could tell?
"What ship is this? where bound?
Gods, what a dismal sound!
A stranger, and in danger,
Sailing near.

"The Virginia, on her route
From the Mersey, five days out!
Fore and aft, our trusty craft Carries a thousand souls about."
"All these souls may travel still,
Westward bound, if so they will;
Bodies rather, I would gather!"
Loud he laughed.

"Who let that hails so rude,
And for what this idle mood?
Words like these, on midnight seas
Bode no friend nor fortune good!"
"Nor whence I lastly came,
Care not to know my name,
At leisure, for my pleasure,
Ask the breeze.

"To the people of your port
Bear a message of this sort:
Say, I hasts unto the West,
A sharer of their sport.
Let them sweep the houses clean
Their fathers did, I ween,
When hearing of my nearing
As a guest!

"As by Halifax ye sail
And the steamship England hail
Of me, then, bespeak her men!"
She took my latest mail.—
'Twas somewhere near this spot;
Doubtless they're not forgot.
Remind them (if you find them!)
Once again.

"Yet that you all may know
Who is't that hailed you so."
(Slow he saith, and under breath,)
"I leave my sign below!"
Then from our crowded hold
A dreadful cry unrolled.
Unbroken, and the token,—
It was Death.
—Edmund Clarence Stedman.

'TIS LITTLE.

'Tis little; yet a goodley few fair things
Will meet, perhaps, the seeker on my map
When I shall cease its dots to score or tap
With such corrections as experience brings—
Nor shall I hear the word that wounds or stings
When on the chaft some hard, rough hand may rap.
Since, with or without dreaming, I shall nap,
Secure from Fortune's arrows and sharp slings—
Erelong, no more shall there be to and fro
Of any pace that mind or body go—
Hopes fade amid the deep, empurpled haze
Where slumber puts an end to every quest;
Where, mute or spoken, every wish obeys
—William Struthers, in Boston Transcript.

Half of the lichens and nearly a third of the mosses of the Antartic are also found in the Arctic.

It is unusual for a tomb to be used for any purpose other than that for which it was erected. An exception may be found in Allahabad, India, where a magnificent mausoleum, built to contain the remains of an Indian prince who was murdered by his father, has become in recent years a billiard parlor.

The latest in wireless direction finders has just been installed on the steamship Mauretania. With this device it is possible to ascertain in a few seconds a ship's bearing towards any one land wireless station. If touch is secured with two or more stations, the exact position of the vessel is found by cross-bearings. The value of such a direction finder in thick or hazy weather is obvious.

LOCAL MAN SERIOUSLY INJURED IN FIRE IN HODSON'S HOTEL, WATERBURY

One Fatality in Destruction of the Oldest Hostelry in the Brass City—Among the Seriously Injured is William L. Cramer of 5 Washington Street—The Fire Swept Rapidly Through the Five Story Structure—Positive Identification of the Dead Man Was Impossible.

Waterbury, July 18.—Hodson's hotel, in Exchange place, the oldest hostelry in the city, was practically destroyed by fire in less than two hours, with the loss of one life and serious injuries to several others. The fire was discovered shortly after 11 o'clock. It is believed the fire started in the office. It swept rapidly through the five-story building. Every available piece of apparatus in the city was rushed to the fire and twelve companies kept the flames from spreading to adjoining structures.

Positive identification of the dead man was impossible, but it is believed that the body is that of Alex Canal of New York, a former resident of this city, who was here on a visit. His body was so badly burned that identification will be possible only by elimination or by his teeth.

The fire was under control at 1 o'clock.

William L. Cramer of 5 Washington Street, Norwich, Conn.

George Gagne of Boston, Mass.

Oscar F. Parker of Waterbury, Conn.

George Gagne of Meford, Mass., who has only one limb, walking by means of a wooden leg, was unable to get through the flames when the calls of fire penetrated the halls. He attempted again and again to find some way out of the fast burning building, but to no purpose. Finding a window, he screamed to those in the rear of the building to save him. Unable to get a ladder from the front of the hotel, where the firemen and volunteer citizen fighters were attempting to reach the front rooms, Happy Daly and Marty Whelan risked the smoke and flames and went to the man's rescue. They were forced to carry him in their arms, licked by the flames, and half suffocated by the smoke. When the man was finally set down in Hodson's lunch room he was hysterical and unable to give any information about himself. His clothes were practically off as a result of both tears and burns.

While the fire raged within the hotel the fire plug a few feet from the entrance to Liggett's drug store broke, with the result that a stream of great force shot out into the street for nearly 100 feet. Edward Chatfield, about 60, who was crossing the street at the time, was caught in the flood and knocked to the ground. Before he could be rescued the old man was half drowned. He was hurried out of the center and a physician summoned. A woman whose name could not be learned was also knocked down by the stream, but managed to rise to her feet and stagger to safety.

Those who were registered at the hotel when the fire started were as follows:

Boston, July 18.—A plan for the re-employment of the striking telephone operators of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company which provides for the restoration of as many operators as possible to their former positions at unchanged wages was made public tonight by officials of the company.

In a statement the company officials maintained the stand taken previously that all new operators may retain their positions permanently if they desire and added that to operators who would return to their posts certain benefit rights which they forfeited by going on strike would be restored after a probationary period of one year and that certain seniority rights would be permanently forfeited.

The statement made public tonight was presented to leaders of the striking operators, who walked out on June 26 to enforce demands for a seven-hour day and higher wages in five New England states, at a conference today by General Manager George H. Dresser, of the company. The strikers' representatives, headed by Julia S. O'Connor, president of the striking union, had requested for the second time re-instatement en bloc of the strikers.

Additional breaks in the ranks of the strikers were reported today in Providence where ten girls were said to have gone back to work. One girl was reported to have returned in Lawrence.

Emergency service only will be given for the present in Lawrence, the local manager said today. He declared that inadequate police protection made it hazardous to conduct employes to and from work.

ABSENT SALOON KEEPERS RESPONSIBLE FOR SALES

Philadelphia, July 18.—A saloon owner may be miles away from his bar and yet be guilty of selling liquor illegally, according to a decision by Judge Buffington in the United States circuit court of appeals today, in sustaining the conviction of three saloonkeepers. They appealed on the grounds they were away from their saloonswhen liquor was sold. They were sentenced to six months each in jail and fined $1,000.

IMMIGRANTS ADMITTED AS A SPECIAL "REBATE QUOTA"

New York, July 18.—Immigration Commissioner Curran was instructed from Washington today to admit 521 British subjects, who arrived on the steamship Baltic, to the United States under a special "rebate quota." The immigrants were detained after the British quota of 15,448 for the month of July was believed exhausted.

Mr. Curran said that Commissioner General Husband had made a close check of all ports on the Atlantic seaboard and the Gulf of Mexico and had discovered that the 521 men, women and children could enter this country.

OBITUARY.

Louis Calvert.

New York, July 18.—Louis Calvert, 321 West 55th street, New York, died in his sleep last night. He was one of the best authorities on Shakespeare in this country. He had been teaching Shakespearian students at New York University recently. Formerly he was a theatrical manager in London, England, and produced "Sweet Kitty Bellairs" in England in 1907. Funeral services will be held Friday morning at 11 o'clock at the New York University auditorium in Waverly place. Mr. Calvert became a citizen of the United States several years ago. He was a member of the Lotus club of the city.

HIBERNIANS URGED TO WAGE WAR ON THE K. K. K.

Montreal, July 18.—The Ancient Order of Hiberians was urged at today's session of its convention to wage war on the Ku Klux Klan.

President James Deery, in his annual report, declared that no greater duty faced the order than exposure of the Klan. Specifically he urged support of the Unity League of America, which he said was organized in the United States to combat the klan thede.

"In the United States," he asserted, "the klan questions the right of Jews, Catholics, Negroes and foreigners to enjoy the right of American citizenship, and has successfully entered the field of practical politics in many states, electing senators, judges, governors, mayors and sheriffs. It appeals to ignorant and prejudiced mind. It is well financed and well led.

"It is not the Jews or negroes or Catholics who are in danger. It is American liberty.

Both Canada and the United States, he continued, religious tolerance was the keystone of liberty. He suggested that chairs of tolerance might well be established in universities and supported by the public.

Referring to the Irish situation, President Deery said:

"Our fondest hopes were not realized, and while we regret that the Irish representatives were obliged to accept the terms which they did, we are pleased to know that the Irish Free States was accepted only as a step toward complete independence."

BABY UNHARMED, THOUGH AUTO SMASHED CARRIAGE

Bridgeport, July 18.—James Link, losing control of an auto, skidded onto the sidewalk at Fairfield and Hancock avenues tonight, and crashed into a baby carriage containing a five months old child. The carriage was smashed into many pieces and the child's mother and another woman walking back of it, were knocked down.

The baby was lifted from the debris of the carriage unscratched but badly frightened. His mother, Mrs. Anna Beach, suffered a fractured knee and extensive body bruises. Her companion, Mrs. George Tenney, received a fractured skull, and is in Bridgeport hospital in serious condition.

Link was arrested on a charge of reckless driving his bonds being set at $500.

CHARGED WITH PUBLISHING OBSCENE, INDECENT BOOKS

New York, July 18.—Thomas Seltzer, a publisher, was indicted by the grand jury today on charges of publishing obscene and indecent books. The books in question were "Cassanova's Homecoming" and "A Young Girl's Diary," both by Arthur Schnitzler.

"Intolerance has scored another base hit," said Mr. Seltzer. "It doubtless will prove a foul. 'A Young Girl's Diary' has been approved by the Young Women's Christian association and the Campfire Girls.

"If books are not permitted to relate historical accounts of other than the 'righteous' we might as well delete most of our histories, not to mention scripture."

PRAISES COURTESY OF POLICEMEN OF LONDON

New York, July 18.—Two months ago First Deputy Police Commissioner John A. Leach of the New York city police department went to Europe for new ideas as to how a policeman should conduct himself. He returned today with one. Here it is:

"Be more courteous.

"Courtesy is the only thing the famous London bobbie has on the American policeman," the commissioner said.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Entertained Zionist Delegates.

London, July 18.—The American delegates on their way to the Zionist congress at Carlsbad, were entertained at luncheon here today by the British Zionists. The representatives of both countries united in lauding the Balfour declaration for the establishment of a national Jewish home in Palestine, and agreed to work together at the coming Barlsbad congress to obtain further concessions toward this end.

MORE EVIDENCE FOR THE DEFENSE IN MORSE TRIAL

Washington, July 18.—Evidence introduced today at the Morse trial by the defense included a brief read by William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, at a meeting of the shipping board in August, 1919, in which he charged that the Virginia Shipbuilding corporation, a Morse concern, has been treated with extraordinary and inexplicable unfairness by the government. McAdoo, who at the time represented the Morse interests as counsel, testified yesterday for the defense.

Declaring that "a mere recital of some of the facts" would show that the Virginia company had received unfair treatment, Mr. McAdoo in the brief said the facts would "bring into bold relief the wrongs and injuries the Virginia company has suffered and emphasize the necessity for an immediate and just ruling upon the issues involved so that the future work of the company may be carried on without friction and with that sort of co-operation which will enable the company to complete its contract properly and to the satisfaction of the government."

Faced by a serious housing shortage the brief continued, the Morse trade arrangements to have boats owned by them taken to Alexandria, Va., where the Virginia company's plant is located, to house workmen, but were not permitted to do so because the boats were requisitioned by the government.

"Practically every other company," asserted Mr. McAdoo, "that was forced to build its housing was given financial assistance for that purpose by the government. The Virginia company has received no advances for housing purposes."

The Emergency Fleet corporation, according to the brief, agreed to loan the Virginia company for plant construction a dollar for every dollar the company expended for that purpose, but Charles Piez, head of the fleet corporation, failed to carry out this agreement, though repeatedly requested to do so."

"It was charged," the brief continued, that the Virginia company had invested less than $20,000 in plant construction. This was a mistake. Over $1,000,000 had been expended and the corporation officials had access to the contractors' books and were at all times in position to know this."

After recounting difficulties encountered by the Virginia company in obtaining mortgage loans from the government, the brief said, the most serious difficulty of all "has been the withholding of progress payments."

The brief was read to the jury after the defense had presented a deposition by John Barton Pyne, former head of the shipping board. It was brought out that no facts came to the attention of Mr. Payne while he was general counsel for the shipping board, that the Morses were "impeding" ship construction.

TURCO-AMERICAN TREATY NEGOTIATIONS DELAYED

Lausanne, July 18.—(By The A. P.)—The Turco-American treaty negotiations are delayed over three main points, which probably will require further conferences between Joseph C. Grew and Ismet Pasha before real progress can be achieved in drafting the new treaty. The United States wants Turkey to recognize in the treaty the American naturalization laws, but the Turks point out that Turkish laws prevent Turkish subjects who become citizens of other countries from returning to Turkey.

If the Americans insist on such recognition, the Turks will demand that the provision relating to Turkish subjects shall be added to the treaty clause. But the Americans cannot accept any treaty denial of the rights of American citizens, and the subject has been left for further consideration.

The Turkish experts realize that whatever may be the outcome of the negotiations on this question, the United States government will always insist upon suitable respect for the rights of Americans, and, as a matter of fact, the American representatives say they proposed their clause merely to facilitate the protection of American citizens by Turkish officials and reduce the possibility of misunderstandings.

MINERS ON STRIKE IN NOVA SCOTIA REMAIN DEFIANT

Sydney, N. S., July 18.—Four thousand Cape Breton coal miners voted tonight to continue on strike in defiance of the order issued yesterday by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America. Mr. Lewis cancelled the charter of District 26 and ordered the men to return to their work.

Action of the miners followed defiant statements issued today by Daniel Livingstone and J. B. MacLachlan, president and secretary of District 26 when they were told of Mr. Lewis' order. Both Livingstone and MacLachlan were jailed and subsequently released on charges of spreading false information regarding the sending of government troops into the Cape Breton district where steel workers are on strike. The miners struck in sympathy with the steel men.

SYSTEMATICALLY STEALING FROM A BLIND MAN

New York, July 18.—Taking candy from a baby is an act of benevolence compared with what Matthew Levy was charged with in police court today.

He asked a friend to act as lookout for him. Levy came along, chose a paper, according to the friend, and walked away without paying. The avid reader was held in $500 bail.

To Continue Passive Resistance in the Ruhr

Berlin Government Officials Declares There is No Indication of Cessation.

Essen, July 18 (By the A. P.).—The Ruhr population intend to continue passive resistance, a high Berlin government official, who has been in close touch with the situation here since the occupation began, informed The Associated Press correspondent today. Whatever England may propose to Berlin in the forthcoming note concerning resistance, he added, there was not the slightest indication that the Ruhr people were even thinking of ceasing their resistance under the present general outlook.

"The Ruhr people," the official explained, "are now more determined than ever not to give up. This is especially true of the miners, who, I am sure, would simply ignore Berlin if it should issue orders or recommendations to cease passive resistance."

This official declared that the Ruhr's attitude had been strengthened more by the extension of the frontier closing and by the arrest of hostages after the Duisburg explosion than by anything else, and continued: "So now Berlin must remember that she has not only France, England and the other allies to consider, but also the Ruhr people themselves; they must be convinced that real guarantees are forthcoming before they even consider the cessation of passive resistance."

Asked how long he thought the population could hold out if, for instance, the confiscation of stocks of coal by the French led to the closing down of most of the factories, this official said he did not know, but the miners generally felt that they were only beginning to test their holding out ability, and certainly could continue for "a very long time," even if all the factories had to close.

He pointed out that there was a lot of "unproductive work" at which laborers could be kept for a long time, such as cleaning machinery, putting factories in a high state of repair and similar operations, so that when there was a settlement the factories would be able to make up for lost time by faster and more economical production.

New York, July 18.—After 23 months of aiding the destitute in Russia, Colonel William N. Haskell and his headquarters staff of the American relief administration will leave Moscow for home on Friday. The vanguard of the corps already are on the way, cables to the administration here reveal.

In strong contrast to their sullen reception by swarms of beggars two years ago was the farewell tendered the Americans yesterday by hundreds of sleek well-wishers, said the messages. Conspicuous as the Warsaw express pulled out were the sweeping relatives of Russian brides departing with American husbands.

Among those in the advance party leaving Moscow yesterday were Dr. John E. Toole, of Branford, Conn., Major Charles Telford, of Washington, D. C., J. E. Seykora, of Pueblo, Colo.; Karl L. Wausau, Wis., July 18.—Inability of Sheriff Arthur Siewert to locate Mary Lawando, missing since July 9, led today to the belief that the girl may have lost her life in the big swamp, which has been searched in the hope of finding the girl.

The swamp is one of the most dangerous in this section of the state and if the girl, who is said to be more familiar with it than anyone else, had missed her footing when heading her searchers into its inner depths, she may have been engulfed by the almost bottomless bogs.

DRAFT OF BRITISH NOTE HAS BEEN COMPLETED

London, July 18 (By the A. P.).—The draft of the British note to Germany was completed today and it is expected that one sitting of the cabinet council tomorrow will suffice to secure approval of the ministries, in which case the note, with covering letter, will probably be despatched to the allied governments Friday for their approval, and to Washington, not necessarily for comment, but as a matter of courtesy.

It is generally understood that neither document will see the light officially until the note is in the hands of the German government, the date of which will depend upon how long the British government has to wait for replies from the allies.

It is in the power of France to employ delaying tactics, but it is supposed that after waiting a reasonable time Lord Curzon will despatch the note to Berlin, with or without French approval.

QUANTITY OF REAL BEER BREWED IN CONNECTICUT

Hartford, July 18.—More real beer was brewed in Connecticut during the government fiscal year ended June 30 than in the year before national prohibition went into effect. It was shown by an analysis at the United States internal revenue office today of reports submitted by nine breweries in the state. At the same time, sales of near beer fell off sharply from the record of last year.

It was shown by the report that 2,665,891 gallons of real beer were legally manufactured in Connecticut breweries in the past year under the provision of the national prohibition act which permits the production of ginuine beer in the process of manufacturing near beer described in government reports as a cereal beverage. In the fiscal year ended June 30, 1919, breweries of the state produced 2,855,087 gallons of beer, or 21,084 less than last year.

Have Started From Various Sections of the Country to Conduct a Crusade Against the Alleged Maltreatment of Three "Wobblies" and for the "Protection of the I. W. W. Constitution"—Port Arthur Authorities Have Prepared to Place the Invaders in Labor Gangs to Take Care of the City Work.

New York, July 18.—Firmly believing in the efficacy of "direct action," hundreds of members of the I. W. W. are leaving here tonight on a crusade to Port Arthur, Texas, the object of which is the "protection of the I. W. W. constitution" and the rights of three "wobblies" said to have been kidnapped and severely beaten there.

"We don't believe in doing things by official delegation. When there is a job to be done by the I. W. W. the rank and file go to it without bothering about their officials," is the report on the exodus given by local headquarters of the Marine Transport Workers' branch of the organization.

How the men will cover the 2,500 miles to Port Arthur is regarded at headquarters as a minor detail. More than 20,000 of them are on the move from all parts of the country, on foot, by freight train and by sea, according to John Shuskie, the secretary-treasurer.

Coincidently with the I. W. W. exodus came a pledge from the Civil Liberties Union to the general defence committee of the I. W. W. in California to help fight against the recent injunction which renders membership in the I. W. W. in that state contempt of court, punishable by a prison sentnce of six months.

The injunction, which followed the declaration of a general I. W. W. strike in California comes as a result of the "pressure of ecorporations," asserts the Civil Liberties Union, and is unconstitutional.

PORT ARTHUR OFFICIALS PREPARE FOR INVASION

Port Arthur, Texas, July 18.—Members of the Industrial Workers of the World will have a place waiting for them on labor gangs to take care of city work, local officials said today upon learining that officials of the Marine Transport Workers' branch of the I. W. W. have ordered all footloose "wobblies" to invade Port Arthur in connection with the reported kidnapping of three I. W. W.'s recently.

The officials would make no other statement. No definite steps have been taken, however, to handle the situation, it is understood, probably due to the absence of Mayor J. P. Logan. It was said he will return immediately if the situation warrants it.

Four men with membership cards in the I. W. W. are already facing vagrancy charges here. One of them, giving the name of Sidney Pory, was arrested today at the same address where the other three were seized lyast week. All are at liberty under bond pending a hearing tomorrow. None of them had anything to say regarding the concerted movement of I. W. W. members to this city.

Investigation into alleged mistreatment of members of the Transport Workers' division of the I. W. W. here was requested of state officials about ten days ago by John Shuskie, New York, secretary of the Transport Workers' organization. He request followed reports that John Holland, an organizer, and one or two other members of the I. W. W. had been mistreated by a mob.

Holland was arrested late in June on the ground that he was an I. W. W. When efforts were made to photograph him and take his finger prints he is alleged to have resisted and received some punishment at the hands of the officers.

Application for a writ of habeas corpus was made at Beaumont and his release ordered. The court also called attention of the grand jury to Holland's charges. He returned here and was taken into custody June 29 or 30, with another man. That night it is said they were released, but as they were leaving the police station they were seized by unknown parties and taken from the city. A few days later Holland was reported to be in a hospital at Galveston, suffering minor injuries. He said he was beaten by his captors and released on the Beaumont road.

$50,000 LIBEL SUIT FILED AGAINST NEWSPAPER

Beaumont, Texas, July 18.—Alleged mistreatment of John Holland, I. W. W. organizer, by the police of Port Arthur, Texas, which was the beginning of the agitation resulting in the reported I. W. W. order for members to flock to that city, cannot now be taken up again by the grand jury before the first Monday in August, as the body recessed June 29, until that date.

In its last session the grand jury examined Holland's bruises, alleged to have been inflicted by the Porth Arthus officials, and instructed by the court to make athorough investigation. No mention of the affair was made in the grand jury report and it is not known whether investigation will be resumed in August.

Libel suit for $50,000 has been filed against a Port Arthur, Texas, newspaper, by Holland.

Austin, Texas, July 18.—No action toward an investigation of alleged mistreatment of members of the I. W. W. at Port Arthur was taken by Lieutenant Governor Davidson, when he was acting governor. The message from the secretary of the Transport Workers in New York was received while Governor Neff was away.

Davidson said that inasmuch as the court at Beaumont had called the attention of the grand jury to the matter he could not do more at the time.

PARTY OF I. W. W. MEMBERS HAVE LEFT SAN FRANCISCO

San Francisco, July 18.—A party of I. W. W. will leave here tonight for Port Arthur, Texas, as the result of the call from New York ordering members to the south to "protect the I. W. W. constitution," John Aaron, secretary of the Marine Transport Workers' branch of the I. W. W., announced today. Mr. Arron said he would head the party. The method of transportation has not been announced, but it is stated that the majority will travey south by train.

Aaron said today that he was arrested in Port Arthur last May for vagrancy and was "turned loose at night into the arms of a party of Ku-Klux Klan and unmercifully beaten." Aaron said that he was leaving "to get justice for the boys."

CHARGES OF BRUTALITY AT BROOKLYN STATE HOSPITAL

New York, July 18.—Feeble minded patients at the Brooklyn state hospital for the insane were beaten and kicked by attendants, Dr. Thomas G Hogan, a resident physician of the hospital, testifying oday at an investigation ordered by Attorney General Sherman of charges of brutality against Leo Putnam, Edward Lutes and Richard Galvin, attendants.

Four inmates of their ward, 22, were found to be bruised badly about their heads and bodies, while eight others had suffered minor injuries, Dr. Hogan said. He said he examined them on Sunday. In one case he said, two teeth had been knocked from a patient's mouth.

Putnam against whom charged were brought by Phillip Addis, formerly an attendants who resigned because of the alleged inhuman treatment, was permitted to cross examine Dr. Hogan. The physicians admitted that particularly vicious inmates had been house in Ward 22 and that the four who were worst hurt were of exceptionally bad type.

Arthur C. Raitte, another attendant was called to the witness stand and denied any knowledge of the alleged brutal treatment. He said that Martin Callaghan, another attendant who was formerly a newspaper cartoonist, and who at yesterday's hearing, corroborated the charges made by Addis, had told him that if a sensational news story developed out of the charges the attention of newspapers would be focused upon the hospital and he, Callaghan might be able to obtain employment at his former calling.

Four of the patients, alleged to have been beaten, were called to the witness stand by Dr. Hogan to show the nature of their injuries. While there they were also questioned. One of them said that Lutes had never beaten the patients in Ward 22, but that Putnam had.

New York, July 18.—The promised end of the grand jury investigation of grand larceny, forgery and extortion charges against William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, again failed to materialize today.

NORWICH BULLETIN
[illegible] Church Street Telephone 1052

If the weatherman hold true to his forecast that today (Thursday) will be fair, there will be nothing lacking to make the big Rotary field day at Connecticut Agricultural college a most happy affair for all who attend. Rotarians and their wives and young women friends from Norwich, Hartford, New London, Putnam and Willimantic will gather at the college grounds to participate in activities under the auspices of the local club. Among the distinguished guests will be District Governor George Cooper and his predecessor Don Adams, favorite of every Rotarian. All those attending are expected to register and procure identification badges immediately upon arrival at the grounds.

At 10.30 o'clock the program will get under way with field sports as the first events. Prizes will be awarded the winners.

At 11.3[illegible] o'clock the Putnam and Willimantic clubs will be opponents in a five inning baseball game. A chicken dinner will be ready for elimination at 12.30 o'clock in the college dining hall when stunts and songs will entertain the assembly.

The afternoon festivities will start at two o'clock when all will witness a live stock parade to be followed by more field sports, with music by the R. F. C. E. band from this city. Another five inning baseball game is scheduled for three o'clock between the Norwich and New London clubs. Dancing will begin at four o'clock in Hawley armory.

The reception committee will comprise the local Rotarians and their wives. In the event of unfavorable weather the games and other amusements will be conducted in the armory. Professor Richard E. Dodge is chairman of the general committee of arrangements.

Future violators of the automobile laws within the confines of Willimantic may expect but little leniency on the part of the police court officials if it was announced Wednesday morning by Judge Frank H. Foss, whose declaration was that from now on there will be no remittance of fines and suspension of sentences unless the court is clearly in doubt as to the guilt of the defendant or defendants on evidence presented. All operators of motor vehicles must by this time, know the traffic laws and they must abide by them. Fines covering the enormity of the offense will be imposed at future trials. The above announcement was made after the judge had heard the case of an out-of-town motorist who violated the traffic law.

Abraham Feinberg of Chelsea, Mass., was charged with driving his automobile to the left of the silent policeman on Lincoln square and speeding west on Main street, Sunday evening. He pleaded guilty to both charges, stating that he did not see the silent policeman and that he did not think he was traveling at an excessive rate of speed. Motorcycle Officer Bombria, who was responsible for the appearance of the man in police court, stated that Feinberg went to the left of the dummy and then sped up the congested part of Main street at a speed of 34 miles per hour.

Because Feinberg had traveled over one hundred miles in order to appear in court, the judge was inclined to be easy on the man. The reckless driving charge was nolled and a fine of $5 and costs, totalling $11.25 was imposed and paid. Judge Foss then issued his manifesto.

Pasquale Carrangelo of 28 Castle street, New Haven, was charged with three counts; speeding, failure to stop when commanded by an officer and not having his operator's license in his possession. Carrangelo pleaded guilty to the three charges. The accused is the young man who drove the high-powered Packard car which was halted on Main street by Traffic Officer Frank McLean, about 10 o'clock Tuesday forenoon, but which sped away and after a thrilling chase was stopped finally on Mansfield avenue after three shots had been fired by the officer. Theodore Agrotte, a local jitney man drove the pursuing machine. The charge of speeding was nolled by Judge Foss and a fine of $25 in each of the other counts was imposed, plus costs, the total being $63.25.

Daniel R. Lawlor, another resident of New Haven, drew out his pocketbook and paid the assessment, after which the party went to a local garage and secured the machine, in which they left for New Haven.

Mrs. Emma Frances Palmer, 82, widow of Charles M. Palmer died Wednesday morning at her home, No. 92 High street. Mr. Palmer formerly conducted a dry goods store in this city. Addition improvements were being made Wednesday at the Bank street engine house of the local fire department when two Western Electric two-horse power motor generators sets were installed by a local electrician to be used for the purpose of charging the batteries controlling the local fire alarm system. The old generators were discarded for the reason that they were not strong enough for the present fire alarm system. It is thought that the new apparatus will last the city many years.

RICKARD FAILS TO SIGN DEMPSEY AND FIRPO FOR HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE BOUT

New York, July 18—(By the A. P.)—Tex Rickard's efforts to sign, seal and deliver the proposed Jack Dempsey-Firpo match for the world's heavyweight championship either in the United States or the Argentine, apparently were no nearer completion today after a series of conferences among the promoter, Firpo, the latter's trainer, Jimmy De Forest, and Jack Kearns, manager of the champion.

Rickard declined to reveal the exact status of affairs, beyond saying that "a number of things were holding up negotiations." But Kearns added that he expected definite developments within the next 48 hours. He may confer with Rickard again tomorrow on the match, he said.

The chief difficulties surrounding the bout was believed to be its site, although it was said an additional hitch had developed in the form of increased financial demands by Firpo.

Regardless of this angle, however, Firpo reiterated to Rickard his desire to fight Dempsey in his native city, Buenos Aires, while Kearns adhered to his preference for two title bouts in this country, the first with Firpo around Labor Day and the second with Harry Wills, negro challenger, around world's series time.

The champion's manager was to have decided definitely today upon Rickard's proposal to stage the Firpo match in the Argentine, but he reserved final answer pending possibilities of arranging the match in this country.

At the same time, the belief gained ground that Rickard is now less enthusiastic about an Argentine venture, feeling that, despite assurances from his agents of probable financial success, considerable risk would be involved. Color was added to this today by advices from Buenos Aires, quoting newspaper opinion as being skeptical of the prospects of a paying "gate" for the proposed match.

While Rickard has not withdrawn his Argentine proposal, he admitted today that he had several other sites in mind, outside of Boyle's Thirty Acres, his arena across the Hudson, and Buenos Aires. What these are he would not reveal, although there was a revival of talk that he might effect a working agreement with Tom O'Rourke, matchmaker at the Polo Grounds, for the use of the Giant's ball park, as a championship site. Neither promotor, however, would admit this possibility.

FAVONIAN WINS RICH PURSE AT KALAMAZOO

Kalamazoo, Michigan, July 18—Favonian, his sire, J. Malcom Forbes being bred in Kalamazoo by the late D. D. Streeter, won the $10,000 Exchange club purse for 2:08 trotters this afternoon. He was driven by Fred Edman and trotted the first heat in 2:03 1-4, which sets a new record for this event. Favonian's victory was a popular one. In every one of the three heats he won his race in the quarter stretch, demonstrating that he is every inch a trotter.

Against Favonian was pitted a great field, including among others, Clyde the Great, Guardian Trust, Fayette National, Peter Pfaff and others. Anna Bradford's girl, Ben White driving captured the $2,000 purse for three year old pacers, his first mile in 2:04 1-2 being a record for colt pacers so far this season.

Tommy Murphy drove Mrs. Yerkes to victory in the 2:11 trot, while Peter Henley, with Erskine driving, was winner of the 2:18 trot.

It was an afternoon of great racing with fast time, thrilling finishes and a large crowd in attendance.

TAFTVILLE A. A. HAS TWO HARD GAMES THIS WEEK

The fast Federal team of Hartford will oppose the strong Taftville A. A. team on the Providence street grounds on Saturday afternoon. Hartford will have a college pitcher in the box to do the twirling, and has beaten some of the best teams playing in and around Hartford.

Taftville will have Chappell, a new man to pitch and will save Davis for the game at Danielson on Sunday. Chappell is rated as a good semi-pro hurler and should be able to make a good showing against the Hartford aggregation. Belair will do the backstop work for the Taftville team.

On Sunday the Taftville team will go to Danielson with a strong team to take the first game of the series between these two old rivals. Davis, spit-ball pitcher, will work against the Danielson team with Belair behind the bat. Jack Murphy who has been out of the game for the past few weeks and whose terrific hitting has been missed, will be back in the lineup. A large percentage of the Taftville players have topped the .300 mark and are still going strong. Chip Dugas is hitting a fast clip and has passed the .400 mark most of his hits being for extra bases. Jim Murphy, Liberty, Jarvis and Gaudette are hitting regularly and blasting their batting averages every game. With this bunch of sluggers arrayed against them Danielson will have to step out and play ball.

"COL." GEORGE FOWLER SIGNED BY SINGLE MEN FOR TONIGHT

Local fandom will once again turn their attention to the battlegrounds tonight when the Married Men and Single Men of the East Side come together for the third game of the big series. Both teams have a victory to their credit and its an even bet as to which team will win tonight's game although both managers claim that their team will break the ice. Never before has the city witnessed such rivalry and only a miracle will prevent violence before the series is over.

Manager Pedace exploded a bombshell in the married men's camp last night with the announcement that Col. George Fowler, the young adventurer from Fox Hill will cover short stop for the single men. The many admirers of the single men will no doubt receive this bit of news with open arms as the addition of George to their already strong lineup will make the single men hard to beat.

When informed of the change in the single men's lineup "Jumbo" James of the henpecks merely smiled and said that everything was sitting pretty with him and that he refused to make any statement except that anyone that was undecided as to which way should lay his money could rest easy if he layed it on the married men.

The report that Matt Delaney was still holding out last night was also denied by "Jumbo".

Although Matt had really been holding out everything has been patched up and tonight will find the temperamental star back in the fold after being offered everything but the Preston bridge.

The battlegrounds has been fixed during the past week and tonight will find it in perfect condition. Umpire "Billy" Wright will call the game at 6.30 daylight saving time.

The lineups:

Married Men—Pills Randall ss; Ed Blood 2b; Jumbo James 1b; Matt Delaney 3b; L. Cook lf; B. Lamphere cf; Ray Leonard p; Wacko Riley c; H. Stone rf.

TENNIS STARS FROM ENGLISH CONQUESTS

New York, July 18—Seven American tennis notables including William M. (Little Bill) Johnston of San Francisco, winner of the last world's championship at Wimbledon, returned today on the Olympic after an extended invasion of European courts.

They were accompanied by Brian I. C. Norton, South African star, who intends to make a campaign of American tournaments, concluding with the national singles championship at Philadelphia in September. Norton has been a prominent figure in European tennis for the past six years, and with Manuel Alonso, Spanish Davis cup star, who is now a resident of the United States, will add considerably to the international flavor of principal invitation and championship events this season.

Norton fell before Johnston in straight sets this year in the semi-finals at Wimbledon but "Little Bill" today declared the South African and Vincent Richards, of Yonkers, N. Y., who was beaten in an earlier round, gave him the stiffest opposition of the tournament.

Johnston referred modestly to his conquests abroad, which included two world's championships beside a number of minor tournament victories. He captured at St. Cloud, France, the last world's hard court singles tournament, in addition to the title event on grass at Wimbledon.

"I have just happened to be hitting 'em right," said "Little Bill," "who had high praise for British sportsmanship."

NO MONEY FOR FIRPO IN SOUTH AMERICA

Buenos Aires, July 18—(By the A. P.)—"While all South Americans are proud of Firpo, not all will pay big prices to see him fight. Quite a lot would be content to read about it afterward," says The Herald, English language newspaper, in an editorial today declaring the proposed Firpo-Dempsey bout in Buenos Aires would not be a financial success.

Declaring that the estimated gate receipts in excess of $2,500,000 are too large to be attained, the newspaper adds: "Rickard had better forget Argentina, once for all it is no place to stage a world's championship, because there is not enough population." The Herald thinks few Brazilians would make the ocean voyage to see the fight and few Chileans would attempt the expensive trans-Andean trip.

The Standard, which is also printed in English, says it is too much to expect the reportedly required gate of $800,000 from Argentina's population of 5,000,000 people.

TOOLE GIVEN POWER TO INVESTIGATE CHARGE

Rochester, N. Y., July 18—President John Conway Toole was given full power to investigate any syndicate charges at a meeting of the International league club owners here today. The action taken by the league directors is the outgrowth of two years of bickering in which charges were flung back and forth about the alleged syndicate agreement between the Baltimore and Newark clubs.

President Toole also was commended by the club owners on his stand in the umpires' controversy which started on Monday with the discharge of Umpire William Phyle.

It was stated today that Umpires Magerkurth and Deer who have officiated at the Syracuse-Baltimore series, had withdrawn their resignations which were sent to President Toole.

FEDERAL OFFICIALS TO INVESTIGATE FIGHT PICTURES

Chicago, July 18—Rumors that pictures of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight will be shown for the first time at the society gathering of the Grand Bal De Lumiere at Onwentsia Country club, Lake Forest, Saturday night, reached the ears of Federal officials here today.

This report will be investigated, District Attorney Edwin Olson said, and maximum fines and imprisonments will be asked if federal laws are violated.

Alexander G. Jamie, in charge of the bureau of investigation, said no action will be taken to prevent the showing of the pictures.

Mrs. Charles Edward Brown, head of the committee on arrangements, denied any federal law would be violated but said she had a surprise "in connection with pictures of the fight, too."

BROWN'S BLANK ATHLETICS ALTHOUGH OUT-HIT

St. Louis, July 18—Although out-hit nearly 2 to 1, St. Louis shutout Philadelphia 2 to 0, today. Shocker, who allowed nine hits, was victorious in a pitching duel with Heimach, who permitted only five safeties. McManus accounted for both of the Browns' runs, crashing out a home run in the fourth inning and sending Gerber home in the eighth with a sacrifice hit, after Gerber had doubled and advanced to third base on an out. It was St. Louis sixth straight victory and Shocker's fifteenth victory of the season. The score:

CHARLEY WHITE WINS TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT OVER RICHIE MITCHELL

New York, July 18—Charley White, Chicago lightweight contender, stopped Richie Mitchell, blonde Milwaukee boxer, tonight in a brief but slashing battle before a crowd of more than 10,000 in the New York velodrome. White scored a technical knockout in the fourth round when Richie's seconds tossed in a sponge as their man went down for the second time in the round from a battering attack to the jaw.

Richie's handlers underwent a change of heart after their action and sought to have the fight continue but boxing commission officials at the ringside ruled otherwise and ordered the bout ended. The finish came only twelve seconds before the end of the round.

White's heavier punching had its effect on Mitchell from the start, but Richie, fighting gamely and aggressively, flashed occasional spurts that had his opponent on the defensive.

Mitchell staggered White in the second round with two smashing rights to the jaw, after he had been nearly floored by one of the Chicagoan's left hooks. Both emerged from the fray bleeding.

Richie rallied again in the third when on the verge of a knockout but he was unable to follow up his advantage.

EXCEEDING THE QUOTA.

Just as long as the monthly quota method of admitting immigrants is followed there are excellent chances that there will be long lists of persons to be sent back whence they came. It is not the fact that there is a monthly quota that bothers so much as it is that there is no cooperation between the various agencies concerned with the immigrants that it may be known before they sail whether there is a balance for getting into the country.

Through the number of passports issued or through information obtained from the immigration bureau of this country it should be possible to get an idea of about how many from a certain country could be accommodated and how many of the quota had been accepted.

The situation is accentuated by the arrival in this country of hundreds of British subjects who cannot be accepted under the July quota. What served to complicate the situation at this time was the fact that a considerable number of British subjects who had been in Canada had come into this country filling up the quota, and the steamship companies continued to bring others without ascertaining what chance they had of getting in.

Commissioner Curran who has just taken office at New York believes that the steamship companies should learn the situation before setting out with more than could possibly be admitted and he likewise opposes the idea of sending one individual back across the ocean just because no more from his country can be admitted for a matter of two weeks, and especially when it means breaking up a family.

As the situation now stands the many immigrants in excess of the quota face deportation unless some exception can be made to have them admitted under the August quota. Such a plan could not be sanctioned every month for it would only lead to confusion and would offset the idea of distributing the immigration throughout the year. Relieving hardships and unjust conditions cannot be ignored entirely.

A PROPER REBUKE.

Having been decided by the United Mine Workers organization that the strike of the coal miners in Nova Scotia was unjustified and having failed to have that decision respected to the extent of calling off the strike, there is much to be commended in the action of President Lewis in notifying the officers of that district that the charter had been revoked. Such is the penalty which the Nova Scotian miners knew in advance was applicable to their case and yet they have chosen to defy it quite the same as they have their contract with the operators.

Conditions accompanying the strike have been decidedly serious. Not only have the workers listened to radical leadership but there has been encouragement to sympathetic activities which have not stopped short of sabotage and have even threatened the lives of those who rode on railroads.

Such action could not be approved even following a strike where a real basis for striking existed, much less in instances where the strike is in violation of an agreement and where the leaders engaged therein are self pronounced revolutionists.

The Nova Scotian miners stand in the unenviable position of being guided by those who are denounced by the head of the international organization of miners. They have been told by the international officers that their strike is unjustified and they should return to work. That knocks the prop out from in under any claims which they may have made or any changes which they are urging. They have greatly deplored the fact that the military forces have been called out to prevent lawless acts and to protect life and property, but they can hardly expect that the public is going to accept a reign of terror without resistance.

It is one of those situations that results from listening to irresponsible agitators, but it is gratifying to note that the mine workers' head will not give his approval to such conduct and does not hesitate to apply the penalty when it is needed. It is a proper rebuke to a wild leader and his followers.

MUSSOLINI'S TEST.

Edicts amount to nothing unless they are enforced. The mere enactment of a law or issuance of an order does not mean that everyone is going to comply therewith unless it is demonstrated when occasion arises that there is a determination and an ability to enforce it.

That is the situation that confronts Premier Mussolini of Italy. He is convinced that gambling is wrong and at it should be stopped. The order is gone forth that after August first games will be permitted which savor either openly or hiddenly of gambling in Italy has an extensive field. There are even government lotteries in addition to those which others run besides the many gambling games. According to the order all must go. It is a radical change that will arouse some opposition. Personal liberty may be brought to the front in that country shaped like a bootleg. Defiance of the order will unquestionably be attempted. Probably Mussolini expects it. Just what course he intends to pursue in seeing that the order is respected is not revealed. Perhaps it is time enough to know when the test comes.

It is sufficient to say, however, that he has demonstrated that he is a wielder of much power in Italy and he cannot be unaware of the fact that the respect for the order is going to depend to a large degree upon the kind of enforcement it gets. Let it be weak and it will not amount to the paper on which it is written. Let it be rigid and there will be either respect or resentment and probably both with the outcome resting upon the strength which Mussolini can display after he begins to put strict enforcement into operation.

Suppressing gambling is not an easy task. Much of it is done outside of Italy. When Mussolini sets out to end it, highly commendable as his object may be, it is going to be a supreme test of his power if real enforcement is actually accomplished. For a new reason other countries will watch Mussolini.

FIGHTING IN A GOOD CAUSE.

For thirteen years the National Association for the Advancement of the Colored People has been making reports relative to conditions in this country concerning lynching and mob rule. In its latest report just issued attention is directed to the fact that "ten years ago in the south only a few solitary individuals dared oppose lynching, and this crime was commonly condoned by influential newspapers, public officials and ministers of the gospel." Now there is an increasingly strong opposition to mob murder.

The association has been working in an excellent cause. It has seen the lynching record increase and decrease, but throughout the period of its existence it has had the satisfaction of knowing that the opposition to such lawlessness was growing. Even in the south sentiment is changing. There are still too many instances where lynch law prevails and where the rights of American citizenship are denied, but to that organization as well as to others interested in the ending of such disrespect for law satisfaction is gained in the arousal of greater public opposition.

That the association should share in the credit of the accomplishments in anti-lynching activities is proper. It belongs to it. It is a force that is doing much in the way of publicity and otherwise to enlighten the people upon this subject and bring about reform in those states where lynching and peonage are tolerated.

DODGING THE LICENSE.

When it is admitted by the registrar of motor vehicles of Massachusetts that there are probably 30,000 auto operators in that state without a license, and the chief of police of Boston does not hesitate to say that the number may run as high as 30,000, it indicates a serious situation.

How many, for instance, are there in Connecticut who are running autos without a license? Only recently an opinion of the attorney general has been asked concerning the law permitting persons to drive cars when accompanied by licensed drivers. This is the section that provides for the preliminary training of those seeking licenses. But it is prompted by the fact that many cases have been discovered where licenses are not taken out because of that provision and because licensed drivers do accompany them.

In connection with the effort to create greater safety and reduce the number of accidents every state may well be concerned over the operators without licenses. Massachusetts finds that in many of the accident cases the driver has no license and never had one. This means an evasion of the law and a serious handicap to the efforts for safer highways for if they are defiant of the law regarding operators' licenses they can be expected to disregard the rights of others and drive in a manner that means trouble sooner or later.

Undoubtedly much depends upon the manner in which such cases are dealt with after they are disclosed, as to whether others are inspired to take out licenses are to dodge them. Those who leave them at home are not to be included in the class of dangerous drivers, but those who deliberately evade the law constitute a menace that deserves elimination.

HOPELESS GUEST

"There's a good story in the Bazook Monthly Magazine," announced the young man who was inclined to be literary. "You ought to read it. It is by Aristook B. Catskill, than whom none is better!"

"I don't believe it!" scoffed the permanently embittered man, shaking his head. "You can't force me to believe it's a good story! There never is a good story. There may be the germ of a good story surging about in the brain of a magazine writer, but by the time he has put on its bit and bridle and blindfolded it and given it a dose of soothing syrup and bit it on the head with a brick preparatory to letting it loose in public it sort of falls flat, like a cake when the cook has absent-mindedly left the baking powder out.

"I have no doubt that when your Aristook B. Catskill sits down before his typewriter he communes with himself after this fashion: 'Of course, this story should end logically in a tremendous disaster the wretched heroine falling over the precipice to her death and the villain being smothered in the hangar of his airplane. But the editor of the Teaspoon Magazine has a fad for happy endings. So I'll have to leave the heroine sitting before the fireside surrounded by her eight children, while the villain repents in tears and gets a job at a ribbon counter! Well, it completely ruins the point of the story and doesn't make sense, but I've got to pay my grocery bill!'

"And then you take Petunia V. Hollyhock, who is a sweet young thing with a remarkable talent for doing tales of detective enterprises. She has a flair for mystery, but what does the editor of the Universe magazine do after he has talked with her? 'My dear Miss Petunia,' he says, shaking his head kindly as he massacres a page of conversation with a blue pencil, 'one so young as you should not daily with crimes and the underworld. I have a nice column on tatting and new designs in crochet that needs an editor and I am sure you are exactly the person for it.' And she takes it.

"All mystery stories begin well and then the feeble writers get tangled up in their own coils and can't think of a darned way to get out and so make them finish in two hopeless jumps.

"In the middle of chapter three I know perfectly well that the sinister-looking, dissipated, penniless Sylvester Squeak, who had every reason on earth for murdering his cranky old uncle in order to get his property and to whom all signs point, is as innocent as a newborn lamb, and that in the last chapter the crime will be fastened onto the little druggist around the corner who has never been mentioned except the one time when the butler went there to ask if he could use the telephone. 'There!' the triumphant author says, slamming the cover of his red-hot typewriter. 'Never thought for a minute the druggist did it, did you? I didn't know it myself until the last chapter, when I had to tack the crime onto somebody. Guess how I did it. I named three straws, one for the druggist, one for the newsboy, who wasn't mentioned at all, and the last for the grandmother who had been confined in an insane asylum for thirty years and whom you never heard of. I drew the druggist.

"Sometimes I begin a right nice story in a magazine and just as I settle down to it I find that the beautiful young wife, simply a quiver with delicate sensibilities and ideals and poetry, is totally misunderstood by her brutal, businesslike husband, and just then a kind, handsome, fearless, out-of-door man, who understands birds and flowers, and women is seen approaching through the fields. I don't bother to read any more, because I am so certain what is going to happen.

"'No,' the hitherto misunderstood young wife will be saying in the last paragraph, gazing into the anguished countenance of the fearless out-of-door man, 'it is hopeless, Jim! I did think I should run away with you but it is me husband that I love from the depths of me heart! always me husband! Be brave, Jim—and goodby! Yes, you may kiss me once, for the first and last time! Good-by, Jim!'

"And her hitherto brutal husband, who has been lingering in the shrubbery, with his sleeves rolled up and a club in one fist bursts into tears and sobs. 'Lillian! I am not worthy of her great love!'

"I tell you I have had so many bitter blows hunting for a good story that I am very suspicious of this gem by Aristook B. Catskill you are so enthusiastic about. Is it really worth reading?"

"Aw," grumbled the literary young man, shutting up his magazine firmly, "I guess maybe you wouldn't care for it. I'm not so sure now myself that it's as good as I thought it was, darn you!"—Chicago News.

Wives of Famous Men

Elizabeth Porter, Wife of Dr. Samuel Johnson

A more grotesque and ridiculous figure has never been found in the history of literature than that of Elizabeth Porter Johnson, wife of Dr. Samuel Johnson, eminent writer of the eighteenth century. Himself a huge, ugly and ungainly fellow, Johnson met and fell in love with the Widow Porter at a time when he could barely support himself, much less a wife. Twice as old as the writer, coarse, fat and outrageously painted, this woman, whose sons were as old as her husband, caught the fancy of Johnson and held it until the day of her death, and beyond.

Mrs. Johnson, costuming herself in loud, gaudy clothes, and exhibiting provincial manners which she fondly believed were patterned after the graces of the fine ladies of London, succeeded in charming the emotional and not the very discerning Johnson to a ludicrous degree. His "pretty creature," as he fatuously called her, was to him the most beautiful, graceful and accomplished of her sex. In spite of occasional differences, they lived together happily until her death at the age of 64.

Shortly after the marriage of the Johnsons they took a school in the neighborhood of Lichfield, his birthplace. But this tawdry, painted grandmother, whose household accomplishments were on a par with her beauty, was not a person to inspire confidence in mothers of small boys, and the school was a failure. David Garrick was one of the few pupils, and later, when he became famous as an actor, used to convulse fashionable London with accounts of Mrs. Johnson and her grotesqueries and her enchantment of the worthy doctor.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Common Sense in Old Practices.

False pride plays an important part in creating economic waste. This does not apply entirely to waste in material resources, but includes what is perhaps of even more serious consequence, industrial loss through dislocation of labor.

It is unfortunate that any false pride should exist with regard to the dignity and honor of being engaged in manual pursuits or that any young man should choose as his life's work a line of endeavor for which he is ill-fitted, simply because of illusions regarding the status of those who work with their hands.

We need more and more of a general understanding in this country that the young man who takes up an honorable trade has by no means lowered himself in what should be his rightful standing in society, nor has he taken a step that means the sacrifice of ambition for great personal success. Many of our most successful men were originally farm hands or factory boys.

There is, at the present time, a heavy shortage in many of the trades. This is particularly true in the building craft, and much of the rapid increase in the cost of building construction in the past few years has been due to this shortage of labor. On the other hand, many other vocations have been greatly overcrowded.

It is well to be progressive, but there is much sound common sense in some of the so-called old-fashioned customs and practices.

It is not merely an idle platitude to speak of the dignity of labor. The skilled artisan who is willing to give an honest day's work for an honest day's pay holds second place to no one in the scheme of human progress. It is not what a man does for a living but how he does it.

Let us get back to some of the ideals of our forefathers with regard to the rightful place of physical labor. Let those of younger generations who are today choosing their life's work understand that there are opportunities of worthy and creditable employment under advantageous conditions in many of the trades today, and that in going into these positions they will be sacrificing nothing in the estimation of sensible people.

False pride in these matters has cost many a young man a successful and useful career.—American Society for Thrift.

Evidently She Wasn't.

A New York woman has been convicted of murder in the first degree, but she may not have been young and pretty.—Pittsburgh Gazette-Times.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Our City Water.

Mr. Editor: Within a few days a Connecticut man who had just made the tour of the United States was in Norwich. He travelled to the Pacific by a route through the southern states and returned through Canada. After drinking a glass of water from the Norwich reservoir he said, "I have just travelled ten thousand miles and nowhere on the journey did I find water as vile as this. It is just plain dirty." His opinion tallies with that of every person whom I have heard refer to our drinking water this summer. The white way will improve Norwich. An endowment for the Backus hospital will be a great thing, but nothing could ad so much to the happiness and welfare of every resident of our city as good water—water of which one can partake without loathing and disgust.

AN UNWILLING PARTAKER.

Norwich, July 18, 1923.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Henry W. Keyes, who has definitely announced his intention to be a candidate for re-election to the United States senate next year, is now completing his first term as one of the representatives of New Hampshire in the upper house. When Senator Keyes presented his credentials at Washington, signed by himself as governor of New Hampshire, four years ago last March, the curious thumbed their biographical volumes to find out something about the new republican senator from the Granite State, but their reference books did not help them much. Senator Keyes was never much on publicity and it was not known to his party leaders except in a general way that he was a wealthy farmer, railroad president and director of big corporations, and that he had been the "war governor" of his state. Senator Keyes is a Harvard man and while at college was famous for his athletic prowess. In early life he was a democrat and he began his public career as a representative of that party in the New Hampshire legislature.

HARVEST.

Sweet, sweet, sweet,
Is the wind's song,
Astir in the rippled wheat
All day long.
It hath the brook's wild gayety,
The sorrowful cry of the sea.
Oh, hush and hear!
Sweet, sweet and clear,
And hum of bee
Rises that soft, pathetic harmony,

In the meadow grass
The innocent white daisies blow,
The dandelion plume doth pass
Vaguely to and fro—
The unquiet spirit of a flower
That hath too brief an hour.

Now doth a little cloud all white,
Or golden bright,
Drift down the warm, blue sky;
And now on the horizon line,
Where dusky woodlands lie,
A sunny mist doth shine,
Like to a veil before a holy shrine
Concealing, half-revealing
Things Divine.

Sweet, sweet, sweet,
Is the wind's song,
Astir in the rippled wheat
All day long.
That exquisite music calls
The reaper everywhere—
Life and death must share,
The golden harvest falls.

So doth all end—
Honored Philosophy,
Science and Art,
The bloom of the heart;
Master, Consoler, Friend,
Make Thou the harvest of our days
To fall within Thy ways.
—Ellen Mackay Hutchinson Cortissoz in Indianapolis News.

GOING DOWN IN SHIPS.

Going down to sea in ships
Is a glorious thing,
Where up and over the rolling waves
The sea birds wing;

Oh, there's nothing more to my heart's desire
Than a ship that plows
Headon down through marching seas,
With streaming bows;

Would you hear the song of the viewless winds
As they walk the sky?
Come down to sea when the storm is on
And the men stand by.

Would you see the sun as it walked abroad
On God's first day?
Then come where dawn makes sea and sky
A gold causeway.

Oh, it's bend the sails on the crisp-cross yards
For the day dies far
And up a windless space of dusk
Climbs the even star. . . . .

Now there's gulf on foaming gulf of stars
That lean so clear
That it seems the bastions of heaven
Are bright and near.

And that, any moment, the topmost sky
May froth and swim
With an incredible orgeuse
Of seraphim. . . . .

O wide flung dawn, O mighty day
And set of sun!
O all you climbing stars of God,
O, lead me on. . . . .
—Harry Kemp, in McClure's.

TELLS NORWICH ROTARIANS WHAT PLAYGROUNDS WILL DO FOR CITY

The Playgrounds, their aim and necessity, was the topic of a very interesting talk by H. A. Bruce, supervisor of the local playgrounds, at the noonday luncheon of the Norwich Rotary club on Wednesday at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. Bruce, who has had a wide experience in the pioneer work of the playgrounds told in his talk of the extreme necessity of having proper places for the children to go for recreation under capable supervision and instruction. He also spoke of the objectors, chronic objectors who oppose any good thing, saying that many of them grow grass and shrubbery but not children. The America of tomorrow is to be made up of the children of today and these children must be well qualified for their duties as citizens. Recreation under proper supervision and at the same time a proper molding of the child's character along citizenship lines is one of the many aims of the playgrounds. He also said that everyone should back the playground movement and places should be bought by the city for playgrounds and recreation field. He spoke of how many towns have and were installing recreation places.

Address by Playgrounds Supervisor.

Mr. Bruce spoke as follows:

Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen Rotarians of Norwich: It has given me much pleasure to come here today as your guest, and a still greater pleasure to carry to you a few words concerning the heroic efforts of the recreation commission of Norwich who are making every effort to institute on the public play centers an educational recreational program for the youth of this city.

The prevailing idea regarding playgrounds is that they are important only in keeping the children from playing in the streets or getting into mischief. The idea that even in play the child must be directed is not always thoroughly understood by the layman and it becomes the duty of the teacher of play to spread broadcast the right ideals of play evolution and playground work.

The organized playground has an educational as well as a recreative value and it can be made to give excellent results when properly organized and conducted. On the other hand, without supervision or organized instruction along educational lines discipline is destroyed and chaos results.

In the early stages or infancy of the playgrounds idea, the arguments in favor of it most frequently heard were those of the health and fresh air benefits to children in congested localities and while the playground has been found to be of the greatest hygienic value, it has also been observed that the same social and educational problems, as well as the same opportunities exist there, as in any other center where human beings congregate.

It is not enough to furnish a playground in the hope of attracting children from 3 to 16 years old merely advertising to the children the erection of apparatus, as thoughtful men advocated in the beginning. There was a time when it was considered sufficient to have only adequate policing to represent authority. Later our educators advocated supervision and leadership and still later athletic coaches were employed in the development of games, sports and athletics. Still later directors of physical education were secured and we now have a faculty consisting of athletic instructors, industrial teachers, storytellers, dancing teachers and practical gymnasts. And the playground department or recreation commission is now an institution representing the cultivation of sociay, physical and mental recreation.

Now most of you are interested in the playground movement, and all of you are interested in what that movement means for Norwich. Our playground commission headed by Mayor Waters and Chairman Fitzgerald is making a strenuous effort to place the municipal recreation department on a recreational educational basis, and with this idea in view I have come to Norwich to help organize this department. Much pioneer work has been done for the playground movement here, in the past, and the time has now come when the fruits of the efforts of private individuals shows itself in the official recognition by the city of this work.

Our playground apparatus consists of some stationary apparatus such as baby swings, ring standards, jumping standards, horizontal bars, swing ropes toboggan slides, cross bars, spring bars, vaulting boxes, teeter boards, flying rings, and the portable apparatus consisting of boxing gloves, industrial outfits, archery and baseball outfits, basketballs, and track and field implements. Our play centers are situated in congested localities, seven in number. Four of our playgrounds are supervised by one woman instructor at each center. Three of our playground centers can boast of two instructors at each center making a department for boys as well as girls.

The system introduced is aimed to promote healthful outdoor educational recreation which is made up of recreative play, physical education, mass games, athletics, kindergarten and industrial work and folk dancing. Woodcraft and nature study will be introduced on the hikes and picnics.

A method of classification has been instituted which divides the children into groups or sections according to their ages and a daily program has been introduced for the entire season. This order of events or program will systematize the work, dividing the hours into different play periods and emphasizing the educational aspect for the broadening of the mind as well as the body.

The daily program is carried out from 1 to 5 and 6.30 to 8.30 p. m. except Saturdays and Sundays.

The activities starting at 1 o'clock begin with the assembly which brings both boys and girls together. They are lined up in military order saluting the flag repeating the oath of allegiance. Following comes the singing of a patriotic song, either The Star Spangled Banner, or America.

A mass exercise drill follows, the Swedish system being used as it requires no apparatus and can be given to a large number of children at one time. These exercises consist of a daily progression which is based on scientific principles and founded on the physiology and chemistry of the body. At 3 p. m. the basketball and baseball throwing games for accuracy and baseball throwing for distance are played and team scores rather than individual performance are encouraged.

At 2.30 p. m. the scheduled baseball games are played. Track and field or dual athletic meets are also conducted at this time. No boy is permitted to enter three events and all scoring is made on the team total basis, credit being given for all around work in each event. At 3.30 p. m. the mass games are played and these games permit large numbers of children to participate. Physical accomplishments such as wrestling, pyramid work, boxing and wand drill are required during this period.

Inter-playground competition for both boys and girls is scheduled for Tuesdays and Thursdays and leagues are made up in each branch of major sport.

The daily program for the girls' department is passive work from 1 to 2 p. m. and group games from 2 to 2.45 p. m., track and field coaching and participation, from 2.45 to 3.15 p. m. folk dancing, from 3.15 to 4.00 p. m. and field hockey from 4 to 4.30 p. m., with archery and mass physical drills making up the last hour of the program.

Our play system offers not only a program for the development of mind and body but advocates a training that will give the child a chance to express his imagination and dramatic impulse through story-telling, dramatic games, dramatization of stories and presentation of plays that the children have written themselves.

The creative instinct in the children will be experienced in the forms of hand-craft and a period each day is planned for this type of activity, sewing, garment making, knitting, crocheting, embroidery, or basketry for the girls, cutting, pasting, painting, drawing or construction of simple models, kit making, toy making and chair caning for the boys.

A national impulse that the child needs to express which cannot be overlooked is the natural curiosity to find out. Trips to points of interest the study of the birds, woods, flowers and trees, and among the older children nature study clubs, the visits to local factories, are all planned as a part of our playground system.

At the conclusion of his talk Mr. Bruce was given a rising vote of appreciation and President Charles A. Saxton expressed the sentiment of the club when he said that every member of the club would back the playground movement as one that is of great benefit to the children.

Going to Storrs Field Day.

At the business session President Charles A. Saxton presided and Joseph Christopher Worth was the energetic song leader. Thirty-three tickets for the field day at Storrs today (Thursday) were taken and the Norwich club will be well represented at the outing of the Eastern Connecticut Rotary clubs. The local members will leave Norwich about 10 o'clock.

Secretary Weymouth read two communications, one from the New Haven club regarding the postponement of the golf tournament, and the other from the Rutland, Vt., club asking that Norwich be represented in the golf tournament at the fall conclave. Senator William G. Park was appointed chairman to make arrangements for the participation of the Norwich team at Rutland.

The song leaders for the month of August were announced as follows: E. A. Harris, LaRue Bliven, P. W. Wheeler, Howard Baker and Lew Carpenter. A pleasing program has been planned by Russell A. Clapp for the coming month. Joseph C. Worth was appointed editor of the monthly publication of the local club for next month.

Next week's meeting will be held at William H. Oat's Ludlow Farm in North Stonington and the entire membership of the club is planning to make a real day's outing at the farm.

$500 IN COMPENSATION FOR DEATH OF CHARLES BOLLES

Compensation Commissioner J. J. Donohue has approved a compensation agreement between Charles Bolles of New London and the Robert Gair Co. of Montville for $600 for the death of the former's son, Paul H. Bolles, who was killed in an accident at the Gair plant on May 28 last.

The agreement was the result of a hearing held several days ago on an application of Mr. Bolles for compensation on the grounds of partial dependency, claiming that his son contributed to his support. After the hearing Attorney Thomas E. Troland, representing the petitioner and counsel for the respondent, agreed upon a lump sum.

Paul H. Bolles met his death when a traveling crane on which he was riding fell to the floor at the plant and he suffered injuries to the skull which proved fatal.

WEDDING.

Phelps—Colclough.

A marriage of interest to Lynn, Mass., and Norwich people took place last Saturday evening at 6.30 o'clock in Lynn, at the Church of the Holy Name, when Miss Eveleen L. Colclough, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armine Colclough of 1 Eureka avenue, and Ernest L. Phelps of Norwich, were united in marriage by Rev. Edward S. Tillotson, rector of the church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white canton crepe covered with silver lace draped in points. Her veil was of tulle, caught with lilies of the valley, and she carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor was her sister, Miss Rosella E. Colclough, who was gowned in lavendar canton crepe, with hat to match. She carried pink roses. The groom was attended by Charles Duran of Roxbury as best man.

Following the ceremony a reception was tendered to many relatives and friends at the home of the bride. In the receiving line with the bridal party were the parents of the bride, the mother and brother of the bridegroom. Mrs. Colclough wore ivory satin trimmed with silver lace and Mrs. Phelps wore purple satin draped with black silk lace.

The gift room was in charge of Mrs. Nance C. Gates and Miss Madelene Colclough, a cousin of the bride, had charge of the dining room assisted by Mrs. Anna Murray, Miss Ruth Cross and Miss Bernice Colclough, sister of the bride. All wore charming frocks of pink, blue and nile green.

The gift of the groom to his bride was a string of pearls. The bride presented her attendant with an amethyst finger ring and the bridegroom gave the best man gold cuff links.

Y. M. C. A. BIBLE STUDY ON STORY OF JACOB

Wednesday evening the usual interesting Bible study hour at the Y. M. C. A. was enjoyed by a good group of young men. The scriptures used was from the 8th chapter of Genesis, the story of Jacob running away from home. Having cheated his brother out of his birthright, he fled for fear of bodily harm.

Among other things, the following were brought out in the discussion which the men present entered into heartily. Though Esau should have valued his birthright more than he did, Jacob was most to blame because he took undue advantage of the hunger of his brother.

Jacob's parents had their favorites. The father probably favored Esau and the mother favored Jacob. Favoritism in the home is a serious mistake. Jacob found himself at the end of the first runaway day lonely and tired and probably conscience troubled, and in the open he laid down to sleep with a stone for a pillow. What a contrast to the comforts he had left at home, and all because of sin. The lonely boy away from home is in a perilous position, more especially the boy alone in the city; many go wrong because they are lonely away from home. The dream Jacob had was the way God took to speak to him, and even in these days God speaks to us in various ways, but the trouble is we fail to listen to his communications to us. The promise God made to Jacob that in him and his seed all the nations would be blessed was a wonderful promise. In a certain sense every life has an influence over all the world. We little think of the influence we have; we have a negative influence and also a positive influence, and oftimes our influence is unconscious. We should therefore be very sure that our influence is of the right sort. It was suggested that the price of success in religion as well as in business is sacrifice and perseverence, and the reason why so few reach the highest success is simply so few are willing to pay the price of success Jacob's response to the great promise of God to him was the erection of an altar and a vow to serve him faithfully. He could have done nothing less, though he soon broke the vow he had made to God. So we oftimes make promises to God and when the crisis comes we fail to remain true to the promise. Inasmuch as Jesus Christ has done for us what he has, our attitude to Him should be love and loyalty at any cost.

Next Wednesday the closing session of the class for the season will be held.

NO MONEY FOR COW SHED AT MYSTIC ORAL SCHOOL

Although federal and state inspectors have found ten cows at the Mystic Oral School for the Deaf to be tubercular and federal agents have pronounced the cows infected with it almost impossible to get rid of the germ, the state board of control at its last meeting did not authorize school officials to build a new shed as there is no appropriation for such a building.

Dr. Louis M. Allyn of Mystic, the chairman of the trustees, and Superintendent Walter J. Tucker of the school, appeared before the board of control in Hartford to explain that they did not wish to put a new herd into the infected shed. The shed is old and the mangers are of wood, they said, which makes it difficult to rid the building of tubercular germs. A new shed, it is estimated, would cost about $3,000.

The ten cows, which supplied the school with milk, have been slaughtered. In the meantime the school has to buy its milk and the trustees are in a quandary where to put the new herd when one is bought.

The question has also arisen, said school authorities Wednesday night, whether the barn which does not get good light might have been the cause of the cows becoming tubercular, as they were adjudged free from the germ when they were received from Vermont as an accredited herd in October, 1921.

It is possible, according to the statement of one of the school trustees, that the board of control will take some action in the matter at its meeting next week.

Charles L. Bramble, one of Niantic's well known residents died Tuesday evening at his home. He was 71 years of age and was employed at the Babcock Printing Press Co., of New London.

Edwin P. Pratt.

After having been in poor health for some time, the death of Edwin P. Pratt occurred Wednesday morning at the Soldiers' home at Noroton. Mr. Pratt had not been well for some time and had been treating with local doctors, but on last Saturday was taken to the Soldiers' home for treatment, and suddenly became worse.

He was born in Woodstock, Vt., about 53 years ago and spent his boyhood days in that state and in New Hampshire. When the Civil war broke out he enlisted with the New Hampshire cavalry regiment and served for four years. After the war he made his home in Norwich and for years has been a member of Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R., and was only recently senior vice commander of the post.

He was married twice and leaves his wife and other relatives. The body is to be brought to Norwich for burial.

STOLEN CLOTH FOUND AT BLEACHERY WORKER'S HOME

Another case of theft of cloth from the United States Finishing company by one of its employes was uncovered Wednesday morning when 206 yards of cloth, valued at $9.50, were found by officers at the home of Aleck Zalowski, 49, of 79 Firth street, a machinists' helper. The man has been in the employ of the company for about five years.

Capt. John P. Nowell of Boston, a special detective, with Raymond E. Sherman of the Finishing company and Officer Charles Smith of the local police force, searched the man's home about 2 o'clock Wednesday morning, finding most of the cloth in a trunk. Some of it had come from the mill not more than ten days ago and some ran back as far as two years.

The man's wife fought the officers like a tiger when they tried to get at the trunk, yelling like a wild woman all the time they were in the house. Zalowski was not at home, but the uproar that his wife made roused the neighborhood and sent someone to the mill to tell him there was trouble at his home, and he left his work to see what was the matter. When he arrived he was arrested and brought to police headquarters, where he gave bail for his appearance in court this (Thursday) morning.

Captain Nowell, who secured the help of the local police in making the search and arrest, is in the employ of the Mercantile Protective Service, organized and protected by the Walsh Detective Agency, Inc., of Boston, which is doing much to detect cases of theft from mills by employes all over New England.

Why you should take organic iron to enrich your blood instead of metallic iron—how to tell the difference.

While iron is absolutely necessary to your life and health, always remember that your blood contains organic iron and not metallic iron which people usually take; therefore when you take iron always take organic iron like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. Metallic iron is iron just as it comes from the action of strong acids on small pieces of iron and is an entirely different thing from organic iron. Organic iron may be had from your druggist under the name of Nuxated Iron.

Over 4,000,000 people annually are using Nuxated Iron. It will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach. A few doses will often commence to enrich your blood, help revitalize your worn-out exhausted nerves and give you new strength and energy. It costs about eighteen times as much to make organic iron, like Nuxated Iron, as it does to make metallic iron, though it costs you but little more. Always insist on having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. If you are not feeling quite up to the mark, telephone for a package today. In tablet form only; look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturers if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. At all druggists.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Business seemed to be materially improved on the trolley line between Danielson and Putnam Wednesday—at least on some trips. Possibly mention in the Putnam news Wednesday morning of the interesting summer sights to be seen along the line had something to do with it. At least The Bulletin hopes so.

If this be true, it would appear that a way is pointed to increase the trolley riding by leaps and bounds in this territory. If one doe and her fawn seen along the road—I way could boost the business even a little bit, why not a distribution of zoological specimens all along the route between Central Village and North Grosvenordale.

A tiger or two between Wauregan and Central Village, a few buffalo on the plains between Wauregan and the Lyle farm, some flying fish where the road skirts the Quinebaug river between the power station and Danielson, a couple and zebra on the line north of the borough, a zebu or two in the fields along the flats at Dayville, a flock of ostriches and ponikos near Wildwood park, and elephants and llamas and giraffes scattered along the road right through the North Grosvenordale? Of course, this program could be expanded in any degree.

The investment for animals need not necessarily be heavy. Slightly used or somewhat corroded animals would do. The main idea is to set up the picture. The upkeep of the zoo would be negligible, as witness everyone knows of the country horseboats now and not working too hard, either. Possibly the republican county committee could help cut down the initial investment through the loan of its elephant. And then an interview might be arranged with the democratic party for the loan of a flock of its favorite quadrupeds. It really looks like a great chance.

Trolley riding once had a wonderful vogue hereabouts. Nowadays it is more pleasurable than in the past. The cars are older, roomy and comfortable and fanned by cooling breezes. A revival as possible and would bring delight to thousands. It may be a far-fetched theory, but there are those who profoundly believe, considering the week's experiences, that development of the zoo plan would turn the trick and bring a rush of business for the conductors and accommodating car crews to handle. There are many bits of evidence pointing to the facts that inmates of all the towns' hereabouts would welcome such an innovation.

Unless the Connecticut company has used up all its available surplus in handing over that 1,500,000 check to the state treasurer this week, it might spend a little money on the zoo plan and watch the dividends grow.

There is a possibility that a special town meeting may be called to allow the voters to pass upon the matter of accepting money the state makes available for building what are termed state aid roads. In all the years since such money has been obtainable from the state, Killingly has never failed to vote in favor of being in on the fund. These occasions have come biennially and another is now at hand and must be improved on or before October 1, if there is any desire to do so.

Two years ago, Killingly voted in favor of taking 20,000 of such state funds and actually obtained more than $18,000. When this money is used for road building the state pays three-quarters of the cost of any project and the town the other quarter. It was under such an arrangement that the cut-off over which so much tragic now moves between Danielson Four Corners and Attawaugan, past the town farm, was built last year.

It has been suggested that if Killingly again votes favorably upon participating in the state fund that the appropriation could be used to very good advantage in building an improved highway into East Killingly from the Valley district. East Killingly has important manufacturing and other industrial interests and the approach over the main route to the place is not what it should be at the present time compared to main arteries of travel in other sections of the town.

While it might be possible to have the appropriation matter considered as late as the annual town meeting which comes this year on Monday, October 1, there is a feeling that there always is so much to be considered and said at the annual meeting that the appropriations might not get the attention it deserves, so in all probability it will be presented to the voters at a special town meeting.

Reports showing success eclipsing any other year in the history of the bank were submitted by Treasurer Sidney W. Bard at the 51st annual meeting of the corporators of the Brooklyn Savings bank, Wednesday afternoon.

The report of Treasurer Bard showed among other things that the deposits now total $4,027,442, a new high record figure, this being an increase of $391,625 in a year.

In earnings the bank also made new high records, the gross being $224,757. Dividends paid to depositors amounted to $147,429.47. After deducting dividends, expenses and taxes, the net profit was $32,751, the largest net amount ever earned by the bank in a single year and an increase of $7,500 over the net earnings for the previous year. Depositors now number 3,444, an increase of 399 over the number shown in the last annual report.

Treasurer Bard is receiving congratulations for the splendid showing made by the bank during the past year and Danielson is particularly proud to have such an institution, with the largest amount of savings deposits of any bank in this section of eastern Connecticut.

In the absence of the president, J. Arthur Atwood, Frederick A. Jacobs, member of the board of trustees, presided at the meeting. The officers re-elected were: President, J. Arthur Atwood; vice president, William Burnham; secretary and treasurer, Sidney W. Bard; trustees, Charles Bragg, Central Village; J. Walter Atwood, Wauregan; George H. Cad, Danielson; Fayette L. Wright, Pomfret, Dr. Geo. M. Burroughs, Frederick P. Allwood, Frederick A. Jacobs, Ernest K. Warren; Joseph N. Lavallee, Herman M. Coulter, and Irving W. Davis of Danielson; Fred W. Tillinghast, Central Village.

Road signs—large and legible ones—pointing out for motorists the routes out of Danielson to Providence and to Putnam and Webster have been made for the selectmen, and will be put in place at once. This group of signs will be put up at Reynolds and Broad streets, at Reynolds and Main and at Broad and Main—that he who rides may read and be kept from going off his route and put to the necessity of asking questions before getting headed where he wants to go. The signs can be clearly read at a distance of 600 feet.

Another deal in the series of real estate transactions involving the splitting up by Levi and Burroughs, of Boston, of the properties formerly owned here by Miss Florence M. Johnson, was put through Wednesday, when Mrs. J. H. Milligan of North Main street became owner of the Johnson residence on Main street, opposite Davis park. As Messrs. Levi and Burroughs recently disposed of the Knight section of the Johnson properties, on Main street, near the Davis block, to S. Diamond of Putnam, the Levi and Burroughs interests here now have been wholly disposed of, they having sold parcel after parcel during the past few weeks.

The Connecticut Mills will close this (Thursday) evening for the remainder of the week.

Mrs. P. F. Murray, Misses Julia Murray and Helen Cronin have been spending a few days with relatives in Westerly.

Danielson people read with interest Wednesday, in the Willimantic news in The Bulletin, of the apprehension of a pair of alleged rum runners who told of having been in Danielson to deliver a load of alcohol water. Now this is something terrible! The presumption has been general here that old John Barleycorn is dead and buried. Io, these many years and that his ghost never would return!

Possibly there is yet a market for hootch and the things it is concocted from in Danielson, but what people here would like to know is who got that load of stuff, what has been done with it and what the price is going to be on the retail market.

The story has made a host of local people uneasy and inquisitive and everything. Blame a bootlegger who will tell so much and yet so little.

PUTNAM

Judge Mahlon H. Geissler of this city, acting as counsel in association with Attorney Irving H. Myron, for Fred Mignault of West Gloucester, R. I., appealed to the superior court from a decision in which Justice Thomas Ryan, of the town of Thompson, found Mignault guilty of reckless driving and imposed a fine of $25 and costs.

Mignault's prosecution grew out of an accident that occurred in the town of Thompson last Sunday when an old Ford owned by Mignault and a large car owned by Arthur G. Olney of Thompson were in collision on a highway in the town of Thompson.

Though the accident was more or less of a minor nature it has attracted special interest because of the developments that have followed the crash. Judge Geissler pointed out in summing up the case at the hearing, throughout which he contended and claimed the evidence showed that Mignault was not guilty of reckless driving, stated that his client had submitted across the border in Rhode Island to come into Connecticut with a state police officer to be subjected to arrest and had given a bond for his appearance in court when wanted. Judge GeGeissler set up the claim that under the circumstances the bond was worthless in any event and that if his client had so desired he need not have appeared in the Thompson court, but was perfectly willing to do so because he felt in no way responsible for the accident and wished to clear himself in fullest degree.

In view of these contentions, Judge Geissler advised his client to appeal from the decision in the justice's court and take the matter before the superior court for final adjudication, which advice Mr. Mignault followed. The case probably will be heard this fall.

The annual report of Treasurer Daniel J. Byrne, of the Putnam Savings bank shows the institution in excellent condition and that deposits are nearly $3,000,000—to be exact, $2,939,477.97, and the surplus $125,000.

The bank's assets are represented by mortgage loans totaling $1,430,878, collateral loans amounting to $73,418, Canadian Province bonds in the amount of $104,625, town and city orders of $13,780, public utility bonds of $87,625, municipal bonds of $10,000, railroad bonds of $1,080,250, United States securities of $228,900, banking house $20,000, bank stock of $27,000 and cash in banks of $96,306.75, or total assets of $3,184,302.77.

At the annual election of the corporation L. E. Smith was elected as chairman of the board of trustees, Ernest B. Kent president and John F. Riordan vice president. Daniel J. Byrne was elected secretary and treasurer; trustees, John Ash, Alfred L. Bonin, Ray C. Bosworth, George E. Brosseau, Daniel J. Byrne, Henry T. Child, George T. Clark, John P. Grosvenor, Claus A. Hagstrom, Luther M. Keith, Ernest B. Kent, John F. Reardon, Samuel P. Reynolds, Melanchton Riddick, Lebbeus E. Smith.

There will be general interest in this section of Windham county in the fact that Miss Bernice R. Turner of Boston, formerly of North Woodstock, has been admitted as a member of the bar of the District of Columbia. Justices of the district supreme court held a special term meeting for the purpose of admitting Miss Turner, who has been employed in the office of the solicitor in the bureau of internal revenue. Miss Turner also is a member of the bar of Massachusetts and by reason of that fact is entitled to practice her profession in Connecticut courts.

Police here were expectantly awaiting a telegram from St. John, during Wednesday, relative to the stolen car of Guy Zito, which it is believed was in that place as late as Friday of last week. The St. John police have been asked by wire to seek out the car. If they locate it, it will be held until Mr. Zito, accompanied by a local officer can go for it. All his friends are rooting for Mr. Zito to get his car back, as the loss was a severe one for him.

At a session of the city court Wednesday morning, the case of a youth, resident in Grosvenordale, was disposed of by imposing a fine of $1 and costs, on an intoxication charge.

The County League of Women Voters has planned a concert to be given in Pomfret in the interest of the Nurses' Home fund of Day Kimball hospital.

There is general interest here in the fact that the Douglas camp meeting will open Friday and will continue its sessions until July 30. This camp annually attracts visitors from Putnam and vicinity. It is the oldest camp of its kind in the country.

At the home of Mrs. A. V. Frost the members of St. Philip's Guild are to hold a lawn party in the interest of the nurses' home fund of the hospital.

Though nearly two weeks have passed since the car was given away, no claimant has appeared for the fine touring car offered by Putnam lodge of Elks.

Stores in Putnam will close at noon today (Thursday), giving the store forces another summer half-holiday.

Though the work is far advanced, much remains to be done on interior fitting and equipment before the First National bank's new building is ready for occupancy.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Henry C. Fisk, 51, died at his home on Stafford street Tuesday night. His health has been poor for the past year and last winter he was in the Hartford hospital for several days. His condition appeared to be improved this spring, but he failed rapidly since the arrival of warm weather. He was born in Stafford, a son of Everett Y. Fisk and Louisa Bartlett Fisk. He leaves his wife, Clara Fisk, and two sons, Donald and Douglas Fisk. He is also survived by his father, E. Y. Fisk, a brother, Judge John Fisk of Rockville, and two sisters, Mrs. Edward Hunter of Hartford and Mrs. John Richardson of Norwich.

Mr. Fisk was a public spirited citizen, always interested in any movement for the betterment of the community. He was a member of the town school committee and was just completing his ninth year as a member of this committee.

Thomas L. Cummiskey, of New York has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Cummiskey in Forestville.

A sufficient number of guarantors has been secured to warrant the return of Chautauqua to Stafford Springs next summer.

Work is progressing rapidly on the addition to the First National bank building. When the work is completed the banking facilities will be greatly improved.

NEXT to shooting a game of golf, Jenks loved a good cigar. One morning he tucked a couple of choice perfectos into his shirt pocket and teed off. Going to the seventh hole Jenks found trouble and it took two husky wallops to spoon out of a hazard. Jenks reached for a cigar. Ouch! One was as wilted as a cowlick under a shower-bath and the other was smashed to bits.

Take a tip! If you want smokable cigars the whole way round, don't carry them loose. Buy your Peter Schuylers in handy pocket-fitting packs. They protect the cigars against bruising or breaking; also, they preserve the freshness and full-bodied quality of Peter Schuyler for your enjoyment.

Pregero Salvin has sold a house and lot on Colt street to Samuel Simon. The price paid was $8,000. Mr. Slavin and his wife will move soon to California.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel has suspended the operator's license of Anthony Pscitelli of No. 8 Hamilton street.

Frank Zazzoras complained to the police Wednesday that two strange men have been observed of late loitering at night in the yard of his home at No. 65 Woodbridge street and that he discovered today a quantity of gasoline had been stolen from his garage.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cruise, janitress at the municipal building, who has been confined to her home on Connecticut avenue for several weeks by illness, is now able to scout, but it will be some time before she can resume her duties.

Three drunks were tried before Judge Cornelius C. Costello in the Groton town court this morning. The trio of inebriates was John McDonough, an old offender, Robert Cheesbro and George Van Norden, all of Mystic. McDonough was fined $5 and costs, the latter amounting to $16.15, and was sentenced to 30 days in jail. The execution of the sentence was suspended but McDonough went to jail because he could not pay the fine and costs. In the case of Cheesbro a fine of $5 and costs, the latter amounting to $16.15, was imposed, and Cheesbro paid. Van Norden was fined $5 and costs, the latter amounting to $16.40, and he paid.

Louis Markow, proprietor of a shop on State street, complained to the police this morning that the supports to the awnings in front of the store had been damaged, presumably by someone swinging on them. It is believed that the damage was perpetrated by the youth who was discovered early Sunday morning by Patrolman Clarence Wells swinging on swing supports and who was placed under arrest, only to gain his liberty by fleeing through State street while being escorted to the police station.

A sailor stationed at the submarine base became a nuisance at the Capitol theatre last evening while the production of the New London Follies was in progress. Officers William Manice and James Lyman, on duty there, ejected the bluejacket and in doing so had to use rough tactics with the sailor. After taking the sailor to the sidewalk the officers were given battle, but the fight did not last long because Patrolmen Opperman and Sheehan went to the assistance of the other officers. The sailor was delivered into the custody of a provost guard who caused the disturber to be taken to the submarine base for discipline.

Mrs. Charles Smith of Brooklyn, N. Y., Mrs. Harry Haynes and infant daughter of Tilley street, Waldron MacDonald of Oswegatchie, Master Fremont Foote of Old Lyme, Mrs. Salvatore Mugovera and infant daughter of Williams street, Scarbor Bellamy, a turboat employe, and Jessie Cone of East Lyme were patients discharged today at Lawrence hospital.

The members of F. L. Allen Hook and Ladder company will enjoy an outing Sunday at the clubhouse of the organization at Richards' grove. The affair will include a feast in the afternoon and evening and athletic events during the afternoon.

Three parking ordinance violators were before the police court this morning. Philip Jacobs, a stranger, pulled his car up to the curbing on Bank street and allowed it to stay there until he was ready to move along. He said he saw signs warning against turning cars on the street but that he did not see any prohibition of parking signs. George Fink of New York, residing temporarily at Pleasure Beach, waited for some passengers to come to the car and while he waited an officer tagged his vehicle. Enrico Famiglil parked his car on State street till he was told to appear in court and then he woke up. He didn't see any signs, he said, although there were several such signs within the range of vision. "Now," said Judge Prince, "I do not want to penalize a fellow who offends unconsciously, but this promiscuous parking must stop. If others come to this court they will get the full penalty." Then he suspended judgment in the cases.

Benjamin Burrows of 92 Thames street had a close call from drowning in the Thames river this afternoon when he was forced overboard while endeavoring to crank the engine of his motor boat. He was picked up by a passing tugboat and is now under treatment at Lawrence hospital, suffering from exhaustion and shock. His condition, however, is not such that it will keep him under treatment at the institution a great while. Mr. Burrows boarded his boat during mid-afternoon and started for a run about the harbor. When at a point opposite the lumber wharf of the F. H. & A. H. Chappell company the engine stalled. Burrows attempted to remedy the defect and in spinning the flywheel the engine "kicked," causing Burrows to be thrown over the side of the boat. While floundering in the water the tug put in an appearance and members of the crew observing Burrows, ran the craft alongside the man, who was hauled aboard and taken to the municipal pier, where emergency treatment was applied, after which Burrows was taken to the hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Bronstein, formerly of New London, now residing in New York, are spending a few days in this city.

In an endeavor to put a stop to the practice of youths in soliciting the privilege of carrying baggage of passengers arriving at the union station, Special Agent Martin Kane of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, this afternoon arrested a boy about 14, who was persistent in seeking to obtain money for carrying bags. The youth was turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield.

Louis Richmann, about 18 years, residing with his mother at No. 177 North Bank street, was arrested late this afternoon by Patrolman Carlos Selesnitsky, charged with interfering with an officer. The youth was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $50 in Mayor Buyer for appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Richmann's arrest resulted when his mother and a neighbor became involved in a row, it being alleged that the two women became so demonstrative in an argument that occurred near the Richmann home that the officer went to the scene of the brawl and had to use force to keep the two women from coming to blows. In separating the women and ordering them to go to their respective homes, it is claimed that Richmann appeared on the scene and when he observed the officer take hold of his mother, the boy resented the action of the officer and interfered with him. Selesnisky, it is claimed, struck the boy a right blow on the face and then placed him under arrest. The youth tonight made threats of bringing an action against the officer as the former's eyesight is weak and he wears glasses, which he claims he was not in the time of the row. It is not believed, however, that the youth will take legal steps against the officer, and if he does, it is improbable that the action will amount to anything bordering on seriousness.

Edward A. S. Kangesur, a sailor attached to the submarine, S-29, stationed at the submarine base, was arrested late this afternoon by Detective Sergeant Charles Hammond, charged with bigamy. In default of a bond for his appearance in the police court tomorrow Kangesur was locked up. Kangesur, it is alleged, has a wife, Lillian Elliott, now an inmate at the State Farm for Women at East Lyme, and also another wife who resides outside the city and it is authoritatively stated that Kangesur has admitted having two wives. It was brought to the attention of Acting Prosecuting Frank Q. Cronin within the past few days by Mrs. Gibbs, of the State Farm for Women, that Kangesur had two wives and upon that information a warrant charging the sailor with bigamy was issued. Detective Sergeant Hammond watched the arrival of boats with sailors from the base as they entered the municipal pier and shortly after 4 o'clock when one of the boats docked Kangesur alighted and as he did so he was taken into custody.

Rear Admiral Oscar F. Stanton, U. S. N., retired, celebrated his 59th birthday today, the event being passed quietly at his home, No. 30 Granite street. During the day a number of Admiral Stanton's intimate acquaintances called upon him and extended their congratulations. He is the oldest living graduate of the United States Naval Academy. For thirty years Admiral Stanton has made his home in New London.

William D. Harris and Michael J. Enright, of the Putnam company were in Taunton, Mass., today, where they attended a convention of New England stove dealers.

Mrs. William Hunt and daughter, Miss Vera, of East Orange, N. J., and Miss Madeline Miller of New York, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Jordan at the Harkness estate, Waterford.

Miss Maude Pettigrew of Quaker Hill is spending a few days with New Haven relatives.

Miss Josephine Quinn, employed as bookkeeper by Schwaner Brothers, has returned home after visiting Mrs. James Lynch of Worcester.

Keeps Hair in Curl On Hot, Wet or Windy Days

Here's a hair curling secret that is decidedly "worth while." Just apply a little liquid silmerine before doing up the hair, using a clean tooth brush for the purpose, and you will have as beautiful curls and waves as you could wish for. The waviness will look so natural no one will guess it was artificially acquired. And it will last ever so long, regardless of heat, wind or dampness. You can obtain liquid silmerine at any drug store and a few ounces will last for months. It is neither sticky nor greasy. It serves also as a beneficial dressing, keeping the hair soft, silky and lustrous. It's fine for both long and bobbed hair.

WESTERLY

Poultry fanciers and breeders of thoroughbred stock in surrounding towns as well as in Westerly will be interested in the announcement of the South County Poultry association that their show will be held in the state armory on Dixon street in Westerly late in November and early in December. Last year this was the largest poultry show held in Rhode Island and the show this year promises to exceed that of a year ago. The exhibit this year will be the 12th annual of the association and the success of this year's efforts of the officers of the association is insured by the appropriation by the Rhode Island state legislature of $750 to be used together with association funds to guarantee a premium array that will be exceptionally good. Already poultry fanciers are preparing for this exhibition and it is estimated that the 1000 birds shown last year will be exceeded in number in the November show. The judges are D. J. Lambert, of Apponaug, R. I., formerly with the Rhode Island State college at Kingston and A. J. Mowl of Hartford. Many exhibitors last year came from Norwich and Hartford. The officers of the South County Poultry association are: President, Herbert P. Clark; secretary, Roger F. Dunham; treasurer, George L. Stillman; chairman of executive committee and superintendent of show, James Bishop.

Band concerts continue popular in Westerly, as evidenced by the largest attendance so far this season at the concert of last week. The $250,000 fund-raising campaign for a hospital to serve Westerly and vicinity, which has recently been announced, has been put under the leadership of G. Benjamin Utter, publisher of the Westerly Sun. Mr. Utter will serve as chairman of the campaign executive committee and is already at work with Charles Perry, president of the hospital association, in building up a large volunteer organization.

Hundreds of men and women are expected to take part. The campaign will be carried on from August 17 to 27 and will cover the towns of Westerly, Stonington, North Stonington, Hopkinton, Richmond and Charlestown.

In accepting the post of campaign chairman, Mr. Utter declared that a hospital is one of the most vital necessities to the people of this district, since those who are sick or injured must now travel all the way to Norwich or New London, or even Providence, in order to get hospital treatment.

"In the six towns to be included in the campaign," he said, "there easily are 20,000 of us, and we really make up one big community, as far as our need of a hospital is concerned.

"This community is big enough to have a hospital of its own, and I am sure everyone is glad to know that the time for discussion is past and the time of accomplishment is at hand."

Twelve naval seaplanes were in flight at one time, above Watch Hill, about 11.30 o'clock Wednesday morning. These were grouped in V shaped squadrons of six planes each, the first of which passed above the Ocean House in crossing the Hill and the second above the site of the old Watch Hill house, both squadrons going in an easterly direction. At 12 o'clock another fleet, flying at a much lower altitude, came from the direction of Fishers Island and passed above the Watch Hill light house and maintained almost perfect formation in V shape, all changing their course to pass in a line paralleling the East beach. Some ten minutes later another plane passed which in turn was followed by a seaplane crossing directly above the bathhouses at less than a thousand feet elevation, at the same time another plane passed more to the southward, which totalled 21 seaplanes. The seaplane fleet left the Hudson river Wednesday morning, passing to Gravesend bay from which point they hopped off for Newport, where they are to go through a series of maneuvers to continue until Sept. 1. The trip from the Hudson river to Newport was made in 1 hour and 30 minutes. The seaplane mother ship, the Wright, sailed from the Hudson river Tuesday, so as to be in Newport, when the seaplane fleet arrived. The two planes which were lost in the fog off Watch Hill Sunday night, were the scouting fleet. Previous to the departure of the scout plane's crew from Watch Hill, it was stated that a fleet of between fifty and sixty seaplanes remained in the Hudson river after their departure.

As Mr. Randall would not consent to his removal to a hospital, the ambulance of the Westerly Sanitary corps returned to Westerly Wednesday afternoon after a visit had been made to the farm.

How You Can Remove Every Trace of Hair

(Toilet Talks)

A stiff paste made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on a hairy surface about 3 minutes will, when removed, take every trace of hair with it. The skin should then be washed to free it from the remaining delatone. No harm can result from this treatment, but be sure it is delatone you get and you will not be disappointed. Mix fresh as wanted.

Twenty industrials averaged 90.01, net gain .51. High 1923, 105.38; low, 87.64.

STOCK MARKET ACTIVE.

New York, July 18.—The stock market displayed a distinctly better tone in more active dealings today.

There were numerous favorable developments, notably a sharp advance in wheat prices, firmness of sugar, cotton and copper, an advance in the price of crude rubber, and more favorable news from abroad. The buying, however, was limited largely to industrials and specialties.

After a relatively active and strong opening prices receded slightly on dullness but little or no selling pressure was encountered at any hour of the day. Some of the popular leaders moved up in the early transactions on short covering operations, but generally net changes in those shares were negligible.

A wide assortment of industrials and specialties, including the motor accessories, public utilities, shipping, textile and merchandising, tobaccos, chemicals, coppers, independent steels, foods and some miscellaneous stocks recorded gains of 1 to 3 points.

U. S. Steel was fairly active but fluctuations were confined to a narrow area, while some of the independent steels registered substantial gains.

Some of the larger gains were Consolidated Cigar up 4 points, International Cement, 3, and Atlantic Gulf & West Indies, Rock Island, 7 per cent, Loose Wiles, Manhesan Alkali, Montana Power, National Lead, Postum Cereal, United Drugs and Utah Copper, up to 2 1-2 points. Fisher Body jumped 23 1-2 points to 163 1-2 on one sale, and Kresge Rose 11 3-4 on a single transaction.

Motors and equipments showed moderate strength in the early dealings but later fell off with net changes on the day unimportant.

Call money ruled unchanged at 5 per cent. The time money market was quiet, brokers refusing to bid more than 5 per cent although an occasional loan is made at 5 1-4 per cent. Commercial Paper continued around 5 per cent.

The foreign exchange market was irregular. Demand sterling eased slightly to 4.49, french francs moved up 3 points to 5.86 1-2 cents and marks yielded from yesterday's figure of .0004 1-16 to .0003 3-4 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, July 18.—Gilt edged investment bonds held firm or moved slightly upward in today's bond trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The feature of the day was a sharp advance by European issues, particularly the French government bonds. These issues, however, yielded some in the later dealings and closed only fractionally higher.

United States government bonds were steady, the four Liberty issues being unchanged, the tax exempt 3 1-2s up 1-32 of a point and the treasury 4 1-4s yielding 1-32 of a point.

Railroad mortgages were in good demand most of the day, and a few closed at their high prices, Reading General 4s being up a point and New Haven 7s, Francs, up 1 1-2. Norfolk & Southern 5s sold 2 1-4 points lower.

Industrials were dull and price changes unimportant.

CURB MARKET.

New York, July 18.—While net changes were generally small in today's New York curb market, the tone was unmistakably better.

With the exception of Prairie Oil & Gas which jumped 6 points higher, the oil shares moved within a very narrow area. Most of them, however, were slightly higher on the day.

Industrials were in demand most of the day but advances were small. Gillette Safety Razor gained 1 1-2. Reo Motors declined fractionally as did also the other motor shares.

Mining stocks were active and advanced fractionally.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, July 18.—Sudden upturns in the price of wheat took place today, largely as a result of nervousness on the part of previous sellers. The netvousness was due more or less to concerted efforts which are being made to induce investors to "buy 1,000 bushels of wheat" and to have housewives "buy a barrel of flour," after scoring in some cases an advance of 2 3-4 cents a bushel, wheat closed unsettled at a net gain of 1 1-12 to 2 5-8 cents, with September 93 1-4 to 93 3-8 and December 101 3-8 to 101 1-2. Corn finished 1-8 to 3-4 cent up, and oats at 3-8@1-2 cent to 7-8 cent advance. Provisions were 7 cents to 15 cents lower.

Agitation to broaden the general demand for wheat had a bullish effect from the outset, and was supplemented by higher quotations at Liverpool and by smallness of country acceptances of bids from here. There was much talk, also, that sentiment of late had been too bearish and that selling had become overextended. Disquieting news about chances of damage by black rust both sides of the Canadian boundary was a further stimulus to buyers.

Assertions at the seaboard that 750,000 to 1,000,000 bushels of wheat had been purchased for shipment to Europe attracted notice in the last part of the day, and helped to prevent any important downward reaction in values, despite considerable profit-taking. Moreover, exporters were said to be finding it difficult to obtain new offers of wheat southwest.

Corn and oats moved up with wheat. July delivery of corn equaled the season's high price record. Crop reports as to corn were favorable, however, and the market lost much of the advance.

Declines in the value of hogs weakened the provision market.

METAL MARKET.

New York, July 18.—Copper steady. Electrolytic, spot and futures 14 3-4. Tin firm. Spot and nearby 38.12; futures 38.00. Iron steady; prices unchanged. Lead steady; spot 6.00. Zinc easy. East St. Louis spot and nearby delivery 6.10. Antimony, spot 6.85@6.90.

MONEY.

New York, July 18.—Call money firm; high 5; low 5; ruling rate 5; closing bid 5; offered at 5 1-4; last loan 5; call loans against acceptances 4 1-2.

COTTON.

"Mamma," said 5-year-old Clarence one evening, "haven't I been a good boy today?"

"Yes, Clarence," she replied, "and I am very proud of you."

"Well," continued the little fellow, "I can go to bed without saying my prayers, can't I?"—Chicago News.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

She spun a web around him.

Teaching Bunny Manners.

One day as Little Jack Rabbit was hopping along, whistling merrily this little song,

"I don't care if the winds blow chill,
For fortune hids behind the hill.
I keep merrily on my way,
Over the hills and far away.

"Some day home in the Bramble Patch,
I'll fasten the door with the wooden latch
And whistle and sing all through the day
How I found my fortune far away."

Just then a great big tremendous fly said, with a loud buzz:

"Beware of the great big spider that spins her web not far from here."

"I have met spiders before," replied the little bunny. "I have no fear," and he hopped on bravely and pretty soon he saw the great spider sitting in one corner of her web.

"Good day, my little bunny," said the big black insect, crawling down to the ground and Oh dear me! She was almost as big as a dog and she looked very fierce, let me tell you, but the little rabbit bunny wasn't a-fraid. Oh, my no. He just pulled out his popgun and pointing it at the spider he shouted:

"I'm not afraid of the biggest spider that grew."

This made that big black insect so dreadfully angry, for she didn't grow, you know, like a beet or a turnip, that she spun a web around him just like a net, and the first thing poor little bunny knew he couldn't move this way or that.

"I'll teach you manners," she said, winking her little black eyes and stretching out her hairy feet and if a big, husky bee caught in her net just at that moment, I don't know what she might have done to the poor little bunny boy.

While she was winding long threads around that poor fly, quick as a wink, the little rabbit boy bunny cut the web with his jack knife and hopped off again on his journey, and by and by he came to a queer little house close by a brook.

"Who lives here?" he asked himself after knocking several times on the front door, but when it opened he was as surprised as you will be, and maybe more, for who should it be but the Fairy Queen of the Ragged Giant Bunny's Forest.

"Welcome, little rabbit," said the Queen, "and how have you fared in the Ragged Giant Bunny's Forest?" and she invited him into her little fairy house which was made of rose leaves and ferns.

But just as he was telling her what had happened to him while traveling through the Giant Bunny's Forest a deep gruff voice called out, "I shall break into your house if you don't let me in," and in the next story I'll tell you who the voice belonged to.

BALTIC MAN CARING FOR DESERTED FAWN

A small boy by the name of Boko, who lives in the Boulder park section of the village of Baltic, had a rather exciting experience a few days ago when he discovered a buck deer a few hours old peacefully sleeping on a bundle of brush at the edge of the woods that surround the park.

Young Boko watched the young buck for about two hours and then decided to inform the neighbors of his discovery. The lad had travelled but a short distance when he turned around and saw the little deer a few feet behind him. The buck followed him to the barn where he placed it in a coop and in the evening he notified Dog Warden Francis Maynard, who went to the Boko farm to learn the truth concerning the story.

Mr. Maynard found a healthy and hungry young buck, and suggested that they give it a shelter in the barn. The deer was placed in a stall with a colt, and was given a feed of warm milk. Mr. Maynard immediately notified County Game Warden Chappell and Mr. Chappell came to Baltic and after seeing the deer and learning the circumstances he issued a license for Mr. Maynard to keep the animal. The mother of the fawn gave birth to a family of three on the morning she deserted the buck. She was mothering her young family when three dogs scented her trail and started her off on her mad race over the hills. She succeeded in facing two of the fawns with her, but had to abandon the third.

Many Baltic people as well as visitors from different towns and cities have paid a visit to the Ma

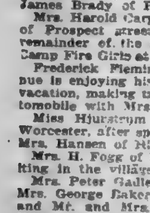
WOMAN'S HEALTH RESTORED

She Claims Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did It After Everything Else Failed

Milwaukee, Wis.—"I feel that I ought to let you know about my case. I was ailing and could barely do my housework and washing I was so run-down, just from having one child. I took a lot of medicines and had doctors. Then I gave them all up and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I feel wonderfully good now. I do every thing that comes along, and we all take your medicine as a tonic when we don't feel just so. I am thankful for what the Vegetable Compound has done for my health and for my family."—Mrs. MARY SABICHECK, 944 28th St., Milwaukee, Wisconsin.



Letters like these testify to the value of the Vegetable Compound. These women speak from the fullness of their hearts. They describe as correctly as they can their conditions: First, those symptoms that affected them most conspicuously; and later the disappearance of those symptoms. They are sincere expressions of gratitude. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been so praised by women.

OLD LYME RESIDENT WINS SUIT OVER SOUND VIEW BEACH PROPERTY

Frederick Way Chapman, aged resident of Old Lyme, won his suit against Joseph T. Cruttenden of Crescent Beach and the Coast Line Realty Co., involving an extensive tract of real estate at Sound View, Old Lyme, according to a judgment handed down here Wednesday by Judge George E. Hinman of the superior court before whom the case was recently tried in this city.

Within four months the Coast Line Realty Co. is to pay Mr. Chapman $13,500 thereby taking up his preferred stock in the company, or it is to return to Mr. Chapman the real estate, except a certain portion that has been sold.

The court finds that the agreement that Mr. Chapman made with the Coast Line Realty Co. was improvident and contained such elements of inequity that the court will relieve him from it.

Mr. Chapman brought suit on the ground that on May 1, 1902, he made a deed of the property to Mr. Cruttenden under an agreement that the deed was not to be recorded but kept in a safe deposit box. Subsequently to this and without his knowledge, he claimed that Mr. Cruttenden recorded the deed and that the real estate was transferred to the Coast Line Realty Co. in which he was offered preferred stock, but he claimed that certain agreements had not been carried out and that he had received comparatively little from the property. He claimed that the real estate was worth $30,000 at least at the time that he made the deed to Mr. Cruttenden and he sued for $50,000 and the cancellation of the deeds and contracts.

In his memorandum of decision, Judge Hinman says:

The improvidence, on plaintiff's part and the inequity of many of the provisions of the agreement between the plaintiff and the defendant Coast Line Realty Co.—such as the lack of any limitation as to the time within which the land shall be sold and paid for, the restriction upon the transfer by the plaintiff of the preferred stock issued to him, secured by the impounding of the certificate and contract, the provisions for payments for retiring said stock one basis of area instead of price obtained, return of unsold portions—irrespective of value—in satisfaction of the plaintiff's claim for balance of purchase price—are obvious from a mere reading of the contract. The writing itself and the transactions preceeding, attending and following its claimed execution may well be taken as significant as to the circumstances, conditions and effect of the making of said agreement.

The potential effect of said provisions, one-sided and over-reaching as they are, might not have become so manifest had the defendants with reasonable diligence and promptness and in good faith proceeded with the performance of their part of the agreement, sold the property and paid the plaintiff his money and redeemed his stock. On the other hand their real nature and effect are illustrated and rendered intolerable by the conduct of the defendants in handling the property. For more than 20 years, first by the defendant Cruttenden under a personal agreement with the plaintiff, and then by the corporation (of which said Cruttenden is practically in sole control) the property has been withheld from any control by the plaintiff or any income or advantage accruing to him therefrom, except one payment of $1,500, derived from insurance on buildings destroyed by fire. Especially in recent years, opportunity to dispose of the property on advantageous terms has not been lacking, yet no intent has been or is manifested other than to continue indefinitely to exclude the plaintiff from any benefit, either from the contract or from the land, apparently much further delay will extend it beyond the lifetime of the plaintiff. A situation is thus created which equity cannot view with tolerance, and will relieve against where, as here, the facts are considered sufficient to support such relief.

A decree in the alternative appears to be just under all the circumstances. Judgment may enter that unless the defendant Coast Line Realty Co. shall, within four months from date of judgment, pay the plaintiff $13,500 and thereby take up his preferred stock, the defendants shall, thereupon, convey to the plaintiff the premises described in the deed Exhibit 1, except the land mentioned in Exhibit 2.

NOT ENOUGH EVIDENCE TO GRANT THIS DIVORCE

Evidence insufficient to support a divorce on the ground of adultery is found in the suit of Eugene F. Gronau of Dayville against Ida Gadbois Gronau of Norwich, which was heard on the uncontested list before Judge George E. Hinman here recently. In his judgment handed down Wednesday, Judge Hinman returns the case to the files without prejudice to retrial on the present ground or on the ground of desertion at the proper time.

Mr. Gronau, who is station freight agent at Dayville, married Ida Gadbois at Plainfield on Nov. 21, 1910. He alleged adultery on her part since May, 1918.

Judge Hinman's memorandum of decision was as follows:

No specific acts of adultery by the defendant, at least none which have not been condoned by subsequent cohabitation with her by the plaintiff, are disclosed by the evidence, which does not, therefore, support a decree on the ground relied upon. A transcript of the testimony of the plaintiff, which, with the exhibits, constitutes the only evidence of actual adultery, is filed herewith.

It would seem that if the conduct of the defendant since the separation had been so openly immoral as is intimated, evidence of adultery during that time would not, with reasonable diligence, be difficult to obtain.

The case is returned to the files without prejudice to a re-trial on the present ground or to amendment charging desertion at the expiration of the statutory period.

GEORGE CROSGROVE ON PENSION FROM RAILROAD

George L. Crosgrove of 30 Baltic street, the well known ticket agent at the New York, New Haven and Hartford station, has been retired on a pension by the railroad, having behind him a record of 36 years and 6 months in the employ of the road.

He began with the road in 1876 and would have had a record of 46 years and 6 months of continuous service had it not been for two different periods totalling ten years when he was in other employment, having twice resigned his railroad position, but returning again.

He first entered the employ of the road at the old Ferry street station. Most of his service has been in Norwich but he has also served at Norwood and Central Village where he was ticket and freight agent.

BURNING OIL STOVE SET KITCHEN ON FIRE

An oil stove that had been left burning in the house occupied by John Lapkowski on Thames street caused a blaze that brought out the fire department Wednesday morning at 8.47 o'clock. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lapkowski had gone to work at the American Woolen plant in Thamesville, leaving the stove burning and their children asleep and some time after their departure neighbors noticed smoke coming from the house and telephoned in the alarm.

The stove had set fire to the wainscoating in the kitchen and the shelves were blazing when the firemen arrived. Had the fire been allowed to gain further headway it might have been serious and the children in danger of losing their lives. The quick response and work of the firemen held the loss to a small figure.

DENIED DIVORCE DECREE BUT MAY TRY AGAIN

Lila Nichols O'Leary, of New London, whose suit for divorce from George O'Leary of that city on the grounds of intolerable cruelty was recently tried on the uncontested list before Judge George E. Hinman, is denied divorce but without prejudice to re-trial on the present ground or on the ground of, desertion at the proper time.

The couple was married June 5, 1913. Mrs. O'Leary alleged intolerable cruelty since Jan. 1, 1916.

Judge Hinman says in his memorandum of decision:

Determination as to whether certain conduct cohstitutes such intolerable cruelty as is ground for divorce under our statute as construed in Sweet vs. Sweet, 97 Conn. 693 and cases there in cited, involves consideration not only of the nature of the conduct itself but also of its effect upon the complaining party. A fair test of tolerability of conduct is its effect upon the plaintiff and his or her resulting course of action.

Even if the facts in this case would, under any circumstances, constitute such cruelty as might properly have been treated by the plaintiff as intolerable, she does not satisfy the above mentioned test. She continued to live with the defendant until he left her and, so far as appears, would have continued to do so indefinitely but for his desertion. No compelling necessity for continued cohabitation, notwithstanding cruel treatment, such as occasionally appears, is disclosed in this case. Treatment to be regarded as legally intolerable must be at least such as to outweigh, in its effect upon the injured party, the loyalty and sense of duty to the defendant which is the only reason which this plaintiff assigns for her continued tolerance.

The case is returned to the files without prejudice to a re-trial on the present ground or to amendment charging desertion at the expiration of the statutory period.

BOYS' PARENTS TO PAY FOR CEMETERY VANDALISM

In the police court Wednesday morning a Providence man charged with intoxication could not pay his bill of $14.75 and went to jail to work it out.

A hearing was held in chambers for three boys, aged about 14 years, who had damaged gravestones, upset them and did other damage to the I. O. B. A. cemetery in Greeneville. Meyer Blumenthal appeared for the cemetery association and the relatives of the boys were also present.

With Judge Libby those interested discussed sending the boys to the Connecticut School for Boys until 21, but Mr. Blumenthal said the association did not desire to have the boys punished so severely but would rather have the damage repaired, which he said was about $200.

John C. Quinlan, who is in the monumental business, placed the damage done at $200 and the parents of the boys pledged themselves to see that the damage is made good, and the authorities will also be interested in the restoration. The boys were placed on probation for one year and given sound advice against destroying the property of others.

It is understood that one of the reasons given by the boys for their vandalism in the cemetery was that someone told them the Jews do not believe in God.

STREET DEPARTMENT STARTS WEST MAIN ST. REPAIRS

Work was started Wednesday on West Main street preparatory to the rebuilding of the roadbed from Thames square to the city line. The men were engaged in breaking up the roadbed and smoothing out the crushed rock on the south side of the street and by night had broken up and levelled a stretch as far as Forest street.

Street Commissioner A. E. Cruthers stated that the work would be pushed as rapidly as possible and that the old bed would be filled in with new crushed stone and tar-bound, similar to what was done with Broadway this summer.

When completed the road from Thames square to the city line will be of tar bound macadam and will be able to stand the strain of the heavy travel that goes over the street especially on Sundays and during fair and circus days.

The news that the street is to be repaired was received with pleasure by West Side people and in fact everybody in the city who has occasion to go over to the West Side, for the hill sections have been in a dangerous condition for many a week and the straight stretches have been an eyesore.

FAILS TO CROSS CONTINENT BETWEEN DAWN AND DUSK

Leaking Oil Tank Forced Lieut. Russel L. Maughan to Abandon Attempt at Rock Springs, Wyo., When He Was Within 645 Miles of His Goal—Had Covered 1680 Miles—Had Driven His Plane at a Speed of 170 Miles an Hour For 245 Miles—The Aviator Was Nearly Overcome by Nausea at Cheyenne, Wyo., by Fumes from the Escaping Oil—Would be Glad to Make Third Try.

Rock Springs, Wyo., July 19 (By the A. P.).—Forced down by a new leak in the oil cooling tank of his plane, Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan was compelled to abandon his attempt to cross the continent between dawn and dusk late this afternoon. He landed at the air mail field at 5.08 p. m.

A hurried examination by two air mail pilots, who were the only men on the field when Maughan descended, convinced the transcontinental flier that it would be impossible to repair the leak in time for him to reach the west coast before dark, and he called off the flight.

The leak was around the edges of the portion of the tank which had been soldered at Cheyenne this afternoon, where Maughan was delayed for an hour.

Maughan passed over Rock Springs at 4.58, apparently bent upon continuing the flight despite the leak, but he turned back a few minutes lander and landed.

"It would require from three to four hours to repair the leak," Maughan told The Associated Press. "Consequently the flight is off."

Lieutenant Maughan went to a hotel here after waiting at the air field while the two pilots, Harry Chandler and Jack Sharpnack, examined the tank.

He was greatly disappointed at the second failure which had greeted his attempt to cross the continent, and his demeanor plainly indicated disgust as he walked away from the field.

The aviator was nearing Green river when the oil tank began leaking badly, he said, resulting in his decision to abandon the flight and return to Rock Springs.

Lieutenant Maughan said he felt no ill effects from the nausea which nearly overcame him at Cheyenne as the result of fumes from the escaping oil. He said he felt "fine" and was going to "take a good sleep."

Asked whether he would make another attempt to span the continent between dawn and dusk, Lieutenant Maughan asserted "that is up to Washington." He added that he "naturally" would be "glad to try it again."

It was 15 hours to the minute when he landed at Rock Springs. From the time he took off at Mitchell Field, at 4.08 a. m. Eastern Standard Time this morning. The three stops which he made at Dayton, St. Joseph and Cheyenne had consumed one hour and 51 minutes.

Officials of the United States air mail service here estimated that Maughan had made an average speed of about 155 miles and hour. He was in the air 13 hours and nine minutes.

Until noon today the flight of Lieutenant Maughan apparently was destined to be a brilliant success.

At Cheyenne, however, on the western rim of the Rocky Mountains, the first element of uncertainty was thrown into the race when Maughan descended, nauseated from the effects of oil fumes which he had inhaled, as a result of the first leak in the oil cooler. Disheartened, Maughan stepped from the plane and laid down to recuperate while mechanics worked feverishly to repair the leak.

In 55 minutes the work was completed and Maughan, still slightly ill, resumed his seat in the cockpit and struck westward on the fourth lap of his journey, with hope rekindled by the belief that he still could win out against encroaching darkness by a fast spurt to Salduro, Utah, and San Francisco.

He was within 645 miles of the end of his flight and less than two hours from Salduro, the final stopping point before the last lap of his journey when the new leak in the oil cooler forced him to descend.

The flight, several times cancelled owing to inclement weather, or newly discovered defects in the oil feed line, was a renewal of the unsuccessful attempt which Maughan made on July 9. On that trip he was forced down at Avenue City, Mo., ten miles from St. Joseph, the terminal of the second lap of his flight. A clogged oil feed line caused temporary abandonment of plans for the flight.

The trip was being made largely to demonstrate the feasibility of moving aerial war craft from one coast to the other of the United States as a war time maneuver.

Maughan had covered 1,680 miles. On the basis of the total elapsed time since he had left Mitchell Field, he had traversed nearly two-thirds of the continent at an average speed of 135.6 miles an hour.

He hopped off at 3.37 p. m. after the oil leak had been hastily soldered.

From Cheyenne to Rock Springs, Maughan drove his plane at a speed of 170 miles an hour for 245 miles. When forced to land at Rock Springs, he had come within 645 miles of his goal.

OFFICIALS BELIEVE THE ENGINE WAS OVERHEATED

Mitchel Field, N. Y., July 19.—Officials at Mitchel field, from which Lieutenant Maughan started this morning on his attempted daylight trip across the continent, stated tonight that the descent at Rock Springs, Wyo., was undoubtedly caused by loosening of the solder used to mend a leak in the oil feed pipe at Cheyenne.

The engine was overheated at the time the pipe was fixed, the officials said, and the terrific heat generated by the plane's high speed was thought to have melted the solder.

CONDUCTED FAKE FILM BUREAU IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, July 19.—Detectives of this city tonight were seeking Thomas R. White said to be manager of the local office of the United Movie Bureau of New England, which police today revealed had taken money from persons on the promise that they would be given an opportunity to become motion picture players.

An advertisement in the local newspapers requested applicants to send in their photograph and if adjudged satisfactory, and upon the payment of $7 they would be permitted to undergo a screen test. The notice said if this proved satisfactory the person would be made a star.

Police said they have photos of several good Connecticut persons, which had been mailed to the concern's office here. When they first investigated they said they found White in his office and that he said he was manager of the bureau, which was incorporated, under New York state laws and that its president was George G. Bush, of 124 West 58th street, New York. Police of the Metropolis located Mr. Bemall but he was reported to have denied he knew anything of the film concern.

When the local police made a return visit to White's office a clerk said he had gone to his home in Bridgeport. Inquiry in that city revealed he formerly had lived there.

REAR ADMIRAL SIGSBEE DIED OF HEART DISEASE

New York, July 19.—Rear Admiral Charles Dwight Sigsbee, who commanded the battleship Maine when she was blown up in Havana harbor on Feb. 15, 1898, during the Cuban rebellion against Spain, died today at his home in this city of heart disease.

The admiral, who was 78, had been in failing health for two years, but the seriousness of his condition was not generally known. Recently he was a patient at the naval hospital in Brooklyn, but the nature of his malady was not disclosed. Only yesterday he went out riding.

Funeral plans, which tonight had not been completed, called for burial at Arlington next Monday of one of the most picturesque figures in the history of the United States navy. Not only did the admiral win fame as a man of action, but he was widely known as an inventor and a writer on naval subjects.

EXCHANGES OF OPINION BY LONDON AND BERLIN

Berlin, July 19.—(By the A. P.)—Germany's amendatory reparations proposals of June 7, have been the subject of informal exchanges of opinion between the London and Berlin cabinets during the past month. This was admitted in official quarters today. This procedure is considered nothing unusual, as the discussions concerned themselves wholly with the manner in which Germany proposed to safeguard the guarantees which were to constitute the basis of reparation annuities or capital sum.

The exchanges which have been going on between the two capitals are supposed to have been submitted by Premier Baldwin's desire to give Germany an opportunity to elucidate her reparations programme, which it is believed would constitute the basis of the forthcoming discussions. The manner in which the German government proposed to guarantee the annuities through legislative enactments was one of the cardinal points on which the London officials desired information.

Germany's amendatory reparations note, which was handed to the entente and the United States government on June 7 proposed a system of annuities, estimated to total 1,200,000,000 marks annually, if an international loan was not available for immediate capital payments. The annuities would become effective in 1927 and their number and amount would depend on the degree of Germany's economic recovery.

"MOST QUARRELSOME MAN" KILLED IN HELL'S KITCHEN

New York, July 19.—Brawls, brawls frequent and violent, go to make up daily life in Hell's Kitchen, but no man can appropriate unto himself all the quarrels of the neighborhood; each must have his share.

Carmile Disculio, who cooked when he was not fighting, known in a district noted for its toughness as "a most quarrelsome man." Day in and day out he fought with his neighbors. Today he chased Mrs. Margaret Daly, a cripple, about the tenement in which he lived. Later he chased a band of kids and slapped their faces.

Then he enjoyed his last quarrel. Three men, remonstrating at his actions, dragged him into a doorway and stabbed him to death with a screwdriver. That is the way Hell's Kitchen acts when it is mad.

Farmer's Body Found With Head Battered

Job Cross of Canaan, Vt., Had Been Missing Since Last Thursday—Arrest Made.

Canaan, Vt., July 19.—The body of Job Cross, a farmer and business man, who disappeared last Thursday, and whose empty automobile had been standing since that time at the foot of Cole's hill, near Averhill, was found tonight in the woods at Canaan Hill. The head had been battered. Ed Bunnell of Canaan Hill, who had purchased a farm from Cross, was arrested charged with murder.

Cross' body, which was found by members of a search party that had been beating the woods in the district since yesterday, was eight miles from his car. The authorities believed that the car had been moved to that distance after its owner was killed. A package of business papers and Cross' overcoat, found dry near the car despite heavy rains of the past few days, appeared to confirm this belief.

The arrest of Bunnell was ordered by State Attorney Arthur Cameron of Island Pond, who said that the farmer had purchased some land from Cross some time ago, and still owed some money on the purchase price. Bunnell's wife, the authorities said, admitted that Cross had come to the district last Thursday to effect a settlement with her husband. It was believed that Cross had a large sum of money on his person when he disappeared. This was not found tonight.

Throughout last night and today scores of persons from Averill and surrounding points joined in the search for Cross. Bunnell will be arraigned at Canaan tomorrow.

ACCUSED OF PUTTING POISON IN BABY'S SOUP

New York, July 19.—Baldasari Moreale, who lives in the crowded tenements of the Lower East Side, today was arrested on a charge of felonious assault after Mrs. Marie Stanford told detectives that he had tossed a piece of poisoned meat into her baby's soup because he objected to her nationality.

Moreale, the father of 11, appeared in court with his entire family and denied the charge. His lawyer declared that a family man could not be guilty of such a crime.

Magistrate Smith held the prisoner in $2,000 bail for examination July 27, and ordered that meanwhile a chemical analysis be made of a piece of meat turned over to the court by Mrs. Stanford, a widow, who testified that her husband had served in the marines and later had been employed as a bodyguard by J. P. Morgan.

Meanwhile the child is alleged to have been poisoned lies in a hospital in a serious condition. An erroneous report that the child had died, received in the courtroom, reduced Mrs. Stanford to hysterics.

It was a melo-dramatic story of racial antagonism on the East Side, a feeling that runs high in that congested cosmopolitan district, that Mrs. Stanford told detectives.

Mrs. Stanford is Spanish and the house occupied by the Moreale family into which she recently moved is tenemented mostly by Italians. She asserts that she was told by her new neighbors that no Spaniards or negroes were desired in the house.

She declared that she was subjected to many petty annoyances. Once, she asserted, her front door was barricaded with ashbarrels, and she had to climb a fire escape to the roof to escape from her apartment.

The alleged poisoning occurred on the fire escape. n New York, in the summer time, fire escapes serve in the crowded tenement hous districts as a communal parlor, bedroom and bath.

Mrs. Stanford said that Tuesday afternoon she put her four-year-old son Joseph—one of her four children—on a mattress on the fire escape that serves both her apartment and that occupied by the Moreales. A few minutes later, she told detectives, the boy said:

"Mamma, that man is putting something in my soup."

She said she found several pieces of meat in the bowl. After she had fished them out, she gave the soup back to the boy.

The episode was repeated she said, and then she was called to the door by an insurance agent who had come to collect on a policy. She added that she had told him of the affair and he had advised her to save meat and soup. She saved the meat, but the soup was gone.

That evening, she said, her boy became ill and she took him to the hospital, where they said he had swallowed rat poison.

Thirty-six barrels had been removed in automobile trucks when the railroad police, becoming suspicious, made an investigation.

How Texas Would Deal With the I. W. W.

American Legion Members Offer Assistance to Port Arthur Officials.

Dallas, Texas, July 19.—Assistance of the American Legion members in Texas as to "uphold the American Constitution" was offered to Port Arthur officials in connection with the reported activities by John W. Low post of the legion of Dallas, through its commander, Dr. William E. Hubbert, today. Dr. Hubbert telegraphed the officials that there are enough rock piles in the south to keep them, (the I. W. W.'s) busy for a while and of 25,000 "probably less than 2 will get there for you to employ."

PORT ARTHUR HAS MADE NO REQUEST FOR ASSISTANCE

Austin, Texas, July 19.—Cognizance of the reported exodus of 20,000 I. W. members from the other states to Port Arthur, was taken by state officials today, it was learned at authoritative sources, although no action has been taken. Governor Neff stated he had received no reports other than through the newspapers. Adjutant General Barton said the newspaper reports are being closely watched.

No request for assistance has been received from Port Arthur officials, it was said. However, it is considered probable that a detachment of rangers may be sent there to investigate the affair.

NAVAL ESTIMATES DISCUSSED IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

London, July 19.—(By the A. P.)—Naval estimates were discussed in the house of commons today and the Singapore project was brought to the forefront by the Right Honorable George Lambert, liberal member for Devonshire. The debate, however, covered almost the same ground as a similar debate in the house of lords on July 11.

Strong opinions on the question of strengthening the Singapore naval base were expressed, the opponents of the scheme being largely liberal and labor members. Possibility of war with Japan was again very frankly discussed, even by those who opposed the Singapore base, like Commander Kenworthy, who admitted that Japan's pressure of population might lead a generation hence to trouble between the two empires, in which case Singaport would be the most important strategic base in the world.

"Passage of this bill" one of the authors declared, "will result in checking the exodus of negroes and other farm labor of Georgia to other states. It does not allow even licensed labor agents to operate in the state. The present labor situation in Georgia demands drastic legislation and this measure is one which we think best to provide relief."

MORSE DEFENSE SUBPOENA ATT'Y GENERAL DAUGHERTY

At the Personal Request of Mr. Morse, Harry M. Daugherty Has Been Summoned to Appear Monday at the Trial in Washington—Issuance of the Subpoena Came as a Surprise to the District Attorney's Office—Officials of the Department of Justice Would Express No Opinion as to Whether Mr. Daugherty Would Appear or Not.

Washington, July 19.—A subpoena was issued here today summoning Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty to appear Monday as a witness for the defense in the trial here of Charles W. Morse and others on charges of war time shipping frauds.

At the office of Attorney General Daugherty here it was said that The Associated Press despatch stating that the attorney general had been subpoenaed in the Morse case, was the first intimation Mr. Daugherty had received that he was to be called to testify in the case. No statement would be made on the subpoena.

Issuance of the subpoena apparently was a surprise to the district attorney's office although once before, early in the trial, a similar summons was prepared for the attorney general just as he was preparing to leave for Florida on board President Harding's special train. Before it was served, however, it was recalled by agreement among counsel.

Until they had communicated with Mr. Daugherty at Columbus, officials of the department of justice would express no opinion as to whether he would appear as a witness. He has been ill for several months but recently took part in a series of conferences with department officials at Columbus and is understood to be planning to leave there next week to join President Harding and his party on the Pacific coast.

The case against the Morses is a part of the war frauds prosecutions of the government, to which the attorney general has given much attention. The filing of the suit more than a year ago was followed by a discussion in the senate of the former relations between Mr. Morse and Mr. Daugherty, and by an open letter by the attorney general denying charges that during the Taft administration he had received a large fee for securing a pardon for Morse, then serving in the Atlanta penitentiary.

The defense attorneys in the trial here said today that the subpoena for Mr. Daugherty was issued at the personal request of Mr. Morse, who had not instructed them as to what evidence they were to attempt to secure from him.

IRISH DELEGATION IS GOING TO GENEVA

Geneva, July 19 (By the A. P.)—President Cosgrave with a strong delegation from the Irish Free State will probably come to Geneva for the annual meeting of the assembly of the league of nations in September, when the Free State is expected to be elected a member of the league. This announcement was made today by Michael Mac White, permanent representative of the Free tate here.

"Rest assured that Ireland will have her own independent program toward the league," said Mr. Mac White. "We are not tied up with other European nations, as most of the members of the league are, and we feel by our very independence that we can do good."

Ireland wants international help, he continued. Her opportunity for economic development and prosperity is dependent upon a settlement of Europe's woes; hence Dublin's keen interest in a solution of the reparations problem.

Mr. Mac White declared the Irish delegation would throw its weight on the side of international cooperation through the league. The world need have no fear, he added, that Ireland's admission would mean another vote in the assembly for England.

Speaking of diplomatic relationships, the Free State envoy said the dispatch of a minister or ambassador from Dublin to Washington was a prominent item on the agenda of his government but that it was too early to discuss the details of the proect.

RAID ON OPIUM AND DOPE JOINTS IN BUFFALO

Buffalo, N. Y., July 19.—The conviction of five men in federal court on charges of conspiracy to sell narcotics, raids of alleged opium and dope joints by federal agents; indictment o ftwo alleged white slavers by a federal grand jury and the transfer of two police captains in downtown stations were today's developments in the city and federal campaign against vice and alleged corruption of officers.

Before the jury reported its verdict the government began the trial of five former dry agents who are charged with accepting bribes. A sixth member of the force of agents indicted has become a government witness.

LOST WAGER OF $3,500 IN AVOIDING A COLLISION

New York, July 19.—If it hadn't been for a ditch F. C. Geroux might have won his wager of $3,500 and made a record cross-country trip in a flivver.

Gegoux left Los Angeles at 12.01 a. m. July 4. Two miles from Flagstaff, Arizona, he came around a sharp curve at 45 miles an hour. He was confronted by a collision of two other cars. Rather than injure his engine he drove into the ditch.

DECLARES TELEPHONE STRIKE IS STILL ON

Boston, July 19.—The strike of telephone operators employed by the New England Telephone and Telegraph company is still on and picketing will be resumed throughout the affected areas tomorrow, Miss Julia S. SALESMAN KILLED WHEN AUTO STRUCK TROLLEY

East Hartford, July 19.—Ignace Stern, a paint salesman with offices at 128 Chambers street, New York city and residence at 314 West 42nd street, that city, was instantly killed at 5.30 tonight when the automobile in which he was riding collided with an eastbound trolley car for Manchester on Connecticut Boulevard. Both motorman and conductor of the trolley car as well as several passengers were slightly injured.

Swen Gustafson, of Hartford, who was riding with Stern and who escaped with a few scratches, said he had been offered a ride by stern in Springfield. When they reached the Connecticut Boulevard approaching Hartford, Gustafson said that Stern swerved to one side to pass another automobile while conversing with him and did not see the approaching trolley.

The collision demolished the radiator and hood of the automobile and the shock of the impact caused the collapse of the top of the sedan which fell on stern, breaking his neck. The sedan carried a license number 736-553 but no operator's license of registration certificate was found in the car, in the car was found a quantity of paint samples and brushes made by a number of New York manufacturers, among them the F. O. Pierce company. Of five dozen eggs in the car only a few were broken.

TO STIMULATE BUYING OF WHEAT IN SMALL LOTS

Chicago, July 19.—Several leaders on the Chicago board of trade, including L. F. Gates, Joseph F. Griffin, and Robert McDougal, each of whom has served several terms as president of the board, today said they favored higher grain prices. Regarding the campaign which has for its slogans, "Buy 1,000 bushels of wheat," and "buy a barrel of flour," Mr. Gates said,

"The campaign to stimulate investment buying of wheat in small quantities seems not only reasonable but feasible.

"The withdrawal of large speculative support during the past three months has been generally attributed to the supreme court decision relating to what is commonly known as the Capper-Tincher act, or the grain futures act. Commission houses have not been able to rally enough support from smaller traders to offset the loss of traders in large quantities, and sponsors of the law have apparently made no effort to do so, although claiming that the law would stimulate general support to more than offset the loss of large speculative dealings.

"The grain trade generally favors a higher level of wheat prices and will be glad to assist in this movement to encourage general support of the market to offset the pressure from the new crop as it moves from the farms."

DROWNED IN FALL FROM A HYDRO-AEROPLANE

Boston, July 19.—John Stevens of St. Johnsbury, Vermont, owner of a hydro-aeroplane whose pilot attempted to make a landing on Bird Island Flats, East Boston, tonight, fell from the machine as it sideslipped and was drowned. His body was crushed under the weight of the big plane and had not been extricated tonight.

Lieutenant Caldwell S. Phillips of Boston and East Holden, Maine, pilot of the hydro-aeroplane, had a leg and shoulder broken. One wing of the plane crumpled, causing the crash.

The machine was an old one, and had been used by Stevens for commercial purpdees and stunt flying.

New York, July 19.—"Once! Are you done? Twice! Third and last call. Sold for $1,350,000."

That's the way Governor Alfred E. Smith disposed of the state arsenal at auction today to Henry Greenberg, electrical and plumbing supply dealer, who responded to the governor's magic pleading for more and higher bids. State authorities had thought they would be lucky to get a million.

The designators are long white lines which will serve to lead motorists around the proper course in taking a courve. The lines designating the crosswalks on Main street are also being repainted on the pavement. A small machine, handled very much like a perambulator is doing the work. The paint automatically feeds from a container through a filter and onto an iron wheel which rolls on the pavement. A brush serves to draw the line and spread the paint.

JOHN DEERE DAIN MOTOR PRESS

Come in and let us show you one of these presses, and explain to you why it does better work. We want particularly to show you the eccentric gear construction and to explain why, by mounting the gears off-center, more work can be accomplished without any increase in power. The powerful stroke of both plunger and self-feed arms, and the automatic tucker, insure neat, well-pressed bales. The quick return of both plunger and self-feeder on the idle stroke gives plenty of time to feed the press. The improved form of block dropper is a convenience you will appreciate.

No matter whether you want a hay press for custom work or only for your private use, we can furnish you with a John Deere-Dain Motor Press of the right size and capacity.

"I had an ulcer on my ankle—had it 30 years and could not get it healed. For the last six years I had several doctors. Henderson, 520 Spruce St., Winston-Salem, N. C.

Peterson's Ointment is just as good for piles as it is for old sores. It stops itching of eczema almost instantly. Regardless of the amount of opposition with which "Dollar Day" met with last year it was finally put over in great style and resulted in a financial gain for everyone concerned, namely the merchant and the consumer. It is true that many merchants claim that Dollar Day is not a profitable day, financially speaking, but they all will admit that it is a wonderful prestige-getting day. A number of the local merchants are inquiring about the probable outcome of the Dollar Day question this year and no doubt local buyers are ready to take advantage of a Dollar Day or any kind of a bargain day at a moment's notice.

"Don't We Carry On"

is on the other side—so silly that you'll play it twice.

COL." GEORGE FOWLER PROVES TO BE HERO OF EAST SIDE BASEBALL GAME

Umpire Billy Wright Thursday evening ended what nearly resulted in a riot in the seventh inning of the bloodiest battle ever pulled off on the Battlegrounds by calling the game with both teams entrenched strongly with 16 runs apiece. From the time "Col." George Fowler led his noble warriors on to the field in the first inning until Billy Wright called the game in the seventh the crowd that filled the Battlegrounds and many of the neighboring backyards located close by were kept in an uproar, cheering and jeering the rival teams.

Both teams battled gamely through the first six innings with blood in their eyes, and it was anybody's game until the single men came to bat in the seventh with the score 16 to 14 in favor of the married men. Risley, the first man up, singled sharply past third and took second on "Peewee" Bowen's perfect sacrifice. Dutch Leonard then struck out "Doc" Spaulding. Manager Pedace then used a bit of strategy by sending "Berger" Colberg, his newly acquired recruit, in to pinch hit for "Bob" Campbell, and Berger sent a clean single over second and Risley went to third. Leonard filled the bases by walking Spark Plug Wals.

Then Col. George Fowler, the haughty little soldier of fortune from Preston, picked up his favorite shillalah and stepped up to the plate. The crowd cheered itself hoarse as Leonard tried to purposely pass the Colonel. When Dutch Leonard tried to throw over the fourth successive ball George stepped completely across the plate and drove the ball into deep center and Risley and Colberg scored the tying runs. This proved too much for the delirious crowd and they swarmed on to the field and carried their hero off on their shoulders. It was then that the umpire, seeing it useless to try and continue, finally called the game.

The real star of the game was Colonel George, who although small in stature, proved himself large in ability by scoring five runs in five trips to the plate, and also outshone his playmates with his sensational base running.

"Matt" Delaney, the notorious star of the married men, played his usual dazzling game at third until the fifth inning, when he was forced out of the game with a painfully split thumb. It was then that "Farmer" Sway, the aged old gentleman of Hinckley Hill, furnished the fans with a real thrill by laying aside his crutches and taking Matt's place at third. He also proved himself a star by smearing four hard liners and driving out two singles in as many times at bat. Leonard pitched superb ball but received poor support in the pinches. "Sparky" Wals also pitched like a veteran.

The two teams will play again next Tuesday night if some sort of an armistice can be arranged to complete the minor details.

THURSDAY NIGHT'S GAME IN THE TWILIGHT LEAGUE

The Swan-ees were returned victorious again in their final scheduled game in the Twilight league, Thursday night, beating the fast Atlantic Carton team, in a six-inning encounter, by a score of 7 to 2.

Features of the game were the sterling pitching of Tennant, the Swan-ees' mainstay, in the pinches, and when it counted most, the catching of Boyd, and the all-round playing of the Swan-ees in general.

Fuller, pitching for the Atlantics, pitched a good game, but did not receive the support he deserved, either in the field, or at bat, as the Atlantic batsmen could not seem to find Tennant's delivery.

Manager Farrell, of the Swan-ees, deserves much of the credit for their victory, as he coached his usual game on the third base line, coming out to the game in his white ducks, so Umpire Fallon would be sure to see him, when the shades of night began to fall.

The score by innings: R. H. E.
Swan-ees ..... 0 1 3 2 0 x—7 8 2

Tennant struck out seven of the opposing batsmen, while Fuller sent four to the bench by the strike-out route.

Boyd, of the Swan-ees, made the best hit of the game, a three-base drive to deep center, while Mayhard Sullivan contributed a two-bagger. Kane of the Athletics, also got a good hit, a two-bagger to right field.

SEELEY AND BURKOWSKI TIED AT BROOKLAWN

Bridgeport, July 19.—W. Parker Seeley, former state amateur golf champion, and William Burkowski, the 19-year-old Naugatuck iron worker who was runner-up in the state amateur championships this year, tied for the lead in a field of 134 competitors in the annual Brooklawn Country club invitation tournament here today. Both covered the course in 72.

The match play rounds have been arranged so that Seeley and Burkowski may meet in the finals if they survive.

DODGERS SHUT OUT REDS; SCORE 1 TO 0

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 19.—Dazzy Vance shut out Cincinnati for the second time this season, allowing them four hits, not a visitor reaching third base and only three reaching second. The score was 1 to 0. The winning run was made off Benton, who also allowed four hits, the other Brooklyn safety being secured off Keck. Cavency's wild throw on an attempted double play for the third out gave the Dodgers the only tally of the game. The Dodgers had nine runners forced at second which is considered a record in one game. Philadelphia, July 19. — Chicago evened the series with Philadelphia today by taking a one-sided game 7 to 3.

SNODGRASS FURNISHES FIRST UPSET IN LONGWOOD TENNIS PLAY

Boston, July 19.—Harvey Snodgrass of Los Angeles provided the first surprise of the 31st annual tournament for the Longwood singles bowl by decisively defeating Lawrence B. Rice of Boston today. The Californian dropped only three games in winning three sets and the ease with which he handled his hard hitting adversary was regarded as remarkable.

Snodgrass employed a series of sliced strokes and hard drives that completely baffled Rice. The Bostonian found the change of pace so upsetting that he was afraid to go out for his shots and on the few occasions that he applied speed, errors resulted.

R. N. Williams, 2d, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., eliminated Wallace Bates of San Francisco in a straight set match in which the former national champion always had command of the situation. Bates was unable to cope with the speed of Williams' shots and he frequently was reaching for the ball and playing it off the end of his racquet.

Carl Fischer of Philadelphia went into the semi-finals through his four-set win over Arnold Jones of Yale, and N. W. Niles of Boston was the other winner, his victim being Seiichiro Kashio of Japan. Tomorrow's semi-final round matches will be Williams vs. Fischer and Snodgrass vs. Niles. On account of an earlier season triumph that Fischer scored over Williams, unusual interest is centered on their meeting.

The team of Williams and Niles was put out of the doubles tournament by Zenzo Shimizu and Masanosuke Fukuda, Japan's Davis cup doubles combination. The Americans won the first set, but their individual brilliancy thereafter was always secondary to the superior teamwork of the Japanese. Favorites came through in the remaining doubles matches. The Japanese team is one round behind the field, but an early afternoon engagement tomorrow with Jones and W. W. Ingraham will bring them apace their rivals.

NORWICH GOLFER SAFELY THROUGH FIRST ROUND

Eastern Point, Conn., July 19—F. C. Newton, of Brookline Country club, won the medal in the qualifying round of the invitation tournament at the Shenecossett Country club today when he turned in a 75. In the first round of match play Newton defeated N. H. Avery of Shenecossett by 3 and 2.

The feature match in the first round was the one in which E. L. Beard, of Oakland and Pomonok won from Henry J. Topping of Greenwich by one up on the nineteenth hole. Topping who won the Connecticut state championship on the course here last week made a come-back against the Flushing man after being 3 down but he missed a short putt on the nineteenth green when he needed a half.

Summaries:

First flight, first round—F. C. Newton, Brookline defeated N. H. Avery, Shenecossett, 3 and 2; Archibald Mitchell, Norwich, defeated Graham Jones, Hartford, 1 up; Lewis Tetlow, Westerly, defeated A. L. Bartlett, Hartford, 1 up; E. L. Beard, Oakland defeated H. J. Topping, Greenwich, 1 up (19 holes); Gil Liffany, Antlers club, Amsterdam, N. Y., defeated W. L. Richards, Engineers club, 3 and 2; Morton L. Freary, Engineers club, defeated A. C. Gregson, Lido, 5 and 4; Dr. W. D. MacDonald, Woodway, defeated G. W. Carroll, Jr., 3 and 2; Guy M. Standifer, Greenwich defeated L. T. Sheffield, Shenecossett 1 up.

THREE TIED AT END OF SECOND ROUND

Summit, N. J., July 19.—Macdonald Smith of San Francisco, Robert Macdonald of Chicago and Joe Kirkwood in a triple tie, with 36 holes totals of 146, showed the way today at the end of the second day's play in the 18th Metropolitan golf championship being played on the links of the Canoe Brook Country club.

Walter Hagen was in fourth place with 147, and Johnny Farrell of Quaker Ridge and Jim Barnes of Pelham were in a tie for fifth place with scores of 148 each.

Emmett French of Youngstown and Robert Cruickshank of Shackamaxon were tied for seventh place at 149.

With the deadline for the 36 holes qualification scores drawn at 159, exactly 50 players qualified for the final 36 holes tomorrow.

Of the 50 who qualified Jack Burke of St. Paul and Tom Stevens of Minikahda, who both scored 158, withdrew, leaving 24 pairs for the finals.

VELVETMEN TO OPPOSE NORWICH A. A. SUNDAY

On Sunday afternoon at the new J. B. Martin grounds at Taft's Station the J. B.s will cross bats with the fast Norwich A. A. club, and an exceptionally good game is anticipated. The battery for the home team will comprise Lemieux and Eccleston. Lemieux, although an amateur, has acquired a pretty good "rep" as a pitcher and will no doubt on Sunday afternoon not consider lowering this reputation by letting the Norwich team walk away with the bacon. He will be ably assisted at the receiving end by the old reliable "Fatty" Eccleston. The remainder of the lineup will consist of the players used in the preceding games.

The Norwich team will either put in Harry Mills of Gene Fuller, who has done such good work as a twilight pitcher. Dilworth will be on the receiving end, ready to stop any hot ones that may possibly come by. The city fans no doubt will congregate in large numbers to witness the game, for a great deal of interest has been aroused.

THE PHILIPPINE SITUATION.

The situation in the Philippines where the Filipino cabinet and council have resigned indicates plainly enough why Governor General Wood only recently declared that this work had not been completed there as quickly as expected but that he intended to stick to the task until he felt satisfied that it was, even though that meant the abandonment of his desire to become the head of the University of Pennsylvania.

Through certain leadership in the Philippines the demand for independence has steadily increased. It has been urged that this was not without appreciation of what assistance and protection the United States had given the islands or how much had been done by it to prepare for independence, but the crystalization of the feeling that they were able to take care of themselves.

The United States has not taken the position that the Philippines could not have their independence. It has said that it would permit it when it was believed the people of the islands were capable of taking care of themselves. It still feels that way. General Wood, who was acquainted with the islands, was sent with a former governor general to investigate conditions there relative to the time when independence might be granted. They made a careful survey of the islands. They pointed out the conditions, told what was needed there and set forth what the islands should do before being ready for their freedom.

It was then that General Wood was prevailed upon to undertake the task of improving conditions there. He has labored conscientiously in that effort and with the full confidence of the government. The clash which has taken place is in connection with the old insistence upon immediate freedom. It is not impossible to regard it as another revelation which supports the report on conditions in the islands and the fact that they are not yet ready for self government. It is unfortunate for their own good that any such demonstration should be made.

DODGING THE TAXES.

Detroit has been undergoing examination and criticism because of the claims that have been made relative to the profit of the street railway system as operated by the city. Even though it has been shown that the claims were based upon a method of doing business that was different than followed by private corporations, the mayor is sidetracking that and turning his attention at the present time to getting the employes of the system from general manager down exempt from the federal income tax.

This becomes necessary because even though the system is owned by the municipality it is operated as a private concern. Its employes are therefore regarded as working for a private company instead of the city.

The mayor is exempted from tax on his salary, the other city officials and employes have to pay no federal tax and the mayor is now doing all he can so that the many who are employed by the railway system will also be exempt.

Just how he is going to accomplish it makes little difference. Many will be encouraged to become city employes that similar benefits may be obtained. Such action of course, if it results favorably, only means that the burden of paying the federal tax, for the benefit of all, is thrown upon the smaller number. Instead of being a case where all join for the purpose of proportionately bearing the burden, it is a case where thousands escape such taxation for no other reason than that they are employed by the government, some state or municipality.

Regardless of such a situation the effort is invariably to include more in the list of non-taxpayers instead of putting all on the same basis as taxpayers. Possibly there will be an effort some day among the exempts to do their part, when no better reason exists for their exemption than being a government employe, but there is little reason to anticipate it. Movements of that kind very seldom have such an origin.

THE BERGDOLL CASE.

After considering the petition of Mrs. Bergdoll this government has issued to her the desired passport which will permit her to visit her son in Switzerland. The alien property custodian has been convinced by her statements that she is going to Europe to persuade her son to come and serve the sentence of five years in prison which hangs over his head. She isn't going to offer this persuasion on the grounds that she actually believes that he should give himself up and take his medicine, but because there is the sum of $1,300,000 in the hands of the alien property custodian which belonged to the draft dodger and fugitive from justice and which cannot be obtained in any other way. He and his family need the money and the mother is going to try to persuade the son, whom she encouraged in his draft dodging, that it is his duty to recover the family fortune by going to prison.

Certainly he couldn't earn so much money in any other way. He might try for a lifetime but the chances of recoupling are slim. Five years in prison means a sacrifice of liberty but there are sizeable stakes.

Because of the type of citizen he has shown himself to be nothing would satisfy this country more than to have him remain out of the country for good. If it were not a fact that he is an American citizen he might easily be excluded as an undesirable. There can be no thought, however, of turning over his fortune to himself or family. As long as he remains a fugitive that would be against the law. Should he return he will be entitled to apply for it and undoubtedly would get it, but not without surrendering.

That is going to be the bitter pill for Bergdoll, but that will be where a lot of satisfaction will be obtained by those who served in the war while he was defying the laws of the country. Just why Mrs. Bergdoll has not been able to persuade him without the proposed trip is not disclosed. Evidently she realizes that it is not going to be as easy to accomplish as it was to keep him from serving in the army.

LIEUT. MAUGHAN'S FLIGHT.

It was an impressive demonstration of the stability of the machine and the skill of the operator when Lieutenant Maughan earlier in the month made a rapid flight to Missouri in his attempt to cross the continent during daylight. He didn't succeed, but it wasn't his fault.

With the same determination he undertook his second endeavor. Outdistancing his first he got as far as Rock Springs, Wyoming, with good prospects of successfully accomplishing his undertaking. Trouble with oil pipes figured in blocking him in both instances.

The fact that he has failed because of trouble with the feed pipes for the gasoline and oil doesn't indicate that he is long going to be denied the honor of accomplishing the stunt. Each time he has made an excellent showing and each time he has demonstrated that all that is required is to overcome slight defects and the trick will be done.

Coast to coast flights between daybreak and dark will be made within the near future. Because one or two attempts have not succeeded cannot be permitted to discourage. The policy of stick to it which Lieutenant Maughan has already displayed is certain to land him on the Pacific coast in the fixed period. It may be some time before it becomes a daily pleasure trip, but it is clearly evident that aviation is making that steady and consistent progress which is claimed for it. What the limit will be no one dares to predict.

A GREAT ACCOMPLISHMENT.

As might be expected this country isn't the only one that is elated over the ratification of the agreements reached at the Washington conference. In all of them it is recognized now that barring the formalities following ratification nothing stands in the way of immediately going ahead with that actual reduction of naval vessels by scrapping. This is the plan in which the United States took the lead and set an example to the others by offering to scrap its ships and restrict its tonnage of big warships.

Great as was the accomplishment at Washington, it cannot be overlooked that the ratification is likewise important, and it is impossible to disregard what a vital step in behalf of peace and reduced national expenditures has been taken by this action.

We haven't got to the point where there will be no preparations for defense and we haven't reached the time when there will be no thoughts of war but by an understanding which serves to decrease the suspicions of the others a commendable advance has been made.

It is, however, only the beginning. What has been done regarding battleships will later on be seen as the advisable thing concerning other parts of a war machine. It is not because the battleships are becoming obsolete that they are being restricted and some of them scrapped. It is because of the recognition that wild expenditures for such vessels must necessarily mean unwarranted waste, when relative strength can be maintained under respected restriction, and through such action potent steps in behalf of permanent peace have been taken.

PRESENCE OF MIND

"Our flat building caught fire the other night," said the man who was dealing the cards. "It's marvelous what the movies have done to make the world more beautiful!"

"Two independent lobes of your brain working at the same time, aren't they?" elucidated the man who held seven spades.

"The facts are connected," insisted the man who had dealt all wrong and thus confiscated the spade hand. "Ten years ago when a building caught fire everyone came running from miles around to view the sights. There would be elderly ladies wearing hastily grabbed up plug hats, flannelette nighties and congress gaiters, carrying a sofa pillow in one hand carefully and a framed picture of Grandpa Parker's family reunion last Fourth of July in the other.

"Young ladies ordinarily beautiful would appear with their hair slicked back and braided in a tight pigtail, cold cream on their faces, a coffee grinder under one arm and a patchwork quilt around their shoulders—a sight to make a strong man turn pale!

"There would be the heads of families clad in raincoats, knitted slippers and their wives' best bonnets with the red roses, and they always heroically carried forth a darning basket and a loaf of bread.

"All these hastily routed out individuals would be conducted to places in the front row, where they could view the destruction of their building and the populace could view them, thus taking their reward for arising so late in the night or so early in the morning as the case might be.

"I'd have you know that the world has progressed since then. People have been educated by the silver screen. No feminine creature ever retires for the night these days without automatically arranging for the sudden turning on of the lights. Hasn't she seen how Flossy Frilly looked in her last picture when she darted from her enameled bed, having heard burglars? Flossie's hair looked as though just from the hands of the marcel artist, her apparel more resembled a filmy ball gown than otherwise; dainty mules adorned her feet, and she wrapped around her something made of georgette and lace and ribbon roses, thus transforming herself into a startled and appealing beauty whom enthralled men would fight to rescue!

"I'm telling you that the night of our fire the affair was conducted very pleasantly. In fact, it was like an exhibition of springboards or something like that. The halls were filled with lovely creatures whose hairnets held perfectly in place the modeled waves of their perfect tresses. Fragile chiffon robes trailed along and the wearers didn't carry a darned thing under their arms.

"The insurance companies should worry, evidently had been their decision and it's always wise to pick out new furniture anyway! Besides, the family phonograph was getting kind of old and it'll be dandy to order a fresh one sent out!

"I've seen Mrs. Whoozer starting out to an afternoon tea-fight looking just about as she looked at 4.30 that morning, her seal coat and satin pumps appearing perfectly natural. They even had their rouge on and there wasn't any more sign of cold cream and wrinkle plasters than there would have been at a ball. Even my bald-headed neighbor had on his toupee and was carrying out his humidor very sensibly leaving the remainder of his apartment to burn merrily.

"Everybody wore a satisfied, triumphant look and you could easily see that they were saying to themselves that at last they were justified in buying that $48.95 chiffon negligee reduced from $110 and how thankful they were to have formed the habit of cold-creaming when they took their half-hour nap after lunch, in the daytime! Why, even the firemen began murmuring 'pardon me!' when they jammed the fire hose in front of anybody! If somebody had passed the tea and lemon the occasion would have been perfect!"

"It sounds too good" suspiciously said the man whose spade hand had been ruined. "Didn't anybody act natural and excited and wild? What did you wear?"

"Aw," growled the man who was redealing, "if you must know, I wasn't at all nervous, not in the least, but somehow when it was all over I found that I was holding one of the parlor lace curtains tightly around my nightie and had a raised umbrella in the other hand! My mind was on other things than mere clothes!"—Chicago News.

Stories That Recall Others

No Danger

They have a beautiful new home. She has a beautiful new car. The other day an agent for a lightning rod company walked into his store and said:

"Sam, you ought to have some lightning rods on that new house."

"What for?" inquired Sam.

"Well, the lightning might strike your house some time and kill your wife."

"Aw, no danger o' that. She don't stay home long enough for the lightning to hit her."

A Canine Skyscraper

The dog true to his species is growing rapidly, and to the friend the dog owner wroth that the dog had grown two stories in a week. The friend went to a toy shop bought a little red ladder and forwarded it to the dog owner.

"Here is a present for the dog," the friend wrote. "If that pup continues to grow, you'll have need for a ladder. He must be fed you know."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Rev. Dr. Francis J. McConnell, who scathingly criticized the twelve-hour day of the steel industry in an address delivered the other day before the Christian Citizenship Conference, is bishop of the Pittsburgh area of the Methodist Episcopal church. At the time of his election, in 1912, he was the youngest man who had been chosen to the Methodist episcopate in nearly one hundred years. He is a native of Ohio and a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University and of the Boston School of Theology. After completing his theological studies he entered the Methodist ministry and for some years filled pulpits in various cities of Massachusetts. In 1903 he became pastor of the New York Avenue church in Brooklyn. Six years later he retired from the active ministry to accept the presidency of De Pauw University, at Greencastle, Ind., which position he held when elected a bishop.

CHILD TRAINING

Teaching by Example

A few days ago when I was in the hairdresser's shop a young woman came in with a very attractive little girl whom everyone admired.

The mother, with apparently no thought for the big eyes fixed upon her or the shell-like ears taking in all she said, related the following incident: "We moved from where we were living when my little girl began to go to school and it was too far for her to go alone to the school she had attended. But they wouldn't give me a transfer so I told my husband I was going to send her to the other school anyway and tell them she had never been to school before. And of course I warned her to tell the teacher that she had never been to school.

"That night after I had gone out she went to my sister and said, 'Tante I always said the truth before.'"

"Oh! foolish mother," I thought, "how blind you are." The story stayed with me after I left the shop and it rankled.

Then there came to me a picture of the day many years ago when my brother a country physician, had driven fourteen miles in a severe snow storm with his little three year old son wrapped up like an Eskimo, cuddled in his arms, because in the morning when there was no indication of a storm, he had given his promise to take the little fellow with him when he made this call. And now despite the storm and the difficulty of driving in a covered sleigh with the child to look after, he dared not do otherwise lest the child should in turn be led to break a promise or tell an untruth because of the father's example. "Small use," said he, "for us to urge upon our children standard which we ourselves do not maintain in their presence."

These little ones of ours are so susceptible to influence so imitative and so prone to think "the king (father or mother) can do no evil" that we cannot be too careful.

It has been my custom always to read or recite some worth while thought at the breakfast table that the family may take it with them to the day's work. Recently I have given over this duty to my eleven year old son and I wish that every mother and father would take with them and pass on to their children the little message he brought to us yesterday:

"With every day a new day
And every moment new
We'll speak the truth, think the truth
And to the truth be true."

Wives of Famous Men

Mary White, Wife of Robert Morris.

The name Robert Morris ranks with those of Washington, Jefferson and Revere in Revolutionary fame. He was not a soldier, he was a financier, and no war can be successfully carried on without the aid of an able financier. It was through the efforts of Robert Morris that Washington and his troops were able to sustain that terrible winter at Valley Forge.

When Robert Morris married Mary White, one of Philadelphia's belles, he was already a wealthy merchant. Miss White had every requisite of the perfect lady. She was a well educated, carefully trained young woman who came from one of the best families in the colonies. In every respect she was a charming hostess and perfectly fulfilled her duties as a matron of society.

The life of the Morrisses was happy indeed, though during the war they had to leave their home several times to dodge the battles fought in and near Philadelphia. But after the war, when they resumed their daily occupations, their life was pleasant enough. They had the honor of entertaining General and Mrs. Washington in their home when the famous man visited that city. They became very warm friends and Mrs. Morris was always a guest at Mrs. Washington's levees. Their life was unmarred by any sort of domestic trouble until quite near the end. Mrs. Morris' last years were saddened by events which followed one another closely. As the result of a wild land speculation Morris lost all his money and was sent to a debtor's prison. Here he remained for over three years, during which time his wife was with him almost constantly. While he was in prison his eldest son died from a fever which was raging in the city. It was through the aid of Gouverneur Morris that Robert was finally released from the prison. But the effect of the privations he had suffered finally undermined his health, and this great patriot, broken in spirit and body, died a few years after his release, leaving a heart-broken wife.

THE PERIL OF HAPPINESS

Who to see us now would guess
That we had known unhappiness?
We must not live too happily;
We might forget there's misery.

For happiness contentment breeds,
That's like a stream all choked with weeds
Where green scum grows and dead things bide.
We must not be too satisfied.

A stricken heart bleeds song sometimes,
And I think grief is kin to rhymes.
There are things pent within us crying
That only out when joy seems dying.

And there are wounds so wide and deep,
That the whole world pours in to seep,
And comes forth wisely turned to song.
We must not keep our joy too long.

ROTARIANS TOSS CARE TO WINDS IN FIELD DAY AT AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE

Storrs, July 19.—One hundred and twenty-five Rotarians representing the five clubs from eastern Connecticut, accompanied by their wives, daughters and lady friends, departed from the routine trend of business Thursday and gathered at the Connecticut Agricultural College, where they took part in the activities of the big Rotary field day staged under the auspices of the Willimantic Rotary club. A typically Rotarian atmosphere which was evident at all times was the boy-like and carefree spirit with which the Rotarians joined in the festivities. Old and young mixed like boyhood chums and upheld a keen interest in the various stunts and the two hard fought baseball games, which were staged during the day.

The clubs which were represented were New London, Norwich, Putnam, Hartford and Willimantic, the delegation from Hartford being rather small, probably due, as their president, George Tucker, explained, to the results of attending a big field day at Springfield on the day previous.

About 10 o'clock in the morning the visitors began to arrive in automobiles and they were met at the college grounds by a reception committee comprising local members and their wives and lady friends.

The local members were distinguishable by large straw hats and badges designating that they were of the reception committee.

Field Sports.

The field sports got an early start, the first event being a stilt race, the high honors going to "Cliff" Belden of New London, with "Bill" Dawson of Willimantic a close second. There were six entries in the race with the following winners in each of the three heats: First, "Bill" Dawson first, "Roy" Nash of New London second, "Al" Bliven of Norwich third. Second heat, "Cliff" Belden of New London first, "Ed" Corcoran of New London second. The third and final heat was won by a large margin by the Whaling City man.

The shoe race was next on the program and was won by "Ray" Parker of Willimantic, followed closely by "Pete" Laramee of that city and by George Tucker of Hartford. "Charlie" Hill was disqualified for having forgotten to lace his shoe before running back to the line.

The sack race which followed created a great deal of mirth and was run with ten entries. The first heat was won by a human kangaroo, "Al" Bliven of Norwich, "Ray" Parker of Willimantic second, and "Joe" Worth of Norwich third; the second heat, Harry Cook of New London first, "Fred" Baker of New London second and C. W. Hill third.

Willimantic Wins Ball Game.

The Willimantic-Putnam baseball game was the big feature of the morning sports events and resulted in a severe thrashing for the visiting club, the contest coming to a close at the end of the fourth inning with the score 18 to 4 in favor of the Thread cityites.

The pleasing sound of the dinner bell was heard about 1 o'clock and the party retired to the college dining hall where about 300 covers were laid. The menu follows: Tomato salad, string beans, chicken leg, apple pie and ice cream, tea and rolls.

The dinner was enlivened by numerous songs and speeches by members of the visiting clubs. A brief address of welcome was made by the president of the Willimantic club, James P. Mustard, who in turn introduced President Charles L. Beach of the Connecticut Agricultural College. President Beach made timely remarks on the advantages of the college and the necessity of trained farmers. He was loudly applauded at the conclusion of his remarks.

Jim Hammond's Slogan.

"Jim" Hammond of New London, who was a center of activity and fun throughout the entire day, was next called upon and he favored his audience in his own inimitable manner, leading the New London boys in several verses of a good old Rotary song. "Jim" then decided that as the affair was so enjoyable in every way those present should adopt a slogan and this is what "Jim" recited: "Step by step, I'm full of pep, I'm young, I'm growing younger." There is no need to say that the slogan was fully endorsed by all those present.

President "Bill" Park of the Norwich club led his fellow members in a well rendered song for which an encore was requested. A beautiful vocal selection, The Girl From the East, was then rendered by "Henry" La Fontaine of the Norwich club, assisted by Mrs. "Alex" McNicol, Mrs. "Al" Bliven, Mrs. "Charlie" Taylor and Mrs. "Bert" Agnew. Following this a burlesque was staged by "Rue" Bliven, Hugh Campbell, Lou Wheeler and Joe Dorth.

District Governor Speaks.

George E. Tucker, president of the Hartford club, talked briefly to the gathering and then introduced the guest of honor of the day, District Governor George Cooper, who recently succeeded "Don" Adams as governor of the 30th district of Rotary International. "George" said that he was happy in the possibilities of service above self which his new position offered and he hoped that during his term of office he would never overlook a single Rotarian or club to whom he could be of some service. The speaker stated that it pleased him to appear before four generations of Rotary clubs. He based his statement on the fact that the New London club fathered the Norwich club which in turn fathered the Willimantic club and the Willimantic club established the Putnam club. The new governor related a few humorous stories and gave some advice. At the conclusion of his brief talk he was heartily applauded with cries of "More! More!" coming from the audience. Mrs. Cooper then stood beside her husband, and both were loudly cheered.

Live Stock Parade.

The livestock parade was the next feature on the extensive program for the day. Fine specimen of cattle and horses were led through part of the college grounds and were highly praised by the spectators. "Bert" Gager of Norwich led one of the animals and he was the mark of many humorous remarks.

New London 11, Norwich 10.

After returning to the baseball diamond in the rear of Hawley armory the fans took seats in the grandstand and the New London and Norwich baseball nines stepped out on the field to warm up for the big game.

"Bert" Gager had umpired for the Willimantic-Putnam game in the forenoon so it was decided that the best method to avoid arguments was to secure an impartial "ump" and consequently "Umpire Moran", Rockville, appeared on the scene to take charge of the afternoon game. The Norwich outfit flashed out in regular uniforms and with a determination to come out of the conflict with their colors flying high. They were doomed for a disappointment, however, as the final score, after a heart-breaking 12-inning game was 11 to 10 in favor of the "Whalers."

During the process of the game, the B. P. O. E. band from Willimantic, with C. N. C. Wheeler directing, rendered a fine concert on the grounds. Dancing was enjoyed from 4 to 6 o'clock in the Hawley armory with music by the band. Refreshments were served during the dance. The attending members and friends started homeward about 6.30 o'clock and all wore a tired smile of content. Professor Richard E. Dodge, Willimantic Rotarian, and member of the faculty of the college, had charge of the program and is deserving of a great deal of credit for his part in arranging the successful field day.

BRANDEGEE AND M'LEAN TAKE SENATE PROMINENCE

Importance of Connecticut in the nation's councils receives a big boost as the result of the death of Senator Dillingham of Vermont, says George H. Manning in an article in The Bridgeport Telegram.

Senator Brandegee becomes chairman of the senate judiciary committee, one of the most important bodies in congress especially so in view of the fact that it has charge of all prohibition legislation. Senator McLean moves up within close range of the chairmanship of the powerful finance committee, and will also take rank on the interstate commerce committee.

At the close of the last congress, Senator Brandege stood third in the majority membership of the judiciary committee, both Senator Nelson of Minnesota and Senator Dillingham of Vermont being ahead of him, and slated to return. Since March 4, however, both men have died, leaving the Connecticut senator as the ranking republican on the committee, and therefore practically certain to become its next chairman. In all probability he will tender his resignation as chairman of the library committee, which is of minor importance, in order to accept the more important position, the rules prohibiting the chairman of any of the major committees holding other chairmanships.

In Foreign Affairs.

In the next congress Senator Brandegee will also be the third ranking republican on the foreign relations committee, which will undoubtedly occupy the center of the stage for a large part of the next session by virtue of the fight certain to be waged over the foreign policy of the United States. This is one step nearer the top than that occupied by him during the last session. Senator McCumber, who was second, having been defeated, leaving only Senator Borah between the Connecticut senator and Senator Lodge, the chairman.

Senator McLean will retain his position as chairman of the banking and currency committee; he will also be the third ranking republican on the finance committee, two places higher than in the last congress. Senator McCumber, the former chairman, will not return; Senator Smoot will become chairman with Senator La Follette next in order; Senator Dillingham would have been third member, but his death leaves this place to be taken by the Connecticut member.

Due to the failure of Senators Townsend and Poindexter to return to the next congress, Senator McLean will be the third majority member on the interstate commerce committee, being preceded only by Senator Cummins, chairman and Senator La Follette.

Other Committee Places.

Besides these major assignments, Senator McLean has been a member of the committee on territories and insular possessions. He is now the senior member but cannot, of course accept the chairmanship in addition to that which he now holds on the banking committee. He may of may not continue to serve on the committee. Senator Brandegee, likewise, may return on the library committee, and he is also a member of the committee on patents and minor assignments.

Foreign relations, prohibition, railroad legislation, and financial legislation—the four paramount issues of the day, which are expected to occupy by far the greater part of the sixty-eighth congress—all these matters will be largely controlled by the committees on which the Connecticut senators occupy high places; and no doubt the positions of these two men on these momentous issues will have a determining influence on the measures passed by the next congress, which will have the most vital effect on the life of the country for many years to come.

Merely as one instance, witness the great consternation in the ranks of the bone-dry leaders over the accession of Senator Brandegee, who has never countenanced by his vote or influence any of their pet measures, to the chairmanship of the judiciary committee.

Want Policeman at Playgrounds

The police department had a request Thursday to have an officer assigned to the Lake street playgrounds from 6.30 to 9 in the evening. The officer was needed, it was said, to keep adults off the playgrounds.

CAME DOWN LADDER AT WATERBURY HOTEL FIRE

William G. Gilchrist of 54 Peck St., a salesman for the Norwich Belt Manufacturing Co., who was registered Wednesday night at the Hodson hotel in Waterbury, which was burned with the loss of two lives, one of them William L. Cramer of this city, reached his home early Thursday evening.

Although obliged to come down ladder from his room on the third story at the hotel, he sustained no injury and saved all his effects except a toothbrush.

Speaking of his experiences, Mr. Gilchrist said Thursday night that if he had had his usual room at the hotel he would have been where the fire was, as this was a new part where the best rooms were located and it was there that Mr. Cramer had a room. When Mr. Gilchrist registered the hotel was so filled up that he had to take a room in the old part and the flames did not reach that section of the building. He retired about 9.30 and along about 11 heard the fire engines and other noises in the street but did not pay any attention to it, as that is a noisy section of the city with the racket of automobile horns and trolley cars. Soon he heard the noise of pounding on doors and the shouts of "fire," which shortly reached his own room. Then he got out of bed in a hurry. His first thought was to see what his chances were so he opened the door to look into the hall. This was well filled with smoke and at the first end he could see the flicker of flame. He concluded he wasn't in any immediate danger, went back into his room, shut the transoms and proceeded to dress. He put on his underclothes, socks, shoes unlaced, trousers, coat and hat. His shirt, collar and tie, and other articles spread out on the dresser he swept into his traveling bag. While so engaged the people in the street could see him in his room and kept shouting to him. He felt in no danger but he wanted to be ready in time when the firemen arrived so as not to delay them in their rescue of others. Mr. Gilchrist thinks he was the last man taken out of that part of the building. When a ladder was pushed up to his window, he handed his bag to a fireman, while he took his umbrella and followed the fireman down the ladder. He finished dressing in the street. The man in the room next to him had got out in a panic and was standing in the street barefooted.

Storrs, July 19.—One hundred and twenty-five Rotarians representing the five clubs from eastern Connecticut, accompanied by their wives, daughters and lady friends, departed from the routine trend of business Thursday and gathered at the Connecticut Agricultural College, where they took part in the activities of the big Rotary field day staged under the auspices of the Willimantic Rotary club. A typically Rotarian atmosphere which was evident at all times was the boy-like and carefree spirit with which the Rotarians joined in the festivities. Old and young mixed like boyhood chums and upheld a keen interest in the various stunts and the two hard fought baseball games, which were staged during the day.

The clubs which were represented were New London, Norwich, Putnam, Hartford and Willimantic, the delegation from Hartford being rather small, probably due, as their president, George Tucker, explained, to the results of attending a big field day at Springfield on the day previous.

About 10 o'clock in the morning the visitors began to arrive in automobiles and they were met at the college grounds by a reception committee comprising local members and their wives and lady friends.

The local members were distinguishable by large straw hats and badges designating that they were of the reception committee.

Field Sports.

The field sports got an early start, the first event being a stilt race, the high honors going to "Cliff" Belden of New London, with "Bill" Dawson of Willimantic, a close second. There were six entries in the race with the following winners in each of the three heats: First, "Bill" Dawson first, "Roy" Nash of New London second, "Al" Bliven of Norwich third. Second heat, "Cliff" Belden of New London first, "Ed" Corcoran of New London second. The third and final heat was won by a large margin by the Whaling City man.

The shoe race was next on the program and was won by "Ray" Parker of Willimantic, followed closely by "Pete" Laramee of that city and by George Tucker of Hartford. "Charlie" Hill was disqualified for having forgotten to lace his shoe before running back to the line.

The sack race which followed created a great deal of mirth and was run with ten entries. The first heat was won by a human kangaroo, "Al" Bliven of Norwich, "Ray" Parker of Willimantic second, and "Joe" Worth of Norwich third; the second heat, Harry Cook of New London first, "Fred" Baker of New London second and C. W. Hill third.

Willimantic Wins Ball Game.

The Willimantic-Putnam baseball game was the big feature of the morning sports events and resulted in a severe thrashing for the visiting club, the contest coming to a close at the end of the fourth inning with the score 15 to 4 in favor of the Thread cityites.

The pleasing sound of the dinner bell was heard about 1 o'clock and the party retired to the college dining hall where about 300 covers were laid. The menu follows: Tomato salad, string beans, chicken leg, apple pie and ice cream, tea and rolls.

The dinner was enlivened by numerous songs and speeches by members of the visiting clubs. A brief address of welcome was made by the president of the Willimantic club, James P. Mustard, who in turn introduced President Charles L. Beach of the Connecticut Agricultural College. President Beach made timely remarks on the advantages of the college and the necessity of trained farmers. He was loudly applauded at the conclusion of his remarks.

Jim Hammond's Slogan.

"Jim" Hammond of New London, who was a center of activity and fun throughout the entire day, was next called upon and he favored his audience in his own inimitable manner, leading the New London boys in several verses of a good old Rotary song. "Jim" then decided that as the affair was so enjoyable in every way those present should adopt a slogan and this is what "Jim" recited: "Step by step, I'm full of pep, I'm young, I'm growing younger." There is no need to say that the slogan was fully endorsed by all those present.

President "Bill" Park of the Norwich club led his fellow members in a well rendered song for which an encore was requested. A beautiful vocal selection, The Girl From the East, was then rendered by "Henry" La Fontaine of the Norwich club, assisted by Mrs. "Alex" McNicol, Mrs. "Al" Bliven, Mrs. "Charlie" Taylor and Mrs. "Bert" Agnew. Following this a burlesque was staged by "Rue" Bliven, Hugh Campbell, Lou Wheeler and Joe Dorth.

District Governor Speaks.

George E. Tucker, president of the Hartford club, talked briefly to the gathering and then introduced the guest of honor of the day, District Governor George Cooper, who recently succeeded "Don" Adams as governor of the 36th district of Rotary International. "George" said that he was happy in the possibilities of service above self which his new position offered and he hoped that during his term of office he would never overlook a single Rotarian or club to whom he could be of some service. The speaker stated that it pleased him to appear before four generations of Rotary clubs. He based his statement on the fact that the New London club fathered the Norwich club which in turn fathered the Willimantic club and the Willimantic club established the Putnam club. The new governor related a few humorous stories and gave some advice. At the conclusion of his brief talk he was heartily applauded with cries of "More! More!" coming from the audience. Mrs. Cooper then stood beside her husband, and both were loudly cheered.

Live Stock Parade.

The livestock parade was the next feature on the extensive program for the day. Fine specimen of cattle and horses were led through part of the college grounds and were highly praised by the spectators. "Bert" Gager of Norwich led one of the animals and he was the mark of many humorous remarks.

New London 11, Norwich 10.

After returning to the baseball diamond in the rear of Hawley armory the fans took seats in the grandstand and the New London and Norwich baseball nines stepped out on the field to warm up for the big game.

"Bert" Gager had umpired for the Willimantic-Putnam game in the forenoon so it was decided that the best method to avoid arguments was to secure an impartial "ump" and consequently "Umpire Moran", Rockville, appeared on the scene to take charge of the afternoon game. The Norwich outfit flashed out in regular uniforms and with a determination to come out of the conflict with their colors flying high. They were doomed for a disappointment, however, as the final score, after a heart-breaking 12-inning game was 11 to 10 in favor of the "Whalers."

During the process of the game, the B. P. O. E. band from Willimantic, with C. N. C. Wheeler directing, rendered a fine concert on the grounds. Dancing was enjoyed from 4 to 6 o'clock in the Hawley armory with music by the band. Refreshments were served during the dance. The attending members and friends started homeward about 6.30 o'clock and all wore a tired smile of content. Professor Richard E. Dodge, Willimantic Rotarian, and member of the faculty of the college, had charge of the program and is deserving of a great deal of credit for his part in arranging the successful field day.

BRANDEGEE AND M'LEAN TAKE SENATE PROMINENCE

Importance of Connecticut in the nation's councils receives a big boost as the result of the death of Senator Dillingham of Vermont, says George H. Manning in an article in The Bridgeport Telegram.

Senator Brandegee becomes chairman of the senate judiciary committee, one of the most important bodies in congress especially so in view of the fact that it has charge of all prohibition legislation. Senator McLean moves up within close range of the chairmanship of the powerful finance committee, and will also take rank on the interstate commerce committee.

At the close of the last congress, Senator Brandegee stood third in the majority membership of the judiciary committee, both Senator Nelson of Minnesota and Senator Dillingham of Vermont being ahead of him, and slated to return. Since March 4, however, both men have died, leaving the Connecticut senator as the ranking republican on the committee, and therefore practically certain to become its next chairman. In all probability he will tender his resignation as chairman of the library committee, which is of minor importance, in order to accept the more important position, the rules prohibiting the chairman of any of the major committees holding other chairmanships.

In Foreign Affairs.

In the next congress Senator Brandegee will also be the third ranking republican on the foreign relations committee, which will undoubtedly occupy the center of the stage for a large part of the next session by virtue of the fight certain to be waged over the foreign policy of the United States. This is one step nearer the top than that occupied by him during the last session. Senator McCumber, who was second, having been defeated, leaving only Senator Borah between the Connecticut senator and Senator Lodge, the chairman.

Senator McLean will retain his position as chairman of the banking and currency committee; he will also be the third ranking republican on the finance committee, two places higher than in the last congress. Senator McCumber, the former chairman, will not return; Senator Smoot will become chairman with Senator La Follette next in order; Senator Dillingham would have been third member, but his death leaves this place to be taken by the Connecticut member.

Due to the failure of Senators Townsend and Poindexter to return to the next congress, Senator McLean will be the third majority member on the interstate commerce committee, being preceded only by Senator Cummins, chairman and Senator La Follette.

Other Committee Places.

Besides these major assignments, Senator McLean has been a member of the committee on territories and insular possessions. He is now the senior member but cannot, of course accept the chairmanship in addition to that which he now holds on the banking committee. He may of may not continue to serve on the committee. Senator Brandegee, likewise, may return on the library committee, and he is also a member of the committee on patents and minor assignments.

Foreign relations, prohibition, railroad legislation, and financial legislation—the four paramount issues of the day, which are expected to occupy by far the greater part of the sixty-eighth congress—all these matters will be largely controlled by the committees on which the Connecticut senators occupy high places; and no doubt the positions of these two men on these momentous issues will have a determining influence on the measures passed by the next congress, which will have the most vital effect on the life of the country for many years to come.

Merely as one instance, witness the great consternation in the ranks of the bone-dry leaders over the accession of Senator Brandegee, who has never countenanced by his vote or influence any of their pet measures, to the chairmanship of the judiciary committee.

Want Policeman at Playgrounds.

The police department had a request Thursday to have an officer assigned to the Lake street playgrounds from 6.30 to 8 in the evening. The officer was needed, it was said, to keep adults off the playgrounds.

CAME DOWN LADDER AT WATERBURY HOTEL FIRE

William G. Gilchrist of 54 Peck St., a salesman for the Norwich Belt Manufacturing Co., who was registered Wednesday night at the Hodson hotel in Waterbury, which was burned with the loss of two lives, one of them William L. Cramer of this city, reached his home early Thursday evening.

Although obliged to come down ladder from his room on the third story at the hotel, he sustained no injury and saved all his effects except a toothbrush.

Speaking of his experiences, Mr. Gilchrist said Thursday night that if he had had his usual room at the hotel he would have been where the fire was, as this was a new part where the best rooms were located and it was there that Mr. Cramer had a room. When Mr. Gilchrist registered the hotel was so filled up that he had to take a room in the old part and the flames did not reach that section of the building. He retired about 9.30 and along about 11 heard the fire engines and other noises in the street but did not pay any attention to it, as that is a noisy section of the city with the racket of automobile horns and roller cars. Soon he heard the noise of pounding on doors and the shouts of "fire", which shortly reached his own room. Then he got out of bed in a hurry. His first thought was to see what his chances were so he opened the door to look into the hall. This was well filled with smoke and at the far end he could see the flicker of flame. He concluded he wasn't in any immediate danger, went back into his room, shut the transom and proceeded to dress. He put on his underclothes, socks, shoes unlaced, trousers, coat and hat. His shirt, collar and tie, and other articles spread out on the dresser he swept into his traveling bag.

While so engaged the people in the street could see him in his room and kept shouting to him. He felt in no danger but he wanted to be ready in time when the firemen arrived so as not to delay them in their rescue of others. Mr. Gilchrist thinks he was the last man taken out of that part of the building. When a ladder was pushed up to his window, he handed his bag to a fireman, while he took his umbrella and followed the fireman down the ladder. He finished dressing in the street. The man in the room next to him had got out in a panic and was standing in the street barefooted.

Thursday morning Mr. Gilchrist went back to the hotel and recovered his nightshirt which he had left behind in the room. Upon reaching the ground the night before he had looked at his watch which showed 11.20.

He did not see Mr. Cramer hanging to the window ledge but saw him brought out after he had dropped to the ground. It was learned here Thursday night that although Mr. Cramer was terribly burned about the hands and legs, he was able to walk to a drug store into which he was taken and and he also walked from the drug store to the ambulance in which he was taken to the hospital. In spite of his intense suffering he remained conscious until he died.

Mr. Gilchrist spoke in praise of the hotel clerk, a Mr. Parker, 75 years old, who went all over the hotel through the smoke arousing the guests.

MARKET CONDITIONS.

Norwich Market Conditions: The markets are now well filled with the following products, including watermelons, cantaloupes, beets, carrots, green peas, string beans, and broilers. The demand at present is mostly around beets, carrots, string beans, cantaloupes, new potatoes and broilers. Native cabbage sold today for 3 1-2 to 4 cents a pound. Supplies are increasing from day to day. Watermelons are supplied to the markets now in larger quantities. The demand for this product is very slow and due to the conditions supplies are piling up on the market from day to day. Red raspberries are supplied to the markets in small quantities and at present are very high in price. String beans are moving along fast now that the prices are lower. Currants are in practically no demand and the same applies to asparagus.

The lard markets are firmer. Beef markets are still very high. Choice beef still brings around 26 cents a pound.

The summer meeting of the Ashford Union Bible Society will be held in Warrenville parish Wednesday, Aug. 15.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Rev. Albert Jepson, minister in charge of St. Alban's church in Danielson and rector of Trinity church, Brooklyn, has filed his resignation, to be effective September 1, to become rector of St. John's church at Warehouse Point, where the church membership is about double that of St. Alban's.

September 1, Rev. Mr. Jepson will have rounded out six years and three months of faithful service in Danielson, to which place he came from Trinity church in Torrington, where he was curate for four years.

Members of St. Alban's and the members of Trinity parish at Brooklyn will regret his departure for a new field but will wish him every success.

Several weeks ago a committee of vestrymen of St. John's church Warehouse Point, came here to attend a Sunday service at St. Alban's. They were so impressed that negotiations have since been under way with a view to having Rev. Mr. Jepson go to St. John's.

Rev. Mr. Jepson's labors here have been fruitful and his good works aboundant. Many outside of the churches he has served will miss him, as they will regret the departure of Mrs. Jepson also.

The popular lyric pertaining to the momentous proposition that we have no bananas today might be rivaled by proper treatment of a story of a woman who was reported here "thursday as going to a market to buy the essentials for an old fashioned New England boiled dinner. The marketman had selected a nice piece of corned beef, a few beets, a turnip, a carrot and a parsnip, also a small head of cabbage when the buyer announced that she thought that would be all. Don't you want a few potatoes?" the marketman inquired. "No, thank you," began the somewhat startling reply. "my husband picked a large supply of wild potatoes last fall and we haven't used them all yet!"

Pierre Gaxeau, 74, a native of France, died Wednesday night at his home on Dyer street. He had been in failing health for about two years. Mr. Gaxeau was head of one of numerous families who came to Danielson from France and settled in this community a little more than 30 years ago. He was employed during his active years at various kinds of labor and for a long period drove one of the teams of the Danielson Cotton company. Mr. Gaxeau and his family came here from the vicinity of Nantes, where other French citizens of Danielson formerly lived.

Mr. Gaxeau leaves one son, Pierre Gaxeau, Jr., of Danielson and five daughters, Mrs. Jane Rainville of New Bedford, Misses Mary, Louise, Leonie and Phoebe, all of Danielson. Mrs. Gaxeau died here in December of last year.

His Dayville relatives and a number of his friends from that place—where he formerly was a resident—will be in Woonsocket this morning to attend funeral services for John Quinn, 45, who died in Woonsocket Wednesday morning. He is survived by his wife and five children. T. Francis Quinn of Dayville is a brother.

These are halcyon days for the berry pickers. Daily now in the early morning or after the noon time meal, one may see long queues of young people and some no longer quite so young trailing out of the borough toward the pastures where huckleberries are to be found in great abundance. Only a small percentage of the berries being picked are for immediate use. Of the thousands of quarts that will be picked hereabouts within the next few weeks the far greater part will be preserved for use during those dead periods of the year when only the icicle plants are in bloom out of doors.

A checkup of real estate transfers in Danielson within the past few months show a volume of business not approached in many years, as pertains to property in the business center. The sales have included the Echange block, the Burlingham properties at the corner of Main and Academy street, the Evans block and the string of small business buildings known as the Knight property. Another important transaction was that in which the Bodo buildings on Main street, near Union street were taken over by Peter Jodoin. The transaction involved the echange of property valued at approximately $150,000. The buying furore has been at its height within the past few weeks and possibly may not have ended yet.

The first of the trout that are to be sent here by the state fish and game commission for distribution in local brooks are expected to arrive today (Friday) and further shipments are scheduled to get here on Saturday.

Next week Wednesday will bring the big lawn fete arranged by the Killingly Woman's club in the interest of the Nurses' Home fund of the Day Kimball hospital. The affair is to be held at the residence of Timothy E. Hopkins on North Main street.

Disabled World war veterans here are interested in announcements relative to the camp that will be held for them during August at Niantic, a period during which they will be extended many courtesies.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray H. Morse of Broad street are away on a motor trip that will take them into New York state and probably as far as Niagara Falls.

The Service battery 192 Field Artillery, will leave here early in September for a stay of two weeks at Camp Eustis, Va.

It is pointed out for the benefit of many drivers of motor cars that sounding a horn for a cross streets is not only obligation resting on a careful driver. The car also should be slowed down—something many drivers operating here fail to do.

East Killingly residents expressed themselves Thursday as pleased over that locality being considered for state highway improvement and such building as may be done can not come too quick to suit them.

There was a regular field of automobiles at Wildwood park Thursday evening for the mid-week dance at the popular resort.

PUTNAM

There is a smile on the face and a satisfied look about every member of the day force of Putnam's police, from the captain down. No more will they sweiter in the tightly buttoned regulation blue woolen blouse, for the mayor, acting as ex-officio chief of the police department, gave permission Wednesday night that coats might be laid aside. Thursday morning the day men, including the captain, appeared without coats, wearing spick and span white shirts in blouse effect with badges pinned to the left side. The "gats" carried by the members were suspended from the hip and if the lack of apprt of their blue woolen uniforms make them less formidable the exposure of these weapons offset it. The matter of lighter uniforms was brought up at a meeting of the council but no action was taken. Many citizens believed that the police would be just as efficient in lighter wearing apparel in the hot sun of July and August days. The mayor took the matter into his own hands much to the pleasure of the members of the force. Added to the new uniform will be white caps, much lighter than those now worn. These will appear this (Friday) morning as they have already arrived.

Work was begun Thursday morning to enlarge what is known as Tourtellotte's swimming hole in the Little river. The plan is to erect a dam to enlarge the area of the bathing place and it is hoped that it will be ready for use the first of the week. The carrying out of the plan was made possible by the donation of $300 by Putnam lodge of Elks and by the land owner, Henry Keech, allowing the place to be so used without charge. Bathing is without charge—all that is required is that bathers bring bathing suits. As soon as possible a dressing room will be erected for boys and another for girls. While anyone may bathe in the pool, the accommodation is especially for the benefit of children.

From Grandma to the Baby

What makes the children romp and play,
The old folks act so bright and gay?
Why, eating Mapl-Flake each day;
To good health thus they pave the way.

Mapl-Flake is the "food that keeps you right"—a whole wheat flake with all of the bran left in. There's enough bran to be a harmless, natural laxative—and yet it is so hidden in the delightful flavor that you would never know it's there.

We take selected whole wheat, sweeten it, flake it, and toast it to a delicious brown. You get all of the nutrition in the whole wheat. You get vitamins A and B which science has discovered are so necessary to good health and "farm hand" appetites. And you get the harmless, non-habit-forming laxative action of the bran as well—all of the pleasure of eating a tasty nourishing food, all of the advantage of bran.

$1000 in Prizes for Jingles

Come on, you Mapl-Flakers! Write a four-line jingle telling how good Mapl-Flake is and how good it is for you. Write a lot of them—and win one of 165 prizes. First prize, $250. Contest closes August 15, 1923. Mail your entries early to the Contest Manager, Armour Grain Company Chicago, Ill.

"VANITY FAIR" AT THE BROADWAY

Thackersy's designing little baggage Becky Sharp, who is the central figure in that novelist's most famous book, lives upon the screen in Mabel Ballin's delineation of her in Hugo Ballin's picturisation of "Vanity Fair," distributed by Goldwyn, which was shown at the Broadway theatre last night. Miss Ballin is an eye-filling picture as the green-eyed and clever little Becky who lived by exercising her wits and her wiles upon her many masculine admirers.

In addition to Miss Ballin, there is Hobart Bosworth as the Marquis of Steyne, a role that he played years ago upon the speaking stage with great success. He gives a capable and eminently satisfying performance in keeping with the excellent work of Miss Ballin. The other immortal roles of the story are taken by Harrison Ford, Earle Foxe, George Walsh, Eleanor Boardman, Willard Louis, Robert Mack and a score of others "Vanity Fair" is a great human picture with an appeal to everybody.

The picture will be seen again today and Saturday in addition to a comedy and News Weekly

BREED THEATRE

All the beauty, youth and freshness that is Viola Dana has been captured anew for the screen in her latest starring play, "A Noise in Newboro," which comes to the Breed theatre today and Saturday. According to advance reports, this latest Metro vehicle for the winsome little star is filled with verve and action, qualities which stress her abilities. And her abilities are many and varied, as this picture will show. She is sad, she is frolicsome; she is depressed and light hearted but chiefly she is light hearted and all of these emotions she interprets with an incomparable naturalness. This new play is easily the best Miss Dana has ever had to exhibit her skill and versatility. Likewise, she has surpassed herself in meets its diversified situations.

She has full opportunity in this rapidly moving story to display that particular brand of comedy which is associated with this elfin comedienne par excellence.

Miss Dana plays the role of a small town girl is snubbed because she has no money. Newboro be the kind of town that does not provide an echo of approval for anything that can't make a noise like the old metallic eagle. But Martha, in her resentment, vows that she'll make a noise in Newboro, alright alright.

"A Noise in Newboro" is a Harry Beaumont production. The screen version was prepared by Rex Taylor from the story by Edgar Franklin. The photoplay was done by John Arnold.

WONDERFUL PROGRAM AT THE STRAND THEATRE

One of the very best programs of the year was presented last night to a large well pleased audience at the Strand Theatre.

An unbeatable combination of concert music, Keith vaudeville and photoplay special was in vogue.

The order of the acts presented were Harry Brooks & Co., three people in a very fine comedy novelty called The Old Minstrel Man.

Art Stanley had a very clever variety act that was well received.

Lennie & Dale, a bright duo presented "The Grocery Boy" which was a bright concoction of song and comedy.

The Whirlwind Four closed with a speedy dance and song revue that made a splendid closing number.

Priscilla Dean scores again. This time it is the Hobart Henley Universal-Jewel production, "The Flame of Life," an adaptation of one of Frances Hodgson Burnett's famous novels, which began an engagement of three days at the Strand Theatre last night.

In "The Flame of Life", she gives a vivid portrayal of an English girl slate picker during the days when the entire laboring class was looked upon by their so-called betters as "the scum of the earth"

STONINGTON

At the annual meeting of Stonington Community House association, Inc., it was shown by the report of the treasurer that $1,724.61 had been received during the year and that there is in the treasury $52.13. The nominating committee appointed are Frank Dodge, F. W. Cutler and Rev. Dwight C. Stone. The matter of keeping the Community house open was considered and this will be done for another year. Rev. Henry M. Thompson, D. D., told of the use of the house by the several organizations that had made a practice of meeting there and of the appreciation of the people at Mr. Bradley's generosity in providing a place for this purpose. He thought its closing would be a little short of a calamity and moved that the association be continued for the season of 1923-24. Edward E. Bradley suggested that if the meeting voted in favor of this motion that those present should do their utmost to see that the finances of the association were kept up to the amount needed. He spoke of the lack of interest shown and of the work necessary to keep the organization in existence. He stated that it would take $2,000 to keep the association going through the year; he also asked if some kind of an entertainment could not be arranged for on the 10th of August to raise funds. H. R. Palmer remarked that the hall in Community house made the best meeting place that the town had ever had and that he wanted to see the association carry on. Mrs. F. L. Carrington spoke of the need of the hall for Girl Scout work and of the necessity of keeping open for community work. She favored the replacing of the pool tables and keeping up the reading room, and told of the coming exhibition and sale to be given by the Girl Scouts. The clock and tower on Community house came in for considerable discussion. Frank D. Grandy asking several questions regarding whether the clock was paid for and to whom the bill was rendered and asked to have the minutes read of the meeting that gave permission for its installation. Judge L. D. Fairbrother had considerable information on this subject, also took opportunity to state that he thought the clock should not be run counter to the laws of the state.

It was disclosed that a balance is still due the carpenter for the work of installing the clock and building the tower. At the time it was proposed to erect the tower for the accommodation of the clock the tower was built on simple lines and the cost was understood to be in the neighborhood of $50. Later the plans were altered to make the tower conform to the architecture of the building and now there is a sum due for this work that amounts to over $260. However, we hear that an energetic effort is to be made at once to raise money to be paid on this sum, for which Contractor Paterson has so patiently waited. Others who took part in the general discussion were Wilfred Brown, Mrs. Brown, Eugene Edwards and Albert Mason.

Mr. Mason desired that the meeting be postponed until a committee could ascertain whether or not the necessary funds can be raised to insure a continuance of the organization, but a vote was taken on the motion to continue and this seemed to be the opinion of the members. The following officers were elected unanimously: President, Dr. Owen Dannehey; vice president, Henry R. Palmer; secretary, Robert L. Burtch; treasurer, Harry W. Babcock; board of governors, Eugene P. Edwards, Judge Lorenze D. Fairbrother, Edward Bradley, Miss Louise Trumbull, Mrs. Frank Stanton. A house and entertainment committee was also appointed, also an auditing committee composed of Robert Burtch, Stanley Pierce and H. M. Friedman.

Application blanks for subscribers to one or more shares which have a maturity value of $200 each, were passed among those present, and about 150 shares were taken. These shares are to be paid for on the installment basis and it is understood that enough shares will be taken in full payment to warrant loaning money for purchases or erection of dwellings if the association so wishes when duly organized and incorporated. The meeting was called to order by James Cooper, who was invited to preside, and C. H. Reynolds was chosen clerk.

Dr. George S. B. Leonard, John Wheeler, and Howard Duell were named as a nominating committee to recommend a board of 13 directors and upon their recommendation the following were unanimously chosen: Henry Noyes, Walter H. Lathrop, L. E. Kinney, Peter Flynn, Norton Wheeler, E. W. Gaskell, Sidney Siswick, Albert George, Clarence Reynolds, A. Schiffer, Dr. George Leonard and James Cooper. KEELER, AT 80, GOES TO WORK

After fourteen years of enforced idleness because of ill health, J. H. Keeler, widely known Maryland citizen, has gained forty pounds at the age of eighty years and gone back to work every day. Mr. Keeler, who resides at 3706 Thirty-Second Street, Mt. Rainer, Md., gives entire credit for his extraordinary rehabilitation to Tanlac.

"My stomach was in such terrible condition I could hardly digest a thing," says Mr. Keeler. "It would swell to nearly twice its normal size and I would have frightful pains through my stomach and back. I felt so weak, dizzy and miserable, work was out of the question. In fact, my friends gave me up on three or four different occasions.

"Five months ago I began taking Tanlac and improved from the very first bottle. I now eat anything on the table, have gained forty pounds, and am back at work every day. Actually, I feel like a boy again. It would be ungrateful of me not to praise Tanlac."

(Written Specially For The Bulletin.)

Gradually and by slow degrees, the idea that something is wrong with the "rooral deestricts" begins to filter into the alleged consciousness of the big city papers.

In the midst of such more interesting news as the last baseball game, the newest prize fight, or the most recent pay roll robbery, are appearing from time to time items concerning the steady diminution of farm activities.

Just at present, it is the drift of Negro farm laborers from the south which is stirring up a sort of interest in the news purveyors. Their propinquity to the cotton market and their solicitude over its ups and downs makes them sensitive to anything which threatens disturbance of that market. They call attention to the fact that 424,000 Negro farm hands left the South Atlantic states in 1922—about 11 per cent. of the total farm-hand population of those states. This seems to threaten the production of cotton in its usual amount and at its usual price.

Similarly, the attention now devoted to the wheat-pit is rather more than has been customary. The fluctuations of wheat in price are gravely discussed and it actually begins to dawn on a few specially keen minds that these are in some measure due to wheat production, and not wholly to the manipulations of the wheat-pit gamblers.

Now, these slight changes of attitude on the part of the self-named "metropolitan press," while perhaps not very important, are yet somewhat significant. The readers of these papers are mostly city peoples. The editors, naturally, seek to supply those readers with the sort of reading they want. This explains the prominence given to prize-fights, ball games, golf tournaments, pay-roll robberies, movie divorces, etc. If, now, the editors make room for news concerning the decadence of country activities, it must be because they find or think they find some interest among at least a few of their readers in this latter phase of our twentieth century degeneration.

It is just that one thing which makes the matter significant—the implication that even a few city newspaper readers are beginning to observe that there is a handwriting on the wall.

Neither they nor their editorial mentors seem yet able to read it. They make some rather ridiculous attempts at translation. But it is encouraging that they should make any attempts at all: that they should find any proportion among their readers interested in such matters.

For, hitherto, about the only interest city people have taken in the farms has lain in the seeking out of sufficiently contemptuous cuss-words to express their opinion of us hayseeds. That they should now begin to realize that they, themselves, have a sort of dependence on the cotton and wheat crops tends to encourage the hope that they'll eventually turn an occasional glance at even such minor productions as those of New England agriculture.

It would be as absurd as it would be wicked to insinuate that there is any radical antagonism between country and city dwellers. Like all human beings, each class sees life through its own local goggles. Absorbed in their own somewhat feverish struggle for existence, city residents see very little and that little not clearly of the life-and-death battle which is going on over all the hills and along all the back-roads of the open country. Hitherto, they have been inclined to poohpooh rural complaints. It is, therefore, matter for distinct encouragement, as has already been said, to find that even a small percentage of them are now trying to find some explanation of the famous old conundrum, "What is the Matter with Farming?"

Of course, congressmen and would-be congressmen who want the farmer vote have been fairly slobbering over us for years with a sympathy as cantingly insincere as it has been ignorant. We have got so used to that sort of thing that we discount it at fairly near its real value.

They have sobbed on our shoulders till we've had to use our own bandannas in wiping their tears away. But that was simply because they wanted our votes. We should have appreciated much more highly a little less maudlin but more intelligent sympathy from our customers, the "final consumers" of the cities.

It is, at times, alleviating to have some kindred soul weep with us. But it is more effectively consolatory to have some appreciative customer pay a fair price for our pork and cabbages.

The nostrums and patent medicines which the politicians have offered and are still offering us are about as numerous, about as diverse, and fully as worthless as the contents of an unassorted rag-bag. But we can see some hope in the growth, however slight, of interest among the people of the cities who are and always must be the biggest buyers of farm products. It has hitherto been matter for just complaint among us that they didn't understand our problems, didn't seem to want to understand them or find out anything about them.

They were voluble enough in denouncing, but slow in investigating. They went off at half-cock, and generally before they knew what they were shooting at. If they are now beginning to open their eyes and look around to see where their proper game is hidden, we of the farm lands may properly congratulate them—and take some bit of renewed hope, ourselves.

It may even be that a day is dawning when they will stop banging away at the general rural landscape and concentrate their fire on the free-booters loitering around their own camps and pillaging them under their own noses.

But let's not make the big mistake of assuming that one swallow makes a summer, or one convert heralds the regeneration of a world. We may, indeed, congratulate ourselves on seeing a single ray of sunlight. But we are not yet out of the woods.

Nor can we be sure, yet, even that we are heading in the right direction.

The simple truth seems to be that we have, all of us, lost our bearings. We are rushing around as excitedly as if the welfare of the universe depended on our getting somewhere. But we don't agree, nor do many of us seem to comprehend what and where that "somewhere" is.

They used to say, "The more haste, the less speed." A herd of fleet-footed deer, cavorting madly around in a circle, are much less likely to get to the old water-hole than even a plodding mud-turtle, who knows where he is going and keeps waddling along straight for it.

I'm rather inclined to think that Governor Hyde of Missouri hit a big nail on the head when he said, in a recent address, that what the world needs is "not a league, not a court, not any additional form of international organization, but a good old-fashioned change of heart." "Everywhere," he continued, "men are crying out against the government, the church, the schools, the stage, and other institutions of the established order, broadcasting criticisms which come with an ill grace, since conditions now are just what the average American has made them."

Those last dozen words are worth reading over again and pondering upon. It is still as true of human affairs as it is of hydraulics that the stream can rise no higher than its source.

Has New York city a rotten, grafting, inefficient government? It is because the majority of New York's citizens want a rotten, grafting and inefficient government. The government it deliberately selects will be the government it prefers. There's little use and small consolation in blaming the grafting and inefficient officials. They are simply the natural fruit of the tree. Common sense no more expects grapes from thistles nor figs from thorn-bushes now than nineteen hundred years ago. Why should the American people?

The whole country has gone machine-mad, and seems to forget that there is anything longer worth while except what Prof. Fitch of Amherst the other day rather polysyllabically termed "the naive vulgarity of the splendiferous."

The idea that a splendidly rounded manhood is a desideratum of life is cherished by only a small and seemingly helpless minority. Perhaps it always was. I don't know about that. Certainly the present trend of average ambition is rather towards Rolls-Royces and sky-scrapers and palaces on the avenue than towards the development of any sort of manhood.

While I am as glad as anybody to see even shadowy symptoms of returning sanity in the metropolitan papers and their readers, it isn't wise to overestimate their importance. An electric-light bulb is sometimes cheering in its restricted illumination—but it isn't the sun-rise. Not by a long shot.

Some wise man once remarked that socialism would never be practicable till the entire race had become both virtuous and intelligent. "And then it won't be needed," he added.

It is hopeful, to be sure, if the mil-lions of the cities are at last beginning to comprehend that there is a farm problem, on whose solution not only rural well-being but civic prosperity absolutely depends.

But neither problem, that of country or that of city, will ever be solved finally and rightly till the great majority has met with that "change of heart" which Governor Hyde calls for.

It will come only when the "average man" has learned that the turning out of six thousand automobiles a day is infinitely less important or interesting than the development of six thousand manly men.

When his ideal shifts from the "splendiferous vulgarity" of machine efficiency to the steady shining of a luminous manhood.

When he experiences that "change of heart" which makes him sincerely seek after solid realities, rather than feverishly chase after elusive will-o'-the-wisps.

When will the time come? God only knows. And the pavilion of His councils is still hidden in thick clouds.

What can we old farmers do in the meantime? Alas, I hold no commission to answer that question.

But it seems to me that, if we should each stop trying to hold up the universe upon our shoulder, and should simply do our level best with ourselves and with the small treasure committed to our care, we might thereby at least keep our own skirts free from responsibility for matters beyond our power.

If we can do more than just trust in God and keep our powder dry, we shall at least be ready when the call to Armageddon sounds.

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside.

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., set at work some years ago to find a real internal Pile remedy. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood's, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

$27,779 MORE IN TAXES FROM INSURANCE COMPANIES

Taxes aggregating $512,951.54 were paid to the state treasury by stock insurance companies up to the closing Tuesday of the period allowed for such payments. This was an increase of $27,779.67 over the total taxes paid by such companies last year, and was due largely to an act of the recent session of the legislature which requires the payment of taxes on 50 per cent. of the value of Liberty bonds and other tax-exempt securities which heretofore have been wholly exempt from the stock insurance company tax.

Deductions Allowed. [illegible] insurance to $82,064,034.21, a difference of $28,287,613.94, with the result that the total tax paid is the greatest since 1918.

$150,000 Saved to State

American participation in the World war would have caused the state to lose nearly $150,000 this year and about as much in succeeding years but for the intervention of the legislature. The insurance companies in question are taxed on their corporate franchises at the rate of ½ of 1 per cent. on the market value of their capital stock, as of Oct. 1 next preceding, as determined by the state board of equalization. When this tax was first put on the statute books, the companies were allowed to deduct from the value of their capital stock as exempt from taxation, the aggregate amount of government, state and municipal bonds and other tax exempt securities.

War Financing Hit State

When the act was so passed no one anticipated the part that Liberty bonds would play in the financing of the war. Insurance companies patriotically subscribed liberally to the war loan bond issues, but on account of the way in which the state law was framed, the more they thus helped to finance the war, the more the state's finances suffered, with the result that the state tax dropped from $812,621 in 1917 to $695,130 in 1918 and to $475,049 in 1919. After the war the companies continued to increase their holdings of such bonds, and the state tax continued its downward course, falling to $352,655 in 1920, to $267,696 in 1921 and to $315,211.87 last year.

Deductions' Steady Increase

The reason for this steady decline in an important source of state revenue is revealed by tax department record which show that, while reductions aggregating $3,000,000 were allowed in 1917, on stock held just prior to the entrance of the United States into the war, total of such deductions leaped to $11,953,000 in 1918, to $42,507,862 in 1919 to $101,091,574 in 1920, to $111,567,995 in 1921, to $120,351,798 in 1922.

Tax Commissioner Blodgett called the situation to the attention of the governor and the legislature and a conference with insurance company representatives followed, in which the matter agreed to a compromise under which only half of the aggregate value of the securities previously exempted in their entirety were to be exempt in the future. A bill drawn up in accordance with the compromise was made immediately effective, with the resulting sharp recovery in the tax collections completed yesterday. The tax was levied last Tuesday by the state tax department. All companies paid up yesterday.

The total market value of the capital stock of stock insurance companies as determined by the board of equalization as of October 1, was $193,862,490, as against $156,475,000 last year. Allowing the deductions of $82,064,034.21, the amount on which the tax was based, was $102,588,305.79, whereas last year's deductions of $120,351,798.15 forced the taxable amount down to $43,042,373.16.

NEW HAVEN RAILROAD MEN PLAN OUTING

At a meeting presided over by Chairman Al Cross arrangements were made recently for the first of a series of outings for the employes of the New Haven railroad, New London division. The outings are in charge of the social committee of the athletic association of the New London division of the railroad.

Announcement was made that alterations at Red Top, former Harvard crew training quarters, are now nearing completion and the place will soon be ready for outing purposes. The committee fixed the date for the first outing as July 29th when it is planned to hold a big field day with track and field sports, aquatic and miscellaneous events. A fine chicken dinner is to be served at noon and dancing enjoyed in the evening.

Information was available from the railroad management that the alterations at Red Top had converted the river camp, which is arguably [illegible] where on the entire New Haven system. It is regarded as second to none and the proposed outing is to be something in the nature of a housewarming. All of the employes of the several departments of the New London division affiliated with the athletic association are eligible to attend and a capacity crowd is looked for. The committee in charge of the event includes Chairman Al Cross, W. J. Smith, James Shields, Arthur Dayton, and the Misses Laura Coml and Geraldine McIntosh.

No Parking at Fire Station.

Chief Stanton has had no parking signs placed in the driveways at the side of the Central Fire station on Chestnut street. The two driveways there were so inviting for parking that it had come to be an established habit on the part of some automobile owners.

People attend market in larger proportion in Washington, D. C., than in any other city, it is said.

NEW LONDON SEALER FINDS FRAUD IN THE SALE OF POTATOES

(Special to the Bulletin).

New London, July 19—Miss Bessie Church of Hartford, who is spending a part of the summer at Ocean Beach, was struck by an automobile, owned and operated by Karl Brocksieper, of Boston, this afternoon. Mrs. Church was taken to Lawrence hospital her injuries consisted of bruises and slight lacerations. After the dressing of the wounds, Mrs. Church went to Ocean Beach. Brocksieper arrived at New London this noon for the purpose of visiting his mother, Mrs. Charles M. Brocksieper who recently suffered a shock. While driving across the municipal pier and while Mrs. Church was walking toward the union station, the machine struck the woman, and knocked her to the planking. Brocksieper was arrested charged with reckless driving. He was held in bonds of $100 for appearance in the police court tomorrow morning. Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield becoming surety on the bond.

Patrolman John Foley was unable to perform police duty today, being confined to his home on Shaw Street because of illness.

Mrs. Leon Mosier of Mohegan avenue, Mrs. Preston L. Sutphen and infant son of Ocean avenue, Miss Stella Headley of Stonington, Otai Takahasi of Washinton street and Mrs. Richard Lansdale of River Bend place, Ocean Beach, patients at Lawrence hospital, were able to return to their homes today.

The condition of Mayor John F. Murray, ill at his home on Blackhall St., as a result of a severe cold contracted a week ago, is reported to be slightly improved.

Herber B. Prentice and Maude E. Prentice have sold a parcel of land on Nameaug avenue to John B. Baxter.

The police of Bristol, Conn., have requested the New London authorities to assist them in locating Mrs. Daniel Harfington. The Bristol police believe that the woman is making her home in New London.

Claiming that his wife Lillie was enticed from her home, Joseph Carolla of 29 Shaw street this afternoon sought and found Frank Polla on that street and after a war of words, Carolla is alleged to have struck Polla. Carolla and Polla were arrested and locked up. They will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning on a charge of breach of the peace. Polla and Mrs. Carolla have been employed at the Washington street mill of Palmer Brothers. Carolla apparently has been in search of Polla for some time. Shortly after noon Carolla found Polla and after accusing him being the cause of Mrs. Carolla leaving her home, dealt Carolla a blow on the head. The two men then became engaged in a rough and tumble fight. Detective Sergeant Charles Hammond and Patrolman Dennis Cavanaugh soon arrived and put an end to hostilities by placing the fighters under arrest.

The funeral of Salvatore Borello of No. 2 Tenth street, who was almost instantly killed early Tuesday morning when the motorcycle he was operating at a high rate of speed crashed against the waiting room of the Stonington & Groton Street railway at Trail's corner, Poquonoc, was held this afternoon at 3.30 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church. The service was read by Rev. John McGrath. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Addie J. MacDonald, 81, widow of Hector MacDonlad, died this morning at Smith Memorial home. Mrs. MacDonald, who was a native of Pomfret had resided at the home for several years. She is survived by nephews and nieces.

Louis Richmann, 17, residing at No. 177 North Bank street, who was arrested late yesterday by Patrolman Selesnitsky, charged with interfering with an officer, was not prosecuted in the police court this forenoon, the case being continued by Judge S. Victor Prince until August 13th at the request of Acting Prosecuting Attorney Frank Q. Cronin. Relatives of the youth this afternoon declared that they would institute charges against Selesnitsky with City Manager James L. Barlow, alleging that the officer used undue force in arresting the youth, also was too forceful in the separation of the youth's mother and a woman neighbor who became engaged in a row. It is claimed by a sister of Richmann that their mother today displayed marks upon her person made by the handling she received from the officer. Selesnitski is a supernumerary policeman, but is performing regular duty. He was appointed a supernumerary by City Manager Barlow about three months ago.

Moore court is to have sidewalks, as preparations for them are being made. The grade will be very greatly changed on the north side of the street, for the walks will be in places about three feet lower than the paths that have been used have been. A plan to take care of the street water is also in contemplation. On Perry street where gutters have just been laid the culverts are choked up from the refuse that has come down the street during recent rains and there is no chance for the water from the gutters to be carried away. During the storm a few days ago the water from the gutters overflowed Montauk avenue. On Darrow St., preparation is being made for the laying of sidewalks. The stakes are in place on both the north and south sides of the highway. An artificial stone garage has been erected on the street near Montauk avenue that is a great improvement.

The sealer of weights and measures encountered a new plan of a dealer in potatoes, a day or two ago. The dealer had measured and weighed potatoes and put them into bags that supposedly contained twenty pounds of potatoes each. The sealer weighed the bags and their contents, each bag was a little under weight. His investigation made it apparent to him that the dealer had weighed the potatoes and then had taken one or two from each bag so that in the final result he had one more bag of potatoes than he would have had if he had given the actual twenty pounds weight. The dealer declared that a boy clerk in the place had weighed the potatoes, but he was a frightened man when the sealer disclosed to him that he might be prosecuted and if found guilty could be fined $100 and sent to jail.

A downtown man who has been loaning money on mortgage missed a good bit of investment this week for he was getting 7 per cent interest until he drowned the man on whose real estate he held a mortgage for payment the evening the debt was due. Some words passed and then both men talked to a bank official about the loan. It was disclosed that the mortgage was of the second class and the bank man, after searching the real estate records considered the second mortgage to be a good risk if joined with the first mortgage so he took both mortgages and reduced the rate of interest to 6 per cent. The mortgage was for $2500.

ers, with headquarters in New London and in later years charity commissioner, celebrated his 76th birthday Tuesday at his home, 21 Post Hill place.

Chickering did not possess an operator's license of Connecticut issue, neither did he have possession of his registration. Chickering did possess, however, a New York state operator's license, but this was invalid in Connecticut and had the issue been a proper one it would have been useless to the operator as he had failed to sign it.

Mrs. James Lee of No. 72 Baker avenue, fell from a Groton & Stonington Street Railway car at the approach to the Thames river highway bridge this afternoon. Mrs. Lee was taken to the office of Dr. F. H. Hees in Groton, where cuts and severe bruises were treated, after which she went to her home.

Patrolman John J. Hogan on duty at Ocean beach, is enjoying his vacation of two weeks and this evening left for New York.

Mrs. Ellen Palmetis, about 70, residing on Pearl stret, was painfully injured last night when she alighted from a moving trolley car. She was taken to a private hospital, where her bruises were dressed. Palmetis was a passenger on an Ocean beach bound car and desired to alight at the corner of Bank and Pearl streets. She signalled the conductor and as the speed of the car was reduced, stepped to the running board and to the pavement, and was thrown violently.

Lee J. Brower of No. 3 Coit street was ordered this afternoon by Traffic Officer William Corcoran to appear in the police court tomorrow morning and answer the charge of violation of the automobile law in not providing himself with a registration of his machine.

Eight New London youths were before Justice of the Peace Matthew Tinker in Chesterfield last night, charged with breach of the peace. Five of the accused were found guilty and the other three cases were nolled. Those penilized were fined $5 and costs, the latter amounting to $13. They took an appeal. The youths, it is alleged, went to a dance on Fire street, Chesterfield, a week ago Wednesday night and there made a disturbance. They were not arrested at the time, but when their identity was revealed two days later, they were ordered into court last night by Deputy Sheriff J. H. Tubbs.

Mrs. Alice Hunt, New London's policewoman, is aggrieved at the action of the driver of the squad wagon of the Niagara Engine company for Mrs. Hunt asserts that the driver was negligent in handling the automobile and because of such alleged negligence, the policewoman declares the automobile in which she does her sleth work was damaged by being run into by the squad wagon. The driver of the fire wagon, however, does not agree with Mrs. Hunt, although he admits that the squad wagon struck Mrs. Hunt's Ford sedan, but he claims that Mrs. Hunt violated the automobile laws in diverting her course without giving a signal. Following the collision Mrs. Hunt appeared at the quarters of the fire company and lodged complaint with Foreman Charles Brown.

In order to comply with the regulations of the National Fire Underwriters, three of the pumping apparatus of the New London fire department were given a rigid test this afternoon, witnessed by representatives of the insurance organization. The pumpers of the Nameaug Engine company and the Konomoc and Northwest Hose companies were driven to the municipal wharf, where they were operated about an hour each, the machines pumping through lines of hose dropped to the Thames river.

James Verda, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gasper Verda, of No. 51 Jefferson avenue and Miss Helena Guagliane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Guagliane, of 32 Moore avenue, were married last evening.

Attorney William Leary and wife of New York are being entertained by Mr. Leary's brother, Arthur M. Leary of Waterford.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney H. Miner of Post Hill place will return to New London early next week, concluding a several weeks' visit to the Pacific coast.

Mrs. Clayton C. Crocker of Crystal avenue is spending a few days with relatives in Newark, N. J.

The Misses Frances, Anna and Elizabeth Scanlon, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Scanlon of No. 19 Crystal avenue, are spending a month in Rutland, Vt.

Mrs. Harry J. Kennedy is entertaining Miss Irene Grundlix of Worcester, Mass., at the St. Germain cottage at the Golden Spur.

Mrs. Max Munsen of No. 962 Bank street, has entered Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital as a surgical patient. Mrs. Mansch was operated upon at the institution about two years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bradley of New York are the guests of Miss Frances O. Jones of Pequot avenue.

Miss Jean Jacobs has returned to her summer home in Rhode Island, concluding a visit with friends in New London. Miss Jacobs is a sister of W. V. Jacobs of Washington, formerly superintendent at the United States Coast Guard academy at Fort Trumbull.

The funeral of Charles I. Bramble was held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at his late home in Niantic and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Potter, pastor of the Niantic Methodist church. Interment was in Union cemetery, East Lyme.

U. N. Culpepper of Groton, employed by Waterman & Wolf, local Ford agents, who was arrested on the 13th inst. when his automobile overturned on Winthrop street at the approach of the Thames river highway bridge and who was arrested charged with operating the machine while intoxicated, the charge drawing a fine of $100 and costs in the police court the next day, was liberated from the county jail this afternoon, when Culpepper's friends came to his assistance, and paid his fine and costs.

Edward A. S. Kangesier, a sailor in the United States navy and who is now attached to a boat in the control of the submarine base, was accused in the police court today of being a bigamist, he having a wife living and in health and ready to live with him when he so wills. Kangesier did not go through the formality of obtaining a divorce when he married Lillian Elliott, a young woman about 23 years old. It seems that his first wife, who was a Miss Irene Syphers in 1921, is an inmate of the State Farm for Women at Niantic, heard that her husband was in New London and she gave that information to the management of the Women's farm. The case was investigated and the management was satisfied that Kangesier was a bigamist. The information was laid before the prosecuting attorney's office in New London and as a result Kangesier was arrested by Detective Hammond. He did not deny the marriage to either woman, it is understood, but talked about having started to get a divorce which he never obtained if indeed he ever attempted to obtain it in the sense that he proceeded in the way that he should have gone about it. Now, report has it that his wife No. 1, the Syphers girl has given birth to a child at the state farm and she is said to have disclosed that Kangesier is the father of the child. In court today it was represented that G. C. Morgan was temporarily acting as the attorney for the sailor. He in words painted the sailor as very "white" and in demurring to the complaint spoke in praise of him. The demurrer was overruled and probable cause was found for holding the sailor for trial for bigamy in the superior court at the September term. Then it was announced that Mr. Morgan had withdrawn as attorney for Kangesier and had become surety on his bond of $500, making the statement that he was the owner of real estate in Waterford, when he qualified as surety.

William Osborn, of No. 411 Bank street, employed by the Norwich Automatic Feeder company, had to have three fingers amputated this evening. Osborn at work operating one of the machines when he accidentally allowed his right hand to become wedged in the device with the result that before the machine could be stopped three fingers were terribly crushed. Medical attention was obtained for the victim, but the fingers had been so terribly jammed that it was made imperative that Osborn be removed to Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, where the three members were removed.

THAMES BRIDGE PASSED BOAT RACE DAY TEST

Experts engaged by the state highway department under former Commissioner Bennett to make a careful examination of the state highway bridge spanning the Thames river between New London and Groton, have submitted a report to the effect that the structure is safe and can support traffic to which it is daily subjected, without danger.

It is pointed out in the report, however, that this bridge is a machine which, because of its weight and the frequent use of its draw, will have to be given constant attention to keep it in proper repair. The report has been turned over to the new highway commissioner, John A. Macdonald.

The examination of the bridge was ordered by former Commissioner Bennett to satisfy skeptics in the area, most served that it was not weak. The bridge was formerly the property of the New Haven railroad, which abandoned it when the acquisition of locomotives of a type much heavier than those in use up to that time, caused the railroad to erect a new and stronger structure nearby. The old bridge was given to the state. The fact that the railroad found it necessary to build a more substantial bridge led to an apprehension by some about the safety of the old one, and this sentiment found expression at a hearing before the appropriations committee in the recent session of the legislature when the contention was made that the bridge might break down in a comparatively short time.

The old bridge was reconstructed by the state highway department after the state had taken it over. The present expense of operating it almost equals the combined expense of the other two state toll bridges and the three state ferries operated on the Connecticut river. The gross expenditures on account of the Thames river bridge during the past fiscal year exceeded $25,000, which was about 20 per cent. of the gross receipts. The chief item of expenditure was one of about $46,000 for salaries. For electricity to operate it the state paid nearly $2,500.

The chief test of the strength of the bridge were made on the day when the Yale-Harvard boat race was held, when the structure was subjected to the greatest strain that has been put upon it since it was opened for highway traffic, and the draw was in frequent use.

Hog cholera, which causes a loss of many millions of dollars yearly, first appeared in the United States in 1833.

Whiter Clothes By New Discovery

Stains Dissolved and Wash Made Dazzling White As When New.

It's here at last! No more gray, dingy, lifeless white clothes, but every washday that lustrous "new" appearance. A marvelous new discovery, NACO, added to the wash water with your regular soap, routs every spot and stain, loosens the most stubborn grime, whitens and purifies.

Yet it is as harmless as the purest soap and baby's most precious dresses may be safely entrusted to it. In fact, NACO helps lengthen the wear by eliminating the necessity of hard rubbing. It is especially valuable for nursery and sickroom bedclothes and garments, for it not only banishes every spot, but also deodorizes and disinfects as it works.

Don't throw away that perspiration-stained waist or that ink-stained shirt. NACO will turn them out fresh and immaculate as when new, a joy to behold and a pleasure to use.

Not only on washday but every day in the week NACO can be of yeoman assistance. A little dropped in the scrub bucket cuts the dirt wherever found—on the floors and walls and woodwork—in wash bowl, bathtub and sink—and it sweetens and deodorizes wherever it goes.

To Easily Overcome Tan, Freckles, Redness

If your skin is unduly reddened, tanned or freckled, just dab a little pure mercolized wax on the face and allow it to remain over night. When you wash off the wax in the morning, fine, flaky, almost invisible particles of cuticle come with it. Repeating this daily, the entire outer skin is absorbed, but so gradually and gently there's not the slightest hurt or inconvenience. Even the stubbornest freckles are affected. The underlying skin which forms the new complexion is so clear, fresh and youthful-looking you'll marvel at the transformation. It's the only thing known to actually discard an aged, faded, muddy or blotchy complexion. One ounce of mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store, is sufficient in most cases.

MARKET WAS STRONG

New York, July 19.—Stock prices moved up briskly in today's market and the volume of transactions was impressive for the first time recently. Perhaps the outstanding feature was the fact that prices moved upward with the same facility that had been noted as they fell downward on short selling and liquidation.

Emphatic gains were registered in all quarters of the list and occasional realizing sales were readily digested by buying for the account of short interests. Sizable buying orders from commission houses testified to increased public participation.

While market observers were chary of making over-optimistic inferences from today's cheerful tone, the improve dtone of the market had some backing in dispatches from over-seas indicating possibility of agreement on the Ruhr occupation tangle. Little attention, however, was paid to outside news development as the market strengthened and th recent pronounced advance in miscellaneous shares spread to the usual leaders which closed a point or more above yesterday's final levels.

U. S. Steel moved up 1 3-8 while some of the independent steels recorded greater gains. Republic steel preferred, for instance, gaining four points. Studebaker was very active and closed 3 1-8 points higher.

Call money held unchanged at 5 per cent. The time money market showed little activity, with brokers bidding 5 per cent. and banks offering 5 1-4 per cent. The ruling rate for prime names continued at 5 per cent. with good names at 5 1-4 per cent.

German marks continued to sink lower, being quoted at one time at 29000 thousands of a cent each. Most of the other foreign exchange rates improved. Demand sterling moved up 9-16 to $4.59 3-16 and French francs advanced 4 points to 5.90 1-2 cents. Switzerland francs rose 30 points to 17.74 cents.

BOND MARKET

New York, July 19.—Today's bond market gave indication of a real demand for investment issues while the more speculative bonds also displayed considerable activity.

United States government bonds held relatively steady with slight improvement in the second and third Liberty 4 1-4's. Foreign bonds were in demand and most of the French issues moved upward, Bordeaux 6's gaining a point.

The greatest activity was centered in the rail group, where almost the entire list pointed higher. Gains of a point or more were recorded by Frisco Income 6's, Reading General 4's, St. Paul refunding 4 1-2's, and Atlantic Coast Line 4's. Interborough Rapid Transit 7's advanced 1 5-8, the 5's, stamped 1 and Third Avenue adjustment 5's, 1 1-2. Denver & Rio Grande 5's declined a point.

Speculatives industrials were quite active, Cerro De Pasco 6's gaining 4 points, Marine 6's, 3, and Virginia Carolina Chemical 7 1-2's, with warrants, 2 and the 7's, 1.

CURB MARKET

New York, July 19.—There was a distinctly better tone in today's curb market trading, advances being recorded all along the list. The curb announced a slight reduction in the commission rates for the execution of orders in stocks selling under $5.

Coal shares were fairly active, Glenn Aldn moving up 2 points and Reading Coal Rights, when issued, 1 1-8. Gillette Safety Razor gained 1 3-4, and the motor shares advanced fractionally.

Oil stocks were in good volume at higher prices, some of the Standard Oils being especially active. Standard of Nebraska, a high priced stock, jumped up 13 points, Standard of Kentucky 2, and Indiana 1 1-4. Magnolia Petroleum also was strong rising 3 points, while cities service gained a point and Cumberland Pipe 3 3-4.

Trading in the mining group was on a larger volume and prices were slightly improved.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, July 19.—All deliveries of wheat rose today to about $1.00 a bushel as a result of commission house buying based largely on advices about black rust in Canada. The market closed strong, 1 1-4 to 2c net higher, with September $1.00 1-8 to 1.00 1-4 and December 1.03 1-8 to 1.03 1-4. Corn finished 1-4 to 1c up, Oats at 5-8c to 1c gain, and provisions 2 to 10c down.

At first the wheat market showed a downward tendency owing more or less to enlarged receipts here and poor response in Liverpool to yesterday's price upturns in America. Besides, traders here were somewhat disturbed by announcement that the federal government was asking for the names of all who were long or short 500,000 bushels or more, whereas heretofore the reports which the government had asked for required no names. In the last part of the day, however, sentiment underwent a decided change, current reports from the Canadian northwest indicating danger of serious damage from black rust.

It was pointed out that there had been recent heavy rains in Canada where the presence of black rust had been established, and that the Canadian crop was a long way from harvest. Word of hot weather in South Dakota counted further as a bullish influence, as did gossip that exporters were bidding higher for wheat and that farmers in the domestic winter crop belt were preparing to hold their wheat wherever possible. Under such circumstances, the market closed at about the day's top figures.

Corn and oats swayed with wheat. Notice was given that 160,000 bushels of corn in public elevators here had become out of condition.

Provision were depressed by the arrival of larger receipts of hogs than had been looked for.

KEEP RETURN ADDRESS OFF BACK OF ENVELOPES

The upper left hand corner of the envelope and not the back is the proper place for the return card of senders, according to instructions to postmasters asking that special effort be made to have the wrong practice discontinued. W. Irving Glover, third assistant postmaster general, has the following to say about the improper placement of names and addresses on backs of envelopes:

Some business men and concerns, as well as individuals, place their return card on the backs of envelopes. All postal employes know how objectionable and inconvenient this is, and postmasters should make special effort to have the practice discontinued. It should be pointed out that the proper place for the sender's return card is in the upper left corner of the addressed side where postal employes are accustomed to look for it, and that the placing of the return card on the backs of envelopes not only consumes unwarranted time and labor, as the letters must be turned over to read the return address, but it may cause letters when undeliverable to be sent to the dead letter office instead of being returned to the senders. All this should be avoided by placing the return card in the upper left corner of the address side.

Postmasters are requested to interview envelope manufacturers and proprietors of printing establishments and endeavor to obtain their hearty co-operations as to the proper location of the return card on mail.

SUES FOR FORECLOSURE OF MECHANICS' LIEN

Sarah A. Winslow of Niantic, administrator of the estate of her husband, the late John A. Winslow, has brought suit for foreclosure, of a mechanics' lien against Gertrude L. Bradley and Annie J. Hamlin of Hartford. The plaintiff claims that under an agreement dated Oct. 30, 1920, her husband furnished material for a house for the defendants at a price of $1,450, on which $910 has been paid. Damages of $700 are sought. The suit is returnable to the court of common pleas the first Tuesday in August. Deputy Sheriff J. H. Tubbs served the papers.

Eastern Connecticut buyers have been in New York attending the meetings of the Wall Paper Manufacturers' Association and National Wall Paper Wholesalers' Association. The better classes of homes, it is asserted, are now choosing the figured papers, which for some time have been in the discard.

By DAVID CORY

The King of the Snakes.

In the last story, we left Little Jack Rabbit in the Fairy Queen's Rose Leaf house, you remember, just as a deep, gruff voice called out, "I'll break down your house if you don't let me in!"

"Who do you suppose that is?" asked the Fairy Queen, turning as pale as

"Don't be afraid," said Little Jack Rabbit, taking out his poggun and opening the door. And who do you suppose was standing outside? You'll never guess, so I'll tell you right away.

A great white snake. On his head was a high silk hat and around his neck a thick iron collar set with diamonds.

"I'm King of the Snakes," he explained, "and I've come to see the Fairy Queen to tell her that her subjects must keep out of the Woodland Dell."

And with a loud hiss, he hurled himself around a tree and broke it right off at the roots and it fell down with a dreadful crash.

"Gracious me!" exclaimed the Fairy Queen, "What shall I do?"

"Don't be afraid," answered Little Jack Rabbit, "I have a magic gold ring," and turning it around three times and a half, a little Black Man appeared with a long sword.

"What is your will, little master?" he asked the bunny boy, with a low bow.

When Little Jack Rabbit pointed to the white snake, the little black man swung his sword quicker than a flash of lightning and off came that white snake's head like the top of a dandelion when you hit the stem with a stick.

"That would make me a fine neat," cawed a big black crow on seeing the snake's hat lying on the ground.

"You shall have it," answered Little Jack Rabbit with a smile, and giving the little black man the iron collar studded with diamonds, he turned to the Fairy Queen with a bow:

"I'm glad to have been of service to you," which so pleased the Fairy Queen that she pinned a tiny rose on Little Jack Rabbit's coat.

Well, after that, the bunny boy went upon his way to seek new adventures and by and by, he met a little old man with a hump on his back.

"Where are you going?" he asked, his little black eyes twinkling with a merry look and the corners of his mouth wrinkling his red cheeks into all sorts of funny little crinkles.

"I'm seeking my fortune," answered Little Jack Rabbit.

"Then, come with me," answered the little old man and in the next story you shall hear about all the strange things which the bunny boy sees.

MONTVILLE FORECLOSURE SUIT SETTLED WITHOUT TRIAL

A foreclosure action of Harris and Annie Rogoff of Montville against Rocco Mariano and Paul Rogers of New London, which was to have been heard by Attorney Arthur M. Brown of Norwich, in New London, Thursday morning as a committee of the superior court, was settled without trial. Attorneys Morris Lubchansky and Judge Charles D. Waller for the plaintiff and Attorney C. Harlal Hull for the defendant came to an agreement after a conference which lasted all the morning.

The plaintiffs brought the action to foreclose a mortgage of $4,650, securing a note dated Dec. 17, 1921, for a farm in Montville, given by Mariano. The plaintiffs claimed that the premises had been neglected and allowed to deteriorate, the buildings destroyed and demolished so that the value was not in excess of $3,000. It was also claimed that on July 3, Mariano had transferred two pieces of property owned by him in New London to Rogers without consideration to defraud the plaintiffs and to prevent them from levying on the property in order to satisfy any deficiency judgment which might be obtained against them.

Besides the foreclosure the plaintiff asked for judgment for the balance over and above the appraised value of the land and above the selling price in event it was not sufficient to satisfy the amount of the mortgage.

The defendant Mariano denied the fraud and claimed fraud on the part of the plaintiffs in representing that the farm contained 160 acres, when as a matter of fact it had much less acreage.

WM. L. CRAMER DIES IN HOSPITAL FROM BURNS IN WATERBURY FIRE

William L. Cramer, 28, son of Abraham and Tillie Cramer, of 5 Washington street, this city, died about 6 o'clock Thursday morning at St. Mary's hospital, Waterbury, of burns received early Thursday morning when fire destroyed the Hodson hotel in Exchange place, the business center of Waterbury.

Despatches from Waterbury state that Mr. Cramer was given a room on the fourth floor of the hotel located in the rear of the building, and, with all other roomers on this floor, was cut off from escape by the fire. He evidently realized his danger and climbed out of his window lowering himself as far as he could reach below the sill and remained there shouting for help. He clung there until the flames crept upon him, burning his face, hands, arms and parts of his body, the pain becoming so great that he finally had to let go and drop to the ground, injuring his legs in the fall. He was then rushed to St. Mary's hospital.

Firemen were making every effort to reach him and had he been able to hold on for a few minutes more he could have been carried to safety.

Death was caused by breathing in flames and from burns received, rather than injuries due to the fall.

Mr. Cramer was born in Norwich, February 16, 1895, and was educated in the local public schools later attending the Norwich Free Academy. Later he traveled extensively visiting Alaska and all the western states of the country.

On December 13, 1917, he enlisted in Troop M, 14th United States Cavalry and was stationed at Fort Sam Houston, Texas. While there he was taken seriously ill and after being in the army hospital for some time was transferred to the Coast Artillery corps at Fishers Island, N. Y., serving there during the World war. He was honorably discharged in 1920.

After his discharge from the service Mr. Cramer returned to Norwich and entered business with his father who conducts a large wholesale drygoods business at 94 West Main street. He became traveling salesman for the company and it was while engaged in this work that he met his death. He was a member of Norwich lodge, No. 430, B. P. O. E., also of the United Commercial Travellers, and in both orders he had made many friends.

Besides his parents he is survived by three brothers, Samuel, Sampson and David, all of Norwich, David at present being at New York university. There is one sister, Esther, of New York.

The last man to talk with Mr. Cramer was James Sullivan of School street who talked with him Monday night in Hartford. Mr. Cramer was using a Dodge business coupe in his business and the Waterbury police are now endeavoring to find the automobile in some garage near the site of the fire, as it contained samples from which orders were taken.

In the death of Mr. Cramer, Norwich loses a prominent young business man. He was liked by everyone and made friends easily. His family have the sympathy of the entire public in their bereavement for they have lost a son who was a credit to the family, and the city has lost a good citizen.

The body was brought here Thursday and the funeral was held late in the afternoon from 5 Washington street with burial in the Hebrew cemetery at Brewster's Neck. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, thirty-one automobiles making up the funeral cortege to the cemetery.

NORWICH SCOUTS HAPPY AT CAMP TIPPECAN

Camp Tippecan of the Norwich Boy Scouts at Lake Pautemac, is enjoying fine weather though the nights are rather cool. Plenty of blankets, however, make sleeping very comfortable and the boys are in good health. Their various activities from "setting up" exercises at 6.30 a. m. and morning dip to "taps" at 9.30 keep them so. Last Friday they hiked 9 miles around the lake and this week Thursday they hiked 7 miles to Tippecan Pond in Rhode Island and collected rare plants, lilies, orchids and other nature specimens.

Instruction in scout work is given every day by the directors acid tests as well. Every scout is expected to add considerable to his store of knowledge while at camp and the surrounding country is plethoric with nature lore. Flowers, ferns, birds, trees, reptiles, shrubs, insects, mushrooms, and fish furnish great interest to the whole camp. Collections and identification of the above give the boys a certain number of credits entitling those who earn 50 points thereby to the camp letters "C. T."

Only boys who are enrolled for two weeks or more earn the required number of points.

On Wednesday there were 20 visitors at camp, among whom were Mr. and Mrs. George Briggs, their daughter and grandchildren. Messrs. Pingree, Young and Linderson of Taftville. Rev. Crowdis of Taftville.

H. E. Prentice, Dr. L. F. and L. A. Lapierre, Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers, Mrs. E. Fox and others from Norwich. Mr Robinson and son from Jewett City and five first class scouts from Plainfield.

Monday Scout Master Mathenston and three scouts of his troop hiked 16 miles from Plainfield and rode back with Rev. William C. Prentiss of Plainfield, while two scouts of Troop 20, Norwich Town, rode out on one bicycle, Melvin Pieretti and Charlie Mann.

The following scouts are in camp: F. A. Benton, Victor Davis and son, F. A. Benton, Jr., Alfred Haring, Levi Talbot, Thomas Baldwin, Charles Sargent, Arthur Heap, David Disco, C. F. Franklin, Bradford Crandall of Storrs College, Armaud La Pierre, Ben Bruckner, Jack Houston, Laughlin Houston, Frederick Fox, Lester Armstrong, James Mullen, Russel Newton, Saul Sussman, Herbert Hill, Wilfred Linderson, Harold Frink, Harry Rodgers, David Tiger, Lester Pingree, Cecil Henschel, Eugene Tucker and John Jenks, cook.

Repairs on the signal tower and raft are completed and next week the scouts will construct an Adirondack lean-to.

About 30 boys are registered for next week. The camp is now filled to capacity and will continue so to August 6th.

FOOT CRUSHED IN ATLANTIC CARTON PRESS

About 10.30 o'clock Thursday morning he was engaged in cleaning rollers on one of the presses equipped with the electric button starter and while working accidentally stepped on the speed button starting the machine, his foot becoming caught and badly crushed below the ankle.

Employes at the plant quickly placed a tourniquet on the leg to stop the rapid flow of blood and the ambulance of the Backus hospital was sent for and he was rushed to the hospital where Dr. R. R. Agnew gave surgical attention. It is hoped that Mr. Redhead will not be crippled as a result of the accident but it will take time before it is known whether or not the foot can be saved.

CLAIM MADE THAT LETTER WAS WRITTEN BY CHRIST

Something like the endless letter or prayer chains which threatened calamity if the chain were broken, has appeared in what is claimed to be a letter written by Christ. The fears of the superstitious are worked on by the threat that whoever receives the letter and fails to have it published will be visited by trouble.

One Norwich woman who is sick has received a copy of the letter is fearful that she will not recover from her illness unless she has the letter published for which she sends it to The Bulletin.

According to the history of the letter it was written by Christ just after his crucifixion, signed by the Angel Gabriel ninety-three years after the Saviour's birth and presumably deposited by him under the stone at the foot of the cross.

On the stone appeared the legend "Blessed is he who shal: turn me over."

No one knew what the inscription meant or seemed to have sufficient curiosity to investigate until the stone was turned over by a little child and the letter which follows was disclosed:

"Whosoever works on the Sabbath day shall be cursed. I command you to go to church and keep holy the Lord's day without any manner of work. You shall not idle or misspend your time in bedecking yourself in vain dressing, for I have ordered it a day for rest. I will have that day kept holy that your sins may be forgiven you.

"You will not break My commandments, but observe and keep them, they being written by My hand and spoken by My mouth. You shall not only go to church yourself but also your man servant and maid servant. Observe My words and learn My commandments.

"Saturday at 6 o'clock in the afternoon at which hour the preparation for the Sabbath day begins. I advise you to fast five days in the year, beginning on Good Friday and continuing the five days following, in remembrance of the five bloody wounds I received for you and mankind.

"You shall love one another and cause them that are not baptised to come to church and receive the holy sacrament, that is to say, baptism, and then the supper of the Lord, and be made a member thereof and in so doing I will give you long life and many blessings. Your land shall be replenished and bring forth abundance, and I will comfort you in the greatest temptations and surely he that doeth to the contrary shall be cursed.

"I will also send hardness to the heart of them and especially on hardened and unpenitent believers. He that hath given to the poor shall find it profitable. Remember and keep the Sabbath day for the seventh day I have taken a resting day of Myself.

"And he that hath a copy of this letter written by My own hand and spoken of My own mouth and keepeth it without publishing it to others shall not prosper, but he who publisheth it to others shall be blessed by Me and if their sins be as many as the stars by night and if they truly believe, they shall be pardoned, and they that believe not this writing and My commandments will have My plagues upon you and you will be consumed with your children, goods and cattle, and all other enjoyments that I have given you. Do but once think of what I have suffered for you in this world and in the world which is to come.

"Whosoever shall have a copy of this letter and keep it in their house, nothing shall hurt them, and if any woman be in birth and put her trust in Me she shall be delivered of her child. You shall hear no more of Me except throughout the Holy Scriptures until the day of judgment. All goodness and prosperity shall be in the house where a copy of the letter shall be found. Finished."

The story goes that the little child who found it passed it to one who became a convert to the Christian faith. He failed to have the letter published. He kept it, however, as a sacred memento of Christ and it has passed down to different generations of his family for more than 1,000 years. During this period the family suffered repeated misfortunes, migrated to different countries until finally one of them came to America bringing the letter with them. They settled in Virginia, then moved further south, still followed by misfortune when finally the last member, a daughter, approaching her death, called a neighbor, a Mrs. Thompson, giving her the letter and relating its history. The Thompson woman began the attempt to have it published, and it first appeared in the Rome, Ga., Tribune on Oct. 31, 1891. It then appeared in the Dalton, Ga., Citizen, and Mrs. Wortman, now living in Marion, Ind., clipped it and kept it in her possession for many years, without an effort to have it published. She was followed by misfortune, which she attributed to her neglect in not trying to have the letter published.

Mrs. Ruby Crutchfield of Trezzcaut, Tenn., is also said to have had a copy and failed to make an effort to have it published for three years, and was followed by a varied lot of misfortunes which she attributed to the fact of her neglect in this respect.

INDICTMENTS CONSIDERED AN HONOR BY W. H. ANDERSON

Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League Has Been Indicted for Grand Larceny in the First Degree and Forgery in the Third Degree—Maintains He is the Victim of a Powerful Political Wet Organization That is Conspiring to Place Governor Smith in the White House in Defiance of the Conscience and Character of the Nation—Two Extortion Indictments Are to be Filed Against Mr. Anderson Next Wednesday.

New York, July 20.—William H. Anderson, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, today was indicted on several counts and the grand jury which returned the indictments recommended legislative investigation of the league since Anderson took its helm in 1914.

Three indictments—two charging grand larceny in the first degree and one forgery in the third degree—were handed down today. In addition, Assistant District Attorney Pecora announced that the jury had voted two indictments charging extortion and that these would be filed next Wednesday.

Anderson, on hand when the indictments were handed down, pleaded not guilty at his arraignment before his counsel, former Governor Charles S. Whitman, could open his month. After the dry crusader had been released in $5,000 bail, he issued through his publicity department a long statement which began:

"I shall wear as a medal of honor and a service badge my indictment for political purposes by the most corrupt and powerful wet political organization in the world as part of the Tammany conspiracy to put the nullification governor of New York state in the White House in defiance of the conscience and character of the nation."

The first grand larceny indictment charged that Anderson feloniously obtained $4,675 from the league in March of 1921.

The second grand larceny indictment alleged that he feloniously obtained $1,750 on February 3, 1921.

The forgery indictment set forth that he had falsely ordered $4,400 to be entered in the league's books in March 1921, as the hotel and traveling expenses of O. Bertsall Phillips, a collector for the league.

Grand jury investigation of Anderson's handling of league's funds was pressed after he had steadfastly refused to be more specific concerning the expenditure of $24,700 than to state that it had been used "for publicity purposes."

The presentment urging legislative investigation of the league read:

"The additional grand jury of the county of New York July term, having heard the evidence in the case against William H. Anderson, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of the state of New York, requests the senate and the assembly of the legislature of the state of New York, to make an immediate investigation into the Anti-Saloon League of the State of New York, since January 1, 1914."

The jury handed down another presentment, denying any friction with Mr. Pecora, and praising the manner in which he had presented the case.

The two extortion indictments which Mr. Pecora announced would not be filed until next Wednesday, charged that Mr. Anderson obtained $2,500 in July, 19920, and $1,375 in March, 19921, From O. Bertsall Phillips, collector for the league, who made the charges of commission splitting which originally started the investigation of Anderson's use of league funds.

Phillips appeared before the grand jury today in connection with these indictments, and stated he had split his commissions with the league chief because he feared he would lose his job otherwise.

If these two indictments should be filed, Anderson, if found guilty, would face a possible term in prison of fifty-five years, the maximum penalties being ten years on each of the grand larceny charges, five years for third dgree forgery and fifteen for each extortion charge.

Although investigation of Phillips and his charges originally brought Mr. Anderson into the asir, the evidence upon which he was largely indicted was given by William M. Potter, former auditor and bookkeeper of the league, who provided material which was the basis of definite accusations.

Phillips charged that Mr. Anderson, in forcing him to split commissions, extorted about $7,000, and that in altering the books to cover this action, he committed third degree forgery. The league chief credited what he received from Phillips as "expenses," in the organization's books, it was charged, one of the chief items still to be discovered, according to Mr. Pecora, is what became of $24,700 which Anderson admitted he took from the league's account, and which he charged to "publicity."

Mr. Anderson stated at the former grand jury investigation that he had advanced this money for carrying on the publicity work of the league, and had later taken it from the league's account, with the consent of the directors. He submitted an affidavit alleging that he had originally raised the money by a loan on his life insurance, a mortgage on his house, and by borrowing from various friends. Mr. Pecora announced later that Mr. Anderson had changed his testimony to state that he had made the $24,700 in a fortunate real estate deal in Baltimore, but that he refused to reveal any names or dates in connection with the deal.

The league directors backed the superintendent up in his statement that he had taken the money with their consent, but were hazy about how it had been spent. They stated that Anderson was a "wizard" in raising money, and pointed to the fact that the receipts of the organization had jumped from $30,000 to $250,000 annually in the nine years of his leadership.

MOVEMENT TO DISMANTLE EVERY BAR IN THE STATE

Hartford, July 20.—A move to force the dismantling of every bar in the state is now under way, with state's attorneys, federal prohibition enforcement officials and state police working in co-operation, it was revealed tonight by Frank T. Putney, of Guilford, federal prohibition director for Connecticut. The plan entails the co-operation of all the law enforcement agencies of the state, and Director Putney said tonight that the new plan would mean that all agencies "would work harder."

Director Putnam does not take credit for the inauguration of the campaign, but intimated that he was working out the details of the movement and had not brought about movements against saloons similar to that in Hartford county because he had not had time since he assumed office June 1.

New London county is one of the counties of the state in which a conference between the federal officials and the state attorney, Hadlai A. Hull, has not yet taken place. Major Hull said tonight that none of the cases of men charged with violation of the prohibition law had come to his court "as yet," the cases going from the police court to the criminal court of common pleas. He said he had a number of plans which he was considering but was not yet ready to discuss the matter.

KU KLUX KLAN SUES TO STOP PUBLICATION OF RECORDS

New York, July 20.—Asserting that the International Magazine Co., Inc., publishers of Hearst's Magazine, printed a series of articles by Norman Hapgood which were based upon records unlawfully taken from its office in Atlanta, the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Inc., today asked the federal district court to stop publication of further klan articles and to order the return of the papers.

According to the complaint, the papers were taken from the klan office by Rhodes McPhail, a clerk, who through Samuel N. Castleton of Atlanta and Louis R. Glavis sold them to the International company for $3,000.

The purpose of the purchase, it is asserted, was to discredit the klan with the public and to discourage prospective members.

N. Y. COTTON EXCHANGE IN NEW TRADING ROOM

New York, July 20.—Exchanging pledges of national and international co-operation, about 1,000 cotton brokers from all parts of the world today opened the new trading room of the New York Cotton exchange, nineteen floors above old Hanover square.

The new Exchange building, considered the last word in architecture, providing every comfort for members, has its foundation on the site occupied by the exchange's former home for forty years.

Premier Stanley Baldwin of Great Britain sent a message of congratulation to the members of the exchange through Colonel J. Shute, former president of the Liverpool Cotton exchange, who attended the opening ceremonies. In it the premier asserted that no two countries were more interested in cotton than Great Britain and America. This mutual interest, Baldwin's cable declared, "should constitute one of the many bonds of union between the two countries."

Colonel Sloane Simpson, Texas cotton man, who is in New York seeking a $40,000,000 loan for the production of the Texas cotton drop, was present. He did not expect the loan to go through this week, he said.

The trading room was filled with floral pieces, the largest of which bore the card of the New Orleans exchange.

Active trading in the new room will commence Monday at 10 a. m.

Ruhr Resistance to Be Given Real Test

Hardship and Privation From Stricter Measures by French and Belgians.

Duesseldorf, July 20.—(By the A. P.) The Ruhr occupation is entering the stage in which passive resistance is to be given its first real test, in the opinion of observers here. Hitherto they say passive resistance has been productive of only slight annoyance and inconvenience, but now the gradual application of stricter measures by the French and the Belgians is beginning to involve real hardship and privation.

Indications of a real test may be seen in the tremendous increase in prices and the perceptible decrease in stocks. The prices of many commodities have more than doubled within three days and shop keepers are opening thie rdoors for only a few hours daily and selling in limited amounts to each customer.

In the face of the depletion in stocks storekeepers are confronted with three alternatives; first, to import by paying the French customs; which passive resistance precludes; second, to smuggle, which obviously is impossible on a sufficient scale, and, third, to close their shops, which would spell ultimate privation.

The increase in prices is seen not only in general commodities, but in foodstuffs which are allowed to enter occupied territory duty free. This is due to the refusal of the Germans to use French trains to distribute the food. They are endeavoring to employ exclusively trucks and the interurban car lines for food distribution, and these are insufficient for the purpose. Under this method it is impossible to distribute milk and butter in the necessary quantities. During the hot weather, more than half the milk sours before it reaches the towns, and as a consequence the whole area is being almost deprived of fresh dairy products.

The same applies to the industries, which have imported virtually no raw materials and exported practically no finished products since occupation began because the industrialists refused to pay duty. Up to recently most of the factories had continued to run on their large reserve stocks, but now many have been forced to close since the French began to seize their coal stocks for the reparations account.

Factories which are unable to continue production are employing their men in repairing and cleaning up their plants so as to be ready to start with a maximum of efficiency when occupation ends. Many of the industrialists, including the Krupps, are paying off their men in their own special issues of emergency money owning to the shortage in German currency.

Notwithstanding these conditions the Germans persist in their optimism over the situation. One Krupp official told the correspondent today that the rank and file of the population as ready to endure as terrible privations as during the war before doing anything to make French occupation succeed.

In reply to a question of the correspondent, this official said the minimum demands of the population before it would think of ceasing passive resistance were:

"First, bring back all expelled persons; second, cancel all court martial sentences; third, return the railroads, telegraphs and telephones; fourth, give up the customs frontier, and, fifth, agree to make occupation invisible."

"In short," the official added, "the territory must be restored to complete German sovereignty, and that before passive resistance ceases, and not as a promise after its cessation."

New "Dry" Ruling on Cider and Fruit Juices

Manufacturers Must Use Preservatives to Prevent Alcoholic Fermentation.

Washington, July 20.—Manufacture of cider and other non-intoxicant fruit juices is authorized without the formality of applying for a permit, under regulations issued today by Commissioner Blair of the internal revenue bureau, but persons who make them must add preservatives to prevent "further alcoholic fermentation." Fruit juices may not be lawfully used, the regulations stipulate, for beverage purposes after becoming intoxicating.

Under a ruling superseded by the new regulations, manufacturers of fruit juices have not been held responsible for any natural reaction of the liquid.

The new regulations define "preserved sweet cider" as that in which alcoholic fermentation has been prevented by the addition "immediately upon pressing" of benzoate of soda in the proportion of not less than 4 to 4 1-2 ounces to each barrel of 50 gallons, or by immediate sterilization. The presence of four per cent. of acetic acid will be considered as changing the cider to authentic vinegar.

With regard to the home manufacture of non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices, the regulations say:

"Any person may manufacture cider and fruit juices for use exclusively in his home without obtaining permit or giving bond. Such manufacture need not be done at the home of the producer but such person may take his apples or other fruits to a custom or commercial mill and have the juice expressed and removed to his home, but the removal must be accomplished immediately after the juice is expressed.

"If the non-intoxicating cider or fruit juice so manufacturer is intended for beverage use it must, if intended for other than immediate consumption, be so preserved and put up as to prevent further alcoholic fermentation. The processes by which fruit and vegetables are ordinarily prepared for winter use are familiar to most housewives and it is expected that the same care will be exercised in sterilizing and bottling cider, grape juice, etc., as is done in the case of the other preserving operations mentioned so that such juices will not, when consumed for beverage purposes be found to have 'worked' or fermented so as to become intoxicating."

The use of "dried fruits, dandelions, rhubarb, etc.," for the production of the "fruit juices" covered in the regulations is specifically prohibited. "Provision is made, however, for the issuance of a permit to the "head of a family intending to produce in any one year to exceed 200 gallons of fruit juice, other than cider, any part of which may ferment so as to contain as much as one-half of one percent. of alcohol by volume." Such householder is required to apply to the internal revenue bureau for the regular formal permit "at least five days before commencing operations."

Warning is given that any person selling unpreserved sweet cider, even though it is not intoxicating at the time of sale, to be consumed after an illegal alcholic content has developed, is guilty of violating that section of the propibition law which deals with the sale of alcoholic beverages.

RURALES ARE IN PURSUIT OF THE ASSASSINS OF VILLA

Former Mexican Bandit Leader Was Slain in an Ambuscade on the Outskirts of Parral—Colonel Miguel Trillo, His Chief of Staff, and Three Members of Villa's Escort Also Were Killed—President Obregon Has Ordered an Investigation of the Assassination—Francisco Herrera is Under Suspicion—Villa Had Practically Exterminated the Herrera Family.

Mexico City, July 20 (By the A. P.)—General Francisco Villa, one-time noted bandit leader, and his chief of staff, Colonel Miguel Trillo, and three members of Villa's escort were assassinated in an ambuscade early this morning on the outskirts of Parral in the state of Chihuahua.

About a half dozen men comprised the band of assassins. They fired upon Villa and his men from a house they were passing and later are reported to have made their escape from the scene.

Villa was driving an automobile on the way to Guanajuato when he was fired upon. Immediately the news of the assassination reached here orders were sent to scout the countryside adjacent to the ambuscade in an endeavor to round up the guilty persons. The body of Villa is lying in the city hall at Parral, where thousands of persons have viewed it. President Obregon has ordered an investigation into the assassination.

Major General Eugenio Martines at Chihuahua City has sent to General Francisco Serrano, secretary of war, an official report he received from Colonel J. Felix Lara, commander of the garrison at Parral, in connection with the killing of the former noted rebel leader. The report follows:

"Villa, Trillo and three members of their escort were killed shortly before eight o'clock this morning with premeditation while Villa and his companions were driving in an automobile, which Villa personally was piloting, toward Guanajuato, a suburb of this city. The shots were fired by six or seven men posted in a house on the roadway.

"I immediately ordered an investigation in cooperation with the civil authorities. I have learned that these men, armed with 30-30 rifles, fled from the house on horseback in the direction of Santa Clara, through the hills.

"I had no cavalry and could not pursue them. The most I could do was to order the various detachments in this sector to be on the outlook for the assassins. The city authorities have ordered a detachment of rurales to begin pursuit."

General Martinez reported that military detachments had left Jimines and Valle de Allende on the trail of the murderers. He added that he personally was leaving for Parral.

The report of Colonel Lara seems to indicate that earlier unofficial reports that Villa had been killed by his own followers were without foundation. Likewise it disposed of one report that the shooting had occurred while Villa was leaving a train.

While the assassins are unidentified, two theories are being worked on by officials here. Villa had many enemies, and probably hundreds of men have sworn to take his life, but he had no enemy as bitter, according to his friends, as Francisco Herrera.

Herrera hated Villa not without cause. Villa is claimed to have practically exterminated the Herrera family, at one time prominent in the military and political circles of Mexico.

Villa in 1914 had two generals who were brothers, Maclovio Herrera, who commanded the left wing of the army, and Melchor, who commanded the right.

Melchor, who was former mayor of Juarez, was killed mysteriously on the border. The circumstances were suspicious and friends of the Herrera family blamed Villa. This was in the latter part of 1914.

Maclovio, his father, Jose De La Luz Herrera, and a younger Herrera were led to a graveyard in Parral on Easter morning in 1915 and executed. Villa was blamed for this.

Francisco was the only male member of the prominent family left, and swore revenge, it is said. Only last year Villa asked protection of the federal government from Herrera and his followers. Herrera is a government official at Gomez Palacio, Durango, not far from Parral.

The government, local officials say, will question the possibility of Herrera's friends taking up the old feud.

It has been said often on the border that Villa has asserted that Mexico must not and would not have another president from Sonora.

Feeling here is intense, due to the possible political significance the assault on Villa may have. Some say that enemies of Villa and friends of possible presidential timber from Sonora could shed light on the killing.

ARMED BANDITS GET $3,900 PAYROLL IN CAMBRIDGE

Cambridge, Mass., July 20.—Armed bandits today held up and robbed the paymasters of the Penn Metal Company of about $3,900 of the company's payroll and after a running gun fight made good their escape.

Paymaster Jeremiah J. Crowley, of Somerville had just arrived from Boston with the weekly payroll and had begun to sort the envelopes at his desk in the factory office when a man entered with a levelled gun. A second gunman stood at the door holding it open. He, too, covered the office force. Beside the paymaster stood his assistant, Ernest Nash, of Melrose. Mary R. Gallagher, of Somerville, an order clerk, attempted to snatch the box but desisted when the bandit pushed his revolver to her side, and a second girl, Madeline Smith, attempted to use a telephone, but she, too, was quickly disuaded.

The first bandit snatched up the box containing most of the payroll and left. As he passed through the door, Crowley drew a revolver from a drawer of his desk and Nash snatched it and fired through the glass door at the departing robbers.

Nash then followed the robbers out through a field which lay between te factory and a road toward which the gunmen ran. They reached a car in which was a third member of the party as Nash emptied his revolver at them. He said later that the man carrying the box staggered and fell, and was assisted to the machine where he appeared to collapse. The bandits returned the fire but without effect.

HAS FAILED TO BECOME KING OF THE BOOTBLACKS

New York, July 20.—Fifteen year old Walter Kopyschinski's dream of becoming king of the bootblacks of New York ended today when he was arrested in Bryant Park and held for the authorities of Springfield, Mass., his home city.

All fed up on Alger stories, Walter came to New York recently to carve out a fortune for himself, and elected the Bryant Park bootblacks to do the hard work like a good captain of industry.

He took unto himself the job of protecting the gamins from the police while they shot craps, steering customers to them, seeing that each got his customer in turn, and inducing pedestrians to throw coins into the park fountain for the urchins to retrieve.

Police said he was refereeing a crap game when they found him.

24-HOUR WINE WITH A 19 PER CENT. ALCOHOLIC KICK

New York, July 20.—Charged by prohibition officials with having taught grape juice customers of the Taylor Wine company how to make 24-hour wine with a 19 per cent. alcoholic kick, John A. Mitchell, the company's New York agent, and Charles C. Fuller, sales manager, were locked up tonight to await a hearing tomorrow.

Every grape juice order, it was alleged, was taken with a promise that a bottle of pure wine-maker's yeast, would be sent the purchaser by parcel post with instructions for its use. The evidence was obtained, officials said, after an agent had obtained a position with the firm and had been offered $5 commission on every five-gallon keg of grape juice. The company has vineyards at Hammondsport, N. Y.

CONFIDENT HE CAN CROSS CONTINENT, DAWN TO DUSK

Rock Springs, Wyo., July 20.—Confident that he can span the continent in a single day, if given another chance, Lieut. Russell L. Maughan declared today he is "ready and anxious" to make the attempt.

Maughan, who has received instructions from Washington to report to McCook field for instructions, said he probably would arrive there Sunday morning. He expects to fly to St. Joseph tomorrow and remain there Saturday night.

The flier, who was suffering from the effects of oil fumes he had inhaled from his leaking oil cooler when he arrived yesterday, was in good spirits today, and he had entirely recovered.

"I am ready and anxious to start out again, any time plans for a repetition of the flight are completed," he said, highly elated over hopes aroused by advices from Washington that a conference on the question of the feasibility of another attempt would be held.

"I know I can make it. I would have made it this time if it had been a question only of my endurance. I only had a little more than 600 miles to go, and three hours to make it in. I had been saving my engine, waiting for that last dash. My sped was only about 155 miles an hour, because I was saving it, to reduce the wear and tear on the engine as much as possible."

PLAN TO CARRY OUT THE ANGLO-IRISH TREATY

Dublin, July 20 (By the A. P.).—In the Dail Eireann today President Cosgrave said the government considered the time opportune for carrying out the remaining provisions of Article 12 of the Anglo-Irish treaty dealing with the boundary between northern and southern Ireland, and for that purpose it had appointed Minister of Education McNeill to represent the Free State on the boundary commission.

Mr. Cosgrave said it was urgent to revise the boundary in such a way as to meet the wishes of the greatest number of the inhabitants and to leave on each side of the border as few discontented people as was possible. The government of the Free State desired peace and harmony with their northern fellow countrymen but could not possibly ignore the discontent of people who are anxious to become citizens of the Free State.

Special Constable William Hamilton found the defendant, operator's license No. 115852, operating an automobile in the evening at 13.30 at a speed greater than 40 miles per hour. When arraigned Campo said he had no light to see the speedometer and could not tell how fast he was going.

Town Solicitor Ferguson stated that two officers trailed the defendant on the night in question from the southernmost part of Canal street and when a speed in excess of 40 miles an hour was shown the ocar blew his police whistle to which no attention was given. It was not until the junction of two roads were reached near the Miner farm that the defendant stopped, claiming he did not hear the whistles blown and thought someone was racing him, stopping only then because of pistol shots fired. Hanna was fined $20 and costs, which was paid.

The civil case of the Westerly Lumber Co. vs. Wilbert Clarke was then taken up. Attorney Gallagher stated that the defendant had refused to pay attention to any summons sent him to appear in court, and that he was anxious to have the case cleared up. POETRY

THE HEIGHT OF THE RIDICULOUS

I wrote some lines once on a time
In wondrous merry mood,
And thought, as fun, 'twere well to rhyme
They were exceeding good.

They were so queer, so very queer,
I laughed as I would die;
Albeit, in the general way,
A sober man am I.

I called my servant, and he came;
And in my humorous way,
I added (as a trifling jest),
"There'll be the devil to pay."

He took the paper, and I watched,
And saw him peep within;
At the first line he read, his face
Was all upon the grin.

He read the next; the grin grew broad
And shot from ear to ear;
He read the third; a chuckling noise
I now began to hear.

The fourth; he broke into a roar;
The fifth; his waistband split;
The sixth; he burst five buttons off,
And tumbled in a fit.

Ten days and nights, with sleepless eye,
I watched that wretched man,
And since, I never dare to write
As funny as I can.

—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

IN AN OLD MIRROR.

An old-cracked mirror hangs upon the wall
Of an old house whose thronging memories call;
When twilit clouds trail soft their feathers gray,
Steal soft my ghosts, unbreathing, slender, tall.

I feel them, rustleless, brush through the door,
Quietly pause the dim, dulled glass before
Their silent, solemn forms fill all the room—
But 'tis the mirror's face I watch the more.

I see my gentle, gray-haired father there
Across the mirror passing, to the corner where
An aged, ancient-keyed melodeon stands—
Then through the dusk floats faint an old-time air.

Some ghosts 'cross mirror's blur pass to and fro,
Ah, comes a child—I peer—and recognize
The child that once was I, long years ago.

—Agnes Choate Wonson, in Boston Transcript.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Tom—They caught him trying to remove the appendix from a book he was reading—Virginia Reel.

Said the stern young woman teacher—Tommy, if you cannot behave yourself I shall have to take your name.

Outside, Tommy confided to a chum—My teacher's threatened to marry me if I don't look out.—London Tit-Bits.

"A very good cause, I think," responded the lecturer. "I have a wife and six children to support."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

At a Christmas dinner in Washington a well-known professor was called upon to speak. In introducing him the host said to the guests:

"You have been giving your attention so far to a turkey stuffed with sage. You are now about to give your attention to a sage stuffed with turkey."—Boston Transcript.

A recent symposium discusses the burning question: "What does the world need most?"

The answer, the way we see it, is a whole heap less symposiums on the subject. The world is all right, except for the crabs in it.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Mrs. Bixby—"That Marquis of Queensbery, or whoever he is, must be a terribly savage person to allow all those brutal prizefights."

Mrs. Tompkins—"Yes, he must be. But I'll say his isn't half as bad as the Count—the fellow they're all knocked down for."—American Legion Weekly.

"You don't object to flappers at prize fights"?

"No." I'm willing to make concessions to the modern young woman, but it seems to me that maidenly modesty curls up and dies when somebody's bobbed-hair daughter jumps to her feet and yells, 'lead with your left, kid, and hit him in the slats!'—Birmingham Age-Herald.

GREAT VOLO AND PETER THE BREWER FURNISH THRILLS AT KALAMAZOO

Kalamazoo, Mich., July 20.—The greatest free-for-all trot ever staged at Recreation park, resulting in the three fastest heats ever trotted over a Michigan track, was raced Friday. The time for the three miles was 2.02 3-4, 2.02 3-4 and 2.03 1-4.

Great Volo, son of Peter the Great, and driven by Walter R. Cox, won the first and third heats in desperate contests with Peter the Brewer, another son of Peter the Great, piloted by Egan. Peter the Brewer took the second heat. Each mile was a fight from wire to wire, the field of seven racing in a mass.

Great Volo took the first heat by capturing the pole position at the three-quarters and holding it. In the second heat Peter the Brewer finished ahead and looked promising for the third mile. The finish of the third mile was sensational. Close to the distance fing Peter the Brewer appeared a winner, but with a hundred yards to go, Great Volo showed a terrific burst of speed and won by a nose.

A popular victory occurred in the 2.09 trot when "Pop" Geers drove My Rosebud home an easy winner in straight heats. Best time for the event was 2.06 1-4.

The 2.04 pace went into four heats when Logan Hedgewood, Peter Etawah and Lillian Silkwood each won a heat. The extra heat to decide the race winner resulted in a victory for Lillian Silkwood.

The 2.15 pace was won by Quinla after Little George captured the first heat. There were only four starters.

FIRPO UNDECIDED AS TO TITLE BOUT

New York, July 20—Negotiations for a Jack Dempsey-Luis Firpo heavyweight title match within the next few months, either in this country or the Argentine, hinge upon the attitude of the South American battler, it developed today.

Jack Kearns, the champion's manager, has practically agreed to the terms of Tex Rickard, it was said. Both Kearns and Rickard are believed now to favor holding the match in this country, possibly at Boyle's Thirty Acres, around Labor Day, the promotor being inclined to forego the risk of staging a championship match in Buenos Aires, capital of the Argentine, as he suggested several days ago.

Firpo, on the other hand, was said to be weighing the desire to fight for the title before his countrymen against the possibility of greater financial gain of the bout is staged here. Though confident of his ability to win, he also is believed to entertain some doubts as to his ability to reach his best form within the few weeks remaining before the proposed holiday match.

No steps, however, took place today in the negotiations and it is believed further efforts to clinch the bout have been postponed until Monday, when Firpo returns from a series of exhibitions in Boston.

GENEWICH'S PITCHING ENABLES BRAVES TO WIN

Boston, July 20—Genewich's pitching, aside from home run drives by Gooch and Russell with a mate on base each time, was good enough to enable Boston to defeat Pittsburgh today, 8 to 5. Russell's homer went half way up the right field stand on the fly. Fielding features were contributed by Carey, Boeckel, Ford and Adams. Traynor failed to hit safely after 24 consecutive games in which he at least made a hit. Boeckel and Felix hit opportunely. The score:

TWO STELLAR BASEBALL FEATURES ARE SLATED FOR TODAY ON LOCAL DIAMONDS

Eastern Connecticut baseball fans will have their pick between two excellent games this afternoon—one at the Providence street grounds at Taftville and the other at the State Hospital diamond. Both games will be well worth seeing, as each of the local teams is playing a strong out of town team.

At the Providence street grounds, Taftville stacks up against the Federals of Hartford, a fast combination of semi-pro players. At the Hospital grounds Riverview will oppose the Corbin Red Sox, a fast semi-pro team that has made a good record throughout the state.

The Taftville Game.

The Hartford team will line up as follows: Conner p, Welsh c, O'Leary 1b, Parker 2b, Cotter ss, McKiernan 3b, Charron rf, Bairle cf, Sullivan lf; Quilty and Sayers, substitute pitchers. Conner of the Federals is a former Brown university pitcher who has gone into semi-pro baseball. Local fans will recognize the names of several prominent ball players in the lineups of both teams.

At the State Hospital.

The Riverview club has strengthened its team with the addition of Sam Massey, Leo Fay and Jack Clabby, who have played with the Norwich team during the greater part of the season. The Riverview lineup will be as follows: West p, Reddy c, Fay 1b, Massey 3b, Mills ss, Walsh 2b, Schafrich lf, Clabby cf, Hart rf.

The Corbin Red Sox are listed to appear as follows: Corbin cf, Blanchard 1b, Snyder lf, Wojak 3b, Barnett ss, Huber rf, Preisser 2b, Clinton c, and Berg p.

Sunday's Game.

At the J. B. Martin grounds on Sunday the Velvetmakers will cross bats with the Norwich A. A. in what is expected to be a fast game. The J. B. team has been traveling at a good clip this season and has provided not a little entertainment for the local fans.

NO MORE BASEBALL IN DANIELSON UNTIL FALL

Owing to the small patronage at the games in Danielson this season the team has been disbanded until the first Sunday in September. Then for about six or seven weeks, as long as the weather permits, games will be played every Sunday afternoon. The Danielson Casino Amusement Co., intends to give the fans some of the fastest semi-pro ball that has ever been played in that section of the state. Manager Henry H. Loughran of the Danielson team issues a sweeping challenge to all teams in the state and will be ready to book games for September and October immediately. The series with the Taftville A. A. which was to have been started this Sunday will be played during September, as will the deciding game of the Danielson-Norwich series.

PREDICT KNOCKOUT IN TENDLER-LEONARD BOUT

New York, July 20—Followers of both Benny Leonard, champion, and Lew Tendler, Philadelphia challenger, predict that their fight next Monday night at the Yankee stadium for the world's lightweight title will end in a knockout.

Tendler's southpaw punch, the blow that had Leonard back on his heels in their battle at Boyle's Thirty Acres a year ago, is working to perfection, according to advices from the challenger's training camp at Delanco, N. J. He is confident it will bring him to his long-sought goal, the lightweight throne.

Leonard, however, at his quarters in Tannersville, N. Y., believes he has perfected a style of battle calculated to offset Tendler's portside advantage. He has trained daily for a month with four left-banders.

The champion declared today he was in the best condition of his career and while he expects a stiff fight expressed confidence in his ability to end it before the limit of 15 rounds. He will close his training grind tomorrow and return to New York.

Leonard expects to scale a pound under the lightweight limit when he and Tendler weigh in at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Matchmaker Jimmy Johnston of the Cromwell A. C. announced today that 300 ushers and 500 special policemen will handle the crowd at the Yankee stadium, which is expected to eclipse all former records for a lightweight title match.

TIFFANY AND NEWTON IN FINALS AT SHENECOSETT

Eastern Point, Conn., July 20.—Gil Tiffany of the Antlers' club, Amsterdam, N. Y., and F. C. Newton of Brookline Country club will play the 36 hole final tomorrow in the annual invitation tournament on the Shenecossett links.

Tiffany, who was runner-up last year, won this morning from Morton L. Freary of the Engineers' club by 2 up, and this afternoon won on the 19th green from Dr. W. D. MacDonald of Woodway.

Newton, who was medalist yesterday, won from Archibald Mitchell of Norwich this morning by default. This afternoon he defeated Lewis Tetlow of Westerly by 2 and 1.

Tetlow this morning eliminated Leonard Beard of Oakland by 2 and 1 after the latter had beaten Henry J. Topping, Connecticut state champion, yesterday.

Summaries:

Championship division, second round, Newton won from Mitchell by default; Tetlow defeated Beard 2 and 1; Tiffany defeated Freary 2 up; MacDonald defeated Guy M. Standifer of Greenwich 1 up (19 holes).

Semi-final round, Newton defeated Tetlow 2 and 1; Tiffany defeated MacDonald 1 up (19 holes).

SNODGRASS CONTINUES HIS BRILLIANT TENNIS PLAY

Boston, July 20.—Harvey Snodgrass of Los Angeles followed up his straight set victory yesterday over Lawrence B. Rice of Boston with a similar triumph today over Nathaniel W. Niles, Massachusetts singles champion, in the semi-final round of the singles tournament for the Longwood bowl at the annual lawn tennis matches conducted by the Longwood Cricket club at the Chestnut Hill courts. Only six games in three sets was Niles able to win from the westerner, who has yet to drop a set in this tournament. His performance is more remarkable still when it is recalled that this is his first appearance on turf.

Snodgrass tomorrow will meet Richard Norris Williams, 2d, of Bryn Mawr, Pa., in the match that will determine the successor of William T. Tilden, 2d, of Philadelphia as Longwood champion. Williams this afternoon was pressed by Carl Fischer, another Philadelphian, but the former national singles champion had a streak of brilliant tennis left for the fifth set and the final scores were: 6-3, 6-2, 1-6, 4-6, 6-1. The figures in Snodgrass' win over Niles were 6-3, 6-0, 6-3.

The doubles title rests between the teams of youthful stars composed of Arnold W. Jones of Yale and William W. Ingraham of Harvard and the western pair, Snodgrass and Wallace J. Bates of San Francisco.

MACDONALD AND BARNES TIED IN METRO GOLF

Summit, N. J., July 20.—Robert Macdonald of Chicago and Jim Barnes of Pelham Manor, N. Y., tied for first place in the 72 hole Metropolitan open golf championship over the Canoe Brook Country club course today with scores of 295. The tie will be played off tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 at 18 holes.

Gene Sarasen of Briar Cliff Manor, former national open champion, and Johnny Farrell of Quaker Ridge were tied for third place with 296. Sarasen played the most consistent golf of all the stars today, making 72 for each round.

PRO GOLFERS' TOURNEY AT PELHAM MANOR

New York, July 20.—The Professional Golfers' association has decided to hold its 1923 championship tournament at the Pelham Country club, Pelham Manor, N. Y., Sept. 17 to 22.

Gene Sarazen of Briarcliff Lodge, who lost his open crown at Inwood last week, will defend at Pelham the P. G. A. title he won last year at Pittsburgh, where he defeated Emmett French of Youngstown, O., in the final round.

Pelham is the home club of Jim Barnes, who has held both the open and P. G. A. championships.

COLLINS SAYS GIBBONS MADE $23,000 ON FIGHT

Omaha, Neb., July 20.—Mike Collins, St. Paul matchmaker for the Gibbons-Dempsey heavyweight championship fight at Shelby, Mont., in an interview with an Omaha World-Herald representative here today, was quoted as declaring that citizens of Shelby "lost less than $62,000 all told" in connection with promotion of the Gibbons-Demp

MAKING PROGRESS.

It is too early to say just what results have been or will be obtained by the statement of Premier Baldwin of Great Britain and the note to Germany which is expected daily. It is certain, however, that it has got the other nations interested. Even France has been brought to the point of considering how the British plan might be put into effect with its cooperation.

What is desired in the cooperation of all the allied nations in an endeavor to bring about an adjustment of the reparations question. There was a break when France decided to go it alone. The British now think the time ripe to once more get unity.

Thus when it is reported that France is willing to withdraw all immediate demands upon Germany for reparations and declare a moratorium for ten to fifteen years provided Germany pays the 30,000,000,000 gold marks which are required for restorations, and likewise proposes that there be consideration of a delay in the adjustment of war debts between the nations, or even the cancellation of debts by those who believe others are unable to pay, it opens the way for getting together.

That means that France is relaxing somewhat. It still believes that Germany can and should pay, and it will insist on it, but it will permit a longer time for certain accounts and others can scale down their claims on Germany if they desire.

It is a suggestion that will cause the British to do some thinking. It indicates that the Baldwin effort has not all fallen on barren ground. Under such conditions it is going to be easier to make progress. Belgium and Italy are likely to be in favor of the French suggestion inasmuch as they have not been the leaders but have followed France in their stand. It doesn't necessarily mean an agreement but progress is being made when suggestions are advanced which ease the way of settlement.

THE PULPWOOD SUPPLY.

Once again the question of pulpwood and newsprint has been forced to the front by the action of the Canadian house of commons in authorizing the government to make regulations prohibiting the exportation of freehold pulpwood. Inasmuch as about 90 per cent of the exported product now comes to this country and that amounts to nearly half the consumption of pulpwood here it can be appreciated that it is a matter of much concern to both countries.

The result would of course be to increase the drain upon the supply of this country and cramp the American paper industry, while Canada apparently thinks that it would increase the demand for the paper production of the dominion. Everyone knows it would mean higher prices and lessened employment in the United States.

But does Canada want and can it afford to take a step of this kind that would only invite retaliation? Canada could make more newsprint and more paper of other kinds. It could utilize all its pulpwood for that purpose. But Canada is dependent to a considerable extent upon the United States for its coal, its oil, its sulphur and other supplies for the paper industry. What is going to happen if its aim is to cripple the paper industry of the United States? Does Canada think that we are going to sit calmly by and accept such action without taking similar legislative steps?

It is a serious matter that needs careful attention before it is carried too far. Canada's attention might well be called to the situation that it may give consideration to both sides of the matter.

Cutting off our important pulpwood supply, or only threatening it must necessarily again direct attention to that important subject of reforestation that there may be a restoration of our own pulpwood forests. We have cut and used without thought of the future. We have depended upon others. We see the situation into which that has led us and it would not be an unwise thing to get seriously busy before it is too late.

PORT ARTHUR AND THE I. W. W.

It is an interesting way that the I. W. W. have of showing their resentment of the mistreatment of fellow members at Port Arthur, Texas. It is not surprising that they are disturbed at the affront, regardless of whether it was deserved or not, but it is a bit unusual that they should be willing to resort to as mild a punishment.

Orders to all members who are footloose to head for Port Arthur has caused the report to be issued that something like 20,000 could be expected by that community, the presence of whom would create a larger list of guests than the people of Port Arthur would be willing to accommodate. Having nothing to do and not intending to get a job, the aim of this visitation is to overwhelm Port Arthur even to the extent of being put in jail as vagrants. The deep purpose of the scheme is to thus place themselves on the list of boarders at the town jail and through vigorous appetites to eat the town into bankruptcy.

That makes a clever scheme in which violence has no part. What the actual response will be to the order there is no way of knowing. How much influence the warning of the authorities to the effect that all such I. W. W. will be put at work on the road gang will have is uncertain. It indicates nevertheless that it will serve to keep away those who are looking for free board and free beds but who have no idea of working.

If Port Arthur could get its road building done by such an army of workers it is probably anxious for them to come. Certainly free board and free beds would be a rock bottom price for such labor these days. Port Arthur doesn't intend to be swamped and it doesn't knuckle to the idea that it is going to let any such mob feed at the public crib. Its plan of resistance is simple but it couldn't include anything worse for such a class of prospective visitors. It means that the stay of those who come is going to be painfully short. The plan of attack has been beaten before it got fairly underway.

REAR ADMIRAL SIGSBEE.

By the death of Rear Admiral Sigsbee there is removed another of those heroes of the Spanish-American war, and likewise one whose prominence in naval activity dates back to the Civil war.

As the commander of the ill fated Maine, which was blown up in Havana harbor, he was a conspicuous figure in the war that followed. He disclosed himself to be that cool headed leader who was against inflaming the people by unsubstantiated facts and wild guesses. He was self possessed in the face of the loss. It was disturbing that he should lose his vessel and that so many of his crew should perish but he was in no way to blame. His subsequent command during the war gave him less opportunity than others to distinguish himself but he nevertheless made the most of his opportunities. It was as the commander of the auxiliary cruiser St. Paul that he prevented the Spanish fleet from getting fuel and later two warships surrendered to him.

Rear Admiral Sigsbee was one of those old time naval leaders whose careers have meant much to the navy and to the country. He was ready for the fight but he was busy when not fighting. Few become lieutenant-commanders in their early twenties and many go through their period of active service without half the experiences of the commander of the Maine. As an inventor he contributed much to improved appliances and as an author and lecturer he always had a high rating. His is one of the careers that is bound to have a conspicuous place in American history, and cannot fail to be an inspiration to others who must follow him in such a position.

LOUVAIN LIBRARY.

It was nine years ago that the world was shocked at the destruction of the famous Louvain library. There were many other acts about that time that caused the world to shudder even worse, but wanton destruction of property that might have been spared and serve to aid the future as it had the past was decried.

But even as there was regret expressed at the time of its destruction there is now opportunity for expressions of satisfaction inasmuch as its restoration is now well underway. The Louvain library cannot be replaced. Nevertheless a new library as part of the University of Louvain is going to take its place in the future of Belgium and stand as a reminder of the destruction that was caused by the invaders of that country in violation of its neutrality.

That the efforts are for the establishment of as great and priceless a library as possible is to be expected. Precious volumes are gone but the new library will because of its experience come into greater prominence than ever. There is interest in it not only in Belgium but throughout the world. Many are there who have made contributions for the work that is now underway. In this country teachers and school children have made handsome contributions in the interest of education that this library might be reconstructed, while others have come to know of the value of that old institution only since the publicity attending its loss.

Louvain library was terribly battered up, a rubbish heap, but from the ruins of the old the new will come into greater recognition and it is to be hoped a still greater service.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Religion to have a real meaning to us must be our own. I mean by that it must pass through the crucible of our own experience. Why should we take our cue from another man in religion any more than we do in our eating? What an unhappy world this would be if we all had to eat lobster because some are wild over it; or, that we should be compelled to eat hard boiled eggs because some leader of fashion couldn't eat soft ones. This fixing up a diet for everybody's stomach can hardly be called an unqualified success. Every man has to learn by experience the things he can eat and the things he can't without hurting him. The final arbiter in the matter is his own reason. I think the same is true in religion. If you have made it yours by thinking it out and living it day by day, it gives you more satisfaction than the borrowed article. I would rather go to a tailor, get measured, and have a suit of clothes I can call my own than go to a second hand clothing store and get somebody's old suit because it's cheap, a fact that I shall find out only too soon.

Paint has something more to recommend it than a commercial value. Whether it is put on a woman's face or a man's house it is designed to make an old thing look fresh and beautiful. It fills up the crevices, or the wrinkles, as the case may be. In this paragraph, however, I shall confine my few words to the value of paint to a building on the ground that "discretion is the better part of valor." It is always, everywhere, and under all circumstances a mistake to suppose that there is any money saved by letting property run down. If you can put your property into respectable shape today at an outlay of $200, a year from now it will take double that amount. If one coat of fresh paint will do the trick now it will not be long before it will need two. And remember that your tax rate will not be lowered as your property depreciates. Yes, it is true "that a stitch in time saves nine."

Are there not values connected with property other than the merely commercial? Your property means more to you, or at least, it ought to mean more to you, than the amount it would bring in the market. It is taken for granted that the financial factor is not to be ignored. But is there not a sense of gratitude arising from the fact that your buildings and premises are up-to-date and attractive? It makes no difference what other things you have and what else you do you cannot disguise the fact in the eyes of the community that you are a sort of a Peter Tumbledown if you let your property disgrace the neighborhood. If you put all the money you can scrape together into an automobile or a summer cottage and let your property look as if the devil had a mortgage on it you cannot pass before the public as a well-to-do-man. You had better, first of all, give your house a good painting, and then buy a third-hand Ford.

If one is at all acquainted with psychology he must believe in the moral significance of tears—not all tears, of course. If the writer didn't have a big garden to look after as a means of keeping "the wolf from the door" he would be inclined to write a book on The Significance of Tears, because it is a comparatively an unexplored territory. But as he has a family of little boys crying for cabbages and onions, it is necessary for him to see that they are at the door to drive the wolves away. Consequently he must hang up the typewriter and the pen and take down the shovel and the hoe. Generally speaking there are four sorts of tears: 1 Tears of expediency, expressing the false tenderness of the hypocrite; 2, tears of sentimentality, the shallow expression of misguided sympathy. 3 The tears of weakness, those that are caused by over-wrought nerves, which arise equally from the emotions of pleasure and pain.

But we must admit that there is such a thing as weeping that brings out qualities of the human spirit that identifies man with the divine. It is, therefore upon this quality of tears that I wish to put the main emphasis—the tears that show that the heart is sympathetic and is deeply moved by the pleasure of pain of others. It is worthy of remark that the greatest men and women in human history are those who had tender hearts. It is said that men generally are ashamed to be seen with tears in their eyes, but there are times when nothing is more manly than tears. How many times does Homer represent the great Ulysses in tears. Achilles was like unto him in that he possessed a sympathetic nature that often revealed itself in weeping. Confessedly one of the most touching scenes in the Old Testament is the aged Jacob falling on the neck of the newly-Joseph and weeping. How many times is Jesus said to have wept!

The names of the Wright Brothers and Glenn Curtiss stand in the world of aviation what those of Prof. Morse and Alexander Graham Bell do respectively in electro-telegraphy and the telephone. I wonder if it is generally known that, far and away the most rapid mode of transit is the airship. In fact there is no other means of transportation that can enter into comparison with it. The French held the record for speed up to October of 1909, when Glenn Curtiss with his wonderful bi-plane won the race at Rheims, and has held the record ever since. But wonderful advancement has been in speed as well as in safety since then. To America belongs the almost incredible honor of attaining in October of last year the speed of over 238 miles per hour. This was accomplished by a Curtiss bi-plane. This speed has since been increased to 245 miles per hour, or equal to the speed of a cannon ball in the Civil war at the moment of impact.

While a supplemental word may not be needed, still it may be added to what was said last week to farther explain why urban conditions are more favorable to create leaders than rural. It certainly is not due to any differences in natural ability. In intellect there is no perceptible difference between those born in the country and those born in the city. But it is largely due to the fact that our cities for generations have been attracting the highest type of boys and girls from the country. The more energetic and enterprising have gone into the field of the larger opportunity. Of course many of both sexes have been ruined by the allurements of city life, but those who have stood the test have proved that it is the fittest that survive. Being capable of leadership the city has given larger opportunity for its development than the country could possibly do. Hence the showing could not be otherwise.

It is very delightful to find in the United States nearly 300 cities and large towns that have thrown the old antiquated municipal form of government into the discard, and adopted some form of commission-manager type. Montana, however, has taken most decidedly a forward step in making the commission-manager form to apply not alone to the city but the county as well. Under this arrangement the whole county has police and fire protection as well as the city. It tends to equalize some of the unfortunate differences between life in the larger and smaller settlements. The commissioners are responsible to the voters of the county, and the manager to the commissioners. "It curtails drastically the great American pastime of running for office." There will be as many officers as now, but will be selected for their fitness, but they will not be made up by those who move heaven and earth to persuade the party they belong to that the plums belong to them. It is ability and character rather than allegiance to party that make a candidate available.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

THE SUPREME CHOICE

But as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord. Joshua 24.15.

This is his announcement of his supreme choice by Joshua.

Nothing is more masterful in a man than his supreme ultimate choice.

Search thou the master passion; there alone
The wild are constant; and the cunning known.

Says the late great educator, Dr. Mark Hopkins: As a river, if it be a river, despite backwater and eddies, must flow some whither, and as those eddies and the backwater are caused by the very current they seem to contradict, so must there be in man some current of affection, bearing within its sweep all others, and that would, if known, reconcile all seeming contradictions." To know what the supreme object thus chosen and the master passion is the capital point in the most difficult and valuable of all knowledge, the knowledge of ourselves. But while we are thus necessitated to choose, and to choose an object of supreme affection, the choice itself is free. There is always an alternative."

There are supreme choices and subsidiary choices. But that which determines, arranges, marshals the subsidiary choice, is the supreme choice. This is the inexorable law of life—that oversearching every life, arranging it, managing it, shaping it, is its ultimate supreme choice. And no more searching, deciding, vital question can a man put himself than, What is really my own supreme choice?

And nowhere is this question as to supreme choice so determining as in the realm of morals and religion. "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness," is the great Master's announcement of what ought to be the supreme religious choice for life. We are to seek these first—no fifth or fourth, or third, or even second, but first. We are to say with Joshua, "As for me, I will serve the Lord."

Then, just as that young fellow's supreme choice as to business ruled his daily and lesser choices in it, so the supreme religious choice is to give rank and order of all our lesser choices—those concerning business and everything else which our lives touch.

What is it to be a Christian? It is to deliberately make this highest, noblest choice. It is to thus give God His rightful throne over mind, affection, will. It is to repent of having failed to do it in the past, to receive the forgiveness for our failure from the atoning Christ; to give crown to this loftiest choosing for the future. We may or we may not. We are free to choose. But every life is necessarily failure if its supreme and ruling choice be any other and less than God.

What Administration Has Done For The Farmers.

The commission reported "that business cycles of alternating great prosperity and succeeding great depression have occurred in a more or less regular way among all modern highly organized nations;

"That the primary cause of depression among the farmers and all other producers, is the exhaustion of credit and money capital, which was followed by the loss of either foreign or domestic markets or both;

"In the United States every industry and every class of people were involved in the avalanche of descending prices;

"The profits made by the farmer during the war were only slightly greater than in 1913, and were swept away by the decline in prices of 1920 and 1921.

"Over production or overmarketing of farm products in 1920 was not the moving factor in the decline of prices in 1920-1921;

"The crisis was not confined to this country; it involved the whole world;

"On the whole, agriculture production in the United States barely kept pace with consumption;

"In general, the crops of 1920 were sold at less than cost of production;

"An immediate reduction of freight rates is essential to a normal return of profits for farming operations;

"Co-operation of farmers for selling, sorting, grading and marketing is necessary;

The first step in the present administration's program of assistance to the farmers was a revival of the war finance corporation of March, 1919, originally authorized to make advances to American exporters and American banking institutions, to assist in financing exports of domestic products. The corporation suspended operations in May, 1920, at the request of the then secretary of the treasury. Congress, January 4, 1921, over President Wilson's veto, directed the secretary of the treasury to revive the activities of the corporation with a view of assisting in the financing of the exportation of agricultural and other products to foreign countries.

The agricultural credit act of August 24, 1921, broadened the powers of the corporation, authorizing credit to dealers in and handlers of agricultural products, including cooperative associations, to finance the carrying of agricultural products until they could be exported or sold for export. This authority was extended to breeders of cattle.

These steps showed sympathetic and patriotic effort on the part of the administration, to extend to the farmer every possible advantage in the way of legitimate credit.

Up to November 30, 1922, the corporation approved advances for agricultural and live stock purposes totalling $433,447,000 in 37 states—$182,869,000 to 4,400 banking institutions in 37 states; $77,761,000 in 113 live-stock loan companies, old and new, in 31 states; and $172,827,000 to 32 corporative marketing associations in 30 states.

On livestock in the west, $90,000,000;

On grain in the northwest, middle west and southwest, $36,790,000;

On rice in three states, $10,250,000.

On sugar in Colorado and Utah, $11,438,000.

On other agricultural commodities, $1,896,000.

For general agricultural purposes, $159,180,000.

Repayments up to November 30, 1922 were $109,938,000.

In January 1922, it was necessary to furnish financial assistance quickly to a large number of farmers and stockmen, to replace despair with hope and discouragement and courage.

The prompt improvement that the corporation was able to bring about by a general restoration of confidence was of far greater importance than the actual amount of money lent.

June 10, 1922, Congress extended the period during which the corporation could make advances, to June 30, 1923.

In addition, the present administration has established what is known as the rural credits system or "intermediate credit banks" (under the federal farm loan board), authorizing the discount of agricultural paper, and loans direct to any cooperative association producing agricultural products.

This new machinery is designed to take the place of the war finance corporation.

Everything possible has been done by the present administration to advance credit to the farmers and cattle growers of the west and south.

No act of congress can control or regulate the prices of agricultural products, or any other commodities.

The value of agricultural products of the American farms is greater this year than ever, and the producers should get a large return ultimately. If this is brought about it will be due largely to the activity of the present administration that extended credit, thus tiding over the situation until most of the farmers and producers could get on their feet again.

President Harding promises to take up the question of the "toll of the middle man" for the purpose of increasing the farmer's profits if possible.

Wives of Famous Men

Armande Bejart, Wife of Moliere.

Flourishing in the midst of the gay and dashing court of Louis XIV. it is only to be expected that the married life of Moliere, the leading dramatist and comedian of his time, and one of the greatest in the world's history, should reflect the brilliance and the intrigue of his surroundings.

Armande Bejart, beautiful, witty and quick tempered, an actress of rare ability and charm, was the wife. Under 20 when she married the playwright, then a man of 40, given to spells of moodiness and abstraction and endowed with all the eccentricities of genius, it would, as one biographer has said, be little short of a miracle had the marriage been a happy one. Yet they loved each other devotedly until the very last days of the playwright's life.

Armande was the sister of Madeleine Bejart, leading woman of the company of actors with whom Moliere was playing. There was a great difference in the ages of the two women and the elder sister was furious with jealousy when Moliere married Armande.

Attracted by her beauty, the playwright, once married, did little to show his love. His interest in his work kept him away from his young bride a large part of the time, and the old story of the neglected wife was the result. Armande loved admiration, and when she did not get it from her husband, she flirted harmlessly, to be sure, but sufficiently to arouse his fierce jealousy.

The pair quarreled constantly, even bringing their disagreements before the king, with whom they were favorites. When their first son was born, Louis acted as godfather. In spite of their stormy life they were passionately attached to each other, and Moliere wrote many of his plays to provide Armande with suitable roles. They were married only 11 years when he died.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Reichenberg, German Center of Bohemia.

"How the specters of almost forgotten history and hordes infest the borderlands of the New Europe is illustrated in the reported withdrawal of home rule from Reichenberg by the Czechoslovakia government," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Reichenberg is the chief German manufacturing town of Bohemia. In respect to political boundaries it lies between two small prongs which thrust into Germany from the new republic of the Czechs, Slovaks, and Ruthenians.

"Glance at a race map of Europe and the Czechs seem to be a racial peninsula, jutting out from Slav stock on the east but completely circled by Germans on the north, west and south.

"Early Bohemian kings tolerated German colonizers, sometimes invited them in. However when Bohemia finally fell under the Hapsburg sway the Czech element formed a solid core of their state by holding to their land, language, and literature. The Magyars of Hungary dominated the Slav element in their midst much more successfully than the Austrians controlled the Czechs.

"It is no reflection on the Czech spirit to note that the fertile Bohemia plateau land contributed to this Czech cohesion, and the German fringe begins where natural conditions replace forms by factories and mines.

"Reichenberg has the oldest school of weaving in Europe. Meat and malt extracts of the Liebig plant found their way around the commercial world. The city's industrial museum is notable. Its exhibits range from oriental porcelains and kook binding to eighteenth century furniture. French keys and art objects in pewter, copper and brass. It also has a municipal theater.

"Manufacture of cloth is the city's principal and oldest industry. It has developed cotton, carpet and linen manufacture, and also has important dye works. Its population of almost 40,000 is preponderantly German, and the strength of the German sentiment was expressed in the refusal of city officials to answer communications in the Czech language. This adherence to their native tongue is the immediate cause of the orders from Prague, 87 miles to the southwest, withdrawing Reichenberg's self government privileges."

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Seeing Strange Things.

"Well, well, well," laughed the little old man with the hump on his back, whom Little Jack Rabbit met in the last story, "and so you're seeking your fortune in the Ragged Giant Bunny's Forest. Well, I'll show you some strange things," and he gave a long shrill whistle and in less than five hundred short seconds, up ran thirteen white poodle dogs, all barking and yelping at the same time.

"Stop that noise," commanded the little old man.

At once all the little dogs became very quiet and followed their master until pretty soon, not so very far, he came to a long low house.

"Come in," said the little old man, opening the door into a large room where many little people were spinning. "I shear my poodle dogs to make coats from their hair," he explained. "All the dwarfs in the Ragged Giant Bunny's Forest buy their coats from me."

Just then, a knocking came at the door and ten little dwarfs ran in to buy ten little coats. After that, the little old man led Little Jack Rabbit into another building where dozens of black spiders were spinning white webs into beautiful veils.

"We make all the dresses for the Fairy Queen and her subjects," said the little old man. "These spiders have worked for me for many years." And I guess he was right for some of them had gray whiskers.

"I will give you a piece of lace for Lady Love," said the little old man, picking out a beautiful scarf and rolling it up into a tiny ball. "See, it is so delicate that it is now no larger than a peach."

"Thank you," laughed the rabbit boy bunny and then he bid the little old man goodby and went upon his way. Pretty soon he entered a thick forest and after hopping along for maybe a mile, he heard a sweet voice singing:

"Happy am I in my little log house,
With the whispering trees around me,
Until a Bunny Boy cuts the ropes
With which the robbers have bound me!"

"Gracious me!" exclaimed Little Jack Rabbit, "It's lucky I have my Jackknife with me. 'Tis a maiden in distress and he hopped on faster until he came to a little log hut, but, but, Oh dear me! The door was locked and the heavy blinds closed tight. Just then, the sweet voice commenced again:

"Lonely, I sit, like a little trapped mouse, Oh, climb down the chimney on top of the house" and in the next story you shall hear what the bunny boy did.

MAY WITHDRAW 200,000,000 BU. WHEAT FROM MARKET

Chicago, July 20.—A plan to withdraw 200,000,000 bushels of wheat from the market and store it on farms until prices advanced was announced today by President O. E. Bradfute of the American Farm Bureau federation.

The farm bureau plan provides for financing the project under the new intermediate credit act, by which Mr. Bradfute estimated $640,000,000 could be made available to lend to farmers for storing their surplus.

He estimated that $150,000,000 would be ample to store 200,000,000 bushels of wheat and thereby remove it from the market.

HOT SUMMER DAY CONTINUED INTO NIGHT

Friday will go down in history as a hot day and the evening as one of the most uncomfortable of the summer. Hundreds of people who had remained in the city during the day perspiring under a July sun that sent the mercury over the 90 mark, made a hurried exit early in the evening and nearby beaches were crowded almost to the limit, the crowd remaining far into the night.

In the city there was hardly a breath of air stirring and coats and collars quickly gave way before the heat. Ice cream parlors and soft drink emporiums handled a thriving trade through the evening and picture houses felt the call for the open in the smallness of attendances.

PAST GRAND'S JEWEL PRESENTED TO MANCHESTER UNITY OFFICER

The regular meeting of Hugh H. Osgood lodge, No. 6920, I. O. O. F., M. U., was held Friday evening at Steiner hall with one of the largest gatherings of the year assembled. The night was the occasion of a visitation by the district officers of the lodge and a pleasing sight was the appearance of many members of Loyal Samaritan lodge of Baltic who came down to help welcome the distinguished visitors.

Noble Grand William Ellal presided over the meeting and considerable routine business was transacted. Following the regular session Noble Grand Ellal introduced the district officers as follows: Harry J. Brenton, P. G. M., of Bridgeport; George Robinson, P. D. G. M., of Stamford, and Horace Lucus, P. C. S., of Bridgeport.

A surprise of the evening came when P. G. M. Brenton presented to Immediate Past Noble Grand John Broadhurst a past grand jewel. He complimented Mr. Broadhurst on his work for the lodge and said that it was a pleasure to make the presentation. Mr. Broadhurst responded, thanking the members for their gift saying that it would ever be held priceless by him.

During the evening the lodge received compliments from P. G. M. Brenton and P. D. G. M. Robinson for its work during the past year, also for the excellent showing it has made in membership.

The lodge also heard brief remarks by P. P. G. M. Edward Crooks and D. E. M. Charles Barnes, both talks being lodge matters.

At the close of the evening the social committee sounded the refreshment call and cake, ice cream, soda and cigars were enjoyed. The committee in charge of the refreshments comprised Brothers Edward Crooks, William Partridge, George Hollingsworth and William Ellal.

PARKING REGULATIONS IN WILLIMANTIC SUGGESTED

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, July 20.—At a joint meeting of the police and street committees of the board of aldermen with a citizens' committee held tonight in the police court chamber of the town building several changes in the parking line were suggested which it is thought will relieve unsatisfactory traffic conditions in this city at the present time. Edgar W. Jacobs, president of the board of aldermen, presided.

These suggestions will be presented to the August meeting of the common council for action. The meeting unanimously favored equal distance parking on Main street from Bank street to Lincoln square from 6 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening with the exception of Saturday evening and any special occasion. By equal distance parking, two lines will be drawn in the district effected and both sides of the thoroughfare and all vehicles will park on or within the line. Parallel parking will be in order from Railroad street on Main street to the railroad crossing on the south. It is also agreed to investigate the possibility of shunting the trolley and changing the direction of the railroad gate. The following streets from Main to Valley were designated for one side parking: Church, North, Walnut, High on the west; Center and Temple on the east. Parking will be allowed on the south side of Valley street, only, if the proposed recommendation is carried into effect. There will be no parking time limits in this district with the exception of Main street. Parking will be allowed on both sides of Broad street with no time limit. An agreement was reached after some discussion that two hours would be a proper limit for parking on Main street, the area to be from High to Lincoln square. It was agreed that local taxies should park under the foot bridge and also on Railroad street with no time limit. Jitneys with a designated schedule agreed to be limited to parking on Railroad street to ten minutes before schedule set and that space be reserved for them on the west side of the street. It was planned to suggest to the parking district that the streets be paroled by a police officer. One of the various valuable suggestions was to the effect that no car could be parked within twenty-five feet of the cross walk at Lincoln's corner on either side of Union street. No trucks should be permitted to park or unload when tacked to curb.

Y. M. C. A. ROOMS BUSY ON SUMMER EVENING

Seldom has there been a busier evening at the local Young Men's Christian association than was the case on Friday evening. Physical Director Emmett J. Fritz was doing triple duty at the building, in the supervision of outdoor athletics, the class of newsboys in the gymnasium and a continual group in the Osgood Memorial swimming pool.

The showers and the pool are certainly popular these hot days, some of the members enjoying the cool waters from two to three times daily, and Friday night saw one of the largest gatherings of the summer, everyone being content on cooling off after suffering the intense heat of the streets.

Both of the lobbies showed activities, the game tables were all in use during the evening and several local musicians who dropped into the building delighted the members with selections on the pianos. The reading room was also a popular place and nearly every chair was engaged for the night.

FLETCHER POST PASSES VOTE OF CONDOLENCE

At the regular meeting of Robert O. Fletcher Post, No. 4, held Friday night at the legion rooms on Main street, and in the absence of Commander John Cunningham, Past Commander William Anderson presided. Considerable routine business was transacted during which it was voted that the post send a letter of condolence to Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Cramer on the death of their son, William L. Cramer, an ex-service man.

It was decided to get in touch with a noted motion picture star who is touring the country with a jazz band, in an endeavor to bring him to Norwich. Plans were also discussed to bring a well known motion picture to this city to be shown at a local theatre, the proceeds to go to swell the post treasury. At the next meeting of the post delegates are to be elected to the state convention.

Following the meeting a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

OIL TRAP CAUGHT AUTOS AT TOP OF MOHEGAN HILL

A Standard Oil tank truck made an oil trap at the top of Mohegan hill on the Montville road Friday morning about 11 o'clock that caught half a dozen automobiles before the highway department could put sand on the spot.

One Studebaker car ran into the oil and upset on the trolley tracks, an Essex coach skidded around and smashed a rear wheel, and a Ford slid off the road and damaged its radiator, fenders and headlights. Several other cars whirled around when they hit the oil and a state policeman who arrived to investigate also ran into the oil and was upset from his motorcycle.

The truck had been to New London to deliver a load of oil. On the return trip the driver showed the bad judgment of stopping at the top of Mohegan hill to let what remained in his tanks run out on the road. All the trouble followed.

CHARLES F. BOSWELL DIES SUDDENLY AT HIS HOME

Charles Fanning Boswell, a well known farmer of Preston, died suddenly at his home late Thursday evening as the result of a cerebral hemorrhage. Mr. Boswell had been enjoying very good health and while he has been quite active with his work he has not complained. Thursday evening he ate his supper as usual, joking frequently as was his custom. He retired as usual passing away shortly afterwards, his wife being the only one with him at the time of his death. Mr. Bosswell was born in Norwich, September 14, 1850, the son of William and Eliza Fanning Boswell. At 8 years of age he moved to his late home in Preston City. After completing the course at the local grammar school he was further educated at the Moses Brown Academy, Providence, being graduated in 1867. In politics he was a staunch republican, representing his town in the state legislature; also filling many of the town offices in a most efficient manner.

On June 24, 1912, he was married to Miss Louisa Ross Yerrington, who is his only survivor. Mr. Boswell is the last of the immediate Boswell family. Boswell avenue in Norwich was named for his grandfather, William Boswell, who owned at one time a large tract of land across which Boswell avenue was laid out.

He leaves a host of friends who regarded him as a good neighbor and sincere friend.

RECOGNITION SERVICE AT OLD WESTMINSTER CHURCH

Sunday afternoon at 2.30 Westminster is to have, for the only time in its 153 years, a "recognition service" in its ancient church. The proposition originated with several ministers at the ordination at Putnam and has been planned and is being carried out by friends on the outside, their names being in an item sent by the moderator and appearing in last week's Bulletin, Saturday, July 14th.

Many have already expressed their desire to attend the recognition of Mrs. T. Edward Davies, who becomes assistant pastor of that church. Those who are to take part in the service are Rev. Simeon E. Cozad of Putnam, Rev. Fosdick B. Harrison of Woodstock, Rev. Mary F. Macomber of Central Village, Rev. J. Spencer Voorhees of Putnam, Rev. William C. Prentiss of Plainfield and Rev. A. Avery Gates of Hampton.

CHIMNEY FIRE AND BLAZE ON AWNING

At 1.44 Friday afternoon the fire department received a telephone call for a chimney fire in the house of Youngs A. Bailey at 45 Spring street. The quick response and efficient work of the firemen quickly extinguished the blaze. The cause of the fire was probably due to considerable quantity of soot which had collected in the chimney. There was little damage.

Another call was received by the Greeneville fire department, No. 2, on Friday afternoon at 4.10 for an awning fire in front of the dry goods store conducted by Vincent Stranz at 468 North Main street. The fire probably started when a lighted cigarette was carelessly thrown away without the fellow ascertaining where it landed. The fire was put out in short order and little damage resulted.

THIRD CONGRESS OF THE WORLD BAPTIST ALLIANCE

Stockholm, July 20 (By the A. P.)—Representative Baptists from every continent on the globe were assembled here tonight in readiness for the opening tomorrow of the third congress of the Baptist World Alliance. The delegations from every country where the Baptists are organized with the exception of Russia and England, have arrived, and the others are due early tomorrow. The delegates spent much time viewing the first general exhibit ever assembled of what their denomination is doing in the missionary, educational and benevolent fields, the exhibition having been prepared as one of the chief features of the congress.

A monument was unveiled this afternoon at the grave of Dr. K. O. Broady, who after serving as a colonel in the Union army during the American Civil war, returned to Sweden as a pioneer missionary educator and spent fifty years teaching in Bethel seminary here, forty of which he served as president. Dr. Broady became a Baptist in America. He had just graduated from Colgate university when the Civil war broke out, and he raised a company of volunteers of which he was the captain.

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER DROWNED IN LAKE ECHO, N. J.

New Haven, July 20.—Mary Webb, 11 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Webb of Hamden and granddaughter of Judge and Mrs. J. H. Webb, was drowned with her aunt, Mrs. Philip Walkley, last night at Echo Lake, N. J., according to a despatch received today. The parents left at once for New Jersey. The message gave no particulars, but it is thought that Mrs. Walkley and her niece were in a canoe which upset. The latter was visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Charles Pinkney of Glen Ridge.

Echo Lake has now taken the lives of five members of Mrs. Webb's family in 12 years. In 1910 her two sisters and a brother were drowned while canoeing on the lake.

RUM RUNNER ESCAPED FROM CELL IN WESTPORT

Bridgeport, July 20.—Digging a four foot iron bar out of the soft sandstone wall in which it was embedded, Laiborio Crapanzano, of Boston, Mass., early this morning escaped from the rear basement cell room of the town hall at Westport and tonight the police of Connecticut, Massachusetts and New York had been enlisted in the search being made for the fugitive.

The jail break was discovered about 7.30 o'clock this morning by Deputy Sheriff Clifford Nichols, of Westport, who went to feed the prisoner. Crapanzano was fined 400 and costs for transporting liquor in Westport court Thursday after having been arrested with James Bassapaty, of 24 Charter street, Boston, Mass., Wednesday night. Bassapaty, who paid his own fine, is believed by the authorities to have aided his confederate in escaping.

Although the state police figured in the arrest of the rum runners, Sergeant Frank Virelli, of Bridgeport, had not been officially notified of the escape at six o'clock this evening.

Westport town officials tonight admitted that jealousy existed between the local constabularly and the state police. First Selectman Austin Wakeman stating that the whole trouble was caused by Sergeant Virelli's desire to "grab" all the credit for cases.

No trace of the fugitive rum runner had been unturned at a late hour tonight, Westport authorities stated.

NEW YORK STRONG FOR DEM. NATIONAL CONVENTION

Chicago, July 20.—New York will make a strong bid for the democratic national convention, George E. Rennan, Illinois democratic leader, announced here today, upon his return from a conference at French Lick Springs with Charles F. Murphy, New York leader, and Thomas Taggart, head of the party in Indiana.

"New York city hasn't had a national convention for many years and Mr. Murphy said they are going to fight hard to get the democratic meeting next year," Mr. Brennan said.

Of course, he said, Chicago will make its strongest bid for the gathering and Brennan said he expected Kansas City, St. Louis and San Francisco to join in inviting the delegates. The meeting place usually is decided in January, Brennan said.

Democratic leaders are said to believe that their meeting next year will hold the major portion of the national interest, the republican convention being little more than a ratification meeting.

Fifteen cans fo fingerling trout were received here from the state fish hatcheries Friday and the little beauties were promptly released in Mashentucki, Snake Meadow, Quondock and FaFll brooks. Members of the Danielson Rod and Gun club assisted in the distribution of the fish.

The fingerling averaged about three inches in length and excepting for a few cans arrived here in excellent condition. The extreme heat of the day made it necessary to release some of the fish that were beginning to show the effects before they could be taken to points where it had been planned to let them go.

Another shipment of fingerling will be received here today (Saturday) and it is anticipated that a sufficient number of club members will be on hand to make a very rapid distribution.

While the average young man who has time for such things finds it either too much work or too hot for gardening, Edward S. Carpenter, one of the borough's oldest and best known citizens, has three fine gardens this summer—not backyard play plots but real honest-to-goodness gardens—that are now producing for the table and will bring forth a fine surplus for next winter's needs. Mr. Carpenter, who is well along in the 80s, takes care of the gardens himself and is up bright and early giving them attention. One garden has been producing potatoes for some time past, as well as various other vegetables that come along earlier in the season.

Roland H. Gray and D. E. Jette of the borough committee on sewers have asked for bids for construction of a sewer in Mechanic street. Leon Stanley Kelley of Eastford is made the defendant in a divorce suit just filed by his wife, Mable Wiley Kelley, at the office of the clerk of the superior court in this city. The couple married February 12, 1918, and desertion is alleged to have occurred on March 20, 1920. The defendant is well known in this section and formerly lived in Pomfret and Woodstock.

Among the matters that claimed the attention of the police during Friday was an incident in which an automobile and Gaudice Rivard and Lozaire Rivard, respectively father and son, figured. The father was taking a lesson in motor car operation out on Woodstock avenue, Thursday evening, when the machine got out of control, dashed up onto the sidewalk and hit a baby carriage, the occupying infant escaping injury, then dashed on across the highway and tore down several feet of fence bordering the route. The car was somewhat damaged, but the Rivards escaped hurts of any consequence.

Announcement was made Friday morning that at a meeting of the Elks' fair committee it was decided that the owner of the ticket calling for a Buick touring not having claimed the machine it would be best to sell the car in order to save depreciation and hold the funds until the owner of the ticket makes proper claim for the car.

Every effort will be made to find the owners as it is the desire of the lodge to have the automobile disposed of in accordance with the original plan.

The lodge feels that it is impossible to use the funds from the sale of the car for any other purpose than to hold until such time as no doubt remains that the ticket is lost.

Solomon Taub, jeweler of 1292 Madison avenue, New York, is a patient at the Day Kimball hospital, suffering from serious internal injuries sustained when a horse he was driving in East Thompson bolted when the shaft of the vehicle broke and gave Taub and three children who were riding with him a wild trip that ended in a disastrous crash. The children were not seriously hurt. Taub was driving along the state highway near the McMillan store when the accident occurred. He was in Thompson visiting his sister, Mrs. Joseph Tarr.

What approximates a carnival of appendicitis operations has been going on at the Day Kimball hospital this week. In addition to a list of six operations for this trouble printed early this week three more cases may now be noted, those of Miss Maud Johnson of Ballouville, A. Kazeick of this city and Annie DeCarlo of Wilsonville. Speculators as to why so many cases have occurred in such a brief period of time do not get very far on the road to obtaining a satisfactory answer. The cases just happen!

There will be visiters from this city today and Sunday at Douglas camp meeting, which opened Friday and will continue until nearly the end of the month. Of interest, too, is the announcement that the Willimantic camp meeting, in which the members of the Methodist church here are interested is to be held this year August 18-26. Bishop Hughes and Bishop Bristol are to be among the prominent clergymen who will speak at the meeting.

About $500 in paid units of $50 each and a number of pledged units have been added to the Nurses' Home fund of the Day Kimball hospital this week, edging the fund a bit farther along toward the goal of $20,000, which it is hoped will be reached toward the close of the summer. Next week will bring further additions to the fund; as a number of units that have been raised have not yet been turned into the fund treasurer, J. J. Whitehead of this city. More money is in sight also from entertainments planned for the coming week, these including an important concert to be held at Pomfret next Monday evening and a lawn party scheduled to be held by the Killingly Woman's club in Danielson on Wednesday next.

Mrs. Ellan Ballard Chase, of Thompson will reach her 90th birthday today (Saturday). Mrs. Chase is in good health and has a clear mind. Mrs. Chase is a native of Thompson, a daughter of Deacon and Mrs. Valentine Ballard. Her home was in Thompson until her marriage March 18, 1856, with Nathan Chase of Northbridge, Mass. Nine children were born to them, three dying in infancy. The living children are five in number—John B. Chase, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Charles V. Chase, Davenport, an Iowa resident for many years, but now of Thompson; Mrs. Clark Pierce, Mrs. Martha Eddy and Miss Mary Chase. Mr. Chase died three years ago last to the south near the North Scituate hotel.

Aug. 2 has been fixed as the date for the annual Old Home day at East Killingly, an occasion that each year brings former sons and daughters back to that charming section of the town. A program of interest is being arranged.

Miss Cora Lariviere of the clerical force at the Danielson Trust company is spending a vacation of two weeks in New Hampshire.

Danielson Radio club has plans for the observance of its first anniversary.

Harry C. Kensington of Lowell was a visitor with friends in Danielson Friday.

Suggestive of the fact that the early fall with its caucuses and elections is imminent is the announcement that the registrars are to meet Aug. 3 and Aug. 10 to make an enrollment of voters.

Professional trapshots will come here next Thursday under the auspices of the Danielson Rod and Gun club to give an exhibition at an informal shoot to be held at the club's grounds on Allen Hill.

Mrs. Walter Purvis had members of the Roundabout club at her home on Riverview for a meeting Friday afternoon.

Progress is being made on the addition to the public school at Goodyear and the remodeled building will be ready for occupancy when the new school year begins.

Success

Comes to him who serves the best. He serves best who serves most efficiently—and most economically.

Frankly, we are after the tire business of Norwich. If we are to be successful in securing it; we realize that we must SERVE THE BEST. We must give the greatest value, the most mileage and least tire trouble—or our competitors will give us a proper licking.

We never did like to take a licking—so we decided that we must sell the best tire to be had. We have sold five or six different brands of tires—and stopped selling them. They either gave too much trouble or were just average good tires.

We made up our minds that we must watch our step in picking our next tire. We searched the country over, investigated carefully, bought the wholesale agency, and offer you, with our personal recommendation and endorsement

THE MONTFORD CORD TIRES

It is the best tire we ever saw. 35x5 cords on Reo trucks carrying heavy loads are giving exceptional mileage.

30x3½ cords will lick any tire ever put on a flivver. It doesn't know how to rim-cut, wears like iron and gives almost unbelievable mileage.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

TANNEY STORE TO HAVE SECOND ANNIVERSARY SALE

The Tanney Corporation store in the Thayer building is announcing its second anniversary sale, which is to begin next Wednesday, the 25th, and run to the end of the week. This sale will mark the end of the two years for the corporation in the business life of Norwich, years in which their progressivene store has gained a strong hold upon the purchasing public that has learned to watch for what the Tanney Co. has to offer and to find its expectations realized in what the store's counters offer.

The Tanney corporation officers speak with praise of the reception that has been given them during their two years in Norwich and appreciate the support that has been given them. They started in the large store with its entrance on Franklin street, but soon found they needed more room as they early set to add more departments. For this purpose they took over the Bath street store, connecting with the main store. They have plans now formed for adding more room yet and when this has been attained it will be with a continuance of their policy which they have consistently developed, bigger values and better opportunities in trade for our patrons.

The boys were in charge of Andrew M. Avery, scoutmaster, and were Raymond Allen, Claire Lester, Leslie Holdridge, Arthur Goodenough, Freddie Allyn, William Burton, Richard Burton, George and Richard Geer.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre

There are so many angles of interest in the Universal-Jewel production, The Abysmal Brute, that it should appeal to almost every type of patron. Adapated from a story by the late Jack London, it has the vigor and dramatic value of this author's appeal of hardy manhood, of life in the open, and the atmosphere of the prize ring. But don't get the idea that it is a prize fight story only, for there is a pretty romance of the unspoiled chap from the hills who packs such a tremendous wallop in the ring that he is known as "The Abysmal Brute," but at the same time is so bashful that he runs away from all women, until the right girl comes along. Then haltingly at first, but with all of the force of his nature when the time comes, he fights against all odds of class distinction and wins. There is the sweep of the great open spaces in the early scenes, beautiful scenic atmosphere, snappy and unusual comedy that is put across with a bang.

All of this has been emphasized and forcefully brought out by the excellent direction of Hobart Henley, by his usual painstaking attention to detail in rounding off his scenes. There is just enough of the prize ring to please those who like it and not enough to detract from the interest of those to whom the squared circle does not appeal, and these scenes are well handled, with good punches, literally as well as figuratively, and refreshing human comedy.

Added to all of these is the truly excellent work of Reginald Denny in the title role. Having achieved great success in the three Leather Pushers series of two-reelers, in which he essayed quite similar roles, he was an ideal selection for the hero of this feature. He looks and acts the part. His sincerity and naturalness add greatly to the role. His performance holds your interest tensely and he has your sympathy to such an extent that in the scenes at a formal dinner in the girl's home, where his uncouth manners cause amusement to some of the guests, you truly feel sorry for him.

Mabel Julienne Scott is well cast as the society girl who falls in love with the hero, not knowing he is a prize-fighter. Her turning from him when she learns this, and the final victory of her heart over the artificial restrictions of class distinction are convincingly handled. The remainder of the cast all do fine work.

This will be the feature attraction at the Strand Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Review has been taken from Moving Picture World. A Mermaid comedy and news will also be featured.

Remember vaudeville every Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Profitable Willimantic Investment

Residents of Windham county are presented a fine opportunity for safe and profitable investment in the disposal of the $150,00 worth of stock in the Capitol Theatre corporation which is now being offered to the public, the advertisement for which appears on the Willimantic page.

Practically all of the incorporators are residents of Willimantic and all are local men who are noted for their progressiveness. The fact that they are backing the project sets it on a sure footing and makes the way clear for a successful conclusion.

Another Feature Movin Picture at at Y. M. C. A.

At the local Y. M. C. A. Sunday, July 22, at 4 p. m. first part of the impressive moving picture, "The Chosen Prince" will be shown, and both men and women are invited, also children if accompanied by adults. This feature is a beautiful portrayal of David, the great Bible character. The reels for Sunday will portray the early life of David amid the quiet fields of Judea, in preparation for his later life; from the sons of Jesse he is chosen to be the Lord's and is annointed by Samuel. Interest in this part centers around the conflict between David and Goliath. This picture affords a splendid opportunity to study a most wonderful character in an interesting way, the pictures making their own deep impression upon those who see them. The musical part of the hour will be furnished by Hugh Kinder, who will, in addition to playing piano music for the pictures, also render appropriate vocal solos. A brief talk in line with the pictures will be given.

BREED THEATRE

Mary Pickford has probably never done a photoplay in which so little location work was required as in her current United Artists offering, "Little Lord Fauntleroy," to be featured at the Breed theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

With the exception of a trip to Burlingame, Cal., where the castle exteriors were taken, the entire picture was made in Los Angeles at the headquarters for the Pickford force.

This has not meant, however, that "Little Lord Fauntleroy" is an economical picture. On the contrary, it is by far the most expensive cinema undertaking Little Mary has ever attempted. The cost of the sets alone runs into figures that sound like a statement of America's war debt. In addition to the largest interior set ever built, there are several exteriors that were gigantic in size and stupendous in cost. Despite the fact that every effort was exercised to bring sane expenditures, the nature of these settings necessitated a tremendous outlay of money in order that they might be interesting, realistic and artistic.

Among the settings that are bound to provoke much favorable comment are the interiors of Dorincourt Castle, the New York street scenes, the Dorincourt lodge and the peasant home of Mrs. Higgins.

The widest extremes possible are represented in these reproductions, built as they are from the vivid colorful descriptions of Mrs. Burnett, author of this perennially popular tale. The variety manifested in these sets forms the basis upon which is built the all-encompassing drama, pathos and uproarious comedy of the story.

Those who have learned to love the little Lord Fauntleroy the author pictured, as well the atmosphere in which he lived, will view Miss Pickford's cinematization of this wonderful novel with a genuine delight. The faithfulness and fidelity with which she has reproduced the romantic locale in which the story is steeped is truly a credits to the genius of the one and only Mary.

On Sunday, August 5th our annual outdoor service will be held at the grove of the Maennerchor, in Taftville. The service will start at 10.30 a. m.

Poultrymen to Hear Expert.

On Monday evening at 7.30 (standard time), there will be a meeting of the Norwich Poultry club at the Farm Bureau office. Professor R. E. Jones will be present and also, probably E. N. Searles, president of the Eastern Connecticut Poultry Producers' association. The topic for the evening will be a discussion on the Eastern Connecticut Poultry Producers' association, and the above men will explain what the association has been doing in the past and what the future prospects are. All men producing a case of eggs per week will be interested in this association and will get a new light on it if they come into the Farm Bureau office on Monday evening, July 23rd. It is for each and every poultryman's benefit that he familiarizes himself with this and get behind it. There are a great many poultrymen in this section of the county who should be in the association but are not at the present time.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY.

A WOMAN'S CYCLE OF PRAYER.

Let me be a woman in this world of beauty,
Let my labor be of love,
Not from a sense of duty,
Ready with my hands and heart,
Glad to do a woman's part
In the quiet little sphere
Where I've been placed to labor here,
Let me be a woman.

Let me be a daughter to the old and childless,
Let me minister to them
With sympathy and mildness,
Let it be my joy to make
Sacrifices for their sake;
Let my lamp dispel the gloom
And warm their cold and narrow room,
Let me be a daughter.

Let me be a sister to the ones who labor
And make them feel they-have in me
A sister, friend, and neighbor;
Let me help to bear the load,
Find the ones who've lost the road
And wake in them a hopeful song
To last them all the journey long,
Let me be a sister.

Let me be a woman with a love for serving,
Let no kinsman's plea for aid
Find my purpose swerving.
With my heart and hand and all
Ready at the great world's call,
Working on without surcease,
Brave in war and strong in peace,
Let me be a woman.

MY OLD RAG DOLL.

Last night I searched the garret for a long-forgotten book,
And as I pried and peered about, down in a dusky nook
I found what made me all at once forget what I was after.
And filled my eyes with springing tears and stirred my voice to laughter.
And up I took it wonderingly, with cobwebs, dust and all,
And held it close against my heart—
My old rag doll.

Oh, dear, forgotten childhood's joy!
Oh, precious, long-lost treasure!
I cannot tell why such a pain was mingled with the pleasure;
I cannot tell just why the tears fell fast from eyes bent over
That dusty, dear, old-fashioned thing—
I only know I love her!
I only know that, "Polly" in her little ragged shawl
Is mine once more—is mine again—
My old rag doll.

Dear relic of my childhood—of that happy, happy time
When life meant play and sunshine and every joy was mine;
When care was all unknown to me and every bright tomorrow
Was but an echo of today! There rarely came a sorrow,
But when my fair horizon was stirred by sudden squall
There was naught that gave me comfort like
My old rag doll.

And the little faded ribbon tied with many a childish prink,
And the dusty plaid merino of the little time-worn gown,
And the tiny knitted stockings o'er the shoe-tops slipping down—
There on the garret floor I sat and brooded o'er them all
And longed for that sweet childhood with
My lod rag doll.

And though I am a woman, with a woman's work and care,
And though I look each morning for the silver in my hair,
And all my golden childhood is but a happy dream,
Somehow today its perfect joys a little nearer seem
Since I found her in the garret with the cobwebs, dust and all,
That dearest relic of the past—
My old rag doll.

SOCIAL CORNER EVENTS.

August 1.—Picnic at Home of U. C. E. at Fitchville.

MUCH INTERESTED IN RURAL DELIVERY'S TRIP.

Dear Social Corner: Have you noticed or thought about the foliage this year? If so, don't you think it is unusually heavy? It seems so to me and makes me think of these lines:

TREES IN WINTER.

Yet the time they really need their leaves is winter when it's cold;
No wonder that a poor, bare tree shivers so uncomfortably.

Rural Delivery: I was very glad to have you write such an interesting letter to us at last. Had begun to think you were never going to and was going to give you a calling down when I wrote. I feel as if I knew you, having met you at Aunt Mary's and have your autograph, and it really made me feel very lonesome to think you were going so far away to make your permanent home. But why did you not stay in Tucson, where they have no cold weather or snow, I don't understand. And such beautiful flowers as they have in California. A man told me he rode through acres of calla lilies—only think of it—all in bloom, and said at Easter time there were twe thousand calla lilies in one church. This was in Burbank, a place only two years old, but had two thousand inhabitants. The hotel had one thousand rooms and 1,000 baths. At the Temple Baptist church, the finest auditorium he ever saw, with three galleries, like a theatre, and an average congregation of five to six thousand. What an inspiration that would be! Should think you must have seen enough to give us an interesting letter every month for a year. We that cannot go to these places, just like to hear about them. Seems as if California was almost paradise—some parts of it. Why didn't you stay? Am anxious to know. Hope you will tell us that much, anyway. What the the drawbacks about it? Always enjoy your letters to the Corner.

OLA.

HOME MADE FIRELESS COOKER.

Dear Corner Sisters: Almost every housekeeper has some large box with a lid, or an old trunk or something of that sort which can be used. If not, get from your grocer a tall cheesebox or a better tub, the cost will be very little.

For a cooking vessel choose one with straight sides or sides sloping upwards and a tight lid, a granite pail with a tin lid will do and may be bought from thirty to fifty cents. A five-pound lard pail can be used. Aluminum or granite stock made for this purpose with clamped lids can be bought for $2.

The making is very simple. The first I would do is to pack the bottom of the box or tub with an eight-inch layer of excelsior, straw, sawdust or crushed newspaper. Set the vessel to be used on this and pack the excelsior or paper tightly all around to the top of the kettle. When the kettle is lifted out a nest will be left into which it can be put again. Cut a strip of asbestos paper as wide as the kettle is high and long enough to reach around it. Line the nest with this.

For the top, make a thin white cushion of thin white cloth filled with excelsior or paper. Make the cushion to fill the top of the box or tub and allow the lid to fit down closely over it.

You can save much gas, it keeps the kitchen free from steam and heat, and gives excellent results with foods which require long, slow cooking.

You start your food cooking, then the kettle is tightly closed nad placed where it will be so shut out from the air that the heat is held until the food is cooked.

Time for pot roast, three pounds, time on fire 30 minutes, then finish in cooker six hours.

A shank cooked in a fireless cooker is as tender as chicken.

I cook my beans in a fireless cooker. They require a little more time but are fine.

If you wish to keep meals warm, set in fireless cooker.

Fresh vegetables are all boiled five minutes on fire, then in the cooker: Carrots 3 hours, beets 3 1-2 hours, turnips 2 hours, peas 3 hours, string beans 6 hours, potatoes 1 1-2 hours.

Cereals: Rolled oats, simmer on fire five minutes, time in cooker two hours; cream of wheat, time on fire five minutes, time in cooker five hours, in proportion of one cup cream of wheat, water three cups.

Dried fruits, beans split peas, etc., can be cooked in a home-made fireless cooker. It takes it a little longer than in my boughten cooker.

Spinach and other greens I never cook in water, I always steam them. Spinach and other greens 40 minutes, beets 60 minutes, green corn 25 minutes, peas 30 minutes, string beans 60 minutes, asparagus 40 minutes, kohlrabi 40 minutes. If you steam your vegetables you will never want to boil them.

I steam carrots 40 minutes to one hour, according to the size, onions 40 minutes to one hour according to size, beets one hour to two hours according to size. Cabbage I cook uncovered about 50 minutes; sometimes it will cook in 40 minutes. These vegetables make iron in the blood. These are very accurate time for boiling.

Thanks very much to the editor for my check.

ETHELYN.

BEAR A GRUDGE AGAINST NO MAN.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: The Master said, "Cherish no ill will against any one. Be kindly affectioned one to another," and while you are harboring unkind thoughts it is impossible for you to be kindly affectioned. People have been known to belong to the same church, the same society, or safe to say it, the same family who meet each other day after day, year after year and do not speak to each other because of a word or act which their unforgiving heart treasurers up and broods over as if it were a precious thing and yet these same people call themselves followers of Christ and profess to belong to the Household of Faith. Oh, if we are all to be one family in heaven how shall such as these stand before the Throne together with the sin of unforgiveness between them. Bear a grudge against no man. We have much to be forgiven so then let us be ready to forgive others. Oh, be careful how you judge. Many a heart has ached, many a life been blighted because of hasty opinions and misinterpretations. Think of the times you have done or said things which must have looked strange to others, you admit that you were placed in a false light but you excuse yourself by saying "No matter how it seemed to others it was all right." But yet you are suspicious of some one else when appearances are against them and misjudge them when often they are no more to blame than you were. The great difference is that you understand yourself and that you misunderstood your neighbor. You put the wrong construction upon their words and actions. Weigh carefully your words before you speak lest you wound or hurt a sensitive soul. The only way to get sin out of your life is to get the root of sen out of your heart.

Do not weary in well-doing,
Take this motto for your own.
Know a word in kindness spoken,
Oft doth melt a heart of stone.

PAULA.

DRILLING BREAD BOARD.

Dear Cornerites: If one has trouble with cookies and fried cakes sticking to the board, here is a remedy: Buy one yard of unbleached drilling, very heavy and place it over the board. The first time it is used it will need about one handful of flour; after that you will be surprised how little flour you will use as nothing sticks to it. I always roll it up and lay it away until I need it again. When I think it needs washing I soak in cold water, loosen the flour first, and then wash it and it is ready for use. I would not be without a drilling bread board.

Peach Rob Poly: Two cups of flour, one-half teaspoon of salt, three teaspoons of baking powder, sifted together; rub into this two tablespoons of butter and moisten with enough milk to make a stiff dough. Roll into a rectangular shape and cover with sliced peaches; sprinkle heavily with sugar, dust over it a little flour and cinnamon, roll up loosely, pinch the edges together, wrap in a floured cloth and steam for an hour. Serve with cinnamon sauce.

Cinnamon Sauce: Cream one cup of brown sugar with two tablespoons of butter, add one cup of hot water and boil, thickening with one tablespoon of cornstarch, and add one-half teaspoon of ground cinnamon.

Where are The Corner members whose names were once so familiar but are now so seldom seen? Their letters are missed.

PUSSY WILLOW.

GOOD AND INEXPENSIVE.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: As the berry season is now here, will send in a few good recipes. The first one is a great favorite with us; it is very good and inexpensive.

Berry Pudding: Two cups flour, two and one-half level teaspoons baking powder, one tablespoon butter, one-half teaspoon salt, seven-eighths cup milk, one cup huckleberries. Steam one and one-half hours.

Sauce: Two tablespoons butter creamed with one cup sugar. Into another bowl put one tablespoon of cornstarch, moistened with cold water. Pour boiling water into it until quite thin, stirring as you do this, then stir in the mixture of sugar and butter. Cinnamon flavor is nice with this pudding.

Huckleberry Gingerbread: Add one-half cup boiling water to one cup molasses. Mix and sift two and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon ginger and one-half teaspoon salt. Combine mixtures. Add four tablespoons melted shortening and beat vigorously. Then add one cup huckleberries rolled in two tablespoons flour. Bake 30 minutes.

Raspberry Roly Poly: Mix together one pint of sifted flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon sugar and one teaspoon of baking powder, and rub in two tablespoons of butter or lard. Mix with sufficient sweet milk to make a soft dough. Turn on floured road, roll out in a sheet one-half an inch thick. Spread thickly with raspberries, sprinkle with a spoon or two of sugar, and roll up like a jelly roll, pinching the ends to keep the juice in. Lay on a pie plate and steam for half hour, then place in hot oven for 10 minutes. Serve with hard sauce. This is very good.

Blackberry Cream Fritters: Mix together one cup of fine bread crumbs, one beaten egg, one tablspoon of pastry flour, a pinch each of salt and sugar, one-half cup of mashed sweetened blackberries and sufficient flour sifted with one teaspoon baking powder. Form with floured hands in small round balls, frying in deep fat to a golden brown, and roll while still hot in powdered sugar. Serve with a hard sauce to which a few chopped berries have been added.

Hope some of the sisters will try these, as they are good and inexpensive.

Winkie: You surely had a fine vacation. Your letter was much enjoyed.

Canterbury Bell: I was disappointed in not seeing you at the annual picnic. Everybody had a fine time.

Best wishes to all.

MARIGOLD.

WANTS A FULL CORNER PAGE.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I think the writers must be taking a vacation in earnest by the looks of the Social Corner page these last few weeks.

Where are all the good old writers? Was pleased to see letters from Scottie and True Blue last Saturday, but what has become of Hortense? We never see anything from her now, also Tatting, Tafts, Annette, Mayfayre, Chocolate and, oh my, so many others.

Didn't we have a very enjoyable day at Versailles? I also extend my thanks for a very delightful time. Student certainly did all in her power to make things pleasant, and she and her able assistants certainly worked hard. It is an ideal spot for such a gathering, and although it was my first visit I hope it won't be my last.

Agatha: Was pleased to meet your friend and write my name in her book. Although I only knew a few it was nice to find someone looking for Black Eyed Susie in that large gathering.

Was so sorry I forgot my book, for there were lots of names I would liked to have had.

Chelsea and Triplets: Where were you? I thank Triplets for those bulbs. It was funny. The poor fellow didn't know anything about Black Eyed Susie. But I got them all right.

Calla Lily: Why were you not at the picnic at Versailles? You missed one good time and lots of nice cake. If you had been there you couldn't have said you didn't have any home-made cake because there was plenty of it, and the cake from Sister Ready was pleasant to the eye and ditto to the taste.

Well, I suppose most of the sisters have done some canning already this summer. This week I made jelly of my currants and also put up a few glasses of Concordia Dar-le-Duc: Use three-fourths as much sugar as currants. Wash currants carefully and place in a saucepan with just enough water to cover bottom of pan. Bring to a boil and add one-half of the sugar, boil 10 minutes, and add the rest of the sugar. Then continue the boiling for half an hour. Pour into hot glasses and allow to set before sealing with paraffin. This is fine if anyone wants to try it.

Well, I guess I've taken my share of space for this time. I do hope we will have more letters from now on.

MORE WEEK END TRIPS

Dear Sisters and Friends: We were rather late in getting started for Woodmere, N. H., on June 22, as we did not leave home until 8.45 p. m. for a trip of 65 miles. But as we knew the road to be a good one and we were sure of a good driver we felt no fear. Our route was through Stoneham, Medford, Arlington, Lexington, Concord, North Acton, Townsend, Ashby Bridge. We drove thirty miles and then stopped for lunch of sandwiches, apple pie and hot coffee. We thought best not to wait until we reached the cottage which was at 10.30 p. m., but the trip was worth the length of time on the road. Going through the woods the road ahead looked as if the ground was covered with snow. We did exclaim, and spoke so many times of the beauty of nature.

At last we reached the cottage, tired, but the air was fine and one can rest so well among the great pines.

Saturday morning brought rain just right for fishing which the men would have enjoyed had they caught the fish. After dinner brought better results the fish were hungry and so were the men for fish. After returning from fishing we drove to East Jaffrey for food where we watched a ball game. We do not see many birds. One robin had her nest on a little shelf in the porch and we watched her feed her young, but they had flown away when we returned. There are some butterflies and we hope to capture some before the season ends. One at the cottage was black with white bands on the wings.

Our return trip was over a new road to some of us, but our driver pointed out places of interest. One place of interest was Temple. We went over Temple mountain, and we go through an air pocket. Our auto was almost at a standstill. After passing through our auto shot off at great speed. We speed on and on through cities and towns. We cross the big iron bridge over the Merrimac. I miss some things of interest that I would like to make a note of but it is very hard to see all one wants to and remember.

Sometimes it is business before pleasure. As some of the family could not leave for the week end trip June 30, we decided to leave July 3rd and were away through all the hub bub of July 4th. Although I am patriotic enough to stay through all the celebration which begins at midnight with a barrel bonfire, so if you lived in Massachusetts you would have to lock up your barrels and take in your clothes lines. Our milk man sent out a notice that all milk bottles must be gathered in before July 3rd. Pins are put in the electric bells, and you have to be on the move most of the time, but this year we slept quietly among the great pines, to be awakened in the small hours with what is my fireplace and where are my rubbers if it should rain.

We left home at 4.40 p. m., made a stop of a few minutes for some of the family, and drove through Winchester and saw some beautiful homes. The lawns are kept in good order and the shrubs well trimmed. Then we reached Concord, passed the reformatory and watched the small boys in the field picking strawberries.

We drove on and came to the farm houses where you can buy comb honey, peas, strawberries and asparagus, one farm is the Paul Revere where we buy the most of our vegetables, and as we were planning for a week we thought best to buy enough so as not to depend on anyone who may not come to the cottages. We can get milk, cream and ice brought to the door.

We drove thirty miles and then we stop for a chicken dinner that had been ordered two days in advance.

We reached our cottage at 8.35 p. m. and saw the Stars and Stripes floating over some of the cottages and heard the fire crackers bursting in the air. Some patriotism there.

Some of the family went fish July 4th and came in at 2.30 a. m. to a dinner of boiled salmon (not caught in the lake), fresh peas, strawberries cake and coffee. Saturday a. m. some of the family left for the White Mountains by invitation. We left the cottage Monday a. m. and had a delightful ride home in time for dinner.

SATURDAY EVE.

WILL LONG REMEMBER VERSAILLES.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: I was glad to see other references to our annual picnic, besides what I had written. There was so much about our good time that day that for the moment I forgot to speak of the lovely large cake which Sister Ready had made and presented for the occasion. After our dinner was over and we had adjourned to the little grove, and being comfortably seated, and enjoying social visiting, I saw one of the sisters with a large plate of cake and dealing out a piece to each one. Well, I thought to myself, I have had such a generous dinner, I feel as though I had no space for extras, but as she came nearer, I heard her say, "This is Sister Ready's cake, and we want every one to have a piece." Then it was, the available space was found, and I enjoyed my share with all my sisters.

Yes, Sister Scottie, I had the pleasure of meeting Keziah Doolittle that day for the first time. It was she that gave the the first note of greeting and a welcome to the Corner, after my first letter had appeared. Perhaps none of the other sisters came from a longer distance to attend the picnic than I did, but, however, I felt repaid, for the delightful gathering, the friendship and good will evident, and last but not least, the aftermath, or home coming, personal to me. I had planned to stay with the party as long as it lasted, rather than wait in the railroad station at Willimantic for the evening train homeward. However, our good Sister Olga, who is always thinking of pleasures for others, kindly invited me to ride home with her and her daughter and sister. I was pleased to accept her invitation, and about 4 o'clock we were spinning along delightful country roads, all new to me, for about ten miles. After reaching her home, we enjoyed visiting and I was entertained at tea. Further courtesy was extended in my behalf, for in the early evening. I enjoyed another ride in their auto, driven by the son to the Willimantic railroad station in ample time to get my train for Hartford. All is well that ends well, so that hereafter Versailles will always appear in arge type on the map in the memory of every Social Corner sister who enjoyed that delightful picnic.

JENNIE.

DOESN'T BELIEVE IN FREE TEXT BOOKS

Dear Editor and Corner Friends: The yellow slip received a while ago was very much appreciated and I thank the editor for it.

A while ago a sister had a letter in the Corner stating she thought all cities and towns should furnish books, pads and pencils, etc, for the scholars and did not see how they could be called public schools if they did not.

Now I for one am very glad my father had to buy my school books for I have every one now and consider them some of my most precious treasures.

Often times something comes up that we want to know about and I know just where to find it in my schools books.

Then again it is a pleasure to read the little messages written by schoolmates on the fly leaves.

Only the other day I read this in one of them: What is the hardest question that every was asked? H. C. C. says it is "Why." H. C. C. was a teacher beloved by all his pupils and who has now passed on to the Great Beyond. Now "why" should not parents buy books for their children? I believe they and their children would enjoy them in later years.

Keziah Doolittle—Was pleased to have you speak a good word for the Old Dark Lantern school house and its teachers. Do not agree with you when you say Louis Fisk lived a short distance from the school house, for believe me it was two miles if it was a foot and woods nearly all the way and not a house between. My people lived a half mile on beyond the Fisks and there were six of us little folks who trudged over the lonely road together twice a day except in bad weather and then our fathers took turns in carrying us.

Think it is high time for me to thank Rural Delivery for the beautiful cards sent me from California. Glad you enjoyed your trip and we welcome you back to good old Connecticut. Have a friends who has just returned from California who said he liked it there very much but it was a "long way from home." Am sending in a seasonable recipe for a salad dressing that requires no cooking: One can condensed milk, one cup vinegar, one tablespoon mustard, one teaspoon salt, two eggs; beat all together and it will keep indefinitely. We use this all the time and think it very nice.

TWICE TWENTY.

SANDWICH SUGGESTIONS

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: The Corner furnished a nice lot of salads in the columns last Saturday and they are always good.

I wonder how many kinds of inexpensive sandwiches we all could make up that we have really tried at our homes. Prices are going up and every item counts and puts on the purse strings of the wage earner.

With bread cut even and not too thick, chop fine or use the meat grind on chicken liver and crisp radishes. It is very tasty. Each must be seasoned with salt and some pepper.

New white onion goes down without pushing and beef marrow from cooked soup bone, with finely shredded green pepper tossed over it is not to be sneezed at.

Fine, lean cooked bacon sandwiches I can eat till the cows come home. Eggs are a standby but prices are not always to our liking. Good huckleberry molasses cake fills up, or cold milk crackers and berries.

Nothing goes as far as meat stews but don't get in a stew yourself or all the family will feel it.

Has Dorinda an airship? Do not see her go by now. Hubby counted 135 autos going by in one hour. Oh the hustle and excitement nowadays, day and night. Can't keep the pace.

Yours for a quiet hour,

J. E. T.

CARE OF THE NEW BORN BABY

Dear Corneries: Just how to handle a baby is one of the hardest things a mother has to learn. I remember the first night I was left alone with my first baby. It cried I surely thought it had the colic.

I know the mother who has had several children will smile indulgently when she thinks of the young mother's trial, but I'll would advise her to read a bit and see if she too, may not learn some ideas that she will consider helpful.

My mother was a nurse, and one used to say: Unless a woman has had to do with many babies under varying conditions, she always has quite a little to learn.

I found the right way to care for the baby is the simplest. The first thing to do is to learn how, just as one learns how to do anything. Put your mind on it. Don't be afraid, and after one or two trials you will be able to handle your baby in such a way that the child is perfectly comfortable. Then fear of making a mistake appears.

Talk about giving the baby its first bath, that is the most important event of all in the life of the new baby. In the first place be sure you get every thing you need. Your soap (castile) I think a wash cloth made from an old handkerchief is the best. You need a small piece of cloth, (linen I think is best) to cover the navel; safety pins and powder or cornstarch. I think powder made of boric acid with a little cornstarch is best. Cornstarch is certainly good, only it lacks the perfume. There must be diapers, a petticoat and a slip of a dress. I don't know whether babies wear bands now or not.

The care of eyes and mouth is important, so be sure to have pieces of clean cloth, absolutely clean, and a solution of boric acid, 1-2 teaspoonful of boric acid to a glass of water. If the acid is not at hand use luke warm water. The same cloth is not used for eyes and mouth, so be sure to have several pieces and also have separate cups for the solution used in caring for them.

I found that it was well to have an old piece of flannel, something soft in which to roll baby when taken from the bath.

I was all of a dripping sweat when I gave my boy his first baths, I had a special tub for baby's bath, at first, but after the first bath I used an old fashioned wash bowl. You can use china bowls for washing face and hand bath. Whatever you use for baby's should never be used for anything else. In fact all baby's thing should be kept strictly for him. A baby is a very delicate little being and it takes only a small thing to mar a child's life.

Here is the right way to bathe the baby.

Lay the baby flat on your lap, face down. Unbutton its dress remove the safety pins from the petticoat. Remove the little arms from the dress sleeve. Take the dress and petticoat over the feet (always.) This leaves and band. Turn baby on its back, undo the dear little fellow with diaper, short pin the diapers, unbutton the shirt, release the arm from the short sleeves, unpin the band, free the baby from its clothing that has been unfastened. Then the little one is ready for its bath.

First wet the child's head. Then take the feet in the right hand, the shoulder in the left, letting the head rest on the left arm. Lower the child gradually into the water. Support the head with left hand, washing the child with right. Do not rub hard for baby's skin is very sensitive. Place a clean piece of flannel in your lap, lay the child on it when you take it from the tub. Dry the skin thoroughly. Put plenty of powder under the arms and between the limbs. I will have to continue this in next week's Corner as I can't tell how to do all this in a few words.

VISITS, PICNICS AND AUTO RIDE

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Friends: It is some time since I contributed to the Social Corner. I wish to thank all who so kindly remembered me with birthday cards, calendars, etc. I have just returned from spending three weeks visiting friends in Norwich. I spent three days with my niece who is matron at the town farm. It is a beautiful place and the spacious grounds are filled with so many flowers, and the inmates all seem so happy and content. It is really a very interesting place to visit.

I also attended a Fourth of July Sunday school picnic at the Leffingwell church. They had a clam chowder in the morning and in the afternoon there was an entertainment after which ice cream was served. Since I came home I attended a picnic at Riverside park. Last Friday afternoon some friends from Boston, who are visiting here took me to ride. We went out to Magonk, which is out beyond Great Neck and called upon some friends, who have a cottage out there. There is a lovely sand beech for bathing. The ocean view is grand. The ride home was delightful. I was out there two years ago with the same party.

I am sending in a few hints and helps:

To make your ferns grow better put a little castor oil around them. When sewing on snap fastenings sew them same as you do buttons. Stand on a cushion or piece of carpet when ironing. You will not get nearly so tired. To cut a pie with meringue top wet the knife in water. This will enable you to make a clean cut. To keep meringue from falling add 1-4 teaspoon of baking powder. Hard cooked eggs which are used for garnishing may be sliced easily if the knife is dipped in hot water and wiped dry by time it gets cool.

Is anybody happier because you passed his way?

Does any one remember you spoke to him today?

The day is almost over and its telling time is through,

Is there any one who's grateful for a cheery word from you?

A cheery word for the Cornerites from,

DON PEDRO.

A PICNIC AT FORT NED

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I suppose a great many of you sisters are either away during the summer vacation, enjoying the sights and pleasures in a different sphere, or like myself taking trips now and then for a day or so.

I must tell you about the trip that we took recently for the day. Chocolate, with her little family drove her machine and my husband, children and myself in our machine, motored up to what is called "Fort Ned," in the town of Canterbury.

I know some of you will be familiar with this picturesque little place, overlooking the banks of what is known as "Little River." It is an ideal place for rest, being very quiet and peaceful, with scarcely any passersby, and to lie under the shade of the trees on the banks of this calm and peaceful river, flowing so majestically and serenely along, is certainly a treat to any one coming from the city.

So, because we all felt that we needed a day for such a rest we chose dear old Fort Ned. We reached there at nine o'clock in the morning, carrying the necessary equipments needed for a freezer full of ice cream and a clam chowder.

After a while the men folks and boys together hunted around and found some bricks, and made a fireplace, and built a fire, and Chocolate and I, while the boys froze the ice cream, put on our aprons and started in making the chowder.

And how good everything did taste. It seemed to us all that we never ate such a wonderful chowder and never tasted such delicious ice cream. The men and boys brought their fish poles and fished for pickerel off and on through the day, catching enough fish so we all had a nice meal of fried fish the next day.

We brought sandwiches, pickles, cookies and cake for our evening lunch and made coffee over our fireplace. It certainly was a wonderful trip for us all, and one I think we will remember with pleasure for some time.

To me it brought back many precious but sad memories of the days gone by, when as a child, I occasionally used to ride down to this place from my home on Westminster Hill, with my father, mother and sister.

How little did I realize then that those childhood days were the happiest moments of my life, and I just tried for a few moments to picture myself a child once again, romping and racing back and forth in my barefeet under those trees, going down to the water edge and paddling in the water, digging a hole in the dirt, filling it with water, and I just longed with the poet to say:

"Backward Turn backward,
O time in your flight,
Make me a child again, just for tonight!
Mother, come back from that echoless shore,
Take me again to your heart as of yore.

But we cannot call them back. Those days are past and gone forever, and father, mother and sister are now at rest, but their memories are very precious to me, and I shall always love those old familiar scenes.

I am sending in a recipe for molasses cookies that always proves satisfactory. Try them and see how nice they are:

Molasses Cookies: Place one teaspoon soda in a tea cup, over this pour 2 tablespoons of boiling water, add 4 tablespoons melted shortening, fill cup with molasses, add ginger and salt to taste, and flour thick enough to roll.

Wishing you, one and all a pleasant vacation, I remain as ever,

BLUE BELL.

PICNIC AT U. C. E.'S AUGUST 1.

Queen Elizabeth: Did you find your hubby? I enjoyed the day very much. Hope to see you all again soon.

BACK ACHED TERRIBLY

Mrs. Robinson Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Amarillo, Tex.—"My back was my greatest trouble. It would ache so that it would almost kill me and I would have cramps. I suffered in this way about three years; then a lady friend suggested that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have had better health since, keep house and am able to do my work. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends as it has certainly given me great relief."—Mrs. C. B. ROBINSON, 606 N. Lincoln St., Amarillo, Texas.

The Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for women. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful times, irregularity, tired and worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. Robinson writes as well as by one woman telling another. These women know what it did for them. It is surely worth your trial.

Housewives make a great mistake in allowing themselves to become so ill that it is well-nigh impossible for them to attend to their necessary household duties.

MOONSHINE SEIZED AT NEW LONDON

IS POURED INTO THE SEWER

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, July 20.—Joe Parola, who posted his wife, Lena, a few days ago in the newspaper, stepped into more trouble yesterday when he became involved in a fight with Frank Pelli. The row was over furniture which the former desired to get rid of, but for which he was still in debt. His wife had unceremoniously left him for, he said, "a handsomer man" and he was disposed to get rid of the household articles for whatever they could bring. The party who sold Joe the goods had been tipped off and was there to collect, but he failed in that Parola did not dispose of the property. The testimony in the police court was so uncertain and as Parola had had his share of troubles, the court looked with leniency upon the offense the men were charged with and suspended judgment.

E. D. Hillyer of Norwich was fined $5 for parking alongside a hydrant. He said he knew there was an ordinance governing the matter but he believed the distance he should keep away was six feet instead of ten.

Hymon Millson paid a fine of $10 for allowing his motor truck to be operated with a defective brake. Millson's driver was prosecuted for operating the car, but as his employer was fined, judgment was suspended in his case. Millson declared that he had notified the driver that the brake was defective, but the court regarded that the thing for the owner of the truck to do was to have the brake repaired.

The other violators were of a trifling nature.

The music show, The New Comers, which was booked for the Lyceum theatre next week, has failed to get as far as New London. The walking is good, but what's the use in such hot weather as now prevails. Mrs. "Fatty" Arbuckle was billed with the show. New London will stagger along without the entertainment the newcomers would have provided.

Because of the failure of city officials to cause the cellar covering at the store of the Alling Rubber Co., on Green street to be made safe for pedestrians, Patrolman William Graham this afternoon served notice at the municipal building of the extreme danger existing there.

City Manager James E. Barlow was not at his office neither was Commissioner of Highways Courtland R. Darrow. The officer, however, left a message at the office of both officials stating that the metal covering was in need of immediate repair. The officers attention was attracted to the towering when he noticed pedestrians, particularly women using the highway instead of the sidewalk.

Mrs. Mary Waite has bought of Joseph A. St. Germain a dwelling house and a large parcel of land on Walden avenue. The price paid was $15,000.

The trolley employes declare that Williams operated his automobile at a high rate of speed by the trolley car, endangering the life and limb of passengers that might have been alighting. Complaint was made by the trolley employes to Patrolman John Sullivan, who was on the car and the officer ordered Williams into court.

Mrs. Sylvester Lawrence of Groton, Miss Ella Burrows of Montauk avenue, Mrs. Ellen Lovendahl of Broad street, Mrs. James McCarthy and infant son of Montauk avenue, Miss Lora Beckwith of Waterford, Roderick MacEachen of Washington and John K. Foran of Fair Harbor place, the last named having undergone an operation recently for appendicitis, were patients discharged today at Lawrence hospital.

Mr Soltz will take possession of the property next month, after which he will cause the premises to be greatly improved and will erect a garage. Mr. Soltz will make his home there, as he is to become a benedict in the fall.

Joseph A. Burrows, 80, former resident of New London, had made his abode in Washington the past 41 years, and was a member of the Washington police department the greater part of that time, and for many years stationed at the Capitol. He died at Washington this week. Mr. Burrows is survived by three children, two of them being Joseph A. Burrows, Jr., and Elmer Burrows. Until recent years Mr. Burrows visited New London for a fortnight every year.

Two of the flash lights, used as a warning of danger to motorists approaching the trolley terminal on State street, have become defective and fail to flash their rays.

Police Captain Charles A. Pinney has issued instructions to patrolmen to order all dealers selling firearms, whose license to do so has expired to notify the dealers to renew their licenses. The order was put into operation today and it was revealed that many of the dealers selling firearms believed that the permit issued to them which cost $2, to sell fireworks, provided for the sale of guns and pistols. In this the merchants were in error for they will now have to secure a second license and pay a fee of $10.

Nameaug Engine company was summoned to the Saltonstall school house corner of Truman and Hempstead streets this noon when a cloud of smoke issuing from one of the rooms gave indication that the structure was ablaze. Pedestrians and neighbors observed the smoke as it rolled from the room and a telephone message to fire hearquarters resulted in the firemen being dispatched to the building. Investigation revealed that the janitor of the school had started a quantity of refuse to burn in the furnace and a back draft caused smoke to fill the rooms.

It didn't look much like prohibition this forenoon at the police station when a quantity of liquor in bottles and other containers was poured into the sewer by order of Judge S. Victor Prince. The liquor was a portion of that seized by the New London police and prohibition enforcement agents in raids several months ago which had been stored in a room adjoining the court room. The liquor was not high grade brands, but was of the variety familiarly known as moonshine. Judge Prince instructed Station House Keeper Frances Corcoran to see to it that the booze was destroyed.

MARKET SHOWED STRENGTH

New York, July 20—While there was some profit-taking sales in today's stock market the definite upward trend which started yesterday again controlled prices and closing prices were near the high levels of the day.

The volume of sales also increased slightly giving additional color to commission house reports of renewed interest on the part of the public.

The course of prices gave evidence of the switching of many bear traders to the bull side and while occasional selling orders were put into the market, all such offerings found ready buyers at current prices.

The demand was unusually broad embracing a miscellaneous list of industrials and specialties and both the low priced and dividend payng rails. Gains in the rail group were not large but covered a considerable list including Chesapeake & Ohio, Chicago & Eastern Illinois preferred, International Great Northern, Illinois Central preferred, Reading first and second preferred, Union Pacific, and Rock Island 7 per cent preferred, each up a point or more.

The usual market leaders were quite active but net changes were largely nominal, Baldwin, Studebaker, and U. S. Steel each closing fractionally higher while American Can receded slightly.

Short interests ran into difficulties in their efforts to cover in Stewart Warner, which was placed on a definite $10 dividend basis and rose to 93 3-4 or close to the year's high point of 94 1-4. The stock closed at 93 3-8 where it was up 5 5-8 on the day.

Other large gains were recorded by Mack truck, first preferred, up 6 1-2 points, Pierce Oil preferred and Otis Elevator, each up 5, American Car, 4, General Asphalt preferred 3 1-2 and American Bosch, National Lead preferred, Crucible preferred, and Associated Oil, up 2 to 2 1-2 each.

Call money held steady throughout the day at 5 per cent. A few loans were made in the time money market at 5 1-4 per cent. Rates for Commercial Paper continued steady at 5 and 5 1-4 per cent.

The foreign exchange market again was featured by the drop of German marks to a new low record of .0002 1-2 cents or 1,000,000 marks for $2.50. Demand sterling improved fractionally to $4.59 1-4 while francs eased 1 1-2 points to 5.88 cents.

BOND MARKET

New York, July 20—The demand for railroad mortgages in today's bond market was considerable larger than has been the case recently and advanced those issues generally from fractions to slightly more than a point. Gains of a point or more were recorded by New York Central consolidated 4s, Missouri Pacific general 4s, New Haven convertible 6s, Hudson & Manhattan refunding 5s, Chicago & Northwestern 7s, and Kansas City southern 5s.

The general tone of the market continued firm. U. S. government bonds held steady with only nominal net changes. Foreign government issues were dull with prices slightly improved, Jurgen 6s advanced 1 point.

Some of the more speculative industrial liens moved forward sharply in the early trading but failed to hold all of their gains. Goodyear 8s of 1941 closed a point higher, as did also Cerro de Pasco 8s, and Virgina Carolina chemcal 7 1-2s, wth warrants.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, July 20—Increased pressure to market newly harvested wheat led to lower prices at the last in the wheat market today as did the fact that Canadian reports about black rust failed to mention any important damage. The close was weak at 1-2 to 1 3-4c net decline, September 98 1-4 to 98 5-8c, and December 1.01 1-2 to 1.01 5-8. Corn finished 1-8c a 1-4c to 1-8c down, and oats varying from 3-4c off to 1-4c gain. In provisions, the outcome ranged from 2c setback to a like advance.

Wheat started at a decline, and then scored a moderate rise, but receded again during the late dealings. The initial weakness, as well as the depression at the last, was associated chiefly with enlarged arrivals here and consequent hedging sales, as well as with reports that Illinois points in particular had been accepting bids from here rather freely. On the other hand, commission house buying developed on the early downturns in price, and soon lifted values to above yesterday's finish. The temporary advance was aided by continued rust gossip from Canada, by bullish aspects of the Kansas state crop report and by assertions that the wheat acreage in North Dakota had been seriously overestimated.

Profit-taking which set in when July wheat had risen to more than five cents above Tuesday's lowest prices counted to some extent as a factor in bringing about late setback in values. Besides, the discounting of rust reports was emphasized by advices ndcating that early wheat in Canada was already past the stage where it could be injured.

For the most part, corn and oats fluctuated in line with wheat. At one time, July corn equalled the season's high price record.

In the provision market, the effect of lower quotations on hogs was counter-balanced by improved export demand.

AGRICULTURAL INTERESTS

OAT IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM SECURES TANGIBLE RESULTS

Sometimes we are prone to think that practices advanced by the extension service are slow to become general farm practices. Many times it is necessary to look over a long period of years to witness results. This is not so, however, in Dutchess county, N. Y., according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. In this county the superiority of Cornellian oats has been demonstrated. This year commendable tangible results were forthcoming. In all, 3,000 bushels of these new oats have definitely been put in the ground.

This is how the seed improvement program has been worked. The following example is but typical of the work in other communities. The county agent met with the Millerton community committee and, in planning their program they desired to stress the importance of a larger acreage of improved oats. With the data on the variety demonstrations which had already been in that community, the committeemen had a selling point that could not be discounted as the demonstration was held under local conditions. The committeemen brought this to the attention of the growers and as a result one carload of oats and 200 bushels of Alpha barley were ordered.

The publicity that this program developed has spread to other communities until the oat improvement program has been like an epidemic. Further cooperation was secured through local warehouse men who distributed this improved sort. Fully 1,000 acres of oats were sown in Dutchess county as a result of the campaign. This is per cent. of the total area of the county. What a tangible result from demonstration work!

FREQUENT BUT SHALLOW CULTIVATIONS REQUIRED

Cultivation is very essential for any crop during hot dry spells, to keep the moisture in the ground. Cultivation acts the same as cutting the wick in a kerosene lamp. The kerosene will come up the wick very nicely until it comes to the place where it is severed and it does not go any farther. If a dust mulch is made on the top surface of the ground, the moisture comes to the bottom of the dust mulch, and comes to the roots of the plant; consequently, not near as much moisture is evaporated out into the air as there would be if the ground was packed and the top surface not broken.

For corn, potatoes and other farm crops it is just essential, however, that the cultivation be shallow as it is to have cultivation at fall, for two reasons—the first reason is that when the cultivation is deep it is likely to cut off roots that are doing good work in the growth of the plant; consequently, the plants being cultivated are chipped in their growth; the second reason is that when cultivated deep at this time it will bring up weeds that have been hidden in the ground for some time but have not sprouted because they are too deep, and as a result more hoeing and more hand work will be necessary to keep the crop in good growing condition. So, in cultivation we should always keep in mind at this time of year that frequent shallow cultivations are essential and necessary, and that deep cultivations are detrimental to crop growth.

IMITATE MOTHER HEN IN CARE FOR CHICKS

The poultryman who succeeds in raising strong chicks is the one who imitates the care and solicitude of the motherly hen for her brood.

The hen constantly tries to provide only the best for her chick and, if intelligently assisted, will usually do a good job. By providing warmth, dryness and cleanliness the poultryman can best assist the patient hen. Chicks should be carefully sheltered from the weather until they are at least two or three weeks old.

When the chicks are about two days old they should be moved with the hen to a brood coop. Until they reach this age they should remain in the nest with the hen. While in the nest the chicks require no food, but the mother should be given plenty of wholesome food daily.

The floor of the brood coop in which the chicks are to be placed should be covered with dry earth and sand, and with a little chaff on top of it.

Chilling the chicks when removing them should be carefully guarded against. The head and throat of each chick should be carefully examined for body lice that may be hidden in the down. If any are present, sweet oil or lard should be rubbed into the down on the top of the chick's head or under its beak and throat. This rubbing is done with the finger and only a small quantity of oil or lard should be used. The grease will spread over the skin and destroy the vermin.

Aniseed powder dusted into the feathers of the hen and the down of the chicks also will destroy parasites of all kinds without injury to the chicks. This powder must be as fine as possible and very dry. Insect powders that irritate may prevent the chicks from eating; hence, only very mild powders should be used.

If the weather is cool the chicks will probably do better if confined to the coop with the hen for a day or two. If the weather is warm the chicks may be permitted to run out into the sunshine. Experienced poultrymen refrain as far as possible from disturbing the hen and the chicks, for if they are frequently disturbed the hen is liable to become irritable and sometimes nervous and to step on the little ones. Unnecessary attention is sometimes as bad as not enough.

Feeding should be regular and the water supply must never be allowed to run out. If this is the case, the chicks will become very dry and are liable to gorge themselves with a large supply. This usually results in sickness.

The strain on the hen caused by sitting and hatching the eggs is considerable and tends to reduce her vitality. She must therefore, be well fed and cared for. A conscientious hen will often deny herself in an earnest effort to induce the chicks to eat. If this happens, she should be fed special food that is too coarse for the chicks to eat. She should also be frequently dusted with antiseptic powder. As soon as the chicks are large enough she should be permitted to go to the dust bath, which can be provided by digging in the ground close to the coop.

Neither the hen nor the chicks should be fed from the floor of the coop or from the ground. Small feed boards with a flange around the edge may be provided. Feed dishes made of iron with wire tops to prevent the chicks from walking in the feed may also be used.—S. W. Shoemaker.

DON'T LET TIMOTHY STAND TOO LONG BEFORE CUTTING

Don't let timothy hay stand too long before cutting, advises the United States department of agriculture. Only a small percentage of timothy hay marketed each year grades No. 1, statistics show, but the department's hay grading specialists have found that a large part of the timothy hay which has been grading No. 2 and No. 3 timothy would have been No. 1 had it been cut at an earlier stage of maturity, provided the method of curing and weather conditions were favorable for producing a good quality of hay.

Under the United States timothy grades, which have been recommended recently by the department of agriculture, color alone determines the grade unless the hay is very weedy. Color in hay is caused by the amount of brown leaf surface, brown or bleached heads, and bleached and off-colored stems.

It has been found that there is a close relation between the time of cutting or stage of maturity of timothy hay, and the amount of color.

In the United States grades for timothy hay the maximum allowance of brown leaf surface for No. 1 timothy is 40 per cent. with 2 per cent. of brown or bleached heads, and 5 per cent. of bleached or off-colored stems. To prevent the color from exceeding these limits, it has been found that under normal conditions, the hay as cured by the average hay maker must be cut not later than when in full bloom. In some sections, and under certain conditions, it may be advisable to cut the hay even earlier.

There appears to be an idea prevalent among producers in some sections that early cut hay is more washy or laxative than hay that is riper, but there is practically no accurate data on this subject. Agricultural experiment stations have found, however, that the sooner hay is cut after coming into full bloom, the more total digestible nutrients it will contain. This earlier cut hay also will be palatable and relished by stock.

Since hay cut at this time is more nutritious, and will be also of a higher commercial grade than late cut hay, producers are urged to cut their hay at the proper time unless it is imperative that more important work must be done on other crops.

Weather is also an important factor in producing goo dhay. Best quality hay is often almost ruined by rain. While hay which has been stained by rains or heavy dew may often be fed on the farms to advantage, it is discounted in the market. Producers should keep this damaged hay separate from the better hay as it is impossible to separate it later when baling or marketing. A little damaged hay mixed with the good frequently causes the buyer to refuse to take the better hay except at a very heavy discount. Only choice qualities of hay bring the higher prices, therefore, producers should harvest their hay properly.

The suggestions recommended by the department of agriculture are summarized as follows:

1. Start cutting your timothy hay as soon as possible after the meadow reaches early or first full bloom.

2. Cure in the manner that will best preserve the color and quality of the hay.

3. If any hay becomes stained or damage from rain or too long exposure to the sun, store apart from the good hay, also keep weedy hay separate from the clean hay.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

REBEKAHS.

There was a large attendance at the meeting of Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 21, held Wednesday in Odd Fellows' hall, Noble Grand Bertha Collins presiding. Considerable routine business was transacted and the members were honored by an official visit from the district deputy president, Mrs. Minnie Amburn of Norwich, also by a visit from the past district deputy president, Mrs. Phillips of Massachusetts.

It was voted to accept the invitation of Noble Grand Bertha Collins to hold the annual picnic of the lodge at her home at Poquetanuck cove on July 25th. The members were notified to take the 8.30 o'clock trolley, daylight time, for Hallville and get off at Fort Point station at the state hospital. The supper committee, comprising Mabel Wheeler, Mary Adams, Mary Harris, Mary Smith and Laura Buddington, are in charge of the menu for the outing and announced that they would provide a clam chowder at noon and would have a liberal supply of sandwiches and coffee in the evening. It is expected that many of the members will go, some intending to make the trip by automobile.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments of ice cream and cookies were served by the entertainment committee and a social hour was enjoyed.

GROTTO.

Nemrod Grotto is to hold its second annual field day and outing Thursday August 2nd, at the drawbridge. There will be athletic events in the afternoon from 3.30 to 6.15 at the Norwich State Hospital baseball grounds, including a baseball game between the married and single prophets, the second of the series, a tug of war between the married and single prophets, and numerous other events that will afford opportunity for men, women and children to participate in sports.

At the zero hour of 6.15 D. S. T., the call for shore dinner will be sent out and the party will adjourn to the drawbridge where the following shore dinner will be served: Clam chowder, pilot bread, cucumbers, tomatoes, bluefish, and gravy, white and sweet potatoes, white and brown bread, green corn, steamed clams, clam fritters and watermelon.

After the dainty repast there will be games for everyone and for those still remaining hungry there will be soft drinks and ice cream, the committee to be in charge of these extras. To wind up the perfect day there will be dancing from about 8 o'clock until 10.30, when the call homeward bound will be broadcasted.

ODD LADIES, M. U.

Loyal Victory lodge, No. 4, I. O. O. L., M. U., held its regular meeting Thursday evening in Steiner hall with Noble Grand Gertrude Alquist in the chair and considerable business was transacted in a very satisfactory manner. One candidate was initiated into the secrets of the order and further applications for membership were received, after which a new social committee for the next six months was appointed as follows: Hannah Addison, Grace Shaw, Gertrude Alquist, Mary Smith, Louise Kellner and Mrs. James Johnson. On the 21st of this month members of the Norwich, Plainfield and Waterford lodges plan to go to Baltic where a new ladies' lodge is to be opened on that date by the officers of the Connecticut district. Following the business session a social time was enjoyed after which the ladies departed for their respective homes.

RED MEN.

The regular meeting of Mohegan Tribe, No. 64, was held Wednesday night in Steiner hall with Sachem Joseph A. George in charge. Considerable routine business was transacted after which the following elective officers were raised by Deputy Great Sachem Benjamin F. Rose of Nonowantuc tribe of New London who had trailed to the Mohegan hunting grounds, accompanied by other members of the New London tribe: Prophet, Joseph A. George; Sachem, George F. Farrell; senior sagamore, Peter Gauthier; junior sagamore, John Dearing; guard of the wigwam, Daniel F. Dean. Officers holding over from previous terms were chief of records, William Hayman; chief of wampum, John O. Peckham and collector of wampum, Daniel F. Dean.

Following the meeting Prophet Joseph A. George presented Deputy Great Sachem Rose a handsome smoking set, the gift of the Norwich tribe for the interest shown by Deputy Great Sachem Rose, in Mohegan tribe during the past year. Refreshments were served by the feast committee after which a social time was enjoyed.

OWLS.

Norwich nest, No. 1396, at the first meeting in July, finished up all business at hand and voted to discontinue all monthly meetings except the first Tuesday of each month until September. The next meeting of the lodge will be on August 7th.

Rev. Roderick MacLeod has been attending a two weeks' course of lectures at Union seminary, New York. During July Mr. MacLeod has been preaching sermons based on questions presented by the members of the congregation. This plan was suggested in May at a reception to the new members. It has proved most interesting and helpful.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Starkweather, who have been camping on the shore of the Mill pond for a few days, left here Wednesday morning. They are taking a trip from Caldwell, N. J., to the White mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Standish and Mrs. Webster Standish are taking a two weeks' automobile trip through the White mountains.

Mrs. R. C. Peck and daughters, Jean, Anna and Isabel, are at Fairfield Beach for the month.

Miss Catherine McIntosh of Willimantic called on friends in town Monday of this week.

NEW GREENEVILLE PLAYGROUND ON SHETUCKET CO.'S BIG LOT

Chairman William J. Fitzgerald announced Friday night the addition of a new playground to the City Recreation Commission through the efforts of Mrs. Louisa D. Atterbury, who has secured, through the kindness of Charles J. Twist, of the Shetucket Co., the beautifully fenced in and level piece of land, probably an acre, covered with green grass and two big trees, which is situated on North Main street side of the Shetucket Co.'s plant.

Supt. Harold Anson Bruce is highly enthusiastic over the new addition, as the old Greeneville playground which was also loaned by the Shetucket Co., was on the side of the hill and not adaptable for playground use. The new grounds will offer a better site than any that the commission now holds. The opportunities to present a day's playground programme at this center are the best.

Friday afternoon the Laurel Hill playground was taken on its first hike and picnic, when Instructor Justine Morrison led her charges on the first of the series of hikes.

Supt. Bruce has announced the inter-playground competitive games for the week of July 23d, which are as follows:

Boys' Official Playground League—

July 24—Elizabeth Street vs. Greeneville at Greeneville (Seniors) baseball at 7 p. m.

July 24—Hobart Avenue vs. Lake Street. Dodge ball and straddle ball at 7 p. m.

MOTOR VEHICLE CONFERENCE APPROVES 37 HEADLIGHTS

Tourists and other inter-state drivers may now start out from Connecticut with their automobiles equipped with any one of thirty-seven headlight devices and proceed through all the eastern states without running a risk of being stopped for operating with illegal lenses. This has been made possible by the conference list which the Connecticut motor vehicle department has adopted and just printed in the interests of uniformity.

The conference of motor vehicle administrators, representing Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New Hampshire, New York, Maryland, Maine, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island and Vermont, approved the uniform list at its last meeting. This makes all of the thirty-seven devices listed below legal in all of the member states. Some states are limiting their motorists to this list alone, but the Connecticut department has also published a "B" list which includes thirty-one more devices which are not on the conference list, but which are legal in Connecticut. Many of the makes on this second list are no longer being manufactured but are being retained as legal for the benefit of motorists who have previously installed them. Eventually these "orphan devices" will be removed from the list.

COMMITTEE ON HOSPITAL DRIVE IS AT WORK

President H. M. Lerou of the chamber of commerce has appointed the special committee which he was directed to name to consider the plan to be followed in the Backus hospital's drive for $250,000 for which a time in October was selected by a citizens' meeting. He has named H. A. Tirrell, president of the trustees of the hospital, Rev. W. A. Keefe, pastor of St. Mary's Memorial church; John F. Rogers, resident manager of the United States Finishing company, and Dr. George Thompson of Taftville. President Lerou is likewise a member of the committee, according to the vote taken in the citizens' meeting.

The committee held its first meeting on Wednesday evening and discussed in a preliminary way some of the essential details which arise in a campaign of this kind.

GRACE CHURCH, YANTIC, NEEDS ANOTHER BELL

Grace church needs one more bell to complete the chime of four bells which constitute a Cambridge quarter.

It is proposed to have this bell a memorial to our glorious dead who in the late war on land and sea, in the air and in the hospitals, "with armour buckled on, and flag unfurled, the heights of death they trod. Translated from the war zone of the world into the peace of God."

The cost of this bell will be $650 including installation.

It is further hoped to place in the church tower the mechanism to strike three bells the hours and the quarters. This will mean an outlay of one thousand dollars. Any interested in this undertaking E. Allen Bidwell, the treasurer of the church, or the rector will gladly see or hear from them.

PRESENTED PURSE TO BULLETIN FOREMAN

Perry H. Corning, who has been foreman of the newspaper compesing room of The Bulletin for ten years of the twenty-three years during which he has been employed there, concluded his employment there Friday night, having recently presented his resignation in order to take a rest in the interest of his health.

At the lunch hour Friday night his associates on the newspaper staff presented him a purse of gold. The presentation was made by George B. Nelbert, who fittingly expressed the cordial and fraternal feeling that has always existed among the newspaper workers and the high esteem in which they have held Foreman Corning, who will always have their sincerest good wishes. Mr. Corning responded briefly in acknowledging the gift and the good wishes that accompanied it.

On Motor Trip to New Hampshire.

Clarence Sholes and family are motoring to New Hampshire to stay a week with Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Potter. Mr. Potter is a brother of Mrs. Sholes who lives in Charlestown, N. H., and runs a large farm there.

To paint the Brooklyn bridge about 117,000 pounds of paint are required.

PRAISES JAIL SENTENCES FOR RECKLESS OPERATORS

Motor Vehicle Commissioner Rollins B. Stoeckel issues a warning against reckless automobile operators and commends a policy that would give jail sentences in such cases in Connecticut.

The following bulletin covers the automobile situation in this state up to June 30:

An analysis of recent motor vehicle accidents shows that the situation so far as it relates to directed traffic, meaning traffic which is under the control and supervision of the police forces, is better than ever before in Connecticut. Nearly all of the accidents reported occurred in undirected traffic in locations within cities and on the highways where the motor vehicle operator is free to exercise his own judgment and is not in any way supervised. There is no question but that in the last analysis the elimination of accidents depends mainly upon self-government by operators but the fact that state and city enforcement authorities are getting more and more traffic under supervision and in a better way than formerly, is most helpful. In this connection the state police will, within two weeks, have a largely increased force which will patrol traffic on the highways of the state.

Accidents Increasing.

Two thousand two hundred and eighteen motor vehicle accidents were reported to the department for the month of June, as against 1,408 for the corresponding month last year. They were classified in the department records as follows:

Slight damage	707
Medium damage	1023
Serious damage	42
Slight injury	236
Medium injury	116
Serious injury	27
Fatal injury	17
Total	2218

One hundred and eighty accidents last month resulted in both personal injury and property damage. Of the 2218 accidents, 704 occurred in Hartford, New Haven, Bridgeport, Waterbury, New Britain and Meriden. Accidents for the first six months of the year total 6,308, against 3,825 for the corresponding period last year. Of the accidents reported this year, 2,692 occurred in the above mentioned cities. Classification of these accidents follows:

Slight damage	707
Medium damage	1129
Serious damage	88
Slight injury	867
Medium injury	125
Serious injury	42
Fatal injury	34
Total	3692

Fatalities.

In the entire state seventy-five fatal motor vehicle accidents occurred in the past six months, which number is more than 66 per cent of all the fatal accidents in which motor vehicles figured in the state in the whole year of 1922.

Already in July the motor vehicle has been responsible for eighteen deaths in Connecticut, whereas in the same period of 1922 there were only three such fatalities. At the present rate the July toll will be the worst on record. While of course the greater number of motor vehicles on the highways this year has increased the hazard, the record for 1923, thus far, shows the need of redoubled activities along the line of educating the public to the necessity of extreme caution.

Unnecessary Noise.

There is hardly an instrumentality in the control of individuals which has capabilities superior to an automobile for being made an unmitigated nuisance. Any person who disregards the feelings of others can create unnecessary noise without apparently breaking any law. The uncalled for use of the horn can be corrected; it ought to be used as a warning signal only at an appropriate time. It is not necessary to sound the horn when entering traffic unless there is some special reason for it. There is too much use of the horn on the part of operators to enforce a right of way. In other words, some drivers appear desirous of notifying the world, in instances like this, that they are there and that everybody else should look out for them. This is unnecessary, and improper use of the horn signal and should be corrected.

The muffler cut-out nuisance should be stamped out. In the opinion of prominent medical men sick persons are unquestionably harmed by unnecessary street noise and the automobile must be more strictly supervised from this standpoint. There have been very few arrests made of either car or motorcycle drivers during the last month, for operating without use of the muffler. Such arrests ought to be made and less noise from those sources ought to be insisted upon. The department is adjudicating a great many complaints on this account, and, while it has attempted to be fair, it is becoming stricter and suspending licenses in cases of offenders who have prior records in this respect. The newspaper publicity which the department has received in connection with this subject, as well as with all other matters with which it has been concerned, has been extremely strong and helpful.

Thirteen Jail Sentences.

This publicity emphasizes the responsibility that rests upon the individual driver and, with other agencies, is creating a public sentiment for severe punishment in cases where this responsibility is not recognized. There have been thirteen jail sentences imposed in the state during the last month, whereas there were nine in June, 1922.

In the last six months, 1,517 motor vehicle operators were fined an aggregate of $38,774.85. The tendency of the courts to make the discipline more severe is shown by the fact that the number of fines in the last quarter was triple the number for the first quarter and that the aggregate of the fines jumped from $10,512.57 in the first quarter to $28,262.28 in the second quarter. It is natural, of course, that there should be an increase in the second quarter, when automobiles in use are more numerous, but the number of fines is out of proportion to figures for corresponding periods in previous years, and is a healthy indication that courts are gradually becoming more severe with reckless and slack motor vehicle operators.

Pedestrians.

Pedestrians continue to indulge in "jay walking" and there have been the usual number of accidents. There have been ten deaths of pedestrians during the month of June, of which five were children. There were eleven such fatalities in June, 1922. Carelessness on the part of pedestrians and motorists as well cost the lives of 113 of the former in Connecticut last year.

Safety Rules.

The things to do in connection with the management of traffic and the attempt to reduce accidents seem to be perfectly simple, even though to a degree they may be ineffective. They are:

(1) To attempt in every possible way to create greater public sentiment which will demand responsibility on the part of operators of cars and due care from other persons in the highway:

(2) To reduce speed at intersections;

(3) To support in every possible way the state police highway patrol and to inform the department of motor vehicles where bad traffic pockets and dangerous locations exist.

(4) To follow up the subject of complaints; and

(5) To commence a policy of education through every agency at command.

Suspended Licenses.

Every police force ought to emphasize the higher education of traffic officers not only in the state law but with a view to fitting them as instructors in schools and creators of the public opinion referred to.

The newspapers are the main and best educational method. There has been a tendency on the part of some editorial writers to attempt to construe the law and there have been some wrong constructions. One especially informed the public that even though a man's license might be suspended by the department he could nevertheless drive if accompanied by a licensed operator. This is emphatically not so. Any person whose license is suspended cannot drive at all during the period of suspension. Otherwise the newspaper publicity has been of the greatest value and there is no other single agency which is doing so much to strengthen our position as the newspapers of the state.

ALPHA CLASS PICNIC AT CHAPMAN'S POINT

The members of the Alpha class of the Universalist church were entertained Thursday at the cottage of Mrs. M. A. Barber at Chapman's Point, Groton. The members made the trip to the shore by trolley and automobile bus and the day was pleasantly spent with swimming and a football game between picked teams.

Members provided basket lunches but were given a surprise at noon when boiled lobster and coffee were added to the menu.

The guests were delighted with their entertainment at the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Barber and enjoyed every minute of their stay at the shore.

Tramps Warned Out of Town.

In the city court Friday morning J. Morofski was fined $20 and costs, a total of $31.06 after being found guilty of intoxication and using a picket from a fence to fight a woman. He paid his bill.

Six men who had made their abode for the night at a barn near the Wild Cat rock in Preston were given warning to leave the city immediately and complied with the court orders upon their release.

A hearing was held in chambers for two girls who had trouble in a local mill and they were given advice to shake hands and forget it.

NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Interest fifty years ago in Norwich was centered around the talk of bringing the college boat races to the Thames river, a change from Springfield where complaints have been frequent.

Farmers were also delighted to see rain after a drought of two months. Other incidents in part from the files of the Bulletin of 1873 are as follows:

Monday, July 14, 1873—A boat race took place on the river Saturday night between Cyril and Garrity and Thomas Shannon and Thomas Carroll for a purse of $20 a side. The race was from the steamboat wharf to a buoy opposite the coal wharf and was easily won by Shannon and Carroll by several boat lengths. A large crowd witnessed the race.

At the annual meeting of the second school district in Preston, held Friday Luzerne Spalding was elected committee, N. S. Wentworth, clerk, Asahel Tannar, treasurer and B. A. Dow, collector. A tax of three mills was laid and a vote passed to divide the primary school and employ another teacher in that department.

J. P. Millers' brass and string band began their season at Watch Hill, today, playing alternately at the Larkin house and Watch Hill House.

A. D. Smith and two other local men have purchased the New York Herald.

Tuesday, July 15, 1873—An account was started in the Norwich Savings Bank in 1833 and between that date and 1836 amount deposited reached $170. Since then there has been withdrawn $464.02 and there still remains to the credit of the depositor the sum of $914.60, the interest on the original deposit of $170 accounting for the increase.

Yesterday was the hottest day of the season the thermometer at 3.30 in the afternoon marking 96 degrees in the shade and people were suffering as the closeness of the atmosphere added to the oppressiveness of the weather.

Rewards totalling $1500 have been offered for information leading to the arrest of the people guilty of setting fire to the Sterry Faucet company building last week and many people are at work endeavoring to earn this goodly sum of money, also to make an example of the type of people who would destroy the property of others.

Erastus Capen of South Windham has presented to Delanoy Steamer company, a tame fox, which has been named Dan Delanoy.

Wednesday, July 16, 1873—The complaints made against the Springfield regatta course excite more interest daily in the advantages offered by the Thames for the event. Although local people would like to see the crews in the Thames many are going to Springfield today to see the eleven crews strive for honors. Yale, Harvard and Cornell are favored.

The new bridge at the Norwich falls will be opened within a few days. This is one of the most substantial structures in the town. Joe Carrier is putting on the finishing touches.

There is considerable agitation to have the reading room opened immediately, although the $2,000 asked for has not yet been raised. It is understood however, that the directors are not to open the reading room until the whole amount has been raised.

Thursday, July 17, 1873—Peckham brothers have just placed on the market a novel fly trap which is proving to be a blessing to the housewives who have been troubled with the flies this summer. The trap is hive shaped and holes are placed at the bottom where the flies can crawl in to get at the sugar or molasses but once in they can not get out for the reason that the entrance is closed to them by sharp pointed wires.

The cry of an ice water vender nearby last evening caused considerable excitement for it was taken for a fire and the word was passed along until two hose companies responded. No loss; fully insured.

Hartford papers speak well of Hon. John T. Wait of Norwich who has been elected republican party leader in the House, stating that Mr. Wait has always held the respect of the democrats in fairness, never failing to steadily adhere to the pronounced principals of the republican party when occasion demanded.

A party of negroes passing down Main street last evening were given a scare when a youngster pulled out a revolver and in play pointed it at his sister and pulled the trigger. The pistol was loaded and the bullet missing his sister struck a friend in the head inflicting a severe scalp wound. Measures are being taken to put an end to the carrying of loaded weapons about local streets.

Private Smith in his three games with Captain Farrel of Hartford has the advantage in all three.

Friday, July 18, 1873—As the 9 o'clock train rounded the curve below the stove foundry yesterday morning Engineer Leach saw the boom of a schooner projecting out over the tracks. He was too close to stop so dropped back and waited to see the smoke stack and top of his cab go off. The boom was high enough to miss the stack and the cab but ripped every one of the ventilator pipes from the passenger coaches. The schooner had been run bow first against the dock and coal unloaded from the stern first throwing the bow-sprit over the track a foolish piece of work.

Later in the day Mr. Leach accidently dropped his pine torch setting fire to benzine in his cab. Before the fire was extinguished he was badly burned about the arms and face.

Austin Harris and Horace Sherman of Greeneville went fishing yesterday and came back with thirty-six trout that weighed over a pound apiece, about forty pickerel and one hundred bull heads, a pretty good catch for one day's sport.

The office and the waiting room of the horse railroad has been discontinued for the present but it is understood that an extra will be kept on the switch to accommodate passengers wishing to make connections.

Saturday, July 19, 1873—Thousands of people among them many Norwich people saw the Blue triumph at Springfield over a field of eleven entries. Yale swung over the line a fearful distance ahead of Wesleyan and Harvard a bad third. Yale's time for the three miles was given as 16.59 and Wesleyan 17.03.

At last, comes the long awaited rain. It fell, tapped and whispered all last night in city and hamlet, over field and forest; and today the faces of those, whose fields are their wealth, have lost the look of worry, and the leaves of maize, the great crops of New England are standing upright, and the farmers are chuckling. It was the first real rain since May 14th over two months ago and comes at a time when things looked darkest for local farmers who for weeks past have watched their crops slowly turn brown under the rays of the hot sun.

LEGHORNS AT STORRS KEEPING UP THE PACE

Leghorns in the Storrs egg laying contest continued to grind away at a great rate. In the thirty seventh week Emory H. Bartlett's pen from Enfield, Mass., finished in first place with a score of 55 eggs. Two other pens of Leghorns entered by F. M. Johnson from Waldoboro, Maine, and James O LeFevre from New Paltz, N. Y., tied for second place with 43 eggs each. Connecticut pen of the same breed owned by Leo F. Grouton of Farmington captured third place with a production of 38 eggs. D. B. Wells pen of Leghorns from the great poultry producing center of Petaluma, Calif., was fourth best pen with a yield of 50 eggs. The total lay for all pens was 3707 eggs or a yield of 14 per cent, a very slight excess over the corresponding period last year and a jump of more than 150 eggs over last week's production.

There were several significant changes among the leading pens in the Plymouth Rock class a Massachusetts pen lagged and lost fourth place to the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph. Again in the Rhode Island Red group a Massachusetts pen slowed up enough to lose fourth place to Deer Brook Poultry Farm from Short Falls, N. H. In the Leghorn alley a New Jersey pen leaped a little too long and lost their place to Meadowedge Farm from Cedarhurst, L. I. The Wyandottes are the only group in which there was no shifting. Every pen held steady with the English breeder first, Connecticut breeders in second and fourth places and a Rhode Island breeder third.

CONDITIONS OF AMERICAN PEACE AWARD OF $100,000

Competition Open to Every Citizen of the United States—Must Define Practical Means Whereby the United States Can Take Its Place and Do Its Share Toward Preserving World Peace, While Not Making Compulsory Participation in Any European War—Award Has Been Created by Edward W. Bok.

New York, July 23.—The conditions under which plans for the $100,000 American peace award, created by Edward W. Bok, must be submitted, were made public by the committee in charge today.

These define the scope of the plan sought as one "that must provide a practicable means whereby the United States can take its place and do its share toward preserving world peace, while not making compulsory the participation of the United States in European war if any such are, in the future found unpreventable. The plan may be based upon the present covenant of the league of nations or may be entirely apart from that instrument."

Competition is open to every United States citizen, whether by birth or naturalization and plans may be submitted not only by individuals, but also by organizatoins, national, state or local. Only one plan may be submitted by any one contestant. Manuscripts, which must be typewritten, must be accompanied by a summary of not more than 500 words, while the paper, itself, must not be over 5,000 words.

Manuscripts must not bear the author's name or any identifying sign, but must have attached a plain sealed envelope containing the author's name and address. These will be given numbers corresponding to a number to be given each manuscript and will be opened after the jury of award has made its selection.

All plans must be received at the offices of the American peace award in New York by midnight of November 15, 1923. The names of the jury of award will be announced about September 1, next.

The committee announced that it is possible the jury of award may select a plan which is a composite of the best plan and of sections and ideas taken from each of several other plans. In that event, a second, third and fourth and fifth award of $5,000 each will be made in addition to the principal one of $100,000.

The formal conditions reiterate that the main award is to be made in two payments, $50,000 to be paid upon announcement of the selection by the jury of award and the other $50,000 when and if the plan is approved by the United States senate or upon demonstration of an adequate degree of popular support.

Contestants may obtain a copy of the conditions at the organization's headquarters after Wednesday of this week.

WORKMEN IN FLOUR MILL KILLED BY FUMIGATING GAS

New York, July 23.—Bodies of three workmen, killed, police said, by a fumigating gas, were found today in a flour mill of the Hecker-Jones Jewell Milling company.

The mill was fumigated yesterday afternoon, it was said, after orders had been issued for all employes to leave the plant.

Firemen wearing gas masks searched the flour mill which covers several city blocks, for other possible victims. They were forced to work in relays as the gas seeped through their helmets.

The first intimation of the tragedy came when a hysterical woman pounded on the door of the plant. She attracted so much attention that an official of the company was notified. Bobbing, she told him her brother had not been home since yesterday. Two other women, dishevelled and crying, joined them.

The official quickly opened the door but was forced to flee as the heavy fumes swept outward. Dr. Robert Kahn of Gouverneur hospital, who arrived in an ambulance, donned a gas mask and plunged into the plant. He stumbled on the bodies of the three men. Firemen carried the bodies outside.

Police reserves were summoned to hold back a mob of 10,000 persons which quickly formed around the plant. Many women, relatives of men who worked in the plant, fought with the police to get in and help the searchers.

Twenty firemen would have been killed if a fire had broken out in the plant, Assistant Chief Hayes said. He asserted arrests would be made as soon as responsibility for the neglect to notify the fire department of the fumigation had been placed.

Even had the three victims of the deadly gas been able to reach the doors, it was said tonight, their efforts to escape would have been futile. Doors and windows of the factory had been sealed prior to turning loose the fumes within the building.

BEATEN IN GEORGIA WHILE IN CONVICT LABOR CAMP

New York, July 22—Threatening to kill himself if returned to a Georgia convict road gang from which he said he escaped early this year, William McGarrity, a book salesman, showed detectives welts on his back which he said were caused by lashings, when he was arrested today on a charge of being a fugitive from justice from that state.

McGarrity said he worked fourteen hours daily on the road gang and repeatedly was beaten. Finally an opportunity to escape came.

By secreting himself along weed-grown roadsides by day, he said, and putting distance between himself and the prison and its searching parties by night, together with friendly aid, he escaped. He claimed to have been the first white man to have made such an escape in Georgia.

When arraigned and ordered held, he declared:

"I'll kill myself if I have to return to that horror."

WATER SUPPLY SHUT OFF BY BREAK IN MAIN PIPE

Randolph, Mass., July 22.—Citizens of this and three neighboring towns today searched the countryside for springs and streams to take the place of the usual water supply cut off by a break in the main pipe near Great pond, the chief reservoir. The authorities of Randolph, North Randolph, Brookville and Holbrook took extraordinary precautions to prevent an outbreak of fire.

The break occurred late yesterday afternoon. The sole available water supply was in several culverts, carefully guarded for fire purposes. The 5,000 residents with barrels, cans, pitchers and other containers sought for drinking water from long disused wells and springs. Wells were drained dry today.

DEATH AT 67 OF HARRY SOKOLOFF, BLIND VIOLINIST

New Haven, July 23.—Harry Sokoloff, 67, blind violinist, who died Thursday at his home here, was the father of Nikolai Sokoloff, conductor of the Cleveland Symphony orchestra, it became known here tonight. The latter, who is aboard the liner Orduna, due to dock at New York tomorrow, was notified of his father's death by wireless. The Cleveland conductor is returning from London, where he has been guest conductor of the London Symphony orchestra.

Mr. Sokoloff, Sr., at one time was conductor of a famous Russian orchestra. He had been blind 32 years.

HARDING TO CONCLUDE VISIT TO ALASKA TODAY

Sitka, Alaska, July 23.—(By The A. P.)—President Harding concluded his visit to Alaska here today exactly two weeks from the day he first stepped on the soil of the territory and tonight, the marine transport, Henderson, carrying the presidential party, steamed out of the harbor bound for Vancouver, B. C., and Seattle.

The chief executive and also Mrs. Harding expressed a deep feeling of regreat as they said farewell to the citizens of this little town, and ohough these citizens, good-bye to Alaska.

The two weeks spent in Alaska have given the president and his cabinet advisors a new vision of Alaska and, as he has said, a new determination to do all in his power to bring this vast territory to its fullest degree of development.

Whatever the government may do to aid Alaska in the future as a result of the president's visit, the people of Alaska declare much already has been done because for two weeks more attention has been directed toward the territory than at any time since it was purchased by the United States in 1867.

The residents also believe Mr. Harding's visit has served to enlighten people of the states regarding Alaskan resources.

The president, during his two weeks stay, has visited eleven towns and several little settlements, has made three trips into the interior and has sailed along more than a thousand miles o the territory's coast line.

INCREASE IN NEW LIFE INSURANCE BUSINESS

New York, July 22.—A 20 percent. increase in new life insurance business in the first six months of 1923, compared with the same period last year, was reported by 48 companies, the life insurance research bureau of New York announced today. The largest gain was in the southern states, 33 per cent., which was attributed to improved financial conditions.

Total new business was $2,937,000,000 compared with $2,448,000,000 for the first half of 1922. In New England the advances were not so pronounced as in other sections of the country.

RATS IN ALARMING NUMBERS AT REVERE

Revere, Mass., July 22.—Rats in alarming numbers, some of which have bitten sleeping persons, have driven the local authorities to call on William G. Geekie, sanitary engineer, of Boston, for aid.

Non-poisonous traps and glue placed near holes form the first steps towards extermination. Civic organizations are asked to offer bounties on dead rats.

Quick action is necessary because conditions in Revere and vicinity are serious, Mr. Geekie's report says.

PROPOSE ASSESSMENT TO AID TELEPHONE STRIKERS

Worcester, Mass., July 22.—An assessment of not less than 50 cents on every labor union member in Massachusetts to support the strike of telephone operators was recommended at a meeting of Central Labor Union heads of the state at the Labor Temple here today.

WHOLESALE RAIDS BY DRY AGENTS IN NEW YORK

New York, July 22.—Three prohibition agents, cruising in an automobile below 59th street from midnight to noon today, raided 20 restaurants, saloons and other places and charged 34 persons with violation of the Volstead law. EAMON DE VALERA MAKES APPEAL FOR ELECTION FUNDS

Dublin, July 22 (By the A. P.)—Eamon De Valera, in a message to the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic appealing for election funds, says the people of Ireland still are overwhelmingly republican at heart and that the Anglos-Irish treaty was forced on them by threats of war by England.

INCREASE IN MANUFACTURING IN THE UNITED STATES

Washington, July 22.—Manufacturing in the United States during 1921 resulted in the production of finished goods worth $43,653,253,000 compared with an output of $42,041,795,000 in 1919 and $23,987,360,000 in 1914.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Resents Russian Interference.

Sofia, Bulgaria, July 22.—M. Rusteff, minister of the interior, has issued a statement denouncing the interference of the Russian government in the internal affairs of Bulgaria. The minister accuses the Russian Red Cross delegation dealing with Russian refugees with a deliberate attempt to establish soviet rule in Bulgaria, counting upon conditions incident to the change in government to facilitate their efforts.

Pope Received U. S. Sailors.

Rome, July 22.—Pope Pius received more than a hundred American sailors in the Consistorial hall today. The pontiff encouraged the sailors to fulfill their duties and after giving them his hand to kiss, imparted the apostolic benediction. Later the pope granted an audience to Bishop Thomas J. Shahan, rector of the Catholic university, in Washington. He showed much interest in the affairs of the Washington institution and asked especially about the condition of its library.

BRITISH NOTE HAS ARRIVED IN BRUSSELS

Brussels, July 22 (By the A. P.)—The British note on reparations on its arrival here by special courier was immediately examined by Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Jasper, and then translated. Both ministers studied it thoroughly in preparation for a discussion at a cabinet council tomorrow. The feeling in official quarters can be described as still optimistic.

If the British views, as expressed in the note, were regarded as unchangeable and not open to modification after due discussion, it is believed this optimistic feeling would not exist, as some of the points in the document are not comprehensible to the Belgian mind.

It is thought that the diplomatic conversations which now are entering upon a period of great activity will be aided by developments in the situation in Germany, which are considered to be evolving rapidly in a direction favorable to the Franco-Belgian policy.

FIVE "WIDOWS" PUT N CLAIMS FOR VILLA ESTATE

El Paso, Texas, July 22.—While five "widows" put in claims for a share of the estate and a federal commission from Mexico City proceeds to investigate the assassination of Gengral Francisco Villa officially, the retainers of the murdered ex-bandit and revolutionary chieftain at Canutillo, Durango, threaten a war of revenge, according to a special despatch from Parral to the Chihuahua daily newspaper.

Guerrilla fighters have already started search for Villa's slayers, it is reported.

Senora Austreberta Renteria is the only one of the alleged Villa widows mentioned by name in the despatch, but two other women are said to have claimed a deceased wife's right in Parral, while the arrival of another claimant from Torreon is momentarily expected. There is also the dead leader's admitted wife, Senora Luz Corral De Villa, who is living in the United States.

SEATTLE IS READY TO WELCOME THE PRESIDENT

Seattle, Washn., July 22.—Seattle is ready to welcome President Harding Friday.

Reviewing the battle fleet, which will salute him a mighty roar, the president is due to leave his floating headquarters, the transport Henderson, at 10 o'clock in the morning. Eight hundred soldiers and forty selected Boy Scouts will form a special guard of honor, greeting the president as he leaves his ship.

The president will head a parade through the downtown district to Woodland Park, where he will administer the pledge of allegiance to country and flag to the boys of the annual Elks' picnic. Fifty thousand boys are expected to attend. From Yakima, 150 boys are marching on foot over the mountains to Seattle, led by a troop of Boy Scouts.

The president will deliver his Alaskan address in the immense stadium of the niversity of Washington.

APPEALED FOR SUPPORT OF REPUBLICANISM IN IRELAND

Boston, July 22.—Appearing as the personal representative of Eamonn De Valera, Donald O'Callaghan, former lord mayor of Cork, urged the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, meeting here today, to set aside their quarrels and stand solidly behind republicanism in Ireland.

O'Callaghan said his mission here was to make the association pliable so that it would be able to shift to any stand taken by the republican officials in Ireland. He maintained that a real republican government existed in Ireland and that De Valera was making the same stand for a free country as before the treaty with Great Britain.

The convention accorded a warm welcome to Mrs. Catharine Wheelwright of Rochester, N. Y., mother of De Valera, who appeared at the hall and was escorted to the platform by a guard of honor.

FAILED TO SWIM ACROSS LONG ISLAND SOUND

Bridgeport, July 22.—Sam Driver, local sportsman and swimmer, failed in his attempt to swim Long Island sound today. He started from Oldfield Point, L. I., at 6.15 this morning, but was forced to quit after being in the water ten hours, due to the change in current and low trend in temperature taken after a thunder shower in the afternoon. He was about four miles from the Connecticut shore when he quit.

Oldfield Point is about fourteen miles on a direct line from Bridgeport. Driver entertains hopes of attempting to swim the English channel.

Their action would end the strike of miners of District 24, United Mine Workers, against the presence of troops in the district.

Will Not Recognize Russian Soviet Gov't

While Its Leaders Continue to Evince "a Spirit of Destruction at Home and Abroad" Sec'y Hughes' Views.

Washington, July 22.—Recognition of the Russian soviet government by the United States cannot come while its leaders continue to evince "a spirit of destruction at home and abroad," according to a declaration by Secretary Hughes made public today. In an exchange of correspondence with Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, Mr. Hughes renewed a statement of principles which he said was guiding American governmental policies with regard to Russia, while Mr. Gompers made direct reference to the recent public demands, from senators and others who have visited Russia, for recognition.

American tradition, Mr. Hughes said, founded on a desire to refrain from interference with internal affairs of other nations, might require recognition of any government, even a government of a "tyrannical minority," when the people of the nation concerned manifested "acquiescence or submission" to it. Nevertheless, recognition being "an invitation to intercourse," the government seeking recognition should evince a disposition to "live up to the obligations of intercourse," he declared, denying in detail assertions that the Russian government was so doing.

Mr. Gompers, remarking on "misinformation gathered by returning travelers during closely supervised tours" in Russia, suggested in a letter to the secretary of state that some purpose might be served if those standing for the American concept of right and justice and democracy could be given clearly to understand that the backbone of the whole situation regarding Russia is the denial to the people of Russia of any opportunity to pass judgment on their own affairs or to say by whom or in what manner they shall be governed."

WEEKLY REVIEW OF BUSINESS AND FINANCE

New York, July 22 (By the A. P.)—Firmer markets for both securities and commodities have been the feature of the past week in business and finance. In some cases, such as copper, this was attributed to the imminence of new buying movements in others it was considered to be due to the strong situation which normally develops after half-year settlements have been made and July 1 dividends interest payments have been distributed. There was also a disposition to emphasize the disregard by the markets of what might be considered bad news, this being taken as an indication of the material strengthening of the speculative position which was brought about by the liquidation of the later spring.

One of the encouraging events of the week was the check imposed on the decline in wheat prices. After the leading futures had declined to the vicinity of 96 cents a bushel a sudden rebound carried them back up to about the dollar level. No particular explanation of the rally was given, other than that it was the result of buying induced by the relative cheapness of the commodity. Nevertheless, the recovery was generally pleasing and served to encourage upward movements in the other markets.

Another factor which contributed to the more cheerful feeling which was in evidence was greater optimism over the progress of the reparations negotiations. Cables from abroad brought rumors of Germany's desire to effect a settlement and her willingness to abandon her stand on passive resistance in the Ruhr. In addition, it was reported that the French attitude toward the impending British note would not be as uncompromising as had been reported earlier. This revived hopes that the British reply to Germany might furnish the basis for an early settlement.

EXCURSION STEAMER BROKE DOWN IN SOUND

New York, July 23.—Two thousand excursionists, most of them Knights of Pythias from New Haven, Conn., had their sight-seeing visit to New York cut short when the excursion steamer Grand Republic, sister ship of the ill-fated General Slocum, broke down on her way from New Haven. Another ship was chartered and the travelers left the Battery about 10 o'clock after standing on the pier for two hours clamoring for some sort of craft to take them home.

The Grand Republic was several hours late in reaching New York. The trouble was caused by a broken boiler which went out of order as the ship was passing Sanford Point about noon. The journey from then on was a mere crawl, passengers said, and they reached New York about six o'clock. They were told to return at 8 o'clock and a boat would be ready. Police reserves guarded the passengers on the beir as they waited for a boat.

POINCARE SCORES VIEWS OF DAVID LLOYD GEORGE

Brands as "Iniquitous" Placing of France and Germany on the Same Plane—Invites Investigation and Comparison of Conditions in Ainse Region and in the Ruhr—Says That While Defaulting Reparations Payments, Germany Has Rebuilt Her Mercantile Fleet and Developed Her Railroads.

Villers-Cotterets, France, July 23 (By the A. P.)—Premier Poincare today gave a dramatic outline of the French counter-offensive in the summer of 1918 at the unveiling of a monument to the soldiers who fell in the World war. In his address he made no allusion to the British note concerning reparations.

The premier replied to the recent speech of David Lloyd George, former British prime minister, describing the prosperity of France. A considerable portion of the speech dealt with the "German general staff's monstrous program of economic annihilation for France, drawn up in 1916 by specialists, of which we have authentic copies."

To place France and Germany on the same plane as Mr. Lloyd George did was "iniquitous," M. Poincare declared. When Germany rebuilt her mercantile fleet, developed her railroads and dug new canals, was she repairing damages or undertaking improvement; was she paying for these improvements from available resources or to the detriment of payment of her debt to the allies, the premier asked. All of this might be "amusing," as Mr. Lloyd George said he found it, but for France it was sad—even unbearable.

"Why didn't they go into the Ruhr with us?" asked M. Poincare. "They would better understand what the real dangers of tomorrow are."

The premier then described the organization of German industry as he is making not only vast horizontal cartels but as prodigious vertical concerns controlling all forms of production, from raw materials to finished products, thus holding a monopoly on national wealth and dominating the state more and more daily. He said the German republic was being subjected to a new caste, haughty and as violently opposed to the liberties of the peoples as the junkers, which was the master of the Berlin government and of the German press.

"If we commit the imprudence today of enclosing Germany's capacity for payment in a fixed and permanent frame," declared M. Poincare, "she will quickly evade us; our arbitrary measures will soon come under the influence of this extraordinary agglomeration of industrial forces, and, by reconquering economic supremacy, will impose upon the world the scandal of a most retrograde and immoral policy."

Great Britain, Belgium, Italy, and France, said M. Poincare, must unite closely to avert this peril and, not be led astray by the false illusion of an impoverished and forever powerless Germany.

The German plan of devastation from which M. Poincare quoted extracts tended to show how even in 1916 Germany believed the damages she had inflicted on France's industries would cripple France a year or two, as compared with Germany, with regard to wool-spinning, although "unhappily it is to be feared England takes the most part" of the plan.

The plan enumerated the raw materials and manufactured goods to be removed from invaded departments in nearly twenty industries and showed that the Germans counted not only on the damage to be done but the time that would be required for France to become her serious rival.

M. Poincare concluded by asking if a visit to the Aisne region, to be followed by a trip through the Ruhr, would not be sufficient to provide the allied governments with elements of instructive comparison and grounds for an equitable decision. "Let us hope," he declared, "that none of our friends will reject this short investigation, which involves no financial surveys or expert international inquiries."

SENATOR HIRAM JOHNSON RETURNING FROM EUROPE

New York, July 22 (By the A. P.)—Senator Hiram Johnson of California, one of the host of American legislators who has been studying the European situation first hand this summer, returns tomorrow on the Leviathan from a four months' tour of Europe during which he visited England, France, Italy and Germany and conferred on world politics with leading statesmen.

A committee of 24 of the senator's friends planned tonight to go down the bay in the morning to extend an elaborate welcome to the returning senator who, they said, comes with an important message to the American people.

The message, it was said, probably would be embodied in an address which Senator Johnson is expected to make Wednesday night at a dinner in his honor. It is expected he will declare openly his views on the present state of Europe, particularly that of Russia.

The senator's friends also expect him to indicate his attitude at the national republican convention next year possibly giving a hint of his presidential preference.

In Europe the senator conferred with Premier Mussolini of Italy, Premier Poincare of France, and Leonid Krassin, soviet minister of foreign trade and commerce. At the Hague he attended a session of the world court and studied its proceedings but refused to comment.

In London he declared himself as convinced that the United States must stay out of Europe.

Following the attack the men were taken to George Ferguson's home and an ambulance sent for, the letter stated. Upon the arrival of a stranger who said, "you've got the wrong boy" the officer let them go, the letter said.

TO PLACE SHIPS IN HANDS OF PRACTICAL SHIPPING MEN

New York, July 23.—A plan to place government owned ships under control in the hands of practical shipping men has been submitted to Chairman Edward P. Farley of the United States shipping board by the executive committee of the American Steamship Owners' Association, it became known today.

The plan is suggested as an alternative to the policy of direct government operation. The expense of such operation would be paid from the earnings of the vessels so far as these suffice.

The operators would be reimbursed by the shipping board for their expenses but would agree to make no financial profit out of the operation unless the earnings exceeded all expenses in which event the profits would go into a sinking fund to apply on the purchase of the vessels.

President Alfred Gilbert Smith of the American Steamship Owners' association asserts that adoption of the plan would reduce the shipping board's epenses and at the same time would assure the highest efficiency in operation, because it would eliminate the possibility of any gain to the operator except through purchase of the ships.
